UNCONVENTIONALITIES.

A. W. Batchelder, Boston, imbibed deeply of the sparkling spring water at Manitou, and forthwith bubbled over with high spirits. He effervesced good cheer and was a leading factor in everything; he was equally at home in the manor of sense and in the castle of nonsense. Mr. Batchelder missed nothing, and so great is our faith in Mr. Batchelder's probity that we say on our own responsibility that his friends likewise missed nothing. A learned onlooker, present whereabouts unknown, when asked what he thought of Mr. Batchelder said that he was sui generis.

W. O. Wylie of the WEEKLY was much interested in the water tanks en route and the various systems of irrigation in vogue. He drank in the atmosphere at the summit of Pike's Peak, much to the amazement of his friends, who watched him furtively as they had in mind the advertising booklet's declaration that "so exhilirating is the air above the clouds that a species of intoxication often exalts the one who quaffs the tonic atmosphere with the freedom of innocence."

E. de Z. Kelley, Boston, made everybody happy with the exception of the reporters who could not understand the "de Z" combination, even though they wrestled with it manfully. One scribe cut the Gordian knot by calling him "Dizzy." Mr. Kelley could not understand why anyone should care to waste time in sleep at a convention and he was awake at all times. He was always in the van, which is another way of saying that he occupied a prominent seat in the band-wagon. If there was anybody or anything that Mr. Kelley did not see during those strenuous days, we should like to know about it.

Dr. W. P. Wherry, Omaha, was one of the shining lights of the convention. He chaperoned the party of Chicago delegates that stopped off at Omaha, and we betray no trust when we say that Dr. Wherry was an all-around success. He prescribed for minor ills of the visitors but he admitted that he could not cure the stamp fever. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Whipple, Omaha, made many friends at their first convention.

F. R. Cornwall, St. Louis, was a radiant feature of the business and social departments of the conclave. On the convention floor he was a commanding figure and in the lighter diversions, he was a leader. It was impossible for Mr. Cornwall to duplicate his Hecht's Wharf experience at Denver, for on this occasion everybody had their eyes on him. Mr. Cornwall was always alive to the situation and usually he managed to take a snap-shot of it.

Chester Myers, St. Louis, was pleasantly in evidence and his genial personality did much to promote the general cheer. Elmer C. A. Berger, St. Louis, too, was a distinct addition to the convention ranks, and if his city has any more at home like him, let it send them to the next convention.

Edward H. Hall, Fort Collins, Colorado, came early and tarried late. It warmed the hearts of the philatelic pioneers, especially, who attended the convention of the P. S. of A., in Denver, 1895, to meet Mr. Hall and find him unchanged and charmingly companionable. Mr. Hall was full of sage observations and wise saws, but he had no hammer.

Here are some of the philatelic flower of Colorado, that blossomed at Denver: Claude C. Beals, Boulder; Dick Green, Salida; W. Morton Webb, Leadville; R. T. Bunney, Golden; and J. A. Hayward, Pueblo.

C. C. Johnson, Milwaukee, read his report as chairman of the recruiting committee, whereupon the rafters rang with the applause of the delegates. It is no fiction to say that his report read like a romance; and Mr. Johnson, hereafter will be known to philatelists as the product that made Milwaukee famous. He could not dodge all the commendations that were hurled at him.

W. H. Linke, Milwaukee, absorbed the convention proceedings and the ozone with apparent satisfaction. The doctor said that he went to Colorado for a bit of rest; and it was a very little bit that he got, it is safe to say.

H. B. Phillips, Berkeley, California, was one of the master minds of the convention. All were glad to do Mr. Phillips honor and those who knew him through his solid philatelic attainments considered it a privilege to meet him personally. Mr. Phillips is certainly a desirable philatelic citizen, and recollections of him will be cherished.

A. H. Weber, San Francisco, was another celebrity from the coast and whatever he did or said was worth while. Mr. Weber's preference for minor varieties is respected but those who became to know him voted Mr. Weber a major variety.

A. W. Wheeler, Sterling, Illinois, was one of the worthiest representatives that Illinois could claim. Mr. Wheeler already has made a name for himself as a stamp student and writer; and the best is yet to come. Future years will have a pleasing story to tell of Mr. Wheeler.

E. T. Parker, Bethlehem, Pa., was properly receptive of all the attention shown him and many of his correspondents were glad to meet him in person. Mr. Parker's presence at conventions has become quite a necessity and it is hoped that he will continue to be a "regular." Mr. Parker's son, Lawrence, made his first appearance on any convention stage and was hailed as a popular favorite. Lawrence thought of staying in Colorado; he liked the—climate so well.

Mrs. T. S. Farquharson, Des Moines, Iowa, had the proud distinction of being the sole lady delegate to the convention. She was keenly interested in the business proceedings and her presence was greatly appreciated. Mrs. Farquharson says that she enjoyed her visit and everybody said that they enjoyed her visit; so, honors must be even.

Fritz G. Ertmann, Salt Lake City, Utah; Homer McCray, Kendallville, Indiana, and Maitland Milliken, McPherson, Kansas, were a trio that represented a wide geographical range. They attended their first stamp convention but the wish is expressed that they will prove continuous attractions at the annual fraternizations.

D. T. Eaton, Muscatine, Iowa, as usual was early on the scene; when he made his appearance a sigh of relief was felt, for then it was known that the convention would be held with accustomed formality. No gathering of the kind would be complete without Mr. Eaton's pleasant and sustaining influence.

S. B. Hopkins, St. Louis, made everybody look pleasant but it was only second nature for him to do so, as he was always on the qui vive to photograph an individual or group. Judging from Mr. Hopkins' industry in manipulating his trusty camera he will be in a position to offer many "snaps" the coming season. Mr. Hopkins brought home some of the good time he had, pictorially speaking.

L. C. Hassler, Louisville, was even more popular than ever. By his attendance at many conventions, Mr. Hassler has gained a legion of friends who are glad to pay tribute to his estimable qualities. Mr. Hassler is a most comfortable person to have at a stamp convention; he is willing to work or to play and he is equally satisfactory at either. In fairness to his friends, Mr. Hassler owes it to them to miss no future meeting.

G. C. Cuenod, Galveston, Texas, was welcomed by the delegates, the majority of whom previously were unacquainted personally with one who so often had entered into their thoughts; and Mr. Cuenod will remain a pleasant figure in memory.

The wives of the different Denver members attended the social sessions, and the following delegates were accompanied by their wives: H. N. Mudge, D. T. Eaton, S. B. Hopkins, A. H. Weber, Edward H. Hall, H. A. Whipple and W. H. Linke. Mrs. Myers, mother of Chester Myers, and Miss Phillips, daughter of H. B. Phillips, were in attendance.

By a fortunate coincidence, Mr. and Mrs. Z. G. Stebbins, Chicago, were in Denver before and during the convention period, and they spared no time or effort to entertain their friends, who were enthusiastic in praise of the hospitality shown them. Mr. Stebbins was a former member of the association, and he and Mrs. Stebbins attended the Milwaukee convention in 1900.

A number of Omaha collectors met one of the trains bearing delegates returning from the west; and a pleasant little chat was indulged in that was terminated only by the departure of the train. The courtesy of the Omaha members was gratefully accepted.

A second party of delegates homeward bound went by way of Kansas City, Mo., where they spent a day, the guests of Frank Bescher, of whose entertainment powess they tell wondrous tales.

The Denver Post offered stamp packets free during convention week to those who used the paper's want ad columns.

EDITORIAL.

A Record Rise—Among the comments called forth by the remarkable sale of the Breitfuss collection, we find several that tell graphically of the vast increase in value of certain stamps that Mr. Breitfuss bought many years ago. The London Philatelist in an editorial on the sale says, in the course of its extended remarks: "An uncut plate of the four pence engraved Nevis was bought by M. Breitfuss from M. Moens in 1883 for twelve shillings, double that price being paid for the plate of the six pence lithograph! The old shilling St. Vincent values were all bought at three or four shillings apiece, and the rarest Turks Islands surcharges, in blocks, averaged but a few pence each!" The appreciation in value of the specimens named is almost inconceivably great, in a period of about twenty-five years. Evidently, Mr. Breitfuss' philatelic acumen was tinctured with a bit of good fortune in buying many of his stamps at just the proper time. In 1883, the British colonials, as a rule, were quoted low in price, but a few years later, a marked advance in price was in effect. The stamps of the United States afforded a parallel instance; about 1891 or 1892, there was a sensational increase in their value, and any collector who had purchased his specimens just before that time saw a very pleasing "unearned increment" represented in his stamps.

Help It Along—Is the future to witness similar great rises in values? Certain it is that in isolated instances of a stamp here and there, the price will advance with bounds. At any given time, there are always a few stamps that are soaring in price but as for radical upward changes embracing a whole division of stamps, it is unlikely that the future will duplicate the past. Yet, so sure as new stamp collectors continue to be made, there is an axiomatic consequence that the demand for all stamps will increase with the result that prices will ascend. The collector who starts a few friends on the philatelic road may know that he is strengthening the prices of his own and all other stamps by his proselyting efforts. If there is one sure way to boom stamp prices under present conditions, it is by making many new collectors suddenly. If the individual collector would create a market for his common duplicates, let him persuade a friend to begin to collect; in case he does not feel free to give the stamps to the beginner, he may obtain a fair price for them. It is this idea that has many applications and it may be worked out in different ways that have a beneficial effect on philately as a whole. The doctrine of one collector making another should be preached constantly.

High Values—W. F. Gregory, New York City, submits a very interesting letter on the subject of the use of high value United States stamps; the communication was called forth by the remarks editorially in No. 865, on a clipping from the Wall Street Journal telling of heavy shipments of gold from Alaska by mail. Nothing was said at the time of the restriction of weight to four pounds, first class, and this consideration should have been mentioned, so that a correct understanding could have been had. Mr. Gregory says: "The gold shipped by mail from Alaska was probably limited to four pounds, each package, and with registration fee could have required only $1.36 in stamps. Therefore, the illustration does not prove the need of five dollar stamps. For many years, shipments of gold coin were made from San Francisco to New York by mail. The coin was put up in rolls weighing just four pounds, prepaid at merchandise rates, and registered. These rolls were then packed in cases. I have bought hundreds of the thirty-cent and fifty-cent stamps which had been used in this way. During the past season, I have secured hundreds of the one-dollar stamps, which had been used to prepay postage on parcels of bonds from Boston to New York, each parcel weighing just the limit, four pounds. However, it should be remembered that on foreign mail there is no limit to weight that may be forwarded. Commercial papers frequently require five dollars or more in postage but heavy consignments usually are bonds and like valuable papers; undoubtedly, these could be sent by express at much less cost. For several reasons, they are usually sent by mail, however. First, delivery is made by post a few hours after the arrival of the steamer, while two days are required to pass express parcels through the custom house. Secondly, insurance is less on registered mail, and thirdly, shipments of bonds by mail are made under certificate of attorney upon which new bonds will be issued in case of loss. This last reason is of minor importance, as similar methods are followed in case of shipment by express, but for the same reason that insurance is less when shipment is made by mail, so is loss more easily adjusted. It is the first reason that is the principal one; the postage on these parcels is five cents each half-ounce, or $1.60 a pound. It is not unusual that packages weigh twenty or thirty pounds, and then, the need of the five-dollar stamp is evident. A London dealer once told me that when the Columbian stamps were current, he bought the wrapper from a parcel bearing one hundred and eighty of the five-dollar Columbian stamps. A person curious on this point who might stand near the receiving window of the registry department of the New York post-office, between four and six o'clock p. m., the day before a fast steamer is to sail will never again question the need of five-dollar stamps."

Rarities the World Over—There was a highly successful philatelic exhibition held in British Guiana some time ago which had as a distinguished patron, the Resident Governor of the colony. It would be expected that an exhibition at Georgetown would include a noteworthy showing of the rarities with which the issues of British Guiana teem. While a superb lot of British Guiana stamps was exhibited yet it was evident that the rarities are as difficult to obtain in their country of origin as elsewhere. Several copies of the first issue, eight and twelve cents, 1850, were shown, but it is noticed that among displays made by medal winners in the first division of class one, British Guiana, only the eight cent circular, 1850 (on original covers) was included, the property of the first prize winner.

Finis—The great Le Roy D'Etiolles auction sales in Paris, nine in number, have been finished, and the aggregate amount received for the 12,688 lots is well over $150,000. The huge stock was dispersed without any loosening of prices and it really is a tribute to the stability of commercial philately to find that in effect the projecting of the great bulk of stamps on the market scarce made a ripple. In fact, it proved that the more stamps that were sold the better prices became. M. Le Roy d'Etiolles had abundant faith in stamps as an investment; and his heirs reap the benefit of his sincere conviction.

As It Was—In the fourth edition of Gray's catalogue, 1866, we find the following reference to a phase that prevailed in this country, a short time before: "During the late terrible civil conflict in the United States, postage stamps formed almost the only currency of small value in circulation; and the government issued them without being gummed for the purpose of their being so used, as it was found that the gummed stamps were apt to adhere together when carried and handled. They afterwards issued fac-similes of postage stamps printed on larger paper, with full directions; these were termed postage currency."

It Will Be Welcome—In a speech recently, our postmaster-general told of impending improvements in the postal service of the United States and promised that it was the intention of the department to install a parcels-post delivery.

AS IN A LOOKING-GLASS.

By LOOKER ON.

WE KNOW OUR STRENGTH.

Gibbons' Weekly recently referred to the suspension of an American paper with the statement that we now find ourselves here in the United States "without a single philatelic magazine of any real value." The editor then goes on to refer to MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS "as an excellent paper of its kind," and expresses the hope that its plain statement will not offend our publishers. We beg to assure the editor that we are not so thin-skinned as to be at all worried over his statement. The WEEKLY does not pretend to be a "philatelic magazine," nor does it pretend to cater to the microscopical specialist, though much matter appears in our columns from time to time that might well come under the heading of specialism. The fact that the WEEKLY will soon issue its 900th consecutive number is proof positive that it has a hold somewhere and somehow on the philatelic mind. This is where we realize our strength, and our success in the past is only a tithe of what we trust to achieve in the future. We have the great satisfaction of realizing that we are succeeding in our particular field, which is a praiseworthy one, and this success pleases us much more than failure would do in a more limited field.

MATTER FOR THE SPECIALIST.

A New York subscriber recently took us to task for publishing the Barrett matter concerning the various dies of the now obsolete 2c envelope. He claims that the space should have been given to matter of more general interest to the ordinary philatelist, and herein we strike a snag. What, pray, would this subscriber have us publish as "matter of more general interest?" Surely he does not want us to re-hash the advantages of stamp collecting, nor should he want us to deal with the bygone days of our hobby. What, then, shall we publish? Were our critic to open the mail of the WEEKLY, he would find almost daily reference to this series of articles, with requests for the back numbers containing Mr. Barrett's matter. It is needless to say that these editions were long since exhausted, and a well defined call exists for the reprinting of these articles in pamphlet form. As stated in the preceding paragraph, the WEEKLY does not pose as the organ of the microscopical specialist, nevertheless, we do cater to a large circle of readers and the edification of these readers demands that from time to time matter should be published that may possibly be of little interest to the majority of our readers. We do, however, draw the line at paying undue allegiance to microscopical philately, an advanced stage of philatelic research that we must leave to the monthly magazine.

THE ART OF ADVERTISING.

We find that we have offended the æsthetic editor of the Philatelic Journal of India. Not directly, perhaps, but through the medium of our advertising columns, in allowing Messrs. Eaton and Hopkins a little leeway on their advertising copy. It all comes from the Iceland advertisement inserted by Mr. Eaton, and the advertisement of Mr. Hopkins, pricing stamps from countries beginning with the letter "G." The Journal lets the editor down easy, but thinks the advertisers "are suffering from the softening of the brain," or else the readers of our paper are "only fit for lunatic asylums." This is certainly plain English, and one cannot very well mistake the meaning of the editor. We may, however, be allowed to remark that meeting both of the above named gentlemen at Denver, they seemed to be in good health, and will no doubt be engaged in business at the same old stands during the coming season. In regard to our readers being qualified for asylum membership, we are safe in saying that there is no such building in America large enough to hold them, and they will, therefore, be allowed to roam at liberty a little while longer.

THE PROSECUTION OF FRAUDS.

From time to time complaints are received at this office of unsatisfactory dealings between dealer and collector. Where the complaint is made against a dealer regularly using our columns, we feel compelled to take notice of the complaint, although we cannot do this in connection with Trade Column advertising, as stated at the head of that column. Last year we usually referred parties having claims to Mr. Goodhue, 510 Main St., Cincinnati, Ohio, as having had a wide experience in matters of this kind, and being well qualified to prosecute such work. Mr. Goodhue has accumulated a list of dead-beats and frauds of real tangible value, and dealers will find it to their interest to keep in touch with him. It was the feeling of the A. P. A. at the Denver session that it was not advisable for the association to lend itself to the movement of prosecuting work of this kind. The WEEKLY believes, however, that it would be well for some one person to be recognized as the prosecutor of philatelic frauds. There is but little revenue in it, the work incidental to many of the cases being of necessity unremunerative. We urge dealers having claims against collectors to deal with some attorney or collecting agency first, when we will gladly publish results in our columns. We cannot, however, undertake securing settlement ourselves, as we are not situated where the work can be done by us to advantage. Claims entered by a subscriber against an advertiser in our columns, will of course be attended to at once. These claims, we are glad to say, are not, however, of frequent occurrence.

INVERTED WATERMARKS.

We have from time to time reported the current British colonials that we have found with inverted watermarks. The latest is the ½p Jamaica. Some of our readers will be pleased to have an up-to-date list, which we glean from the columns of Ewen's Weekly.

Australian Commonwealth, Postage Due, Crown N. S. W., ½d and 1d, type II.

NATAL OFFICIALS.

Scott lists a set of official stamps ranging from the ½p, blue green to the 1sh blue and rose. It is the King's head set, watermarked multiple crown CA, and is surcharged in black, OFFICIAL, in block letters. If we may believe a subscriber of the P. J. of G. B., residing in Natal, these stamps are gradually being withdrawn from further use. Scott prices only one of this set, the 1p rose. The government railway officials of Natal, in receiving instructions to return all unused official stamps, were informed that they would be replaced by ordinary stamps perforated with the letters N. G. R. So readers coming across specimens of these stamps will understand the use to which they have been put.

NEW ZEALAND PROSECUTION.

A rather interesting case has just been settled in New Zealand, where Wm. L. Hooper (Wilcox and Smith) was brought before the Dunedin police court, charged with unlawfully dealing in official stamps. This was the natural outcome of the issue of official stamps, with the accompanying regulation that none should be held by the public in unused form. Hooper was charged with selling stamps without a license, but the magistrate, after an extensive review of the case, acquitted the defendant.

NEW NELSON STAMPS.

To oblige the philatelic public, the postal authorities Barbados have reissued three values of the Nelson set, the ¼p, 2p and 2½p. Ewen's Weekly states that the re-issue was necessary in order to make up sets of this issue, the two low values having been bought up by speculators, while ordinary postal needs made heavy demands on the 2½d value. No difference can be found between the two issues, excepting that the new stamps are on multiple, crown CA, paper, instead of the single crown CC.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—In addition to those previously credited we must thank L. E. Richardson, F. B. Eldredge, L. L. Dickerson, B. D. Foster, J. O. H. Pendleton, H. Wesley Legg and others for information regarding the new envelopes, with samples of the same. The 1c is in the same design as the 2c, previously noted, except the change in value, and the substitution of the bust of Franklin for that of Washington.

Mr. Legg has shown us the new 4c on amber paper and Mr. Pendleton the 1c on amber also.

In regard to the workmanship of the series, Henry S. Linnemann writes as follows:

"In the copy of your paper dated August 3, you give a description of the new issue of United States envelopes and say 'The engraving is poorly done, the embossing is faint, and altogether the envelope is far below the standard of the Department.'

"Now this is all true of the finished product of the contractor, but it is caused by the poor workmanship of the concern doing the printing, for there should not be these faults, as the engraver of this die has made proofs which he has shown me that are as well executed as any of the Reay issue, and that issue is as well printed and embossed as any of the issues of U. S. envelopes, I believe.

"Mr. Mitchell, the engraver of the steel dies, certainly should be proud of his work, but the printers are the ones to blame, if anyone is. Still they are much handicapped at present on account of their being new to the business of printing envelopes and having new machinery as well, according to Mr. Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell says that they are not to blame, as these, as well as other obstacles, will be overcome as they get more experience.

"I am informed by the post office department that whereas it ought to take only two weeks to supply the special request envelopes, it will take at least a month to fill any orders and consequently the business houses that figured on getting their supply in the same length of time as formerly are finding a good deal of fault with the department.

"I would advise all collectors to save all the envelopes that they run across of the current issue as there will be great changes in them in the near future, and the request will perhaps be changed to be as in the issue of 1903, not as now printed, on a line at left.

"The 4c value has the head of Franklin the same as the 1c, and is printed in black. This looks very much like the 1864 issue, as you suggest, but the government sent to Mr. Mitchell a copy of the 1c and 3c values of the Reay issue with an order to reproduce these heads, Franklins for the 1c and 4c and Washington for the 2c and 5c."

Like the 2c the 1c is printed in an odd shade, being a very deep muddy green.

Envelopes.

4c black.

CANADA.—A. McKechnie sends us specimens of the new 2c publishers' wrappers. They are of large size,—6½x15 inches, and printed in carmine on manila paper. The inscription,—"This wrapper to be used only by Publishers and for the sole purpose of Mailing second class matter to the United States," is printed in two lines of Gothic caps extending across the wrapper from the stamp which is at the right. Mr. McKechnie reports that the wrappers are hard to get, as they are not on sale to the general public, and the only way to get them is from the newspapers, who are obliged to purchase them in large quantity.

CANAL ZONE.—J. O. H. Pendleton reports having a copy of the 1c on 20c with the "C" in "Canal," 4 mm. from the "A." Has this been noticed before?

ECUADOR.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has sent us specimens of other values of the new series, besides those noted recently. All are used, and evidently the full set is current in Ecuador.

Adhesives.

1c carmine and black (Boca).
2c blue and black (Noboa).
3c orange and black (Robles).

GIBRALTAR.—We have been shown by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., the new 2½d stamp, ultramarine on ordinary multiple white paper; also the bicolored stamp of the same value on blue paper, on chalky multiple paper.

Adhesive.

2½d ultramarine.

HONG KONG.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us the 20c King's Head stamp on chalky multiple paper.

MEXICO.—A new issue of postage stamps is in preparation, according to Le Collectionneur de Timbres-poste.

MONTENEGRO.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has shown us the new stamps, chronicled in No. 863. The statements there made were substantially correct, except that some modifications of colors are necessary. In the postage set, the 1pa is yellow bistre, the 5pa yellow green, the 15pa slate blue and the 25pa deep slate blue. In fact the two latter are so nearly alike in color as to suggest the possibility of confusion in postal use. The postage due stamps are narrower than the postage stamps, the design showing the princely crown surrounded by a broad circular band, with native inscriptions, the lower part of the circle being covered by a large white shield, having the figures of value in color and foliage at the sides. The effect of both sets is handsome.

NETHERLANDS.—M. Z. Booleman writes: "By order of the Postmaster General, dated October 10, 1906, a committee has been formed to study a plan of changing the current postage stamps with queen's head. This committee is composed of the following gentlemen: Mr. J. W. H. Berden, Director of the government's school for industry of arts at Amsterdam; Baronet C. Ph. L van Kinschot, Philatelist and Heraldic at Till, and Mr. A. W. Kijmell, Post and Telegraphic Inspector at the Hague. The above named committee has already held several meetings at the Hague, the results of which are expected with interest.

"The following errors met with on the current 3c and 50c values, may be pointed out: Her Majesty being dressed with a diadem the royal crown above is quite superfluous as there are already the Dutch Armorials; the crowns on the escutcheon are deformed and too small; two Dutch Armorials are superfluous, and if there ought to be two Armorials for symmetric, the Nassau Armorials should be right on the second escutcheon.

"Errors on the values fl. 1 and fl 10. The C and around the Armorial is a heraldic distinction for younger sons (usually the third) and therefore a big error on these stamps; same remark for the distance of the Armorials which are too much removed; escutcheons hanging over may be never correct as any idea of a crown with a possibility of slipping must be excluded; if there must be an escutcheon, same must be standing in a horizontal way.

"The errors indicated for the lower values must also be noted for the high values. In preparing any new design, the above errors will be avoided."

NICARAGUA.—A valued correspondent sends us a cover having three of the new Waterlow stamps,—the 4c, 10c, and 20c, but with various new and important surcharges. Our correspondent seems to think that the new surcharges are not likely to be welcomed by collectors. Among the new varieties we find the 4c and 20c with a new style of the old surcharge "B—Dpto. Zelaya" evidently type printed, though not so plain as the "'Costa—Atlantica'—B," which has been previously noted. The new surcharge is evidently printed in London (our correspondent thinks it is possibly a local print), and like the "Costa—Atlantica—B" is a great improvement over the old rubber stamps.

The 4c has also been surcharged with new value, "5 cent" being overprinted in black in addition to the "B—Dpto. Zelaya."

Our correspondent says that other values have been seen with the new "B—Dpto. Zelaya" surcharge, though the 10c and 15c stamps are still coming in the mails with the "Costa—Atlantica—B" surcharge.

Provisional Adhesive.

"5 cent" on 4c orange, Waterlow print.

Stanley Gibbons, Inc., reports the following varieties of the "Vale $2.00" on 2c red official, recently chronicled, the surcharge reading both up and down: With thick "V;" with thin "V" and with a figure "1" in place of the "l" in "Vale."

PHILIPPINES.—Frank H. Koon writes as follows regarding the broken "P" in the surcharge on No. 213: "For three years I have had two copies of the 1c of the same issue, with exactly the same break, and the break, if it is one, is so smooth-edged, that it has all the appearance of a true 'I.' I believe the 2c also exists, and would be glad to know if any collectors have seen the other values of the set."

ST. VINCENT.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has shown us the 2½d stamp in the new design.

Adhesive.

2½d ultramarine.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.—The ½d yellow green and the 6d blue green, the latter long form, with large "Postage" have been shown us on paper watermarked Crown A, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc. The former is perforated 12x11½, and the latter 12x12.

TASMANIA.—Ewen's reports that the 1sh rose has been issued on V Crown paper, perforated 11.

THE DENVER BANQUET.

The banquet tendered the delegates to the American Philatelic Association at the Albany Hotel, Denver, on Wednesday evening, July 31st, has been done only scant justice in the casual references that have been made to it and a few supplementary remarks are fitting, particularly on the subject of the responses to toasts.

The presiding officer, H. N. Mudge, excelled as a toast-master. With delicate tracery, he outlined a picture of philately when it arrived at the estate of universal recognition as a serious occupation and an accepted line for study. His allegorical word painting was very entertainingly presented and was followed with rapt attention.

When introducing the speakers, Mr. Mudge was at his best and his remarks on each occasion were opportune and applicable. Mr. Wylie was the first speaker and he told of the necessity of catering to the followers of all the different philatelic standards in publishing a paper, and how a sense of equitable adjustment in this regard sometimes was taken as an evidence of discrimination by a partizan of this or that line. Mr. Wylie showed that the thorns were the only suggestion of a bed of roses for the philatelic editor.

E. M. Rosenthal humorously compared himself to a postal issue of 1877, color "Rosy," that after having been submitted for examination to a Boston dealer had been "grilled all over" by the dealer aforesaid.

A. W. Batchelder narrated how on his peregrinations he slept at an inn where on the wall of his room he saw a "God Bless Our Home" motto. On close examination, he was amazed to find that the letters were blocked out in shillings, six pences and three pences, first issue of Nova Scotia. He bargained with the landlady and got the stamps at a price that he was ashamed to mention,—it was just as well, for at this point, Mr. Batchelder says that he woke up. With DeQuincy, Mr. Batchelder should exclaim in agony of soul: I will sleep no more.

E. de Z. Kelley told of his collection of twentieth century stamps on the covers and of the difficulties in arranging to obtain some of them from remote countries, particularly the short-lived provisionals.

Charles A. Nast spoke with a spirit of rare sentiment on the "Ladies" and then out of fullness of emotion broke forth into song. The novelty of Mr. Nast's response was recognized with heartiest enthusiasm.

H. B. Phillips told of philately on the Pacific coast, past and present, and predicted that when a complete rehabilitation succeeds the disaster, the progress of the hobby will be more rapid than ever. Mr. Phillips says that California demands a place on the directorate of the association.

A. H. Weber exploited the minor variety and told of discoveries of great importance that followed the close and critical scrutiny to which the minor variety student subjects his specimens.

P. M. Wolsieffer arose to hear a deafening burst of applause, such as never before was tendered a philatelic speaker. Mr. Wolsieffer's record as sales superintendent clothed him with authority to speak on this most important department of the association. Incidentally, it pleased him to be enabled to say that no serious trouble of any kind was experienced during his term of office.

C. E. Severn was assigned U. S. local stamps as a subject.

W. G. Swart kept the tables in a roar; his well directed wit hit the mark every time and he scored heavily.

F. R. Cornwall told of having greatness thrust upon him and then unconsciously proved that the honors were fittingly bestowed by indulging in a bit of rhyme to celebrate his election.

Fred Michael extolled the good old association and brought the banquet to a fitting climax by arousing a shout of enthusiasm for the well-beloved American Philatelic Association.

NOTES ON CANADIAN STAMPS.

We have frequently referred to the fine collection of Canadian stamps, the property of C. L. Pack of Lakewood, N. J. It will be remembered that at the recent London exhibition he was awarded a gold medal. In a recent London Philatelist he contributed some interesting notes on the stamps of his favorite country, which we quote here:—

"The first stamps issued in 1857 are always described as coming on thin, white laid paper. I have in my collection two pairs on very thick, hard paper. This paper is very rare, and I have never seen but very few copies.

"The so-called 'double strike' of the 3d is not only found on the laid paper, but occurs in the later issues on the wove and ribbed papers. I have these 'double strikes' in my collection on four varieties of paper.

"The 3d of 1852 is usually mentioned on ribbed, very thick, spongy paper. In addition to this I have the 3d on a very thick, hard, ribbed paper. The ½d of 1857 comes not only on horizontally ribbed paper, but also on vertically ribbed paper. I have specimens of these, used and unused.

"The perforated 3d of 1858 on ribbed paper is a scarce stamp even in used condition, but in unused condition I find it one of the great rarities of Canada.

"I have never heard of the 6d, perforated, on laid paper. It is catalogued in the Society's publication, but a copy, so far as I can learn, has never been seen in Canada or in the United States.

"I have never seen listed the interesting varieties of the 1c and 5c of 1859, which come on very thick paper. I have these used and unused. The 1c and 5c also exist in my collection on distinctly ribbed paper, unused. There is no doubt in my experience about the existence of those 1859 varieties imperforate. I have the 1c and 5c postmarked in 1860 and 1861 at Toronto and Prescott, Canada West. I also believe that these varieties were on sale at Kingston, Canada West, at about that time.

"I have also the 2c, and 10c in undoubtedly early used condition.

"In regard to the first issue of the Dominion of Canada made in 1868, I do not believe that the 1c yellow, exists on laid paper. None of the large collectors of Canada or of this country have seen it, and I believe there is no real authority for listing it. I have the 1c yellow, of 1868, imperforate, and I also have a copy of the 15c on distinctly soft ribbed paper."

A STUDY IN CORNER LETTERING.

We very frequently have requests for information in regard to the letters in the corners of English stamps. The Philatelic Record is publishing a continued article dealing with the subject. The following quotation will prove of interest:—

"As probably all philatelists are aware, the penny stamps of Great Britain issued during this period were all printed in sheets of 240 stamps, making the value of a complete sheet £1.

"When the impression of the stamp was engraved on the die the lower corner squares were left blank. The impression from the die was then transferred to a plate of softened steel, and by means of a roller reproduced 240 times.

"Letters were then punched into the blank spaces contained within the corner angles and the plate was hardened. The lettering ran from AA to TL; thus the top row would bear the lettering AA, AB, AC, . . . AL; the next row BA, BB, BC, . . . BL, etc., and so on down to the last row, which would be lettered TA, TB, TC, . . . TL.

"Owing to the letters having to be punched on to the plate by hand, a wrong letter was not infrequently impressed by mistake; these mistakes were nearly always rectified, but traces of the original letter can frequently be found, and these constitute the "double letter" varieties which are so much sought after by specialists in British stamps. Between the years 1840 and 1854 many different sets of punches were employed — how many it is impossible at present to say— and the letters occupy a different position in relation to the corner angles in the different plates.

"Several of the more earnest students of philately are now attempting to reconstruct each of the eleven plates employed for the black penny stamp (that is, collect together each of the 240 combinations of each one of the eleven plates), and some of them have already begun to turn their attention to the red penny stamp. Sometimes, if a single stamp can be definitely assigned to any plate, the whole of the rest of the stamps comprising that plate can be built up by means of blocks and strips, etc. It is with the object of presenting a few landmarks to collectors engaged in this fascinating study that this article has been written, and I hope that it may be the means of gaining other recruits to swell the band of those who are already engaged in unravelling the mysteries of the early line engraved British stamps. The old red penny stamps can still be bought for a shilling or two per thousand, and a few shillings invested in these stamps will almost certainly prove a source both of pleasure and profit."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—P. M. Wolsieffer, Chicago, has consummated an important transaction whereby he has become the owner of the special collections of Hayti, Siam and Great Britain until recently the property of Alex. Holland, ex-president of the American Philatelic Association. Mr. Wolsieffer has acquired also the choice phitatelic library of Mr. Holland. This special collection of Hayti is a famous one and has won awards at different philatelic exhibitions and it is a marvel of completeness. The collection obtained a medal at the international exhibition at London last year. The Siam special collection also is a most thorough one while Mr. Holland's selected lot of Great Britain is very fine and includes the one penny black and two pence blue without lines by the hundreds. Mr. Wolsieffer will sell other stamps belonging to Mr. Holland but it is Mr. Wolsieffer's intention to dispose of the properties specified at private sale.

—John Smith's portrait adorns the "Jamestown Exposition" one-cent postage stamp. Why not oblige every Smith in the land to buy one stamp and give us one year in which the Postal Department would not have to report a deficit.—Coloradoan.

—L. S. Charlick favors us with a 12 page price list, bearing the date of August, 1907. Prices are quoted in U. S. money, an appeal to our dealers which must bear good results. The list will be gladly sent on application. An interesting feature is an exchange proposition duly exploited.

—The Royal Philatelic Society has a balance in the treasury of $1500. The average attendance at last year's meetings was only eighteen, a poor showing for a society with the standing attained by the "Royal."

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Ben. Hilbert, Jr., W.G. Swart, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., (2), Jos. A. Steinmetz, Newton Romig, H. M. Clark, Eben S. Martin (2), and Ross O'Shaughnessy.

—The following officers have been elected to serve Chicago Branch One, American Philatelic Association, for the ensuing year: President, Iver R. Johnson; Vice-President, E. M. Rosenthal and Secretary-Treasurer, Leonard Michael.

—In a recent issue of the Selma (Ala.) Journal appeared a communication from one W. Smith of Grand Rapids, Mich., requesting specimens of Confederate locals, to be used in connection with a book to be published dealing with the postage stamps used in the Confederate States from 1861 to 1865. Have any of our readers had any dealings with this party?

First Clubbite—"What do you think of the new stamps?"

Second Clubbite (an amiable person)—"I cannot speak very highly of the colors; the paper is a trifle too thin, and the portrait of Washington has been more readily recognized; but the gum, my dear fellow, is the best I ever tasted."—Selected.

All members are requested to at once return to this office any circuits or books of the Department that may be in their hands.

Branch Managers will oblige the Superintendent by making every effort possible to get circuits back at once, and delayed circuits should not be forwarded but returned to this office.

It is important that all books should be either retired or turned over to the new Superintendent and in order to properly tabulate them and close the accounts, all books must be returned quickly.

There is a large number of unused blank sales books out among the members and as the present edition is exhausted the Superintendent can use extra copies that may be sent in and will allow full cost of five cents each for them.

It is expected that a supplementary report to the annual report will wind up the administration of the present incumbent.

The sixty-third regular meeting of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors Society was held Tuesday, August 6, 1907, at the usual time and place, President Cornwall presiding, with twelve members present. The major part of the evening was devoted to an examination of the stamps exhibited by A. W. MEYER PLANS PARCELS POST.

AND HOPES TO GET AUTHORITY FOR POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

Stamp Vending Machines—Rural Free Delivery To Be Extended—Prospect of a 2 Cent Foreign Rate.

(The following very interesting interview with Postmaster-Genl. Meyer is recorded by the N. Y. "Sun" and we are indebted to Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., and J. A. Steinmetz, for clippings in relation to the same.)

Postmaster-General Meyer was at the Postmaster's office yesterday afternoon with his secretary, J. A. Holmes. While he was there Postmaster Morgan returned from Oyster Bay and the two had a talk.

Mr. Meyer told the reporters about his plans for the coming year, and especially for rural delivery and the improvement of the parcels post. He thinks that the criticism of the cost of the rural delivery service is unjust. In 1906 $25,000,000 was expended on it, but the entire postal deficit, which was $8,000,000 in 1896 when only $15,000,000 was spent on rural free delivery, had increased to only $10,000,000.

It is expected, says Mr. Meyer, that the rural free delivery expenditure for the current year will be $35,000,000 and that the deficit will not be increased. For the quarter ended on March 1 there was no deficit. The rural mail delivery system has proved a decided boon to farmers, says the Postmaster-General, and has raised the general standard of living among them.

Important innovations that Mr. Meyer hopes to establish within the year, with the consent of Congress, are the parcels post and postal savings banks. The banks are planned to resemble the savings bank department of the Postal Service in Canada and England. The need of them has been demonstrated to Mr. Meyer by the fact that many foreign and native working people make sure of their savings by buying postal orders, payable to themselves, which they can cash as they need the money. From this it is evident that many prefer to do without interest rather than intrust their savings to banks. It is not intended, says Mr. Meyer, to run these institutions in opposition to savings banks, but merely to establish them where they are needed to encourage thrift. The amount of deposits will be limited. Mr. Meyer said that he would recommend a resumption of the issue of postal orders limited to $2.50 or $5, but payable to bearer only.

Mr. Meyer said he had not yet worked out the details of the parcels post system, but that it would possibly be that parcels would be limited to eight or ten pounds. The system, he was careful to state, was not to be construed as opposition to the express companies, but was intended only to meet a public demand.

The Department, says the Postmaster-General, also intends to experiment with stamp vending machines similar to those in use in Germany. These are to be put in public places such as hotels, and it is thought that if the purchase of stamps is facilitated the postal revenues will be increased. The machines will be tried first in Washington and this city.

He intends to advocate a reduction in foreign postage, such a reduction as the present rate of 5 cents to 2 cents to such countries as have direct steam communication, including England, Germany, Holland, Italy and France. This reduction is expected to increase the revenues and would not require enactment by Congress, but could be accomplished by agreement with the countries in the Postal Union.

The Department is going to be operated on a more businesslike basis than heretofore, according to Mr. Meyer. As proof of this is the recent order weighing all mail and noting the amount paid for and the amount handled for the Government departments, and that franked by Congressmen and Senators.

"We are going to ascertain where our deficit lies and see how it can be remedied as far as possible," said Mr. Meyer.

COLLECTION FOR SALE

A nice collection listing about $1,200 has been placed in our hands to sell by a customer. It goes for about ¼th catalog to the party with the cash, and is a bargain if there ever was one. MILWAUKEE A. P. A. BRANCH.

Membership in the New Branch Increases Rapidly.

(We are under obligations to C. C. Johnson for this clipping from the Milwaukee Free Press of Aug. 14. We congratulate Milwaukee philatelists upon the splendid success attending the organization of the local branch.)

There was an enthusiastic gathering of the Milwaukee branch of the American Philatelic Association in the Alhambra building last night. The membership of the newly organized branch is increasing rapidly. It is expected that in a few weeks nearly all of the 100 stamp collectors in Milwaukee will be members.

Valuable collections were exhibited by members last night and interesting talks were given by stamp enthusiasts. C. C. Johnson, librarian, said:

"As in everything else, of course, the value of a stamp, used or unused, depends upon the supply and demand. The record price of which we have information was paid at an auction in London three years ago by the Prince of Wales, when he purchased what is known to the fraternity as a "postoffice" Mauritius for $7,250. It was a 2-penny stamp dated 1840, and it was rare because the edition had been canceled and withdrawn on account of an error."

William Schultz exhibited a collection of revenue stamps from the United States and Canada, and a collection of proprietary and other stamps, which cost him complete more than $2000. He said, however, that there are several collections in Milwaukee much more valuable than his, but of different kinds of stamps.

Dr. W. H. Linke, C C. Johnson and K. M. Mann attended the national convention of the American Philatelic Association at Denver last week and have just returned. The association has 1,200 members in all parts of the world. The officers of the new Milwaukee branch are: President, Dr. Rudolph Teschan; vice president, Dr. F. A. Kraft; secretary, W. O. Staab; treasurer, L. A. Van Toor; librarian, C. C. Johnson.

SYMBOLISM ON PERUVIAN STAMPS.

By ELIOT HILTMAN.

There is one branch of philately of which the non-philatelist seems somewhat ignorant,—the knowledge that may be obtained from the study of the pictures on the stamps.

It is the purpose of this article to try to illustrate this point by showing how much historical knowledge and generally useful information may be acquired in the casual consideration of philatelic thought in a broader sense.

With certain Peruvian stamps as the subject, I shall confine myself to what we can learn from the stamps themselves.

The pictures in a catalogue or album will serve as illustrations.

The first issue is identical with the stamps of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, so it seems that this company must have contracted to carry the foreign mails.

In the issues bearing the national Coat of Arms, the animal is recognized as the llama, and the horn of plenty is known but what is the genus of tree? Encyclopedias, histories, books of heraldry were all lacking in information. I wrote to the Bureau of American Republics at Washington. The following is an extract from the very kind and concise reply of Mr. F. H. Yanes, Secretary of the Bureau:

"I take pleasure in informing you that the tree of the Peruvian Coat of Arms, is the Quina or Cinchona, also called Peruvian Bark. The Coat of Arms is simply a representation of Peruvian natural resources; the llama standing for the fauna, the Cinchona for the flora, and the horn of plenty for the abundance of all kinds of riches."

The horn of plenty is indeed an appropriate symbol. Peru is a South American California,—earthquakes and all. Climate, mineral wealth and agriculture combine in making Peru a future power. Her guano and nitrate deposits, famous for their fertilizing properties, were so enormously rich as to excite Chile's envy. They were the real cause of the war between the two countries. Chile was victorious and seized the richest deposits.

The llama—a member of the camel family—is valuable as a beast of burden; its flesh is good, and the wool of one class—the alpaca—is famous. Before the Spanish Conquest, the llama was the only beast of burden the Incas knew. In many sections, the mule has displaced it. Among the ancient people, this strange animal was regarded as somewhat sacred. Special flocks were cared for by the priests; and on certain feasts they were sacrificed and burned. The Spaniards used the llama to carry gold from the mines. Though, at first, mistaken for a sheep, it is now proven to belong to the camel family. Scientists declare that the Asiatic camel originated in America and migrated by way of Alaska and Siberia to its present home. The llama is an isolated remnant of the original stock, specially adapted to the mountains it inhabits.

The Peruvian Bark is famous as the material from which quinine is obtained. The name Cinchona is derived from the name of the Countess of Chinchon, wife of a Spanish governor of Peru. She was cured of fever, in 1638, by the use of an extract of the bark at the hands of a Jesuit priest. There is a legend that the first white man to use it was a Jesuit missionary who was cured, when dying of fever, by the natives to whose village he had come.

The native legend for the discovery of the Cinchona's curative value is:

An Indian had gone into the forest to die. He lay down beside a pool of water near which a tree with white flowers was growing. He took a drink from the pool, but found the water to be exceedingly bitter. Nevertheless he was cured. Examination showed the bitter taste to come from the tree whose roots extended into the water. He returned to his village with his great discovery.

It was not until 1820 that the chemical composition of the bark was ascertained. Then it was found to contain two strange akaloids. These were named quinine and cinchonine. Of these, quinine was found to be the most efficacious.

The 1866-68 issue shows the wild species of llama—the vicugna—in its natural home. In habit, it greatly resembles the European chamois.

The train on the next issue commemorates the inauguration of the State Railroads policy under President

Balta. The lines have not as yet been completed, since they require tremendous engineering feats as well as enormous expenditures. Because of the immense debt contracted by their construction and by the Chilean war, the State Railroads are now temporarily in the possession of the nation's creditors.

The silhouette of the llama illustrates the peculiar make-up of this remarkable animal.

The 1874-79 issue brings out many points of interest.

The sun on the one centavo formed the principle about which the whole ancient Peruvian religion was built. Prescott claims that the sun was their deity, while Markham believes it was only considered their deity's chief servant. Both, however, agree that it was held in the greatest veneration by the Incas. At Cuzco—the ancient capitol—a gorgeous temple was dedicated to the sun. We can get some idea of its splendor from the fact that a colossal plate of burnished gold, studded with jewels, adorned one of the walls. The temple was surrounded by gardens in which the flowers were made of gold with silver stems. The workmanship was marvellous. Hardly any of the gold ornaments have been left to us as the conquerors melted down everything of value. There is a legend that the soldier, to whom the image of the sun was allotted as spoil, gambled it away in a single night. From this event arose the Spanish proverb concerning spendthrifts: "He plays away the sun before sunrise."

The 2, 5, 10, and 20 centavos picture the sun and the coat of arms, seeming to unite the ancient empire with the modern republic. Indeed this is so, for descendants of conquerors and conquered fought side by side against Spain's dominion. Pimacagua, who led the insurrection resulting in Peru's ultimate freedom, was an Indian chief. Though the old chief was hung, in 1816, the country was kept in a constant state of turmoil until St. Martin crossed the Andes in January, 1817. After one of the most brilliant campaigns in history, he liberated Chile and Peru.

Santa Cruz—a half Spanish descendant of the Incas—was famous as a statesman as well as a soldier. After serving as a general in the war of independence, he became first president of Bolivia. By force of arms, he organized a combined republic of Bolivia and Peru. But it was short lived. An invasion by the Chileans, aided by Peruvians whose enmity he had incurred in accomplishing his project, drove Santa Cruz from the country in 1839. He died in exile at Versailles in 1865.

Garicilasso De La Vega, whose mother was an Inca princess, was born in 1539. He was much in the company of his mother's relatives and learned much of them concerning the civilization of ancient Peru. Afterwards he went to Spain. There he wrote one of the most valuable and frequently quoted accounts we now have of the empire and its conquest.

The Indians now number only about 18,000 against over 8,000,000 in 1575. Heartless, senseless, shameless oppression, extortion and treachery have accomplished the destruction of this great nation.

By means of a rule, called the mitta, one-seventh of the adult male population was forced into practical slavery. Also, by rigid code of religious and civil laws which imposed heavy fines and punishments for any attempt to hold to the old national life, speech, religion, dress, even names were all made Spanish. Though greatly diminished in numbers and terribly punished afterwards, the Indians rebelled time and again under various members of the royal family.

The last and most terrible ending revolt took place in 1780, lasting three years. Tupac Amaru nearly succeeded in winning back the entire country, but was finally betrayed and executed in a most barbarous manner. After being forced to see his immediate relatives strangled and his wife strangled, kicked and beaten to death, he was pulled asunder by four horses attached to his four limbs. His little son—Fernando—was compelled to witness this. All this occurred in 1783, when our forefathers were shedding their blood for a mere principle, while only three thousand miles away monsters rivaling Nero were carrying on their fiendish tortures. The wonder is that Spain's yoke was not thrown off before. All the members of the royal families were sent to Spain, where they died in prison. Thus were the last hopes of another empire destroyed forever. Speaking of Tupac Amaru's "judicial murder" Markham says:—

"From his cruel death may be dated the rise of that indignant feeling which ended in the expulsion of the Spaniards from Peru. The Inca Tupac Amaru did not live and die in vain."

During his campaigns and his torture this royal martyr wore a golden image of the sun on his breast. With this last and noblest of the Incas set forever the sun of the empire, making room for the republic's Coat of Arms. This is peculiarly typified by the picture on the above mentioned stamps.

The surcharges of the next ten years mark the stormy times during and immediately following the war with Chile. The 1881 Lima records the capture of that city by the Chileans and the 1882 surcharge which is the Chilean Coat of Arms. It tells us that the whole country was practically under their control. Peace was made in 1883, recorded by the triangle surcharge bearing the sun.

Civil war followed, ending in 1885 by the election of General Caceres to the presidency. During the five years of administration, he displayed great judgment and tact in restoring the country to some degree of its former tranquility. He also removed the terrible national debt by giving over to the creditors the state railroads, guano deposits, etc., as mentioned above. After the death of his successor, he again came into power in 1893. His administration was as bad as the first was good; and another civil war broke out.

On July 18, 1895, one of the bloodiest street battles of civilization occurred in Lima. Shortly afterwards Carceres abdicated, persuaded to the step by representatives of foreign powers.

A junta or supreme council again established a stable administration. The new issue of stamps marks the date. The ancient sun is here combined with a figure of liberty. What was said concerning the 1874 issue applies to the symbolism of this one.

The three portraits on the next issue mark three great epochs of Peru's history.

The first is one of the Inca rulers, marking the days of the empire. It is a remarkable fact that, though possessed of unlimited despotic power, the Incas ruled their people so wisely and had the government so well organized that their descendants for four hundred years could always depend on a loyal army, in no matter how hopeless a revolt.

The following illustrates the intense devotion of the natives:

"Tupac Amaru for whom the last of the Incas was named, had led the first revolution, been defeated and captured. Contrary to the entreaties of the Spanish colonists and priesthood, the boy was executed in 1571, and his head displayed on a pike in Cuzco.

"The Indians came in great crowds silently and in the dead of night to worship around the head of their beloved sovereign. One night a Spaniard got up and looked out of his window. The moon was shining brightly. To his astonishment he beheld the whole square covered with a mass of kneeling people, their faces all turned with expressions of deep devotion to the Inca's head."

The next portrait is of Pizarro, who destroyed the empire and gave to Spain one of her richest and strongest possessions.

The last is of Jose St. Martin, who after leading an army across the Andes—going four thousand feet higher than Napoleon—liberated Peru and Chile. Instead of remaining at the head of things, as he easily could have done he voluntarily withdrew from public life, declaring that "The presence of a fortunate soldier is dangerous to newly constituted states." He died in obscurity in Boulogne in 1850. His remains were transferred with great pomp to a beautiful mausoleum at Buenos Ayres in 1880. One is strongly reminded of our tardy recognition of John Paul Jones. It took South America thirty years to recognize a patriot. The United States waited a hundred years.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The hall room boys of the New York Journal recently presented a steel engraving of Geo. Washington to the "Daughters of '76." It required six cartoons to unfold the thrilling drama, in which a two-cent stamp plays a prominent part. We are indebted to Hugo Kuenstler for courtesy extended.

—Ross Wilson kindly favors us with a clipping from a Hamilton, Canada, paper, dealing with "Royal Stamp Collectors." The article contains quite a little that would attract the general public to stamp collecting, even though the truthfulness of some of the statements might well be questioned.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Hugo Kuenstler (7), J. N. T. Levick and C. C. Johnson.

—An article is going the rounds of the press dealing with "great U. S. collections," the palm being accorded Geo. H. Worthington, Cleveland, Ohio, for having the best. We are indebted to J. N. T. Levick for this clipping. The many friends of Mr. Levick will be pleased to know that since his residence in Tannersville, N. Y., his health is somewhat improved, though he is by no means a well man.

—A Norwegian paper chronicles the new East African set, the currency being changed from rupees of 16 annas to rupees of 100c. The values in which this change occurs are as follows:—1, 3, 6, 10, 12, 15, 25, 50 and 75c. In stationery there is a 6c envelope, and 3 and 6c post cards, ordinary and reply.

—Ewen's Weekly states that a second issue of British New Guinea, surcharged "Papua," has appeared. The type is smaller and thinner, sufficiently different to be recognized as a variety. The last issue will undoubtedly rise rapidly in price, and especially the ½p and 4d, which are now obsolete.

COMING BR. COLONIAL CHANGES.

In an article published in the Colonial Office Journal the following interesting information respecting the colours of stamps appears:—

"Before proceeding to the consecutive description of the processes of manufacture, the question of the colours of the stamps may be referred to. The Washington Convention recommended that every country in the Postal Union should adopt green, red and blue colours for the respective values of ½d, 1d and 2½d, and their equivalents in other currencies, and the Rome Convention has now made these colours compulsory from the 1st October of this year. The colours of the other values have, until now, been chosen in the main arbitrarily, the intention in each case being to make a series of stamps as distinctive as possible inter se. There would, however, be some practical advantages in formulating a universal colour scheme for all the Crown Colonies and Protectorates. Further reference may be made to this subject in a future article."

The following ½d, 1d and 2½d stamps have not yet been changed and will presumably have to be altered within the next 13 weeks.

Antigua, 1d.
Bermuda, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
British Central Africa, 1d.
British Honduras, 2c, 5c.
British New Guinea (Papua), 1c,2c,5c.
Brunei, 1c, 2c, 5c.
Cyprus, ½, 1, 2 piastre.
Dominica, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
East Africa, 2, 4, 10 cents?
Fiji Islands, 2½d.
Gibraltar, 2½d.
Gold Coast, ½d.
Jamaica, 2½d blue.
Johore, 2, 4, 10 cents.
Leeward Islands, 1d.
Malay States, 4, 10 cents.
Malta, 2½d.
Mauritius, 3, 6, 15 cents.
Montserrat, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
North Borneo, 2c, 4c, 10c.
Northern Nigeria, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
Queensland, 2½d.
St. Helena, 2½d.
St. Kitts-Nevis, ½d, 1d.
St. Lucia, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
St. Vincent, 2½d.
Sierra Leone, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
Somaliland, 1 anna.
Southern Nigeria, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
Straits Settlements, 4c.
Sudan, 2, 4 mill., 1 piastre.
Tasmania, small ½d.
Transvaal, 2½d.
Virgin Islands, ½d, 1d, 2½d.
Bosnia, 5, 10, 25 heller (bi-coloured).
Bulgaria, 5, 10, 25st (bi-coloured).
Liberia, 1, 2, 5 cents (bi-coloured).

And several South and Central American republics. Many of the above are partly printed in the Postal Union colours, and perhaps this may be accepted as a compliance with the new condition.

Should a general colour scheme be introduced, it might be as follows:—
½d yellow-green (Postal Union colour).
1d rose (Postal Union colour).
2½d blue (Postal Union colour).
2d brown (So. African agreement).
3d violet (So. African agreement).
4d dk.grn.or sage (So.African agreem't)
6d grey or indigo.
1sh yellow (So. African agreement).
5sh orange (So. African agreement).

Or the 2d might be yellow as in the Grenada issue and the 1sh brown, as in the latest 1sh Transvaal. Violet for the 3d is confirmed by the issue of the 3d St. Vincent. The present set of Cape Colony follows the above colour scheme very closely.

Concerning the inks employed in printing stamps, we quote further from the Colonial Office Journal:—

"If it is decided to have stamps printed by the surface process it is necessary to decide whether such stamps shall be printed in singly or in doubly fugitive ink. This depends, for the reasons stated below, on whether the stamps are intended for use for postage only, or also for revenue purposes, and so are likely to be cancelled by ordinary writing ink.

"The term 'singly fugitive' ink means that if any attempt is made to remove a cancellation which has been applied by means of ordinary cancelling ink the colour of the stamp will suffer. 'Doubly fugitive' ink is so sensitive that even if the stamp is cancelled with ordinary writing ink it was thought, until recently, to be impossible to remove the mark without injuring the appearance of the stamp. The duel between the fraudulent cleaner of stamps and the manufacturer is however similar to that between projectile and armour plate, and as will be seen below it is now necessary to make the surface of the stamp still more sensitive to manipulation.

"The disadvantage of doubly fugitive ink is that it can only be obtained in three colours, i.e., green, purple and black. The existing universal keyplate (one example of which is to be seen in the Sierra Leone stamps) is almost the size of the whole stamp, narrow strips at top and bottom being left for the duty and the name of the Colony. It is, of course, unnecessary to print these strips in doubly fugitive ink, as they may easily escape cancellation altogether, but the body of the stamp must be printed in doubly fugitive ink. There are some objections to the use of black, so that only purple and green can in practice be used where the body of the stamp is of such extent, as it is in the present universal keyplate.

"If the bodies of all the stamps of a series are in either purple or green, it is extremely difficult to prevent confusion, even if a certain number of stamps are printed in doubly fugitive colours on red, blue, green or yellow paper. Printing on red and blue paper has, moreover, a very bad effect on the appearance of the stamp.

"There is another disadvantage in having the bodies of many stamps in the same colour, i.e., the possibility of fraudulent manipulation by substituting slips of high values for the low values.

"This difficulty will be overcome in new issues of stamps bearing the King's Head, as the manufacturers are preparing a new keyplate showing only a central oval containing the King's Head, and this will be used with overprint plates bearing not only the name of the Colony and the duty, but also the words "Postage and Revenue," the whole of which will therefore be in one colour."

Our contemporary has not yet given any explanation of the chalk-surface (the article we quote from is to be continued), but we understand that it is a sort of chalky wash printed on the sheet of paper before the printing from the plates, or it may be that the sheets of paper are merely dipped in the wash. During the process they are held by clips about 1⅛ inch long and wherever these clips hold the sheet of paper the chalky wash does not penetrate. If a sheet of stamps be examined, the margin will be found to have at intervals no chalk-surface and the exact effect of the process can be observed. This will explain why sheets of Crown CC paper, manufactured 20 years or so ago, are now to be found with chalk-surface.

In this connection we may draw attention to the letter signed "Warren De La Rue" dated 7.2.1859 and written to Mr. Ormond Hill of Somerset House, (published in Wright & Creeke's work on Great Britain). In the course of the letter Mr. De La Rue says: "The VR paper [a fiscal paper] is always white, but in this Mr. Turner puts no prussiate of potash, although he was originally instructed to do so; but, as he made a great trouble of having to do this, we put prussiate of potash into the white colour we use in preparing the paper, and thus obtain the requisite security against the reissue of the stamp." (The italics are ours).

What was this "white colour"? Was it used in the first issues of the 4d British stamps of 1855-56? Wright & Creeke's work unfortunately ignores the whole question.—Ewen's Weekly Stamp News.

EDITORIAL.

Stamp Nights—At this time of year, the regard of the philatelist for his stamps begins to show an increasing warmth that is in ratio to the coolness of the weather. The beginning of the school season and the ending of vacations, with the advent of nights that invite in-door comfort are a combination that encourages the philatelic instinct. It is in September that the stamp season opens but just how auspiciously it does so, depends in great measure upon the weather conditions. While early frost may work great damage on crops of different kinds, yet it is propitious for accelerating the growth of stamp interest. When it becomes too cold for indulgence in the lighter out-door relaxations, the in-door amusements have their inning; and as affording an ideal occupation, stamps have earned solid recognition.

Serene—It is of some interest to realize that a good percentage of the business of a stamp season is either made or lost by the state of the weather. An autumn whose months are cool, occasions a volume of activity that would be sacrificed to some extent by an abnormally warm season. So, a measure of yearly success of philately may be said to depend upon the general weather conditions, according to the manner in which they may prove themselves favorable or the reverse. This remark does not apply to the increase of philatelic interest that is noticeable year by year and which is evidence of the strengthening influence of philately. As to the prospects for the season that is almost here, little need be said. There is no necessity to emphasize the plainly apparent preliminary signs of a successful season. On occasions in the past, philatelic editors have been known in their zeal and loyalty for the hobby to which they are pledged, to magnify the favorable indications and by their very optimism excite a suspicion that their declarations were founded on none too favorable grounds. This year, the one who closely attends to the workings of philately clearly sees that all straws are blown by a kindly wind; everything points to a banner season. The unusual amount of attention that stamps have received this year during the summer, allows of a basis for enthusiastic prognostication.

Half a Thousand—In October, the Chicago Philatelic Society will celebrate the five hundredth meeting held by the organization. The members quite properly will take cognizance of the occasion and it is their intention to mark this epoch in the history of the society by exercises of some pretensions. In fact, plans are being matured to exploit the coming meeting by a festival affair that will have an impressive philatelic cast as well as a social side. It is fitting that the five hundredth meeting of a stamp society that holds twenty-four meetings a year be observed in a formal felicitous manner. Not alone does the achievement reflect creditably upon the society but also upon philately in its broad sense, to which the organization is dedicated. For over twenty years, the Chicago Philatelic Society has held its meetings regularly; and it has well justified its existence by its philatelic work alone, while its moral influence on the hobby has long been a considerable one. While the society has attained a venerable age, as calculations are made in philately, yet each year increases its vitality and enlarges its sphere of usefulness; all in all, it admirably serves its purpose as a local society. When the program of the celebration is completed due mention will be made of it in our columns. Meanwhile, the Chicago Philatelic Society is open to congratulations.

Figures of British Issues—The Colonial Stamp Company, Chicago, has compiled some interesting statistics concerning the number of the issues of the stamps of Great Britain and colonies, as follows: "Different Great Britain and colonies, including differences of separation, only so far as imperforate and perforated are concerned, 3570; King's heads, CAC watermark, 230; King's heads, chalk paper, 150; crown A watermark, estimated, 50; total 4100. The figures are reasonably close and perhaps as accurate as one can make them counting straight types, and including only two forms of separation, perforated and imperforate." Our informant also gives the following supplementary information: "Up to August 1st, 1907, there were 218 stamps, CAC (or multiple) watermark that were printed on CA paper. On chalky paper, there were 147 stamps that were printed on either single CA or CAC ordinary; in either case, where a new value was printed on only last two papers, it has not been considered."

Worth Working For—The significance of the statement of Postmaster-General Meyer that he is "going to recommend to congress in his annual report the establishment of a domestic parcels post service limited to ten pounds or any other weight that congress will accept, five pounds if necessary," has not been lost on our readers, and Jos. A. Steinmetz, Philadelphia, writes to say that he thinks that it would be well to ask all members of the American Philatelic Association and WEEKLY readers to write a letter to their congressman urging the passage of such a measure. At the same time a word of commendation could be added for "some form of postal savings bank," which the postmaster-general likewise promises to recommend.

Now Law—Heretofore, it has merely been a recommendation of the Universal Postal Union that the stamps of one, two and five-cent denominations be green, red and blue in color, respectively, but after the first of October, 1907, the adoption of this color scheme is made imperative. Practically, all of the stamp-issuing countries of any importance are members of the postal union, and with few exceptions, they observed the implied wish of the conventions of the union; and the measure that now becomes mandatory will not have a sweeping effect in the creation of color changes in current issues.

The Proper View—In the lithographed productions recently issued by the British Solomon Islands Protectorate, Mr. C. J. Phillips, reports in the Monthly Journal, upon an examination of entire sheets of the different denominations of the issue that according to authoritative statement is to be of short life, that he found a good number of varieties that could be identified. In fact, of each denomination there are a half dozen or more discernable variations, such as lithographs are wont to show. We wish to commend the spirit in which the discoveries are presented; they are pointed out not as collectible varieties primarily but for purposes of record and research: "The first issue of the Solomon Islands has not yet had time to become interesting on account of antiquity or rarity, but having had an opportunity of examining entire sheets, we think it well to describe their little peculiarities before they are broken up. We would disarm criticism by premising that we do not consider any of the varieties that we are about to describe to be worthy of mention in a catalogue, but they may serve to distinguish the first printing from later editions, should such ever be required, and in any case, one ought to make a note of everything that one can find, even in the most uninteresting issues." When the minor variety is advanced with fair words, as these, the most rabid anti-minor variety partizan is glad to accord it a place in the book of philatelic research, even though he closes his album to it. Practical philately and theoretical philately both have their rights; the one typifies usage and the other study.

A CORRECTION.

We regret to say that a very serious error occurred in the June 15 issue of the WEEKLY in the advertisement of the Eben S. Martin Co. The price column had over it the words "My Prices" instead of "Our Prices," a most annoying, embarrassing and misleading error, with the tendency to class this company with the one-man-boy companies parading their wares in corporation style. We seriously regret the error. We try to be careful in the makeup of matter going into our columns, especially from an advertising standpoint, but careful as we may be these mistakes will sometimes occur. We are, however, always ready to make ample apology and publish the correction.

THE POET'S CORNER.

MINIATURES.

Address replies care of the WEEKLY.

For the next few weeks, there will appear
In the paper somewhere, if not just here,
Some "Miniatures" of men whose fame
Is known to many. Guess the name!

And if correctly you should guess,
And the "POET'S CORNER" you address,
An unused stamp to you will be sent
Which catalogues twenty-five times one cent!
But to get the stamp and be out of debt
Enclose five cents, please don't forget.

3.

The third before you to make his bow,
Is a man whose initials together spell "WOW"
For Prohibition he casts his vote
And on new issues used to dote
But for this, alas! he has no time now.

4.

In Boston there was a young gent
Who to Denver recently went,
He used to be nice,
And had never a vice,
But now he's a Vice President!

ALL EYES ON COLUMBUS.

This will be the watchword for the coming year. Paul Mason, the assistant city editor of the Ohio State Journal, sends us a clipping from his paper, from which we quote a portion as follows:—

When President C. B, Duffy of the Columbus Collectors' club returns from his vacation next week, arrangements will be completed for a reception to visiting stamp collectors one night—probably Wednesday—of homecoming week. The place will be announced later.

Then a meeting will be called of all the stamp collectors in Ohio, to be held in this city during September or early in October, to formulate a general working plan by which the "boosting" for the two conventions next year will be distributed all over the state, and thus assure a greater degree of success.

At the mid-September meeting of the club President Duffy will appoint the convention committees. He has announced the publicity committee as follows: Paul Mason, Ohio State Journal, chairman; Harry S. Adair, George Ward Linn, Opha Moore and George K. Smith, jr.

It is the purpose of the publicity committee to send out monthly, probably beginning October 1, bulletins of the plans and progress of preparations for entertaining the conventions, and the names and addresses of interested collectors are wanted in order that the committee may reach all interested. Every collector in the United States, or for that matter in foreign countries, who wishes to keep fully in touch with the preparations being made for the 1908 convention will please send names and addresses to Paul Mason, care of the Ohio State Journal, Columbus, Ohio.

FOREWORD!

The collecting season is on, albums are being opened, and we take this opportunity of saying that the WEEKLY is planning large things for the coming months. With such issues of this paper as the Hawaiian, Brooklyn Institute, Chinese, London, Paris and other special numbers to look back upon, it is no wonder our subscribers ask: "What next?" Rest assured we shall be there with the goods.

OUR PLANS FOR 1907-8

SPECIAL ARTICLES We plan to have a special article in every issue of the WEEKLY. It may be suited for the beginner, the advanced collector or the specialist. We make no attempt to reach the microscopical collector, though we have no quarrel with our friend whose philatelic fancy leads him into this advanced stage of specialism.

DEPT. MATTER Mr. Severn will conduct his valuable "Queries and Comment" department. "As In a Looking-Glass" will deal with current topics in a newsy, gossipy manner. Mr. Kidder will edit the Chronicle and the co-operation extended by Stanley Gibbons, Scott and the North Shore Companies with the valuable aid rendered by many of our readers means an up-to-date reliable department.

NEWS SERVICE We shall continue to publish all the news we can glean, giving credit wherever possible. No city furnishes enough real news for us to give over our space to local news letters, but all the local happenings will be gladly published immediately upon receipt. Much matter of this kind will be found on the society page, usually brim full of local news.

"The King of Stamp Papers and the Stamp Paper of Kings"

Bertram W. H. Poole, the eminent English authority, writing in Gibbons' Weekly says of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY:

"This is a noteworthy publication and, I believe, the oldest weekly stamp paper in the world, for it has issued about 860 numbers to date, a record to be proud of. It contains a number of excellent general and specialist articles, and an excellent feature of recent years has been the publication of special numbers solely devoted to the stamps of some particular country. It is pre-eminently a stamp newspaper and is full of notes on current topics of the greatest value and interest. Naturally, American stamps receive greatest attention, but the general articles and specialists' papers regarding the stamps of other countries are exceptionally meritorious, and well worthy of perusal."

Introduce the WEEKLY to some friend, remit 25c for 6 mos., mention this advt. and we will send you a nice packet of 300 all different foreign stamps FREE of charge. We are out after business.

MEKEEL-SEVERN-WYLIE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

INDIA.

By A. H. WEBER, F. R. P. S.

In the excellent article by P. L. Pemberton published in the WEEKLY for August 10, mention is made of a variety of the 2½as on 4as 6 pies of 1891. In this type the letters "As" are placed as high as the fraction bar.

There is however another variety of this surcharge hitherto unchronicled that might now well be placed before the philatelic public.

Only the letter "S" is misplaced in this variety, being raised as high as the top of the letter "A."

This new variety is therefore intermediate between the one described by Mr. Pemberton and the normal type.

I have known both varieties for over ten years and have secured three copies of the variety listed above, but none of that described by Mr. Pemberton. In both of these varieties the period is level with the bottom of the letter "S." I have a further memorandum about a misplaced or missing period, but as I have no specimen I cannot describe it. This was just a note about a specimen seen in some collection jotted down so that I would be reminded and look for it. These varieties were undoubtedly obtained from a small first printing. Some of the members of the Philatelic Society of India should be able to clear up this point and give us further information in regard to the setting.

CHANGES OF ADDRESS.

Subscribers will greatly oblige us if they will favor this office with but one change of address at a time. It will only take a postal card to notify us of the second change and will relieve us of considerable office detail. It seems a small thing in the case of one subscriber, but where we have six thousand to care for, it becomes quite a labor. We are always pleased to have the WEEKLY follow our subscribers to vacation addresses and consider it quite a compliment that even upon a summer vacation the reading of our paper cannot be dispensed with. We shall, however, be obliged if the second notice of change reaches us upon the return home of the subscriber.

THE NEW REPLY COUPON.

Postal Department Will Issue This Token October 1.—Five Millions Printed.

(At the last Postal Congress session held at Rome, provisions were made for a "Reply Coupon." Our readers will be interested in the development of the project, which will become a reality Oct. 1. Our thanks are due Messrs. Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr, and A. Blanc for newspaper clippings.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—A new postage stamp, or rather the equivalent of a postage stamp, a reply coupon, as it is officially called, has been designed and will be put into circulation on October 1 next by the International Bureau of the Universal Postal Union at Berne.

The new postal token is in the form of a ticket, entitling the holder to exchange it for a postage stamp of the value of 25 centimes, or the equivalent of that sum in those countries that have adopted the arrangement concluded last year by the delegates of most of the civilized nations assembled at the Postal Congress in Rome.

The arrangement was to the effect that a coupon should be devised to enable a person to write to a correspondent in a foreign land, enclosing the value of a stamp for a reply. Incidentally also, the coupon will enable persons to pay small accounts in foreign lands without going to the trouble of procuring a money order.

For instance, a resident of the United States may write to a correspondent in France and Germany and desire to prepay the stamp required for the answer. All he has to do is to spend six cents for a reply coupon at any American post office and enclose it in his letter. The French or German addressee will exchange the coupon at his own post office for a French or German stamp which will prepay his reply.

It was the British post office that proposed the innovation. The adoption of the coupon scheme was not made compulsory for all the nations comprised in the Universal Postal Union, but the following have signified their acceptance of it: The United States, Great Britain and most of her colonies, including Canada; Japan, Germany and her protectorates; France and her colonies, Austria, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Belgium, Spain, Denmark and her possessions; Switzerland, Greece, Chile, Bulgaria, Mexico, Costa Rica, Crete, Hayti, Hungary, Corea, Luxemburg, Roumania and Siam.

The coupons are supplied to the postal administration of the above countries at cost price and are interchangeable between them at the price of 25 centimes or its equivalent. So far 5,000,000 have been printed, of which 3,793,000 have already been taken up by the various postal administrations. Upon the international bureau at Berne will fall all the administrative work, which bids fair to be of considerable magnitude as every single token must ultimately find its way back again to that central office.

A WORD OF ENDORSEMENT.

With the adv. copy received this week from the C. E. Hussman Stamp Co., comes the following word of endorsement:—

"I enclose another advertisement. Please give me good position, top of column, next to reading matter. I am working up a nice trade for an old-new dealer. Your readers are good to me and respond readily to my advertising. Have printer use his best judgment in displaying copy. I hope to stay with you now right along, as I find it pays me."

Such a word as this, in the month of August, is very gratifying. The testimonial is not overdrawn, and we like it all the better because of that fact. Indeed, better than words is the advertising copy itself, which is the epitome of eloquence.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Charles S. Chevrier informs us that he has discovered two varieties of the new 2c envelopes. In one the head is larger than in the other, the larger head seemingly the scarcer variety, as Mr. Chevrier has been able to find but one as yet. The smaller head is 1mm. from the inner oval line, while the larger head is but ½mm. In the stamp with the smaller head, the lower part of the bust points towards the right stroke of the "W", while in the stamp with the larger head it points towards the "O". In the latter also the "C" in "Cents" is below the "E".

E. W. Murray has submitted a specimen of the current 10c stamp on paper of a very deep and pronounced lavender shade. Mr. Murray received the stamp in this condition through the mail. On the same cover there was a copy of the current 4c stamp, the paper being normal. The wrapper is also normal, showing that the stamp was colored before it was affixed. Has any one seen other copies like this, or is it a freak?

We are indebted to W. S. Dochterman for specimen of the new 1c post card, previously noticed.

E. W. Smith has shown us a vertical pair of the current 2c stamps with perforations normal on four sides, but rouletted between. Mr. Smith writes: "I always keep a few sheets on hand for accommodation of my customers and had sold just one half of this sheet before I made the discovery. It is sheet 3296, and roulette is horizontal, between 1st and second rows. I surmise that the perf. machine did not work on this row, and the rouletting was done by hand."

ANTIGUA.—Ewen's Weekly reports the 2½d, bi-colored, as having been issued on chalky Crown CC paper.

BARBADOS.—Ewen's Weekly reports that a small supplementary printing of the ¼d, 2d and 2½d Nelson stamps was made on ordinary multiple paper, instead of the single Crown CC of the earlier printings. We have been shown these stamps by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA.—Philip Wolff has shown us a photograph showing marked differences in the surcharge "Papua." In what is apparently the later one the lettering is narrower and shorter, especially the capital "P."

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS PROTECTORATE.—The Australian Philatelist reports that the Colonial Office, the High Commissioner of the Western Pacific and the Secretary of State for the Colonies have all approved the new issue of stamps, and that negotiations for the admission of the Islands to the Postal Union are progressing satisfactorily.

The stamps were printed by W. E. Smith of Sydney, in sheets of 60 stamps. There were printed 1000 sheets each of the ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d and 5d values, and 500 sheets each of the 6d and 1sh values.

COLOMBIA.—Santander.—Gibbons' Weekly chronicles some new provisionals said to have been made necessary by the change of the currency to a gold basis.

Provisional Adhesives.
"Medio Cvo" in green on 50c yellow.
"2 Centavos" in black on 5c pale blue.
"2 Centavos" in blue on 10c claret.
"2 Cvs" in blue on 5c blue green.
"2 Cvs' in blue on 20c maroon.
"2 Cvs" in blue on 5p blue.

Cucuta—Provisional similar to those noted above for Santander have been issued for Cucuta and for the same reason,—a change in the currency.

Provisional Adhesives.
"Medio Cvo" in black on 50c red on yellow.
"UN Cvo" in blue on 1c green on yellow.
"2 Centavos" in green on 2c rose.
"2 Centavos" in blue on 10c brown.
"2 Centavos" in blue on 2c pale green.
"2 Centavos" in black on 5c scarlet.
"2 Cvs" in blue on 10c deep blue.
"2 Cvs" in blue on 20c green on yellow.

ECUADOR.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the full set of the new stamps, including those shown us by other friends, and also the higher values.

Adhesives.
50c purple and black (Espinoza).
1 sucre green and black (Borrero).

GIBRALTAR.—Morocco Agencies.—We find that we have omitted to note the fact that the current English stamps have received the surcharge "Morocco—Agencies" in two lines at the top, as noted in No. 840, but without new value. Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the ½d, 1d, 2d, 4d, 6d, 1sh and 2sh 6d thus overprinted. The first two are on ordinary multiple paper and the others on chalky paper.

NATAL.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the stamps of the official set have all been withdrawn from use, and the ordinary postage stamps issued, punctured "N G R" (Natal Government Railways).

A curious cancellation has been seen, due to the issue of stamps in booklets. The 1d stamps are now issued in books of 30 stamps, the first stamp in the book being obliterated so that the book can be sold at 2sh 6d for the remaining 29 stamps. The obliteration consists of a frame nearly as large as the original printing of the stamp with horizontal crossed lines. This is broken by three horizontal tablets with round ends, arranged one above the other with the words, "NOT—FOR—USE."

NEW SOUTH WALES.—We have received from J. H. Smith, Sec. for Fred Hagen, Ltd., Sydney, N. S. W., particulars of the issue of the current 2d on new paper. We quote from his letter in extenso:—

"Herewith you have a specimen of a new issue; to wit, the 2d current New South Wales printed on paper bearing the Victorian type of Crown and A watermark. Owing to the increased demand for New South Wales stamps the contract supply of paper from England ran short, with the result that 45 or 50 thousand sheets, large enough to print four sheets of 120 stamps, had to be borrowed from the Melbourne printing office.

"Owing to the difference in size of the Victorian stamps as compared with those in New South Wales, the watermark is very badly centered in many cases, and for some reason or another the words 'Commonwealth of Australia' appear, inverted, on the two lowest lines of some sheets and not on others. As you are no doubt aware most of the New South Wales stamps are printed 240 on a plate, the sheet being afterwards divided before being issued to the public. Under ordinary circumstances the sheets would be divided between the two lines of words, which appear on the margins of the Victorian sheets and not on the stamps themselves.

"We cannot at the present moment say what values are likely to be issued on the Victorian paper, so far only the 2d has appeared, the first supply was put on sale on Friday last at midday. We understand, however, that the 1d has been printed, and it will be necessary, probably, to issue some other values before the fresh supply from England arrives."

NICARAGUA.—We have received further specimens of new varieties from Nicaragua, through the courtesy of our regular New York correspondent. The latest enclosure included two of the 2c carmine Waterlow prints with the surcharge "Vale 10c." There is a pair of these with both thick and thin ciphers. There is also on the same cover a copy of the 1c green, American print, surcharged "Vale 15c."

Hugo Zimmermann has also shown us a copy of the 5c on 4c with surcharge "B—Dpto Zelaya" chronicled in No. 869. Mr. Zimmermann considers it remarkable that this stamp should have been used instead of that with surcharge "Costa Atlantica B."

Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 3c purple, 4c vermilion, 5c blue and 6c slate, American print, overprinted "Cabo" in large type in violet, with the surcharge both normal and inverted; also the 3c purple, American print, surcharged "Vale 10c" reading up and down, and with both thick and thin "0"; also the 2c red and 4c orange brown, Waterlow print, without overprint.

MAURITIUS.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the 1r gray and carmine has been issued on chalky multiple paper.

PANAMA.—Gerald D. Bliss has favored us with a copy of the new Panama 2c card, the stamp being the same as the postage stamp of the same value, but surface printed. The inscriptions are all in carmine, and in both French and Spanish.

Postal Card.
2c carmine and black on white.

RUSSIA.—Der Philatelist chronicles a new 2k, similar to the old design, but without background. The paper is vertically laid.

TRANSVAAL.—A new series of postage due stamps has been issued for this colony, according to Ewen's Weekly. The design has "Transvaal" at the top, "Post Office" at the bottom, and in the centre a large figure of value, with "Postage" above and "Due" below. They are printed in two colors, on ordinary multiple paper. The value is printed in the second color.

Postage Due Adhesives.
½d bluish green and black.
1d scarlet and black.
2d orange and black
3d pale blue and black.
5d violet and black.
6d red brown and black.
1sh black and carmine.

VICTORIA.—The 1d post card has been seen punctured "OS" for official use. The £1 on V Crown paper and the £2 on Crown A paper have also been seen with the same puncture. A new wrapper is chronicled by the Australian Philatelist, with King's Head stamp.

Wrapper.
½d emerald green.

THE ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

A Review of the Season 1906-7.

By J. A. Tilleard, Honorary Secretary.

The season of 1906-7, although a somewhat quiet one from a purely philatelic point of view, will, I venture to think, ever be memorable in the annals of the Society as marking the commencement of a new era in its history and affairs, and its final establishment as a permanent institution.

The honour conferred on the Society on the 28th November last by the grant of permission to use the prefix "Royal" as a part of its title, and to be known for the future as "The Royal Philatelic Society, London," is a subject of congratulation, not only for the added dignity entitling the Society to rank with other learned bodies enjoying a similar privilege, but for the implied recognition of the scientific and intellectual nature of the pursuit and study of Philately. It has indeed been so accepted by Philatelists throughout the world, the numerous letters of congratulation received from the leading British, Colonial and Foreign Societies, acknowledging the reflected glory shed upon Philately from the position attained by, what they are good enough to call, the "Premier" Society.

In view of the change of title it was felt by the Council that it was desirable to secure for the Society a legal and permanent status, and for this purpose steps were taken to attain a certificate of incorporation. To attain this end an application was made to the Board of Trade for a license to register the Society as a company not formed for profit. The Companies Acts enable this course to be adopted where it is proved to the Board that the association proposed to be registered is formed for the purpose of promoting "art," "science," or "other useful object," and that it is the intention of the association to apply its profits and income in promoting its objects, and to prohibit the payment of any dividend to the members. The Board of Trade being satisfied that the objects of the Society came within one of the definitions mentioned, and having approved of the memorandum and articles of association submitted for their consideration, granted the necessary license on the 25th February in the present year, directing the Society to be registered with limited liability without the addition of the word "Limited" to its name. The registration was completed shortly afterwards, a certificate of incorporation being issued on the 1st March last.

The memorandum of association, which may be called the deed of constitution of the Society, defines the objects for which the Society is established, and contains the various provisions required by law to be included in similar documents.

It is sufficient to quote the first of the authorized objects, viz.: "To promote, encourage, and contribute to the advancement of the Science and Practice of Philately in all its branches." The remainder consist of details of various specific means by which this comprehensive object may be attained, concluding with a general power to do such other lawful acts as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the specified objects.

Under the powers of the memorandum of association the Incorporated Society has taken over all the property of the old Society, and is now entitled for all purposes to act in the corporate name.

The articles of association take the place of the statutes, and in settling these the Council have been careful to preserve the main features of the old regulations for the conduct of the business of the Society, making only such alterations as were necessary in view of the change of constitution, with such additions as appeared desirable as improvements on the previous statutes.

Amongst the clauses relating to the admission of members is a provision that the first 350 have the right to become "Fellows" of the Society, those joining after the total membership shall amount to that number being termed "ordinary members," and future vacancies arising in the number of "Fellows" are to be filled up by the Council by selection from the ordinary members. The rights and obligations of members have also been somewhat more fully established. The entrance fee, payable on election, has been reduced to £1 1s, and the provisions as to disqualification for membership arising from connexion with trading transactions have been placed on a more definite and satisfactory basis.

An important addition has been made in providing for the admission, as "associates," of persons between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one, with the right on attaining their majority of becoming full members, thus carrying out the suggestion of Mr. Hausburg for the admission of junior members, that was in contemplation shortly before the incorporation of the Society.

There has hardly been time for this innovation to bear fruit, and up to the present only one associate has been elected; but it is anticipated that in the coming year many of the younger generation of Philatelists will take adtage of the opportunity offered to them, to the mutual advantage of themselves and of the Society, of which it is hoped they may in due course become useful and active members.

The Council, as the governing body of the Society, have been invested with somewhat larger powers. Their position and duties have been more fully defined than was the case under the old regulations, and a change has been made in the mode of election of officers and Council, which, under the old system, was not altogether satisfactory owing to the want of opportunity of nomination of candidates except by members present in person at the annual general meeting.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. Severn.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

The correspondent who submitted a circular impression for identification some time ago that showed characteristics of the typical native Indian state envelope stamp, and who was told at the time that while the impression was not wholly unfamiliar looking, it could not be placed with certainty, is now informed that "this handstamp" is simply a "'paid' postmark, like those used elsewhere" (in the native Indian states, in some cases) "to denote postage paid in cash, or more probably only a postmark."

A reader says that he saw a stamp central design, Confederate flag, described as an essay, and he wants to know something of its history, and how much it is worth. There are several denominations and colors of this so-called essay which has not always been complimented by the bestowal of the descriptive term given; in fact, it has been referred to ungenerously as a fraud. Be the label an essay or not, it is assured, of course, that it was not a regular government issue. We have heard of various essays of Confederate stamps, general issue, but usually they were little more than careful drawings in ink and pencil. The value of odd or fancy varieties, such as the one just under notice, is a shifting one; sales are not of the frequence that allows of a fixed price to be named.

T. W.:—Your recollection of the different character of the Wells, Fargo & Company locals, in comparison with other locals, no doubt is based upon the fact that the stamps of this private company were authorized and placed in circulation under the terms of an act of congress, the company having been awarded the contract for the carrying of letters between New York and San Francisco by the postmaster-general, acting under congressional permission. (2) The elevation of some of the old-time locals, as accepted, to the category of semi-official in the catalogue was due to the fuller information revealed with the years as to the basic character of the stamps in question.

E. F. T.:—The exact date of issue of the stamp that you describe, the two-cent large head of Jackson, was July, 1863; the value of the stamp is about five cents.

E. J. B.:—The one-cent blue, 1890, United States, no doubt yields minor varieties due to color variations and mechanical vagaries but there are no plate varieties, akin to those of the "capped" two-cent, 1890, that have been reported and acknowledged.

P. P.:—"Continentals" are the common stamps of the different countries of Europe which are sold usually in large quantities at prices that represent but a small fraction of a cent for each stamp.

H. B. C.:—The single crown and CA watermark comes with the device one to the stamp, while each stamp with multiple watermark shows portions of two or three crowns and CA's. (2) "I have an English 2½ pence stamp of the present issue on the original cover, used in Gibraltar. Has it any extra value?" Such a stamp has an extra interest and a bit of added value that still remains a rather nominal one, however. (3) No disposition has been made of the remainders of the issue that you mention, to our knowledge.

W. R. F.:—The five pfennig, 1902 design of Germany, comes watermarked lozenges and is so catalogued, under the year 1906. (2) The stamp submitted is a fiscal stamp of Cuba, 1898-99, "timbre movil" (revenue stamp) that was surcharged "Pto., 1899, Rico," in three lines, for provisional use in Porto Rico, which up to 1898 had only a 2c de peso, "timbre movil."

William Beatty, Philadelphia, writes: "I had always understood that the emblem appearing in the centre of many Japanese stamps was a chrysanthemum, this being the imperial flower, but a Japanese connected with the diplomatic service says it is not a flower, but represents the sun, which is shown on all official papers. This does not sound good to me, but he's a Jap and I'm not. Can you give me any definite information?" Though we know that it is a dreadful thing to say about a Jap connected with the diplomatic service, we must affirm that we believe that his remark is really not ex cathedra. What an iconoclasm, it would be if the Jap could prove his point. All the precedents established by the years, for calling the design a "flower" or chrysanthemum would be shattered by the revelation and grave philatelic historians who dwelt with complacent study upon the chrysanthemum and his significance on the stamps of Japan would be routed and the hand of every trusting collector who read and believed would reach for a bit of rock with which to clout them as they scurried. It should be added that we have heard the design in question called a "wheel" but we do not wish it inferred that there is any connection between this term and the Jap whose head evolved the startlingly new and important, if true, information. The burden of proof rests with the Jap and it is his place to show us that it is never too late to learn.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Our subscribers are favoring us with numerous clippings dealing with the need of a parcels post. We have one at hand from C. C. Johnson, and two of a similar character from Hugo Kuenstler. Our attitude on this question is so well known, and our subscribers are so heartily in sympathy with us that we do not feel quite justified in devoting further space to this subject.

—Two well known dealers have had trouble with O. Peartree, of Philadelphia, Pa. We have shaken this tree, and quite a little fruit has fallen, but not sufficient to satisfy the demands of interested parties. We will therefore turn this worthy over to F. D. Goodhue, 514 Main St., Cincinnati, Ohio, and invite dealers who have claims, to file the same with Mr. Goodhue.

CHICAGO BRANCH NO. 1.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Branch, No. 1, American Philatelic Association, was held in the Club Room of the Chicago Philatelic Society, on the evening of August 14th.

President Severn called the meeting to order, with twelve members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. The Treasurer's Annual Report, showing a comfortable balance, was accepted.

E. M. Rosenthal, Chairman of the Campaign Committee, rendered a report, and advised that there was $32.16 in the treasury of the committee. Upon motion by E. S. Martin, and seconded by F. Michael, it was decided to make a pro rata refund of this amount.

Various members made remarks about the recent election and convention, and E. M. Rosenthal spoke about the peculiarities of some of the ballots cast, stating that at least 75 members voted for both Doeblin and Kjellstedt, thereby invalidating their votes for both of those candidates, as they both reside in Pennsylvania.

Upon motion, duly seconded and carried, the Secretary was instructed to notify the Omaha Branch No. 23 and the Denver Stamp Club that Chicago Branch No. 1 desires to tender them a vote of thanks for courtesies extended our members while en route and in Denver.

The Annual Election of Branch officers was then held and Iver R. Johnson was elected President, Edward M. Rosenthal Vice-President and Leonard Michael Secretary-Treasurer.

Meeting then adjourned. Next meeting Sept. 11th.

LEONARD MICHAEL, Sec.

St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. M. SCHORMAN, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The sixty-fourth regular meeting of this Society was held at usual time and place, Aug. 20, '07, President Cornwall in the chair and twelve members present.

The especial attention of all members is called to the following announcement:—At the suggestion of Mr. Myers, elaborated by President Cornwall and Mr. Long, an Entertainment Committee of three members is to be appointed at each meeting, to arrange entertainment and furnish prizes for contests at succeeding meeting. This committee is to act for a single meeting only, and each member of such committee is expected to furnish stamps to the value of $1.00 for prizes, that is $3.00 worth in all—to be divided, $2.00 worth for first prize and $1.00 worth for second prize. The committee for next meeting, Messrs. Long, (chairman), Berger and Malin. It is hoped and expected that each and every member will enthusiastically perform his simple duties when it becomes his turn to act as a member of this committee, thus adding, with little burden on any one member, to the enjoyment of our meetings.

Messrs. Cornwall, Hopkins and Long have each generously donated to the Society $10 00 worth of stamps to be auctioned for the benefit of the Treasury.

Max E. Boltz of 2900 Lucas Ave. elected as member No. 58.

An old style of "drawing" contest, but one new to this Society, won by Mr. Myers, should be persisted in and repeated at each meeting, will serve as a further incentive to members to attend regularly, will aid the Sales Department and in the course of the year add a snug little sum to the Treasury.

Reminiscences of Denver and the usual interesting informal discussions which are a necessary result of any meeting of Stamp Collectors, served to entertain all present.

Next meeting Tuesday, Sept. 3d, Rooms 803 805 Wright Building, and a cordial invitation is extended to all Stamp Collectors to attend.

DENVER, COLO., Aug. 13, 1907.

President Nast called the 21st regular meeting to order at 8.30 p. m. 13 members and one visitor present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Communication from Chester Myers, Sec. of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society, was read in which thanks were extended to the Club for entertainment during the convention. Two new applicants were elected to membership, Harold Foster and Archie McLean, both of Denver.

The Program Committee submitted their report which was accepted and the Committee discharged with thanks. H. N. Mudge of the C. P. S. was present as a visitor, and gave a very interesting informal talk on various subjects which was much enjoyed by all. At the next regular meeting C. G. Gething will exhibit his collection of entires. Meeting adjourned 11.00 p. m.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the WEEKLY:

It was my pleasure and privilege to attend the convention of the A. P. A. recently held in Denver.

Listening to the discussions, conversation, and addresses of the members, I noticed that the terms applied to stamp collectors and stamp collecting were variously pronounced. I also noted that the word, philately, was criticized as being inappropriately applied to the subject of stamp collecting.

My curiosity was aroused, and to satisfy it, I have consulted several authorities. The investigation has been interesting to me, and thinking it might prove so to others, I submit the results of my research, as follows:—

The word, philately, was formed by M. Herpin, a stamp collector, who first used it in 1865, in La Collectionneur. It was coined from two Greek words, philos, meaning—"loving or fond of" and telos, meaning "tax," the syllable "a" signifying "not." The analysis of the word is, therefore,—a love or fondness of that which frees from tax. Since the definition of, stamp, is "evidence that the duty or tax has been paid," we may substitute that word for "that which frees from tax," in the previous analysis—and define philately as—fond of or loving a stamp.

The name, I think is fitting and appropriate, although the Century Dictionary speaks of it as being "absurdly formed." "Loving" or "fond of" may seem a trifle extreme to the uninitiated, but not so to the wife of the collector. She realizes fully, that "philos" is none too strong a term to represent the devotion of her husband to his stamp treasures.

In defining "philately," the Century Dictionary says it is the "fancy" for collecting and classifying postage stamps, etc., while Worcester calls it a "mania." I cannot agree with them in the use of either "fancy" or "mania" in this definition, as philately is nothing short of a study.

The collector of postage stamps is a phi lat'e list; the "i" in the first syllable, being short as in "it" and the "a" in the second and accented syllable being also short, as in "at." The collection of stamps is phi lat'e ly, the "i" and the "a" being pronounced the same as in "philatelist."

The adjective is phil a tel'ic, the accent on the third syllable and the "i" and the "e" each short as in "it" and "let."

Would it not enhance the charm and the effectiveness of this delectable as well as profitable study if collectors pronounced these terms correctly?

PROPRIETY.

OHIO PHILATELISTS TO ORGANIZE.

Frank D. Goodhue favors us with the information that an Ohio state association will be formed sometime in September, and official notices will be sent out from Columbus. All philatelists of Ohio interested in the movement will kindly communicate with Mr. Goodhue, 514 Main St., Cincinnati, Ohio. It is proposed to boom philately for the purpose of having the best convention of the A. P. A. in 1908, that has ever been held.

A junior order of stamp collectors is to be organized, including Covington and Newport, Ky., and Cincinnati, Ohio. No one over eighteen years of age will be admitted. Further information in regard to these movements will from time to time appear in our columns.

THE ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

A REVIEW OF THE SEASON 1906-7.

By J. A. TILLEARD, Honorary Secretary.

Under the new regulations all members of the Council, except the President, retire from office at each annual general meeting. They are all eligible for re-election, and are deemed to offer themselves for re-election unless notice is given before the 20th May in any year of their intention to resign. At any time before the same date it is competent to any member to nominate one candidate for any office, or any number of members not exceeding nine as candidates for ordinary membership of the Council, so that all members, wherever resident, have now an opportunity of taking part in the election of officers and Council should they see fit to do so.

In other respects there is practically no change, and it will be seen that matters have been so arranged that there is no break in the continuity and associations of the Society, and the fusion of the old body with the incorporated body has been carried into effect without any interference with the business or work of the Society.

His Royal Highness the President has taken a great personal interest in all that has been done. By his own desire he has been consulted throughout the negotiations, and has given valuable assistance in the steps taken for securing for the Society the privileges that have been granted. The memorandum and articles of association were, before their completion, submitted to the President at his request, and have been approved by His Royal Highness, to whom our grateful thanks are due for all that he has done in the interests of the Society.

If the small body of Philatelists who were present on the 10th April, 1869, and then laid the foundations of the Philatelic Society, London, looked forward, as I have no doubt they did, to the possibility of the Society attaining to the position and dignity at which it has now arrived, they could not but feel satisfied that their aspirations have been fulfilled. The rate of progress may have been slow, but it has been continuous, as the Society, mindful of what is expected of it in the philatelic world, has always acted upon the principle so aptly expressed by the Latin precept, Festina lente.

It is a far cry to the year 1869, and there can now be but few survivors of those who were present at the birth of the Society. We are, however, proud and thankful still to be able to call one of the most prominent of the original founders a fellow member, and all will join with me in assuring him of our earnest hope that his name may be retained on our roll of membership for many years to come. I allude, of course, to His Honour Judge Philbrick, who for many years was our President, and to whom is due so much of the early success achieved by the Society.

The meetings during the past season have been held fortnightly from October to the present month. Sixteen meetings in all have been held, and the number of members attending has averaged eighteen for each meeting, a slight increase upon the average for the preceding year. The number is not so large as it should be, but it is hoped that it may be exceeded in the coming season, as it is believed that many of the recently elected members will become regular attendants.

It was found that seven o'clcok p. m., the hour fixed for the meetings last year and adhered to up to the middle of February last, was somewhat inconvenient. The views of all members resident in the United Kingdom and likely to be able to be present at the meetings were invited, with the result that a large majority were in favour of a somewhat earlier hour, and the time was accordingly fixed at 6 p. m., an hour that has so far met with general approval amongst the members who are most regular in their attendance.

At ten of the meetings papers or notes have been read, all accompanied by displays of the stamps or other subjects dealt with, while displays alone have also been given on four evenings, and one meeting has been devoted to a discussion of a proposition by Mr. Oldfield on the question of the illustration of papers read at the meetings of the Society.

The papers have consisted of one on

PHILIPPINES

WITH PRINTED "O. B." SURCHARGE!

The order for PRINTING the surcharge was dated: "May 25, 1907" and its closing paragraph reads as follows: "In the first lot it may be advisable to make trials of several colors of ink to determine the most suitable, but it is requested that the letters 'O. B.' be uniform throughout, and the selection of type is left to your superior judgment."

These instructions were obeyed and the colors used were: YELLOW, GREEN, RED, DARK BLUE and BLACK.

On July 18, 1907, the following order was issued to the Director of the Bureau of Printing by the Director of the Bureau of Posts:—

"Sir:—On future orders for placing the 'O. B.' overprint on unused Philippines postage stamps please use the following colors of ink:

"Red on denominations of: 2, 6, 10, 16 and 26 centavos and 1, 2, 4 and 10p and 10 (20) centavos special delivery.

"Blue on denominations of: 4, 8, 12, 20 and 30 centavos.

"It is also requested that you use in all future stamp over-printing capital type 195—24 Point, as given on page 77 of your 'Desk Book'."

This new type is much heavier than that used on the first lot, of which comparatively few were issued, and, of course, renders the first type already obsolete. The following is a list of the values surcharged in each color:

GREEN: 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20, 26 and 30c.

YELLOW: 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20, 26 and 30c.

DARK BLUE: 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20, 26 and 30c, 1 and 2p.

RED: 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20, 26 and 30c, 1, 2, 4 and 10p, 20c S. Del.

BLACK: 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20, 26 and 30c, 1 and 4p.

Some few of the 1902-3 series were also surcharged but I am unable to give a list of them at present.

I shall be able to supply ALL VARIETIES in due time. Just now I can only offer the following, ALL UNUSED AND O. G.:

RED SURCHARGE, 2c to 30c inclusive, $3.25 per set.
DARK BLUE " 2c to 30c " $3.50 " "
BLACK " 4c inverted (but 300 issued) $1.00 each.

"Royal Proclamations" concerning the Post Office, by the Vice-President; notes on the types of the 2s (1854-64) of "Victoria," and explanatory notes as to the forthcoming work on the stamps of the "Australian Commonwealth," both by Mr. Hausburg; a paper on the stamps of "Canada," by Mr. M. H. Horsley; on "Danish West Indian" stamps, by Mr. T. W. Hall; notes on the stamps of "Switzerland," by Colonel Bonhote; a paper on the stamps of the "Ionian Islands," by Mr. E. D. Bacon; notes on the stamps of "Denmark," by Mr. W. Dorning Beckton; notes on the so-called "Woodblocks" of the "Cape of Good Hope," by Mr. M. P. Castle; and a paper on the first issues of "China," by Mr. E. J. Nankivell.

The following have been responsible for displays, viz.: H. R. H. the President, the stamps of "Hong Kong" and "Kashmir"; Mr. R. M. Reid, who showed unused European stamps; Mr. Sidebotham, a selection from his general collection; and Mr. Duveen, unused stamps of "Spain."

I am glad to be able to report a considerable increase in the number of members elected during the past year, and that the hopes I ventured to express in my last report that the loss of members there recorded might be speedily regained have been more than satisfied. Forty-one new members have been elected.

On the other hand, we have lost the following six members through death: Mr. W. Armistead, Mr. R. Ehrenbach, Major C. J. Everett Mumby, Lieutenant B. Oxehfvud, Mr. E. H. Roebuck, and Mr. W. Thorne.

Mr. Armistead had been a member for nearly fifteen years, and the announcement of his death, as well as that of Major Mumby who joined the Society about fourteen years ago, was received with much regret.

Mr. W. Thorne, a very old collector, was one of the most prominent Philatelists in the United States of America, and his death is a distinct loss to Philately.

Lieutenant Oxehfvud was a Swedish officer, who joined the Society in 1893. Although he was never present at any of our meetings, he always took the greatest interest in our affairs, and was in constant correspondence with myself as Honorary Secretary.

The sudden death of Mr. R. Ehrenbach in August last was a great shock to his numerous friends. From the time of joining our ranks in 1892 he was one of the most regular attendants at our meetings, and speedily became a leading member of the Society, being elected to a seat on the Council in 1894, a position that he retained to the last. From his wide knowledge of stamps, he was able to render valuable assistance to the Expert Committee, of which he became a member in the season 1902-3, and his death at a comparatively early age is a great loss to the Society. Few collectors have ever been so universally known throughout all the quarters of the globe as Mr. R. Ehrenbach, and all who were privileged to make his personal acquaintance fell under the charm of his bright and genial nature. His name will always rank as one of the prominent Philatelists of the past twenty years, and the loss occasioned by his death is not confined to the Society, but is a loss to the world of Philately.

The resignations during the past season were nine in number, viz.; Messrs. J. M. Andreini, S. B. Baxter, J. H. Chapman, E. S. Davidson, H. Ferrier-Kerr, G. F. Jackson, A. W. Maclean, G. B. T. Nicholl, and F. N. Schiller.

Four names have been removed under the statutes, making with the deaths and resignations a total of nineteen to be deducted from the number of new members given above, the result showing a net increase of twenty-two in our membership, as compared with the number at the date of my last report.

The actual number now on the register of members is 229, but there are still twelve who have not yet signified their assent, as required by the articles of association, to be entered on the register. Several of these are resident in Australia, so that there has been barely time to hear from them, and as I have no doubt that at least seven out of the twelve will in due course come in, our actual number may be reckoned at 236 members and one associate.

Our congratulations and thanks are due to the Honorary Librarian, Mr. L. W. Fulcher, on the practical completion of the arduous task undertaken by him in the classification and arrangement of the Society's Library. The accumulation of periodicals referred to in last year's report has been examined and sorted, and a list has been prepared of all the minor periodicals (mostly rather incomplete) contained in the Library, and the Card Catalogue, together with this list, comprises all the literature that the Society possesses, except the auction catalogues.

Further volumes to the number of 142 have been bound during the year, and very little more can now be done in this direction until the missing parts of periodicals have been acquired.

In addition to the above work, Mr. Fulcher has sorted and arranged, and has prepared a list of the duplicates of unbound periodicals, etc., a task of no light nature, as may be readily understood when I mention the fact that these duplicates filled seventeen large sacks, which were sent from the Society's offices to the private residence of our energetic Librarian for sorting and classification.

The Council have held a large number of meetings during the past year, many being necessitated by the change in the constitution and for disposing of numerous questions relating to the affairs of the Society.

all necessary steps to carry it into effect, and also to manage and arrange the collection to be formed.

The assistance of members in the starting of the collection, which cannot fail to be of value and assistance to the Society, is cordially invited, and if all who are interested in the work are able to contribute a small portion of the duplicates owned by them, the collection should soon become valuable for the purposes of reference.

Although no work has been published by the Society since the appearance of Africa, Part III, towards the end of last season, considerable progress has been made with the preparations for the forthcoming volumes on the stamps of the Australian Commonwealth.

Some of the proposed illustrations for the part dealing with the stamps of New South Wales have been shown at a recent meeting, and the Committee entrusted with the publication are to be congratulated on the success that has attended their efforts to make the illustrations as complete and perfect as possible. From what has been already seen, there can be no doubt that the illustrations of the numerous plates of the "Sydney Views" and "Laureated" issues will be very far in advance of those that were obtainable for Oceania, most of them being taken from unused stamps, or, where these were not available, from specimens with light cancellations.

I am sorry to see that complaints of delay in the publication have been made by some of our Australian friends. They may rest assured that there will be no delay, except such as may be rendered necessary by reason of the determination of the Committee that the work when issued shall be as perfect as it can be made. The complaints are happily confined to a few who have not given the assistance to the Committee that might have been expected of them, and the general body of Philatelists, who are looking forward to the publication, are satisfied that the work is in capable hands, and will be presented to the philatelic public at the earliest opportunity.

I should like here to call attention to one volume of importance that has appeared during the past year. Although not issued by the Society, it is deserving of record in this report as the work of one of our fellow members. I refer to the Philatelic Index, by Mr. W. A. R. Jex Long, containing an alphabetical list of the principal articles from some of the chief philatelic magazines in the English language down to the end of 1904. This work is generally recognized as one of considerable value for reference purposes, covering as it does the principal contents of about 120 volumes of the various magazines dealt with by the author.

Fearing to trespass too far on your patience, I have, in this my thirteenth annual report, confined my remarks to the doings and affairs of the Society in an eventful year, without touching on matters and events outside our immediate circle, and these are so fully dealt with in the philatelic journals, that any observations of mine would only be a recapitulation of what has already appeared in print.

I may, however, be excused for referring to the fact of an exhibition of the stamps of France having been recently organized by the Government of that country, as a striking instance of the progress of Philately, and of official recognition of the widespread interest attaching to the pursuit.

In conclusion, I would wish to express the sincere hope that the changes in our name and constitution may be the means of imparting renewed vitality to the life and work of the Society, and may act as an incentive to individual members to do all in their power to render it worthy of its distinguished title and important objects.—London Philatelist.

The vacancy in the Expert Committee caused by the death of Mr. Ehrenbach has been filled by the election of Mr. T. W. Hall, and the Committee have been fully occupied throughout such part of the season as is devoted to their work.

An important step has been taken in the decision to form an official reference collection of stamps and other objects of philatelic interest. When the matter was first discussed it was referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. M. P. Castle, H. R. Oldfield, and L. W. Fulcher, for consideration and report. Their report was subsequently adopted, and these gentlemen, with Mr. Hausburg, have now been appointed a permanent committee to settle the details of the scheme and to take

EDITORIAL.

An Omission—In writing us recently, a reader appended a foot-note to his letter, saying that he had dreamed on two successive nights of making marvellous finds of rare stamps, and he asks humorously, what significance these dreams have and whether they have a portent that is likely to reduce itself to favorable reality. In an endeavor to relieve the curiosity of this anxious inquirer, competent authority has been consulted but the answer given by the traveler in the realms of the borderland is that in all the dream books with which he is acquainted, stamps have no mention in a way that is relevant to philately. Evidently, he is filled with indignation at this oversight, as he hints that he will remedy the omission by preparing a philatelic dream-book that will be devoted to the explanation of the many varieties of stamp dreams that the philatelist experiences; then, no longer need the dreamer remain in doubt as to the meaning of his nightly figments of fancy, so far as they embrace the philatelic theme. Meanwhile, all the requests for dream interpretation that come to us from stamp collectors will be referred to this student of dream life.

Shadows—Dreams enter prominently into the world of the philatelist, as the stamp collector is apt to possess an imagination that easily leads him away from the humdrum of mundane existence, and so, he particularly is subject to dreams involving that which has so important a share in his affections. Moreover, his dreams usually are of a happy, hopeful kind, as they are a reflex of his pleasant mental nature. As a rule, he does not see his collection destroyed by fire or his stamps stolen, but, on the contrary, he uncovers hordes of old stamps in attics, trunks, post-offices and elsewhere. The only sad part of his dream is the awakening. The collector who dreams often of stamps may know that he regards them with so much interest that not only does he think of them during his waking hours but also, during his sleep. Dreams of stamps are an evidence of loyalty to them and the collectors who indulge in dreams often no doubt console themselves with the thought that it is something to have the shadow of the stamps, even if the substance eludes them.

The Awakening—In stamp literature the dream has a place of recognized importance. Perhaps, the earliest plot of a stamp story was based on a dream, and to this day, the same thought with variations has an ascendency. The old familiar tale of the collector who was finding fistful after fistful of stamps until he was awakened has done standard service from philatelic time immemorial. The idea is a natural and fascinating one and has been worked out by writers for the stamp papers. The endings of the stories are always the same but the details are handled according to the ideas of the individual writer, and, in many cases, cleverly enough. The fact that the dream story is repeated so often is an indication of the large part that dreams have in the minds of collectors generally. It has been said that next to having rarities in their own collections philatelists like to hear of them in the collections of others; and applying the same parallel, it follows it is more satisfactory to see stamps in dreams than not at all.

Double Impression—A reader has shown us two copies of the three-cent, 1861, United States, each having a clearly defined double impression. All the evidence points to the certainty that both stamps came from the same sheet, as they bear the same characteristics and the letters on which they paid postage were both sent by the same individual to the same firm, during the period of a week. Pronounced double-strikes are of much interest to the specialist in particular; they seem to be rarely met with in the 1861 issue but are rather commoner, it is said, in the 1847 and 1851-60 issues. Perhaps, the double strike that is found oftenest is that of the three-cent, 1851.

Peace Guaranty—The newspapers say that peace in Central America is now assured by the offer of the United States and Mexico to arbitrate and adjust the differences that crop out between the states, the extension of kindly offices being such that the republics cannot afford to decline the proffer of mediation. The growing importance of the commercial interests in the Central American republics has rendered it imperative that steps be taken to insure a season of peace and regularity of government; and it is calculated that the impartial consideration of grievances will allow of decisions that will be recognized as just and equitable even by the interests at variance. The demand that political questions be subservient to those of business policy has become unmistakable and it is proposed that the handicap that retards the development of the natural resources of the countries in question be removed.

Brave Old Days—In the American Boy, in the "Chats with Big Americans," the subject of the article in question being Colonel W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," there is an interesting reference to the "pony express" days. It is related by Mr. Cody who was one of the hardy band of express riders, how dangerous and arduous were the duties of the pony riders who carried the mail between the relay stations "about 250 miles apart." It is said in the interview that the postage rates for pony-express service were five dollars a half-ounce; while we do not say that the rates were not so high as mentioned yet it is known that cheaper rates than the one named, prevailed, also. It might be repeated that the weight of the mail carried by each rider was about twenty pounds, and the letters wers written on tissue paper, as a rule.

True—The pony express local stamps have many fascinating phases, and when locals were high in philatelic esteem, these varieties were ranking favorites. They were popular abroad as well as at home by reason of the nature of the service that they performed; and they were distinctive in the eyes of collectors generally. As showing the manner in which they appealed to the individual the following illustration founded on documentary exhibit is submitted. When a young son of the great Darwin lay dangerously ill and almost oblivious to his surroundings, Professor Asa Gray sent the boy who was a stamp collector, a lot of stamps, much to the pleasure of the sufferer who evinced in the specimens an interest little short of the extraordinary, in the estimation of his father. Darwin gratefully acknowledged the receipt of the stamps and told his friend of the keen satisfaction that they gave the sick boy, although Darwin's comments on stamp collecting were not wholly sympathetic. Years afterwards, an ardent collector, upon reading the letter referred to, in a volume published after Darwin's death, wrote to another son of Darwin in England, asking if his brother's stamp collection was still preserved, and, if not, whether the brother remembered any of the stamps that were in it. In due course an answer was received that after the death of the maker of the collection, it had disappeared, but the brother who wrote said that he remembered certain of the stamps in the collection, and that among them, were some of the pony-express stamps.

Good Business—From several sources, the information has been received that wholesale lots of good class are not so plentiful at present as they are when the demand is slack; this argues that dealers are recruiting their stocks so as to be prepared for the busy times that are soon to be with us. If one reads the barometer of trade aright, the trade winds will blow heavily this season.

—On Saturday, Sept. 14, the United Stamp Co. will sell part two of the Hussman wholesale stock. A general line of U. S. and foreign is offered.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Geo. Dugdale, L. J. Flerlage, John A. Solomon (5), Mac H. Sanborn and Geo. S. Dates, Jr.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Eugene Klein of New York City, whose official connection with the local society has extended over a long period of time, marked by efficient service, has been called to Philadelphia, where he will in the future be found in the office of the Phila. Stamp Co. The advertisement of this firm, found elsewhere, announcing this fact, will be read with great interest by Mr. Klein's friends, the number of whom is legion. We congratulate both the firm and Mr. Klein upon the relationship established.

—In our account of the convention of the M. P. A. we omitted to state that Julian Park had been elected International Secretary, re-elected for the fourth time.

—Otto Patzschke, writing from the Jamestown Exposition, favors the WEEKLY with a fine set of Japanese stamps, shown pictorially on a bronze-surfaced card. The greetings extended are heartily appreciated.

—Stanley P. Ashbrook favors us with clippings from Cincinnati papers, giving evidence of the enthusiasm existing in that locality in the interest of a new local stamp society. The advertising columns of the city papers are being called into use, and indications point to a successful organization meeting early in October. Collectors in Cincinnati and vicinity, who are interested, are invited to write Frank D. Goodhue, 514 Main Street.

—H. B. Phillips of Berkeley, Cal., in a note to the WEEKLY, states that the philatelic society of his city is moving on in the even tenor of its way, with about 25 members. There has recently been formed among the college students, a new stamp society, limited to the student body, and already about 25 members have been enrolled. The WEEKLY and its readers will be pleased to be kept posted in regard to the philatelic activities of this western city.

—Pres. Geo. J. Carter of the U. S. Revenue Society calls our attention to a circuit just closed up, in which the sales realized over 69% of the total value. This certainly speaks well for the interest in this branch of philately.

—Those of our readers who have had business relations with B. Max Mehl will be interested in learning that he has been off on a wedding trip. Many hearty wishes will go to him for a long and happy existence as a benedict.

SAVANNAH IN 1909.

Emil Eckstein of Savannah, Ga., writes the WEEKLY, urging the selection of his city for the 1909 convention of the A. P. A. Mr. Eckstein believes in making an early start, and hopes to interest some of the leading workers of the Association, so that they may recognize the claims of Savannah and support this city when the successor to Columbus is chosen. Mr. Eckstein writes:—

"I suggest to you as a splendid convention city for 1909, Savannah, Ga., especially if the A. P. A. could come during May, when this place is a paradise. We have fine tourist hotels, and direct first-class steamship lines to Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The city is also easy of access by rail from all points of the country. Eighteen miles from the ocean, it has one of the finest beaches imaginable. The historical landmarks of the Revolutionary and Civil Wars would furnish much of interest. The coming of the A. P. A. to this vicinity would be extremely valuable in recruiting the association in a portion of the country where it is quite weak. If the idea strikes you and others favorably I shall be pleased to take the matter up with the local Chamber of Commerce. There is not a more hospitable city in the world. Think it over."

Mr. Eckstein may be addressed at 318 E. Huntingdon St., Savannah, Ga, should any of our subscribers wish to give him a word of encouragement. Accompanying his letter was a souvenir showing the prosperity of the city, and illustrating many things of interest.

TABLE SHOWING STATISTICS OF STAMPS ISSUED FOR PHILIPPINES SINCE JUNE, 1900.

We are in receipt of communications from Gen. H. H. Bandholtz and Major F. L. Palmer, both dealing with the surcharged Philippine stamps issued 1900-1906. The table supplied by Gen. Bandholtz also includes figures in connection with the new set for last year. We acknowledge with thanks the services rendered by both of these gentlemen, and while we use the table submitted by Gen. Bandholtz, a lengthy extract is also made from Major Palmer's letter. Our readers will be greatly interested in the information placed before them.

MEMORANDUM.

In the accompanying schedule stamps indicated as destroyed include those that were actually destroyed and also those that were used for official and telegraph purposes. The number of the dollar denominations that were used has been verified by actual count, the number used officially has been estimated, and it is believed that the estimate will fall far short of the number thus actually used. In the reports on the number destroyed no distinction was made between issues, but a member of the committee kept track of same.

The total numbers of each denomination destroyed March, 1907, of the surcharged series were as follows: 1c, 1,268,828; 2c, 527,755; 3c, 23,186; 4c, 86,093; 5c, 368,156; 6c, 21,535; 8c, 3,867; 10c, 144,821; 13c, 6,659; 15c, 12,035; 50c, 40,359; $1, 983; $2, 2,305; $5, 198.

From Maj. Palmer's mss. we quote as follows:—

In the case of most values it is impossible to know the quantities preserved unused which will actually become available for collectors. But, as to the various dollar values, the following interesting data has been obtained: There were used on telegrams, of the $2.00, and $5.00 1899-01 issue, about 250 and 400 respectively; of the 1902-06 issue, about 1000 of the $1.00, 300 of the $2.00 and 450 of the $5.00. These telegrams were mostly Weather Bureau telegrams requiring transmission to many points, and not paid for singly but in bulk at end of month when stamps of the highest denomination available and to necessary amount were affixed to the voucher and then cancelled. As these vouchers are retained Governmental records they cannot be legally removed from the Archives except when ordered destroyed, and hence will probably never become available for collectors of used stamps. Moreover, I am assured that by far the larger number are so heavily cancelled or otherwise mutilated that they would be of no value for collectors in any case. Some of these stamps (all dollar values except $1.00 of 1901 issue) were also used on telegrams by other Departments where the same telegram was sent to numerous points, all being paid for in bulk. Those used on Weather Bureau telegrams were actually counted by my informant, but, as the other telegrams were not available, the others were estimated only. I believe the amounts given are conservative, and at least a minimum. Hence it will be seen that, after deducting these quantities used, the maximum numbers of stamps available for collectors in unused condition will be about as follows:

1899-1901.—$1.00, 3,000; $2.00, 1,650; $5.00, 700.

1902-1906.—$1.00, 4,017; $2.00, 500; $5.00, 750.

SPECIAL CLEARANCE SALE.

To raise cash for a particular purpose we offer the following lots of rare and very desirable stamps below their real market value, and in most instances at less than they have sold for at auction during the past season. They are offered on the principle of "money back if not suited," by which we mean that if when you receive the stamps you do not think they are worth all or more than we charge for them you may return the stamps and we will refund your money in toto, without comment. With this understanding no remarks as to condition are necessary, tho' they are in fact in far too good a condition to sacrifice. Note that many stamps are here offered which can be supplied by even the very largest dealers only at full catalogue.

TERMS: Cash with order. 3% discount on orders over $20.00. Those whom we know or who may establish their responsibility may have lots sent on approval to be paid for or returned within THREE DAYS. All orders will be filed in order received, but cash orders will have the preference. Parties at a distance need not fear to order as in many instances we have more than one of a kind. Send to your dealer for quotations and if he cannot supply try us and see what a bargain really is. This ad will not appear again and we have no intention or hope that we can duplicate these prices evermore. Address all orders and correspondence of any nature as below.

SPECIAL LOT.

We have a lot of stamps made up on approval sheets marked at Scott's prices containing stamps at from 1c to $2.00 each, averaging between 5 and 10c. The total value per Scott is $256.44, and we want to sell the whole bunch at $42.50, less 3% for cash with order. This is a snap for a small dealer who should treble his money, as the stamps are a good lot and by no means of the common conventional type. Who speaks first?

We have a lot of stamps suitable for approval sheets unmounted, ranging in price at 2, 3, 4 and 5c per Scott; possibly a few, but very few at 1c. These are in good condition and good values, practically all old and obsolete. We'll sell them while they last at 45c a 100, or $4.00 a 1000. Good money makers for boys and small dealers.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Mr. Geo. L. Toppan writes as follows:

"I am enclosing for your information a Provisional Seal about which Mr. A. H. Weber writes me as follows: 'These were printed over five years ago by a former postmaster at a time when the Department was short on supplies. This occurred again about three months ago; no supplies were obtainable and they resurrected some of these. I got about one dozen of them. When these were used up margins from stamp sheets were used to patch up any defective mail.' I have never seen this Seal described anywhere and thought it might be of interest to you. From the date of Mr. Weber's letter, it must have been issued this last time in March last."

The seal is type set, with plain rule border, with medium heavy face, the inscription reading "Post Office Department—Officially Sealed—Berkeley, Cal."

J. H. Houston has shown us the 2c Jamestown stamp, apparently precancelled "Ionia—Mich." in two lines between rules, done with a rubber stamp.

ABYSSINIA.—L'Echo reports that two new series of stamps have been issued, one for postage and the other for postage due. The first is made by a new surcharge on the "eternal" series of 1894, the surcharge composed one line in Arab characters, with the value in guerchen. The postage due set is produced by printing the value in guerches upon the stamps already surcharged "Tax à percevoir."

ARGENTINE.—The color of the 3c has been changed, according to a French contemporary.

Adhesive.

3c blue green.

CANADA.—We learn from Le Journal des Philatelistes that the postage due stamps have been suppressed and that the remaining stock has been, or will be, burned.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—It appears that the new watermark recently found in the stamps of the Dominican Republic is the same as that recently found in the stamps of Wurtemburg. However, as the former are printed in Germany, perhaps this explains the matter.

EGYPT.—J. H. Houston has shown us the 2m stamp, with overprint "O. H. H. S.", and native Characters.

Soudan.—Le Journal des Philatelistes reports that a new series of stamps is being prepared, which will comprise many different types, the size to be smaller than the current stamps.

FRANCE.—Le Journal des Philatelistes says that the new 25c stamp, which was issued in very dark blue, has been printed in a lighter shade, approaching royal blue.

GOLD COAST.—The ½d stamp has now appeared in a single color.

Adhesive.

½d green.

GUATEMALA.—According to Le Journal des Philatelistes, Guatemala contemplates the issue at the end of this year or early in 1908, a series of stamps commemorative of the completion of the Interoceanic Railway.

INDO-CHINA.—According to Le Journal des Philatelistes the Grasset series of stamps has been replaced by a new series, there being three different types as in all the recent Colonial series. The higher values have only appeared as yet, and are of the large upright type similar to the higher values of Somali Coast. The designs show differing types of natives, with elaborate settings of background and frame, each value being distinct, except in size. There will be another type for the values from 1c to 15c, and another for the values from 20c to 50c. There is also to be a series of postage due stamps. The stamps were designed by M. Puyplat,

NEPAL.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us a new series of stamps from this state, the design being an entirely new one, and withal exceedingly curious. The stamps are a small horizontal oblong in shape, the leading feature being a representation of Siva, the Destroyer. The following description has been kindly sent us by Whitfield King & Co.:

"In the centre of the stamp, amidst the eternal snows from whence flow the fertilizing streams to the green hills below, sits the god, Siva Mahandeo, the destroyer, 'the supreme god,' with his three eyes to denote the three divisions of time, past, present and future. In one hand he holds an antelope, in another, the trident to show the three great attributes of creating, preserving and destroying, and that he is the Aswara or Supreme Lord. Another hand is stretched out in the act of solicitation, and a fourth is held up in a forbidding attitude. The necklace of skulls signifies the lapse and revolution of ages, and the extinction and succession of the generation of mankind. In the upper corners the sun and crescent moon are represented, the lower corners giving the year of issue of the stamps. The inscriptions on the stamps are in Devanagri, the white letters at the top contain the name of the god whose image is portrayed in the center, the inscription at foot is 'Goorka Sirkar,' whilst those at the side are the denominations."

We take the following from Ewen's Weekly Stamp News, regarding the new stamps:

"The design is something unique even in the present age of postal curiosities, the wording being entirely in native characters, so that the collector, unless he is acquainted with Devanagri, can only distinguish the different values by their colors, and moreover, the equivalents of the words 'postage' or 'revenue' are absent. The stamps contain a double border, the inner one in colored letter being a motto, which is the same on all the stamps, while the outer border in white letter contains at the top the name of the god whose image is portrayed in the centre; at the bottom "Gooka Sirkà; and the denomination on either side in Devanagri."

The stamps have been printed by Perkins, Bacon & Co., Ltd., of London, on plain paper, in sheets of 100 stamps, in ten rows of 10 stamps. They are perforated 13½. The unit of value is pice, one pice equalling ¼d in English money, therefore the face value of the set is less than 1sh.

PERU.—Frank B. Eldredge has favored us with a glimpse of the 4c value in the new set. It is a small horizontal oblong in shape, the design being in harmony with the other values. A spirited drawing of the llama forms the central picture.

Le Journal des Philatelistes says that while the new set was being printed many of the post offices in the interior run short of postage stamps, and were obliged to resort to various devices to supply the needs of the people. The stamps remaining on hand were cut in two, sometimes horizontally, sometimes vertically, and again diagonally. Among those seen are noted, half of 5c as 2c, half of 10c and 12c as 5c, and half of the 50c and 20c on the same cover to make 35c.

PHILIPPINES.—There is no doubt but what the large advertisement of H. F. Colman in this issue will be read by every subscriber to our paper. It furnishes important news that might well be repeated in our chronicle, had we the space. Mr. Toppan, however, has covered the situation so excellently that we feel like allowing our Philippines section of the chronicle, for the nonce, to be transferred to page 2, where full particulars will be found in regard to the printed "O. B." surcharges. Past issues of the WEEKLY have made frequent references to the manuscript surcharging that has been resorted to, and there is no question but what this first type of surcharging will now be in much greater demand, in view of the fact that the printed surcharge is a reality. The new Official Business set does not come as an entire surprise, as the issue has been previously presaged in this department.

SOUTHERN NIGERIA.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has shown us a new value in the current set, the 3d having never before been issued for this Colony, with this also Mr. Putney shows us the ½d, 1d, and 2½d. All are on chalky multiple paper, and are surcharged "Specimen."

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec.

BOSTON, June 20, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-seventh regular meeting of the Society was held in Elks' Hall, on Tuesday evening, June 18th, with 25 members present.

The Library Committee submitted the following report:

The Library Committee would report the following additions since the April meeting:—

Drew's priced catalogues 182, 183 and 184, and Bartels 37, from A. P. Brown.

Morgenthau's 7, 8 and 9, from J. S. Rich.

Vol. 1 MEKEEL'S WEEKLY and Vols. 9 and 12 Phil. Journal of America, from The New England Stamp Co.

Missing numbers of MEKEEL'S and Daily Stamp Item, from H. E. Deats.

1906 Catalogue, which was in San Francisco fire, from Nathan Cobe.

1905 American Philatelist, from A. W. Batchelder. 1906, from the A. P. A., and Vol. 6 from C. A. Howes.

Luff's work on U. S. Stamps, by purchase.

We have also had bound complete file of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, Daily Stamp Item, 7 Volumes Philatelic Journal of America, 3 Volumes of Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, and 2 more years of Drew's Auction Sales. We very much need No. 132 to complete recent years.

The Library Committee has also donated the extra copy of the Swedish Society book recently received from them to the Boston Public Library, in the name of the Boston Philatelic Society.

The auction sale at the May meeting netted $44.00, and the Committee gratefully acknowledge contributions of stamps from Messrs. Aldrich, Bartels, Batchelder, F. P. Brown, Carpenter, C. N. Chase, Dennett, Dodge, Drew, Green, Harris, Howes, Hutchins, Kelley, King, Lombard, Lyons, Nevin, Risdon, Rothfuchs, Sawyer, Tuckett, Williams, Woolley and Wylie, and cash from Messrs. Clapp, Coburn, Colson, Greeley and F. W. Parker.

E. M. CARPENTER for Com.

For the Exhibition Committee, its Chairman, Mr. Howes, reported progress.

The following applications were posted:—

Mr. Chas. M. Abbott, Watertown, Mass., proposed by Mr. Wylie.

Mr. J. van de Graaf, Amsterdam, Holland, proposed by Mr. Linnemann.

Mr. Arthur F. Stone, St. Johnsbury, Vt., proposed by Mr. Colson.

Mr. John J. Howland, New Bedford, Mass., was elected to membership.

The International Secretary, Mr. Bartels, reported receipt of a kind invitation from the Sulvia Society of Augsburg, to this Society for their fifth annual meeting, May 5th, and that suitable acknowledgement of the courtesy had been made.

Mr. Green taking the chair, President Howes, proposed a vote of thanks to our fellow member and good friend, Mr. A. H. Weber of California—who had so kindly sent on a large portion of his splendid collection for exhibition at our May meeting, but which owing to delay on the part of the Express company, did not arrive here in season for showing at that time, but which comprised the exhibition for this evening; the motion being seconded, was unanimously passed.

On motion by Mr. Kelley, a vote of thanks and appreciation for the courtesy shown by Messrs. Toppan and Tweedy in showing their wonderful collections of stamps of the Canal Zone at the May meeting, was unanimously passed.

Additional votes of thanks were passed to Messrs. Mason, Rothfuchs, Foster, Berthold, Howes, Green, Carpenter, Sawyer, Linnemann and Parker, for their co-operation in making a success of the May meeting by entering fine exhibits.

Nearly 200 pages from the collection of Mr. Weber of California—embracing stamps of Holland, Dutch Indies, China, and Chinese Treaty Ports, were then shown.

Mr. Weber has gone into the varieties of Holland and Dutch Indies very thoroughly and his exhibit showed the perforation and paper varieties in full detail and also a new scheme of presenting varieties of perforation.

In his China and Chinese Treaty Ports, Mr. Weber showed a large number of uncatalogued varieties and on every hand was to be seen evidences of most painstaking research.

By reason of Mr. Weber's kindness a most enjoyable and instructive evening was passed.

At the conclusion of the exhibition of Mr. Weber's collections, Mr. V. M. Berthold read a paper on The 2c Plimpton Dies, C, C2, C3, and D, 1874-5, embodying recent discoveries and which was felt to be of such importance that it was voted to publish the paper in the Official Organ at the Society's expense. (See issue of July 13).

After passing a vote of thanks to Mr. Berthold for his instructive paper the meeting adjourned at 9.30.

THE CHICAGO PHILATELIC SOCIETY'S 500th REGULAR MEETING.

By H. N. MUDGE, President.

It is seldom given to a local society of any character whose existence depends on interest in some so-called hobby, to be able to celebrate a 500th regular meeting. Especially is this the case when the occurrence of such meetings have not been of abnormal frequency, due to some unusual circumstance of interest, but have been held without break at regular stated intervals alike through periods of ordinary routine and seasons of extraordinary incentive.

Remarkable in any case, it becomes a matter of felicitation and general interest to the philatelic world when a stamp society, especially in America, achieves the right to celebrate such an event. Hence it is with feelings of admissable pride, and with the full belief that other stamp societies and philatelists in general will share in that pride, that announcement is hereby made that on Thursday, October 17th of the present year the Chicago Philatelic Society will hold its five-hundredth regular meeting at its club room in the Roanoke Building, No. 145 LaSalle Street, Room 523. The occasion will be made one of special celebration, extending over into the following evening, Friday the 18th. While this celebration, as seems most befitting in the case of a local society, will be in its nature confined to the membership of the "C. P. S.", all philatelists who reside in, or who may be in, Chicago on October 17th, will be cordially welcomed at this regular five-hundredth meeting.

The special committee having the matter in charge will in due time make a proper announcement of details, but in a broad way the features of the occasion will be as follows: On Thursday evening there will be a competitive exhibition of stamps, in which connection the standard C. P. S. medals will be awarded to successful contestants under conditions prescribed by the committee, competition being confined to members of the Society. In addition, on the same evening an especially prepared commemorative token will be distributed, with appropriate ceremonies, among the members. Each member of the Society, honorary, active and passive, is to receive one of these tokens, and for a limited time after October 17th they will also be given to each new member joining the Society. In general features the token will be in the nature of a bronze medal and of particularly unique and original design, the latter being the conception of a member of the Society. On one side will be the commemorative legend, the Society's emblem, the date and the recipient's society number. On the other side will be an artistic grouping of symbols, for the most part in stamp shapes and suggestive of the greatness of the philatelic science. The principal legend on this side will be, "The ultimate thought of Nations is expressed in symbol," supplemented by the additional legends, "Philately, King of Thought," and "Chalef," the latter standing for the Classification, History, Art, Language, Emblemism and Fellowship of Philately.

The second, or Friday evening, will be devoted more specifically to social features, including a Bohemian lunch and appropriate entertainment of a varied but semi-philatelic nature.

Thus will formal recognition be given of the fact that in regular uninterrupted twice-a-month meetings the Chicago Philatelic Society will have reached the half century mark on October 17th. The Society will at the same time have just entered the twenty-first year of its existence. Of it, during this score of years of its life, it may truthfully be said that it has occupied no mean position in the field of Philatelic usefulness. That on entering on its second half century it may constantly increase in that usefulness is undoubtedly the sincere thought of all philatelists, regardless of sectional boundaries, who read these lines.

NOTES ON ENVELOPES.

Edited by LOUIS G. BARRETT.

Any notes in the way of discoveries, explanation of dies or new issues, either of our own or foreign countries, or other matters of interest to envelope collectors will be greatly appreciated and acknowledged if sent to me at 754 Centre Street, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Through the courtesy of the publishers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY it has been arranged that regularly once each month its columns shall be open to the American Envelope Society for the presentation of notes on envelopes, or subjects of interest to the collectors of postal stationery. At the July meeting this department of our society was placed in my charge, and, while feeling the heavy responsibility of my position, when there were others better fitted by experience and years to conduct such a department; still I hope that, with the hearty co-operation of all our members that even the general collector will be tempted to glance at our columns occasionally.

Such a broad field as is covered by the aims of our society can hardly fail to produce something worthy of attention and if perchance friends are made through this medium, for the long neglected study of envelopes, not only of our own country but of those beautiful issues of our foreign neighbors, then we will not have labored in vain.

The scope of latter day philately seems unlimited and a collector to cover all the various side-lines of our hobby has his hands full in attempting to do the same to his album. The natural result of this has been for the student to give up certain lines, that he might give greater attention and study to that particular branch most attractive to him. Thus we have had in the last year or so, collectors having the same general liking banding together into societies devoted to the interests of their special line.

I quote from the July number of The Chicago Collectors Monthly:—

"Another stamp society is in process of formation; this time, for the collectors of Proofs and Essays. Isn't it time to call a halt? A society for envelope collectors, another for proof collectors, and what will be the next? Societies formed while you wait!! and most of them amount to nil. when actual benefits are considered."

And this from Chicago, too, the city of progress!

What would our friend have? Does he not know that everyone of these special societies formed is a distinct benefit to the whole great body of collectors, in that the general knowledge of the subject is broadened and made more interesting? It is the work of the larger societies to bring these various elements into touch with each other at their meetings, and who will say that we have not gained something from the researches of the other fellows when we are entertained by a talk on revenues, or envelopes, or pre-cancels, or proofs, or locals, as the case may be.

Give us, rather, the hand of welcome, brother, for we, "The American Envelope Society" for one, will show you results, not promises. Although we are young we have a good membership already, and our work has but just begun. We will bear watching, but better still, join us, and share in the good things.

Various adverse criticisms have appeared from time to time in regard to the new McKinley postal card. Why this should be so it is hard to see, for it creates a much more favorable impression than the card it supercedes. It is a good, clear business-like design and there are no frills to detract from its dignity. The quality of card upon which it is printed is however open to improvement and steps have been taken already to remedy this defect.

The manufacturers of our newest issue of stamped envelopes appear to be having the usual difficulties connected with new processes and machinery, and the results can hardly be said to be very satisfactory as yet. To begin with the various papers used are of varying qualities as though used in our experimental way; I have the 2c value on the so called white paper, of medium thickness and of a creamy tint; again on a rough heavy paper full of fine threads, similar to the "granite" paper on which the adhesives of Austria are printed, and still a third, evidently the latest, on a smooth bluish-white paper of good quality. It is needless to say that the stamped impression is much sharper in every way on this last than on the others.

The amber papers also vary considerably, ranging from a bright canary of medium thickness to a dull yellow thicker paper full of the fine threads. The only buff paper I have seen is of this thicker quality, while the blue is of the thinner smooth grade. The watermark is very similar to that of the 1903 issue only having the date changed to 1907; although the formation and spacing of the characters are somewhat different.

The color of the stamped impression varies materially, ranging from a light pinkish brown through red-brown to a deep violet-brown. There is every probability that this color will not be used long as its principle ingredient is a material called "crocus," which is extensively used in polishing fine steel work. What its action will be on the steel dies may be readily imagined, also as this issue is printed from cylinder presses for the first time, which increases the wear on the dies. Apparent differences noted in the impressions are only due to imperfect workmanship as only one die was engraved. Further developments will be watched with interest.

The earliest postmark seen was from Baltimore, Md., July 13, 1907, although I understand they were received in Monroe, La., as early as the 7th of July.

There have already been two distinct settings of the return request inscription on the envelopes. The earliest, set by linotype machines are recognized by the fact that all the lines start under each other at a line at the left. Later printings show the regular type set inscriptions, each line "centered" under the one above. Office request printings show a row or rows of large dots in place of the customary lines of dashes of the 1903 issue. Albinos are plentiful, some even having passed through the mails.

A word of explanation about Type 102 of the 1903 issue varieties. It seems that a number of dies were returned to Mr. Mitchell to be re-cut as the contractors' engravers were making such a mess of it, and this accounts for the similarity of these dies to the originals and also for this type appearing so abundantly for a time and on so many different sizes. It was most puzzling to account for its appearance until this information came to light.

Since I described Types 109 and 116 in the issue of July 27th, other new varieties have appeared so that the vacant numbers 117 and 131 have been filled and the list continued from 133 to 139 inclusive. It should be noted that a common feature of all these last types as well as 109 and 116 (but with the exception of Type 139) is the long upper shade-line in the swallow-tails of the upper ribbon. It is continuous across both halves of the swallow-tails. These types undoubtedly were the work of one engraver.

Following are the descriptions of these new varieties:—

Type 117. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) In this type all the inscriptions have a blurry appearance due to fragments of the old letters showing faintly beside the later cut ones. It has the general effect of a "shifted die" impression.
(b) The left end of upper ribbon is straight, slants upward, and forms a sharp outer angle with the outside line of ribbon.
(c) The long shade-line in swallow-tails is horizontal in both.
(d) Two shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are long and straight, the third is small and obscure.
(e) E of CENTS small and low down, while N is nearly the full width of ribbon.

Type 131. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) There are but two shade-lines in left end of lower ribbon.
(b) PO of POSTAGE very close, almost touching, while G is high up, nearly touching outer line of ribbon.
(c) First S of STATES is by itself, about half way between D of UNITED and T of STATES.
(d) Lower lobe at left end of lower ribbon is large and slants upward sharply.
(e) T of CENTS is low down.

Type 133. (Size 5 on W, A, BU, BL.)

(a) AG of POSTAGE are joined together.
(c) Both T's in STATES lean to the left where in Type 69 they inclined to the right.
(d) Shade-lines are missing entirely from both halves of left swallow-tail with the exception of the newly cut upper line.
(e) Both the N in UNITED and the N in CENTS are larger than in Type 69.

Type 134. (Size 8 on W.)

(a) There is a short line branching off from the outer border line, immediately under the O of TWO.
(b) The left end of upper ribbon is straight but unlike Type 117, here it slants downward.

EDITORIAL.

An Outside View—The comments of the foreign stamp papers on the recent convention proceedings at Denver are interesting, and, as a rule, they reflect a spirit appreciative of the enthusiasm and energy that marked the campaign and which were manifested during the Denver sessions, albeit some of our faraway contemporaries seemed puzzled to understand the rationale of it all. They are prone to attribute much of the activity that has been displayed to temperamental characteristics of the Americans. The Australian Philatelist says: "It is somewhat amusing to read accounts of the campaign going on at present in connection with the election of officers of the American Philatelic Association which commenced the twenty-second annual convention at Denver, Colorado, on July 30 and lasting three days. * * * Whether or not such contention will be beneficial to philately we are not prepared to say, but the contest goes to show that in 'the home of hustle' philately is very much alive at present. The magnitude of the association may be grasped from the fact that there are upwards of 2500 members (our Mr. Hagen being one of them)." The estimate of the numerical strength of our organization by our antipodean friends is too flattering, as the actual membership is only half of the number named; the reckoning was made according to the number of certificates that have been issued but it was not taken into consideration that many of the memberships had been canceled or had lapsed.

A Favorable Notice—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly, as customarily, notices the American convention with pleasant phrase and expresses the hope that it will not be long before Great Britain will have an organization of parallel kind; our London contemporary says: "The American Philatelic Association, the premier society of philatelists in the United States has held its 22d annual convention, under the happiest auspices, at Denver, Col. We never read the reports of this annual jaunting and junketing of American stamp-lovers without wondering how long it will be before something of the same sort is successfully organized in this country. * * * The American affair seems to have gone off with its usual swing. * * One very remarkable fact is recorded. The 'A. P. A.' now boasts a membership of 1200, and out of that number no less than 900 members—75% of the total—recorded their votes, either personally or by proxy, at the annual convention. That is a striking testimony to the enthusiasm and public spirit of the American philatelist and to the pride he takes in his national society."

Curious Charity Plan—Dr. F. U. Ferguson, Gallitzen, Pa., has shown us an interesting postal notice, of a kind, in the form of a gummed label, attached to the upper right hand corner of an envelope, sent in the early 70's; the five lines of printing convey the intelligence: "This Letter was dropped in the Balitmore P. O. without a stamp and would have been sent to the dead letter office in Ten Days. The Postage was paid by Box 700, and any return will be devoted to Charity. Address 'Charity,' Box 700, Baltimore P. O." To the left of the label a three-cent stamp was placed and it becomes evident that the authorities took cognizance of and permitted the operation of a personal plan of worthy, unselfish ends.

Pyrotechnical—We have heard of various unique methods of mail delivery, such as by pigeon-post, balloon-post, etc.; by reindeer sledge post and by cask sealed and cast into the ocean, the current being trusted to carry it to another shore. The painted barrel attached by chains to the rocks at the extremity of Tierra del Fuego and used as a sort of international post-office has often been referred to in print, but a most striking method is the delivery of mail by rocket according to the following clipping sent us by a reader: "An ingenious method is employed to deliver letters to the islands of the Tonga group, in the Pacific Ocean. These islands, guarded as they are by dangerous rocks and breakers, are hazardous to approach, and would often were the ordinary routine of delivery employed, have to go letterless. To overcome this difficulty, the steamer that carries the mails is supplied with skyrockets, by means of which small bags of letters are projected across the danger zone to the shore." If this information is to be relied upon, it is strange that modern enterprise has not seen the advantage of charging an extra tariff on letters so delivered to be paid in stamps, by "skyrocket post;" and the fascinating significance of such specimens would not be lost on collectors.

Speaking of Size—The collector of British colonials should know that according to the latest statistical information, the colonies of Great Britain are ninety-seven times larger than the country itself; those of France, eighteen times the size and the possessions of Germany, five times as big as the Fatherland. It is easy to see that the number of stamps issued by a country or group is not indicative of its size or importance, in the instance of many of the French colonies which began their stamp issuing activity in years comparatively recent.

Color Technics—According to an authority on the subject of color photography, it is good policy for those countries that wish to run no risk of imposition by counterfeited stamps designed for fraudulent postal service to use only those inks for coloring that do not allow of successful color photography. By a series of experimental photography of colors, some have been introduced in the preparation of bonds, bank-notes, etc., that are impossible to reflect photographically. The photographed counterfeit stamp is not to be regarded as a serious factor by the collector; only the one who does not examine stamps critically would be deceived by it.

Sun or Chrysanthemum—C. A. Howes has prepared a most interesting statement on the subject of the chrysanthemum as depicted on the stamps of Japan, in consequence of an item that appeared in the issue of August 31st, in which we treated somewhat cavalierly the claim of a Japanese in the diplomatic service that the object shown on the stamps was the sun and not the flower. The following authoritative remarks by Mr. Howes, keenest of stamp students, will clarify the atmosphere of any elements of doubt that may have been engendered and place the whole subject in its proper perspective: "Mr. Beatty's query about the symbol on the Japanese stamp which he calls a chrysanthemum and says a Japanese in the diplomatic service calls the representation of the sun is of interest to me. They are both right, and both wrong,—it depends upon what stamp is under consideration. If one takes the design of the 15 sen stamp and higher values of the 1876-7 issue, the colored disc in the center represents the sun. If looked at closely it will be seen to be 'shaded' with vertical lines, a distinction that in heraldry denotes that its proper coloring is gules or red. What is the Japanese flag? A red disc upon a white field: now you have the key. This 'sun banner' is a relic of the importation of Chinese ideas and customs into Japan some fourteen centuries ago. It once had a companion in the 'moon banner' which long since fell into disuse, but a reminder of which is seen in the crescent appearing on this same stamp design. The importance of the banners of the sun and moon arose from the claim of the Emperors to be 'Sons of Heaven'—tenshi in Japanese, which is one of their terms for the Emperor—and as a result the sun was hailed as an elder brother while the moon was considered a sister.

"On the stamps of the current set (1899-1900 issue), the central design resembling a wheel, which is found somewhere upon all Japanese stamps issued since 1872, is a chrysanthemum and is not a picture of the sun. It is the crest or badge of the Mikado and has been such since remote antiquity. It may not be generally known that when Com. Perry 'opened' Japan, his treaty was made under a flag bearing the crest of the Shogun, then the real ruler of Japan, which was a circle enclosing three asarum or mallow leaves, their points meeting at the center. At the 'Restoration' in 1868, when the Mikado came into his own, the trefoil emblem disappeared and the imperial crest, the chrysanthemum, took its proper place as the official insignia.

"This badge is known as the kiku-mon or 'chrysanthemum crest,' and as such has a small circle at the centre to represent the central 'head' of true flowers in the blossom, and sixteen rays to represent the 'petals.' Often sixteen more 'tips' may be seen projecting between the outer ends of the rays. This number, an heirloom of Chinese geomancy, is strictly reserved for Imperial use, and ordinary subjects are forbidden under penalty to represent the badge in this exact form.

"It might be added that the Imperial banner is a red flag with a diaper tracery in yellow on it and a yellow chrysanthemum crest in the center."

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

H. C.:—This reader says: "In one of my stamp books, I have several pages of stamps from one to seventy-five cents in value. I noticed lately that on some pages the blue and the green stamps have turned yellow. I enclose two. Do you think the discoloration is due to something in the mucilage, or are the stamps fading?" Without doubt, the two stamps submitted for inspection are discolored, and that so badly as ever fell to the lot of stamps, by the stains of the mucilage that was used to affix the specimens to the page. Only hinges should be used for the mounting of stamps and it is considered an act of philatelic sacrilege nowadays to paste stamps to the leaf with any permanently adhesive substance other than a hinge. In the preface to stamp albums even in the old days, there were prefatory warnings that mucilage should not be used in sticking the stamps as it was likely to discolor the specimens after a time. Blue in particular is easily turned into yellow by the action of the mucilage. The color of the average stamp will not fade unless exposed to the sun or other very strong light.

W. H. K.:—Just at what price the one and two-cent, imperforate current issues will be quoted in the next edition of the catalogue, we cannot say, but it is only fair to add that the stamps are worth five or more cents each.

B. L.:—The fish on the Newfoundland stamps is the cod. The representation on the stamps of Nevis is that of the goddess of health, or Hygeia, proferring water from a medicinal or healing spring on the island, to an invalid. (2) Two printings of Ceylon stamps surcharged Maldives are said to have been made both having been limited in number; and it is reported that again the regular issue of Ceylon is in use in the Maldives. (3) A dealer may make a mistake occasionally by not cataloguing his stamps rightly, through haste rather than ignorance; in handling so many stamps, it is only to be expected that one is miscalled now and then.

There seems to be what, by a little stretch of imagination may be called a recrudescence of interest in the tax paid stamps of the United States, and reference to these forms of revenue certificates are seen occasionally in the stamp papers. It is apparent that there are a number of collectors who, in a quiet way, gather these issues even though the propriety of doing so, does not seem to be well established. In other words, doubt has been expressed whether it is allowed by the authorities to not alone traffic or trade in the stamps, but, also, even to collect them. It has been customary to accept the belief that there is a proscription against having the tax paids in possession, and the premise is based on some solid grounds, we know, but just how firm they are cannot be asserted. That the conditions governing the handling of these stamps are not clearly defined is evident; and this admission becomes pointed when the following questions as asked recently by a correspondent, confront us, and when several persons usually well-informed on allied subjects do not feel able to advance positive information. "What is the law concerning the buying or selling of Tax Paid stamps or having them in possession? What is the wording of the law, where may it be found in the statutes and has it ever been repudiated in a U. S. court? Would I render myself liable in any way, if I advertised for Tax Paid stamps in the WEEKLY?" Years ago, we were told by a revenue officer, on an occasion when information was sought, that it was illegal to have in possession, or deal in tax paid stamps, for the obvious reason that their preservation in some cases violated the destruction clause of the law, as applying to the stamps after they had performed their service. Further, reports of seizure of stamps of the kind from collectors have been heard and in one or two instances, the news was authentic, but just what other points were involved in these cases, we are unable to say. Again, it has been claimed that the collector who gathered the tax paid stamps purely for amateur reasons would not be molested, but that his purity of purpose would be respected. We hope that some reader is in a position to answer the foregoing questions explicitly and settle for one and all moot points in the minds of not a few collectors. We shall gladly welcome the information that we are hopeful of receiving.

Any reference to tax paid stamps of the United States brings to thought the tremendous purchase of stamps coming under this category from the United States government, about 1890, by Messrs. Sterling and Deats. By special permission of Congress, the treasury department was authorized to sell a huge bulk of files of these stamps "which are not needed or useful in the transaction of current business and have no permanent value or historical interest." Mr. Sterling said that a suggestion was made by a committee "that it would be improper to have the files and stubs of stamps fall into private hands before being destroyed as pulp, but the powers that be willed otherwise, or we should not be able to write this article today, or have the pleasure of offering to the stamp collecting public these remainders of the late war." There were several hitches in the progress of the huge transaction but the following final decision was reached by the authorities: "The government would dispose of, for a certain consideration, without extra cancellation, all of the complete remainders of the unused Special Tax Stamps, Rectified Spirit Stamps, Distillery Warehouse Stamps, Export Spirit, Snuff, Tobacco and Cigar Stamps, Brewers' Permit and Stock-on-hand stamps; but that all of the others in unused form, not already shipped to Mr. Sterling would be destroyed by maceration and reduced to pulp, and that it would be useless to urge the acceptance of any further bid for the balance that was to be destroyed." The unused stamps that Mr. Sterling received were all punch cancelled, if we remember correctly.

A correspondent says: "I note in the WEEKLY for July 27th, under 'Queen's Heads,' a paragraph concerning engravings of the 'Draft Payable on Demand or Receipt' stamp, and as I have a copy, should like to know something of its value as it is not priced in the catalogue." According to Gibbons' catalogue, the stamp in question, if on blue safety paper, unused is worth 36 cents; used postally, 62 cents. The same stamp, on white paper, catalogues 18 cents unused and $1.25, used postally. It may be of interest to learn of the conditions that allowed this fiscal and others of the same class to be used for postal purposes in Great Britain, and we quote the following explanation: "By the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1881, it was provided 'that on and after June 1st, 1881, postage duties might be paid by the use of penny adhesive stamps not appropriated by any word or words on the face of them to postage duty, or to any particular description of instrument,' and, vice versa, postage stamps were allowed to be used in place of such fiscal stamps. The framers of the Act no doubt intended only to admit to postal uses the ordinary-sized Inland Revenue stamps then current; but there was nothing to exclude those of the large size issued in 1862, the existence of which had probably been overlooked. As soon, however, as the Act came into operation not only these latter, but many draft and receipt stamps of the 1853 and 1855 issues were disinterred, and in the confusion were allowed to pass as postage stamps, though outside the enactment that limited the privilege to stamps 'not appropriated on the face of them to any particular description of instrument.' The issues prior to 1st May, 1862, cannot, therefore, be recognized as enjoying postal privileges; but inasmuch as they were accidentally admitted to them, they are included" in different lists.

MINIATURES.

Address replies care of the WEEKLY.

For the next few weeks, there will appear
In the paper somewhere, if not just here,
Some "Miniatures" of men whose fame
Is known to many. Guess the name!

And if correctly you should guess,
And the "POET'S CORNER" you address,
An unused stamp to you will be sent
Which catalogues twenty-five times one cent!
But to get the stamp and be out of debt
Enclose five cents, please don't forget.

This week, for your wits, I've a task
For who is the Hub dweller I ask
Whose fancy it tickles
To sell stamps and pickles?
Now who will this villain unmask?

From his name you might think
This man houses repairs,
From a plain kitchen sink,
To a fire flight of stairs!
But this is not so,
He's a student of stamps;
In Society's glow
He is one of the lamps!

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Frank B. Eldredge reports having seen the 1c Jamestown precancelled "Providence, R. I."

E. W. Murray has shown us another stamp on colored paper, the stamp this time being the 2c current, and the color of the paper a pronounced greenish tint. It is on the cover, and was mailed by the John C. Roth Packing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 22. Will some of our Cincinnati readers look into this matter?

AUSTRIA.—Mr. Schachne has the latest provisional letter card made from the current 6h orange. (Senf's 42b.) The 6h stamp is cancelled with three broad red horizontal bars, 18x3 mm. each, and the 10h stamp printed just at the left. At upper left corner is the same arms with "11h" beneath as appears on the current 10h.

Letter Card.

10h red on 6h orange on yellowish.

BENADIR.—The Nordisk Filatelistisk Tidskrift reports that another value has been added to the postage due set, surcharge on Italian postage due stamps. The overprint is in black.

Postage Due Adhesive.

6c orange brown and carmine.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA.—Mr. Wolf's photographic note in No. 870 has received prompt confirmation, the English stamp papers reporting the receipt of new invoices of stamps surcharged "Papua" in smaller type.

CUBA.—In No. 851 we noted that the 10c Cuban stamp had been issued in re-engraved type. Evidently the new stamps are as yet very scarce, for Mr. Focke has just sent us another of the new type, calling attention to the main points of difference, which are the little balls at the end of the scroll containing the word "Cuba" and the lighter shade in which the stamp is printed.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the 1r has been issued on a chalky multiple CA paper.

As noted in No. 867, the currency has been changed from rupees of 16 annas to rupees of 100 cents. The Nordisk Filatelistisk Tidskrift chronicles the new stamps and stationery, with values in the new currency. The new issue was first announced for May or June, but as yet have been seen only in "specimen" sets. There is of course no necessity for changes in the rupee values. The 10r and 50r values on multiple CA paper are not likely to be issued until November.

The revenue stamp noted in No. 867 as used for postage, appears to have been an unauthorized use, as the stamps of this description are revenues pure and simple.

FRENCH OFFICES IN CHINA.—The new 35c black on yellow stamp of Indo-China has appeared with "Hoi-Hao" in surcharge. The use of this is not apparent, as late advices indicate that all the surcharged Hoi-Hao stamps were exhausted, and the Post Office authorities were issuing the lower values of the 1893 issue of Indo-China, and also the current stamps of Indo-China, without surcharge.

GIBRALTAR.—Referring to the note in No. 869 regarding the 2½d ultramarine on ordinary multiple paper, H. H. Trulock writes that he has just received the same stamp on chalky multiple paper. Mr. Trulock had supposed that the 2sh watermarked single Crown CA, had been superceded by the stamps on multiple CA paper, but reports having just received a copy with the old watermark, which was purchased at the post office only a week before the first of September. The 2½d lilac and black on blue cannot now be had at the Gibraltar office, Mr. Trulock is informed.

JAPAN.—Recent changes in colors, some previously chronicled, are ½s light gray changed to gray; 1s reddish brown, now dark red brown; 2s light green, now yellow green; 5c yellow orange, now orange yellow; 10s gray blue, now dark blue, and 15 reddish violet, now violet.

JAPANESE OFFICES IN CHINA.—According to the Illustriertes Briefmarken Journal the Japenese stamps in the new shades have appeared overprinted for use at the Japanese offices in China, as follows: ½s gray, 1s dark red brown, 2s yellow green, 5c orange yellow, 10s dark blue and 15s violet.

LUXEMBURG.—The Moniteur announces the early issue of the values of 15c and 87½c in the new set.

NETHERLANDS.—L'Echo is informed that the remainders of the De Kuyter set will be used as postage due stamps, after being appropriately surcharged.

NICARAGUA.—Our correspondents have favored us with another batch of news from this unhappy republic. Surcharges seem to be the order of the day, the Waterlow or American print, or "any old thing," being used indifferently.

Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the $4.00 on 5c official, noted in No. 862, with surcharge reading both up and down, and the following varieties of each reading: Thick "V," thin "V" and figure "1" for "I" in "Vale." The $3.00 on 2c rose postage also has the same six varieties, and the same is true of the $1.00 on 2c rose, with an additional variety for the latter, where an "I" appears for the "1" in $1, this variety also being found in the surcharge reading both up and down. The same firm has also shown us the 5c American print, surcharged "Vale 20c," with "B—Dpto Zelaya" in the old rubber stamp style, both surcharges being placed vertically, reading down.

The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. have shown us the 2c postage, Waterlow print, surcharged "Vale 10c," the overprint being scarcely distinguishable in parts, it is so faintly printed.

The Ararat Stamp Co. also sends samples of the "Vale 10c" on 2c Waterlow, but reports none found reading up, though both thin and thick "O" are readily obtained.

E. A. Andrews has also favored us with information regarding late surcharges, covered in previous numbers.

NORWAY.—The krona values with head of King Haakon have at last appeared, and present a very cheap unsatisfactory appearance. They are of small size, and show the King facing to the left, three-quarters view, the head being of small size, and much inferior in engraving and design to other recent stamp portraits of European sovereigns, notably those on the new Iceland stamps. The portrait is printed under an arch, which rests on small pillars at either side, and these in turn rest on square tablets in the lower corners, having large figures of value. "Norge" is printed in large colorless type above and following the curve of the arch. Below the portrait is an irregularly shaped tablet, with inscription "Post—Kr. 1.00." The ornaments are neither sea gulls or Viking ships, as the advance information indicated, but conventional fabulous sea serpents of unattractive appearance. All inscriptions are in colorless type on a lined colored background, the lines appearing all over the stamp. The stamps are perforated 14½x13½.

RIO DE ORO.—An error has been discovered in the printing of the last series, a cliche of the 4p having been accidentally made up in a sheet of the 3p, and therefore is printed in green instead of blue.

SALVADOR.—Mr. Focke writes: "I have today important news from Salvador but unfortunately am not able to show the goods. On a private letter received today I saw a pair of the present 6c stamps, rose and black, with surcharge of shield and anchor in black, same design as surcharge on 1900 issue (type 3) and besides the number 2 underneath the shield, the old values (6) being obliterated by black circle. In other words the stamp has been converted into a 2c value. The shield completely covers the head of Ex-President Escalone. This is the first provisional stamp of the 1906 issue, but who knows if it will be the last?"

1200 MEMBERS.

A splendid achievement surely is recorded this week by Sec. Davis of the A. P. A. 1200 members have been secured and the watchword for the coming year is 1500. This number can be secured if the right kind of work is done by the recruiting committee. Send for a booklet giving advantages. Any member of the committee can supply the same.

September 2, 1907.

Present fifteen members and eight ladies.

President Lehman called the meeting to order at 9 P. M. Application for membership: Edward J. Koller, 1188 Simpson St., proposed by Levy and Klein. Mr. Klein stated that new duties called him to Philadelphia where he was engaged by the Philadelphia Stamp Company. He tenders his resignation as Secretary, and hopes to keep in touch with the members even while away. His resignation was accepted with the deepest regret, as all have learned to like him, and he was given the assurance of the good feeling of the members. In appreciation of his valuable services and his good fellowship in the past he was unanimously elected to honorary membership. Henry J. Dicke was elected new Secretary.

Seven members took part in the competition for the honor of owning the rarest stamp. Francis Engel received first honors for his one shilling Mauritius envelope; Louis Frieri, second, for his $50 green and black U. S. Revenue, uncut, and Mr. Wilford, third, for his 2c vermilion, Die D, envelope United States 1884. Next meeting will take place Sept. 16, 1907.

The sixty-fifth regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, Sept. 3d, 1907, at usual time and place, President Cornwall presiding and twelve members present.

A highly interesting collection of A. P. A. convention photos, mounted in a neat album, were presented to the Society for its Library by the President. Souvenir card greetings were read from Messrs. Patzschke and Sisson, the former from Jamestown Exposition and the latter from Rockaway Beach, N. Y. The drawing contest which was such an attraction at last meeting again proved of much interest to all competitors, Dr. Baer's "drawing" being the winner.

The first "installment" of the new Entertainment Committee reported through its Chairman, Mr. Long, that a series of ten simple (?) questions bearing upon familiar (?) scenes depicted upon stamps of the Trans-Missis-ippi, Pan American, Columbian and 1869 issues would be propounded. One contestant, whose name is better left unwritten, blithely answered the question "What is the picture on the Omaha 5c stamp?" by writing "The discovery of Pike's Peak." This gentleman undoubtedly still retained pleasant memories of his own discovery of that mountain a few weeks since in company with the other "Stampfiends." Messrs. Hopkins and Millhouse carried off first and second honors. The second "installment" of this Committee, Messrs. Hopkins (Chairman), Reudi and Schellhorn, promise something startling for next meeting.

After the auction, all proceeds of which revert to the treasury, the meeting adjourned to the retail store of the St. Louis Talking Machine Co., where Mr. Long assisted by his "Victors" entertained an appreciative audience until very near the "wee sma' hours," with selections ranging from "Goo Goo Eyes" in German to Grand Opera for which pleasing diversion he was extended a hearty vote of thanks.

Don't forget that at all meetings "There's always Something Doing" and that at the next meeting in particular a spectacular program is promised. All collectors are welcome and cordially invited, Tuesday, Sept 17th, Rooms 803-805 Wright Building.

CHESTER MYERS, Sec.

Your Secretary desires to announce that he has had a neat Membership Card prepared for each member and that same will be distributed, with his compliments, to local members at the next meeting Bear in mind that each member attending this meeting will receive his Membership Card and is assured of a well spent evening by the Entertainment Committee. Better come. There's a reason. Out of town members will receive their cards soon, possibly by the time this notice appears.

NEW MEMBERS WANTED.

As will be seen above, Pres. Luff has appointed a recruiting committee. The chairman expects every member to be a hustler and any member unequal to the demands of the hour should immediately make the fact known to the chairman.

The names of Messrs. Batchelder, Ward and Nelson are added to the committee on a pledge each of four new members. Who will make a similar pledge and receive similar recognition?

Booklets are being printed for missionary use. File your request for the necessary supply. Applications also will be mailed on request. Insert in every letter written a non-member of the association printed matter exploiting the good points of the A. P. A.

A Roll of Honor will be instituted and the name of every member securing ten applications will be entered thereon. From week to week reports will appear in the WEEKLY and proper credit given for results accomplished.

We want no drones on the committee this year. Every member must be a worker. Don't let the chairman be the whole thing. But bear in mind that numbers alone are not sufficient. Quality counts and care must be exercised as regards proper references.

THE CHILEAN POSTAGE DUES.

By C. A. HOWES.

Besides furnishing us with a very interesting postal history, Chile also presents an equally noteworthy study in postage dues, and revenues and telegraphs authorized for postal use. We will consider first the subject of the postage dues, which has been fully treated by the Santiago Philatelic Society in its Anales and translated therefrom by Mr. J. M. Andreini. The same decree that provided for the prepayment of postage by stamps, beginning July 1, 1853, also provided for the collection of double the amount of deficiency on mail matter not fully prepaid. This was practically a fine for carelessness, and the word multada used in this connection means simply "fined." No special stamps were provided, but a handstamp having MULTADA in a single-lined frame was generally struck on the cover in red, blue, black or violet ink, and a figure denoting the amount added, sometimes by a rubber stamp and sometimes by pencil or pen. In 1875 a number of the principal offices were furnished with special handstamps similar to postmarks, bearing the name of the city, the word MULTADA, and figures in the center indicating the amount. Nine different values are known, viz.: 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 16, 20, 30 and 40 centavos, but these are no more "stamps," of course, than the old "PAID 5" or "PAID 10" handstamps of the days before adhesives.

As early as 1870 the Secretary of the Interior had proposed the use of postage due stamps, his main argument being that they would serve as a guarantee to the public, who seemed suspicious of the legality of the handstamped fines. But nothing was done by the government and it remained for the Postmaster of Valparaiso, St. Samuel Ossa Borne, to finally introduce the employment of adhesive labels in his own office as an experiment. It will be seen that these stamps were really a private issue appropriated to government uses, but they proved so successful that the Post Office Department lent its support to the preparation of a permanent set for the use of the Valparaiso office.

This provisional set is particularly interesting because it was made from the handstamps already described. The paper used was a thin, straw-colored manila which was gummed and perforated beforehand. Then the handstamps were used to make impressions in the perforated rectangles, and behold, a set of adhesives! At first the impressions were made with the perforated rectangle upright, but it was evidently noted that the horizontal oval of the handstamp would fit better if the oblong label were horizontal, and the later stamps were thus made. The first issue took place on Oct. 12, 1894, and from a strip preserved from a sheet sent Mr. Henry Gremmel at that time it is seen that all values were first printed consecutively in horizontal rows of nine, as follows:—

10c, 2c, 4c, 6c, 8c, 16c, 20c, 30c, 40c.

The reason for placing the 10c out of its sequence and on the edge of the sheet was doubtless because it was double the domestic rate and therefore liable to be used most frequently. But this arrangement was evidently only tentative, for the usual arrangement of the first printing (or "stamping") was in a sheet of 64, as follows:—

1st row	; 8—2	centavos.
2d "	; 8—4	"
3d "	; 4—6	"	; 4—8 centavos.
4th "	; 8—10	"
5th "	; 4—10	"	; 4—16 centavos.
6th "	; 8—16	"
7th "	; 8—20	"
8th "	; 4—30	"	; 4—40 centavos.

The larger proportion of 10c and 16c stamps was because those amounts were the fines on unpaid domestic and foreign letters respectively.

The second series of stamps, printed longitudinally in the perforated rectangles, was made in December, 1894. They were printed in strips containing five vertical pairs of each value, although some entire sheets of each value were also made. The total number of these provisional stamps printed was about 20,000, but it is impossible to say how many were issued as the remainders were burned, without counting, together with the handstamps used in their manufacture, on the evening of Dec. 31, 1894. The stamps were therefore in use in but one office for 81 days, which accounts for their rarity. On this account also they have been extensively counterfeited, but fortunately the bogus stamps can be readily detected. Not only were the stamps counterfeited but also the Valparaiso postmark, as large numbers of the genuine were cancelled to order. But impossible dates were employed in the bogus postmarks, the only dates which could be genuine, as we have shown, running from Oct. 12, 1894 (12 X 94 on the postmark) through Dec. 31, 1894 (31 XII 94 on the postmark).

The provisional issue had not been long in use when the advantages of the system became apparent and steps were taken toward the manufacture of a permanent set. Mr. Félix Leblanc, manager of the lithographic establishment of H. C. Gillet, was commissioned to prepare the design which was accepted by the Post Office Department about the middle of November, 1894. The dies and stone were then prepared and the new stamps were ready for issue on Jan. 1, 1895. This accounts for the burning of the remainders of the provisional issue and the handstamps on the previous evening, as already noted. The new stamps were in twelve different denominations which, like the first issue of the provisionals were all on one sheet, this time of 100 stamps. The arrangement of the sheet was as follows:—

2d " ; 5—1 " ; 5—40 centavos.
3d " ; 10—2 "
4th " ; 10—4 "
5th " ; 10—6 "
6th " ; 10—8 "
7th " ; 10—10 "
8th " ; 10—10 "
9th " ; 10—20 "
10th " ; 3—50c; 3—60c; 2—80c; 2—1 peso.

Two thousand sheets were printed on a deep yellow paper of similar texture to that of the provisional issue. This gives but 4000 stamps of the highest two values and the others in proportion, but the numbers were sufficient to last nearly two years. The readily distinguishing feature of this issue is the perforation, which was done by a guillotine (single-line) machine gauging 11. As before, a large number of these stamps were cancelled to order and may be found with full gum on the back and handstamped with the word MULTADA in a single-lined frame.

Toward the end of 1896 there began to be a shortage of the lower denominations, especially the 2, 4 and 10 centavos, so a new supply was ordered, to be in all respects like the first except for the proportions of the different values and the fact that the "1 peso" was made to read "100 centavos" to avoid any confusion with the "1 centavo." As made up, then, the new sheets were as follows:—

2d " ; 10—2 "
3d " ; 10—2 "
4th " ; 10—4 "
5th " ; 10—4 "
6th " ; 10—6 "
7th " ; 10—8 "
8th " ; 10—10 "
9th " ; 10—10 "
10th " ; 5—20c; 1—40c; 1—50c; 1—60c; 1—80c; 1—100c.

There were 1000 sheets printed this time, so that there were but 1000 copies each of the five higher values—which accounts for their scarcity and their high catalogue price. These stamps are readily distinguished from the first printing by the perforation, which is 13 instead of 11 and which was done by a so-called "harrow" machine which perforates the whole sheet at one operation. The color of the impression is about the same, but the paper is of slightly better quality and of a paler shade of yellow than before, being described as "straw" in distinction from the deep yellow of the previous printing.

The employment of postage due stamps at Valparaiso proved so satisfactory that it was finally decided to adopt the system for all Chilean offices. An order to this effect was issued May 26, 1897, to become operative on July 1 of that year. But the proposed general issue was not ready at that time, so a part of the Valparaiso Postmaster's stock was delivered over to the authorities and a further printing of the Valparaiso design ordered to tide over until the new general issue should be ready. This third printing is not distinguishable from the second, but the arrangement of values on the sheet was slightly different, all above 20 centavos being omitted. The tenth row was thus made to contain ten 20c stamps, but otherwise the sheet was the same as the second printing. 2000 sheets was the number struck off and this, with the supply from Valparaiso, was sufficient for the needs of all the offices in the country until the beginning of 1898.

There was a delay in beginning the use of the stamps, however, and it was Sept. 1, 1897, instead of July 1 that the system finally went into effect. The rules provided that the stamps should be cancelled with the dated postmark, so that the following values of the third issue (i. e. the second and third prints of the Valparaiso design) are to be found cancelled with various town names and dates from Sept. 1, 1897:—1, 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 20c.

Meanwhile the preparation of the permanent set had been proceeding at Sr. Gillet's establishment and on Aug. 16, 1897, they were delivered to the Treasury Department. These were in sheets of 100, but only one denomination to a sheet. The numbers printed were one million each of the 1c and 4c, a half million each of the 2c and 20c, and two million of the 10c. It seems a little singular that, with two weeks' time from the delivery of the supply before the use of the stamps began, they did not put the permanent set in use and not the Valparaiso stamps. Probably their means of distribution were not equal to the task. At any rate it was determined to use up the stock of the latter stamps before putting out the new set, and it was therefore not until Jan. 8, 1898, that the 2c and 4c of the fourth issue made their appearance in Santiago.

But the general use of postage due stamps was not as satisfactory as had been anticipated, and they had been employed scarcely two years when the Director General of Posts, Carlos Lira, in a letter to the Ministry dated May 30, 1899, stated that their use was a grave inconvenience and led to frauds which were only discovered after considerable time; he therefore recommended the abolition of the law of May 26, 1897. As a result of this a decree was issued on June 12, 1899, by which the use of postage due stamps was discontinued and the old system of handstamping was reverted to.

With that spirit of thrift which characterizes the up-to-date postal department, the remainders were offered for sale on Sept. 23, 1899, over four million stamps (including 25,000 of the Valparaiso design) bringing the sum of Ps 11,000 or $3300 in American gold. From the numbers of the remainders it would appear that there were used during the two years the following quantities of each issue:—

U. S. REVENUE DEPT.

Edited by CHARLES A. NAST.

Any information regarding any class of revenues, but particularly those of the U. S., British Colonies and Mexico, will be gratefully acknowledged. Address CHARLES A. NAST, Box 14, Denver, Colorado.

The echoes of the national convention are still heard here, faintly, but tunefully. Not the least important feature of the gathering was the annual convention of the U. S. Revenue Society, which held its meeting coincident with that of the A. P. A. As the WEEKLY has already published its report of the proceedings I can only add that to all appearances this is a coming organization, second only in its scope of usefulness to the Am. Phil. Assn. Its members without exception are men of years, many of them wealthy, and nearly all in that class termed "advanced collectors." Its roll of membership is daily increasing, proving conclusively that its object was a real live one, and from all indications its future is full of promise. It numbers now 130 members, and is growing fast.

U. S. PROOF AND ESSAY SOCIETY.

The U. S. Proof and Essay Society is still in process of formation. From its restricted field it can never hope to become a large society, but I must caution the promoters against restricting it to postage proofs and essays only. Of course this is not the plan to so restrict it, but if any number of its membership insist on passing over proofs and essays of revenues, they will make a great mistake. This is the coming thing. The proofs of the first, second and third series are easily obtained, and are beautiful, but that other large class, known as match and medicine, is bidding strongly for attention just now and all the excitement and dearth of knowledge which are the principal incentives to research and bargain-hunting are here. One can easily fill up on postage proofs, it is simply a question of how much one wants to spend, the supply is known and is on the market. But how different it is with proofs of revenues! How many dealers even, have them for sale? Where are they? Who has them? What varieties exist? These and other questions are the paramount ones. So I say, if the promoters of the Proof and Essay Society will take up the question of revenue proofs and push it with vigor, the success of the society is assured.

NEWLY DISCOVERED ESSAYS.

While on the question of Essays, I must record two striking finds in this field. Mr. Geo. L. Toppan uncovered recently a sheet of gummed paper, with a proof impression from the grill roller of other days. The proof furnishes indisputable evidence that the roller was originally grilled "all over" and afterwards cut up into rectangles. The spaces between the perfect rectangles, show plainly impressions from the grill that had not been cut away altogether. The sheet I believe contained 12 rectangles. The other is an essay out of the Seagrave collection sold recently. It is an essay in purple black of the proposed $2.00 Documentary, size of the first general issue $2.00.

It consists of a profile head of Washington, and on looking at it casually, appears to be covered with fine engine scroll work in light grays and sepias. On examining it carefully, however, the light brown scroll work is an endless repetition of the words "Five Dollars." Just how a two dollar essay happened to be printed on this five dollar bank note style of plate is one of those things past finding out. It is a very curious essay.

NEW PROVISIONAL PROPRIETARIES.

Mr. G. A. Herthum sends word that he has the following stamp: Griggs & Scott 1c match on silk paper, surcharged in red "G & Co—Dec. 7—1874." Please note that there are two C's instead of Dec.

I may add the following new provisionals as having passed through my hands, not having been heretofore listed: Samuel Hart & Co. on the 10c blue Prop. in black, "S. H. & Co—April —1865." This form of cancellation with the month "Dec" is very common, but "April" has not been noted before. Another is "Brocket & Newton," in black in three lines within a circle with the two stars as described in the Boston Book on the 5c Inland Exchange, "B. & N.—Nov—1864." My third is a Kennedy & Co. on the 3c orange Prop., 1875 issue, and is unusual in that the letter "K" is printed and accompanied by date of month and year. This firm generally cut out the letter "K" with a steel die punch. It is the only one of this firm's cancellation I have ever seen printed in two lines "K—1.8.75." I include this last since no mention has been made of the die cut variety. My last is a Lawrence & Cohen on the 2c blue Playing Card in two lines printed in black "L. C.—1864" in an unusual style of type—plain block. The Boston Book lists a provisional of this surcharged "Mar 1, 1864."

SILK FIBRE PAPER.

A. R. S. asks why the variety known as "silk fibre" beer stamps of the 1878 series is so very scarce, since the series was in use for twenty years. Well, the designs may have been used from '78 to '98 but the silk paper was used scarcely less than a year, if one may judge from the cancellation dates on the stamps themselves. I have seen the following dates on the 25c: "April 28, 1878" and on the 50c "June 3, 1878." I can only surmise that it resulted from the following cause: The series of 1875 which preceded it was printed on this well known silk fibre paper used on many of our proprietary and documentary stamps from 1871 to 1878. Then when the 1878 series was projected, the first impressions were printed on the sheets remaining on hand at time of change. After this stock was used up, and evidently there was not much of it, the watermarked paper took its place. It was a good many years after their issue before this difference in papers was noted and chronicled. So far only four values are known on silk paper, viz.: 16⅔, 25c, 50c and $2.00. Of these the 50c variety was listed first in these columns a few months ago, the other three by the Springfield Stamp Club.

UNPRICED STAMPS.

Another correspondent asks what the $1.00 blue and black, with inverted head, is worth. That is not an easy question to answer. And this leads to another question: Why are so many stamps of this class still unpriced in the catalog? Other inverts are priced why not this one and several others? Has the cataloger never seen one? Have none ever been sold at auction? Surely "yes" in both cases. Or is it because the compiler has none to sell? This last could hardly be argued because everyone knows that it is impossible for any firm to keep every stamp in stock all the time. It is now 35 years since these stamps were printed and a comparatively fair price could be placed on them easily enough. That is an exploded theory which imagines catalogers list only what they have to sell. I could mention fifty high class match and medicine stamps which no dealer in the country could supply forty per cent. of. So then let us be done with these blank spaces. These cases are so rare, and the stamps are in the hands of rich specialists so no one can be benefitted individually by whatever price is printed in the catalog. In cases where the issue is new and the market consequently unsettled and no one knows whether one hundred or one thousand copies exist, it is well to hold off pricing, but this cannot be advanced in the case of the second and third issue inverts. But there is another side to this question involved here and that is the protection of the collector, since it might easily be urged, the stamp is not priced because only one or two copies exist,—and this or these are in the hands of the compiler. Or the stamp in question was so rare the cataloger had never owned one, hence had none to sell. Hence, I say, some price, no matter what, should be quoted for every stamp. No one would be injured by this arrangement and some one might be induced to give a great deal too much because of the blank space in the price list. There are plenty of cases of stamps bringing more than catalog price, so you see, no one takes it as an infallible mouthpiece as to values. But it is a guide, and we must have it and the Standard is the best in the world, to my mind. Like the sellers of glass who have a schedule which no one ever thinks is the actual price list, it is used as a scale to discount from, that is its only use. The list always stays the same, only the discounts vary with the fluctuations of the market. Now as to price I might say a certain dealer exhibited in Denver a beautifully repaired copy of the $1.00 blue and black inverted, which was held at $55.00 net. He also showed an unused o. g. copy of the $2.50 claret and black invert, which was labelled $1000.00 net. A good copy of the $1.00 is worth probably $150.00, while the 25c B. and B. invert is probably scarcer and worth more. There has lately been a find of the 50c blue and black with a round punch hole in each which sell at $4.50 to $5.00 each. It is listed at $15.00, but this price was placed in the catalog long before the "find" so the price for good copies is asked independent of these punched ones lately placed on the market. During the convention in Denver it was a simple matter for a delegate to pull out a small wallet containing several thousand dollars' worth of rarities.

TAX PAYERS' MANUALS.

In 1868 George S. Boutwell, an ex Commissioner of Internal Revenue, published in Boston a compendium and hand book regarding the taxes and stamps of the Civil War period. For the benefit of my Springfield friends I want to quote section 52 of the amended Act of Jan. 15, 1866, passed expressly to "declare the meaning of the act of June 30, 1864," which reads as follows: "That the commissioner shall cause to be prepared for the payment of the tax aforesaid, suitable stamps, denoting the amount of tax required to be paid on the hogsheads, barrels, halves, quarters, sixths, and eighths of barrels," etc. There is no mention here of "thirds," hence there were no 33⅓c stamps printed in the series of 1866.

The "War Revenue Law of 1898" is also a manual of laws and cases cited for the benefit of taxpayers. This is a work of 190 pp., bound in cloth 18 mo. Published by Little, Brown & Co. of Boston, but recently sold by Burrows Bros. of Cleveland for 15c each. Evidently dead stock, but interesting to fiscalists.

REVENUE CATALOGS.

Can any of my readers inform me where I can procure a copy of the "History of the Revenue Stamps of Mexico," compiled by F. G. C. Lundy in 1891? It is a 48 page pamphlet and was offered for sale at 25c at the time. The latest catalog of Mexican Revenues has just been issued at Los Angeles, California, and is the work of Francisco J. Mendoza. This gentleman has been a collector of these stamps since their first issue in 1874, and for twenty years of the time since, has been employed in one of the fiscal departments of the government. Hence he had unusual opportunities to acquaint himself with all the varieties of die, surcharge, paper, etc. The book is priced at 50c and is published by the Los Angeles Times P. & B. Co.

EDITORIAL.

Historical Side—The Jamestown stamps are the subject of many historical articles in the foreign stamp papers, and accounts of the lives of the various personages depicted on the specimens and of the stirring incidents of the times are given at length. Evidently, the suggestions of these stamps have a strong fascination for the philatelist abroad and the interesting descriptions that have been furnished are indeed readable. The American stamp papers have not presented many historical studies of the stamps, as it is felt that the significance of the specimens, in their pictorial sense, is well known to all American collectors, from the school boy to the adult, so widely read have the romantic episodes of that period been. The advertising force of the Jamestown stamps in foreign countries certainly has met the most sanguine expectations of the promoters of the issue.

Complimentary—The committee appointed in Australia to consider the question of uniform postage stamps for the Australian Commonwealth, according to a Sydney newspaper will consist of "Messrs. H. B. Templeton, Chief Clerk in the Central Postal Administration, who will represent the department and particularly its financial interests; Mr. J. B. Cooke, stamp printer to the department in Adelaide; Mr. T. T. Patterson, of Queensland, an expert in engraving; Mr. Bernard Hall, of Melbourne, who will give attention to the artistic aspect; and Mr. Basset Hull, who will represent the philatelic interest." Mr. Basset Hull, perhaps, is the leading philatelic amateur of the Commonwealth, and his fame as a student of and writer on the issues of the "fifth continent" is universal. The direct and official recognition of the philatelic community by the appointment by the authorities of Mr. Basset Hull carries a significant compliment and places philately on the plane of accepted pursuits in the highest quarters.

Wanted—If the committee mentioned in the preceding paragraph reports favorably on the question of uniform stamps, a simplification of the postal issues will be in prospect. It is known that the manifold varieties of the different states have taxed the efforts of the ordinary collector who wishes that the closing era of the distinctive stamps for the states was not so long drawn out. While it is natural that the many varieties should form the subject of much interest in the home countries where the changes of issue are followed at close range, yet even the collectors on the spot admit the desirability of the hastening of an issue that will bring order out of the maze of the new stamps. The collector who is removed from the scene of the stamp activities does not care particularly to always be on the qui vive for novelties from the Australian states in this day when the tendency is to encourage the repression rather than the multiplication of issues.

He Has a System—We have always contended that one of the most effective ways in which to do missionary work among those outside of the pale of philately was by the exhibition of the stamp album whenever opportunity allowed. Recently, an enthusiastic adult collector said that he has made at least three high-class converts to philately by showing his stamps to casual evening callers at his home. Moreover, he confessed that he employed a pleasant little system of artifice to lead up to the exhibition of his album. In the course of conversation he introduces at a ripe moment and in a natural way, the subject of stamp collecting and admits the soft impeachment that he, himself, is a collector, maintaining that he finds the hobby a most satisfactory one. If his listeners are at all responsive, they express some curiosity and wish to hear something about a pursuit that engages a friend's attention; and they press him to show his collection. Thus, the proper atmosphere is created and the album is brought to view, and the stamps, shown on invitation are given the more friendly attention; if the album was shown on the initiative of the owner, its contents might not be viewed with the same interest and sympathy. This human scheme is a clever one and might be used with good effect by other collectors who are anxious to proclaim philately.

Stamp Famine—The newspapers say that recently, for a day or so, the stock of one and two-cent stamps at the Baltimore postoffice was completely exhausted by reason of the abnormal demands by senders of Jewish New Year cards, the authorities not having made provision for the added call. No particulars were given as to how the emergency was met or whether split provisionals were resorted to in tiding over the stampless period. The split provisional field of United States stamps is one of some fertility and engages the interest of a few specialists whose rule, however, is to regard all provisionals of later days somewhat coldly; they feel that emanations that are of comparatively recent coming are lacking in the pure philatelic suggestion carried by the split provisionals of the issues, say, of over a quarter century ago.

A Medal—The Chicago Philatelic Society is to signalize its five hundredth meeting on October 17th, 1907, by ceremonies appropriate to the occasion. A token struck in metal will be distributed to members; the design, obverse and reverse, is of rich significance and embodies the philatelic theme and its higher suggestions in a most admirable way. The memento will be a pocket piece of talismanic virtue to the one who will appreciate the charming symbolism of the design, which, the more that it is analyzed, the more commanding it becomes. We predict that the enterprise of the society in presenting such a token to members will meet with the warmest approval.

Honesty Refined—A reader writes to ask if he is justified in taking as a gift certain stamps that he found in a country home which he ransacked, by permission, on his vacation trip, and which have a "considerable collecting price:" the former owners of the correspondence would not listen to his proposition to pay something for the stamps, which, he explained, had an actual monetary value to him. Our correspondent is to be congratulated, first, on his good fortune in finding the stamps, and secondly, on his refreshingly sturdy sense of honesty. Really, if his good friends would not take the money, he could not unbecomingly insist that they should, and his offer to reimburse relieves him from solid obligation. With clear conscience he may hold the stamps, but if he still has any misgivings as to the propriety of his conduct, let him remember his friends during the holiday season.

Another Case—Speaking of finds, brings to mind that some time ago, a reader called on us to say that he found between the leaves of a book that he borrowed from the circulating library of his city, an approval sheet of stamps, bearing no name of dealer or collector, with a value of about a dollar. The finder wanted to know what steps he should take to place the stamps in the hands of the rightful owner. As the value of the stamps would scarcely justify the insertion of a classified advertisement in one of the newspapers, we suggested that he put the stamps aside for a time, and then, if no trace was heard of the loser, to consider them as his own property. Our reader demurred at this and said that such a course did not appeal to him, as he could not feel comfortable at the thought of having someone else's property as his own. There are signs that the philatelic millenium is approaching.

NOTICES OF ARREARAGES.

In this week's issue of the WEEKLY will be found notices of arrearages on subscriptions where such are called for. Where renewals have been sent us in the past two weeks sufficient time has not been allowed to change the whole numbers on the labels and the subscriber will please pay no attention to our "dunner."

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

R.:—The Wells, Fargo and Company Mexican frank that you describe comes both on United States and Mexican envelopes. There is also a Wells, Fargo and Company on both United States and Hawaiian envelopes.

G. K.:—"I have been reading a book for beginners by Mr. Melville; he refers to some stamps as speculative, such as jubilee, exposition, etc. Does this refer to all countries?" Perhaps, in a broad sense all jubilee, exposition, etc., stamps are speculative inasmuch as they were never issued for postal purposes, but it is rather unfair to say that the Jamestown exposition stamps, face value, eight cents—at first, it was the government's intention to issue but the one and two cent denominations only—are speculative; and because the 1887 set of Great Britain chanced to have been issued in jubilee year, and is familiarly known as the "jubilee issue" it does not follow that it is speculative. (2) "Do catalogues selling at ten cents each price all the stamps?" Catalogues that sell for ten cents each do not pretend to catalogue all the stamps that are included in the larger and more expensive lists; in the cheaper catalogue all the non-essential varieties, as they are called by the publisher, are omitted, and the book is on very simple lines. (3) All the United States stamps issued since 1895 are on watermarked paper. (4) Your experience with the correspondent abroad while unsatisfactory is not uncommon, and though perhaps the case is not grave, measured by the amount of money involved, it is yet bothersome. Complain to the secretary of the organization of which the delinquent is a member; if you can prove your case, he may be brought to time through the society. If the account were large, you could place it in the hands of a lawyer.

C. A. Howes, Boston, writes: "I note a paragraph in Queries and Comments concerning a stamp with the Confederate flag as central design. I presume this is the old fake inscribed 'Richmond Postage' and '5 cents.' This was one of S. Allen Taylor's productions, foisted upon collectors about the time of the Civil war or soon after. I have never seen but the one value, but possess copies in purple and yellow green and have seen numerous other colors in Taylor's stock." Mr. Howes' remarks do not apply to the so-called essay that was under notice, which is inscribed, "Confederate States of America," and purports to be of the general issue; his reference to the spurious locals, however, is of interest, and the stamps described by Mr. Howes are ranked among the other fictitious issues assigned to Richmond. Kline's Manual Guide, Philadelphia, published in the early 60's, listed four different varieties of "Richmond locals": (1) Buck's Richmond Express, large figures of value in center, six denominations, ranging from one to twenty cents; (2) Richmond City Post, central design, two cannons, value not indicated; (3) Richmond Postage, Confederate flag in oval, as described by Mr. Howes, and (4) Richmond Dispatch, picture of stage-coach and horses. The date of the issue of these labels was 1862 according to Mr. Kline, but the stamps were regarded with suspicion, even at the time, as it was said: "Residents in Richmond state that these stamps were never in existence."

A.:—There is no disposition on the part of specialists, generally, to consider the slight irregularities in placing the denominations that are filled in with a second printing in the case of some of the British colonials, as collectible varieties. The reason for the variations that you describe is apparent when it is said that when the stock cut of the main design of the stamp has the denomination printed in with a second or the same color, by a second impression that is not absolutely in register. (2) No doubt, the discoloration on the Tobago stamp was effected by the removal of an ink cancellation by acid. (3) Cuts showing the two types of the lettering of "Queensland" nine pence, 1903 issue, are shown in Gibbons' catalogue. (4) A thin spot in a stamp is regarded as a defect, of course, but just how great a reduction it effects in the value of the stamp is not to be measured by rule. Much depends upon the character of the "thinning" and what the stamp is, but your remark that the "thin spot" is not so grave an objection on a used stamp as it is on one unused is not without claims for favorable consideration.

A reader sends for inspection a cover bearing a two-cent stamp, current issue, United States, and across the specimen is written evidently in indelible ink, the word "Cancelled" The postmark and cancellation did not strike the stamp, but so regularly are the letters of the word "Cancelled" written that our correspondent thinks that it may have been applied by a rubber stamp. A post-office man to whom the cover was referred says that the marking is not a departmental cancellation but that it was applied by a postal clerk or carrier when he saw that the stamp escaped the cancelling machine. Carriers are authorized to cancel by pencil strokes, or otherwise, stamps that through inadvertence do not receive a cancellation. (2) The same reader submits a pair of the three-cent current issue in a color approaching a slate, with a reddish tone; an authority to whom the stamps were shown says that heat would be apt to darken the original purple to the color of the specimens under view.

T. C.:—There are no postage stamps of Thibet, and your recollection of Thibetan specimens must be based on a form of special postmark, which was used on letters from members of the British expedition to that country of mystery and the "forbidden city," Lhassa. The country was included recently in the list of countries that have not yet issued postage stamps. (2) The stamps of the native Indian states afford a study that is worthy of the attention of the best philatelic mind, and if you have a liking for the issues there is no reason why you should not collect them. (3) We did not wish to convey the impression that none of the British colonies would honor cash orders for their stamps, but there have been cases where they returned the money sent with the explanation that such and such an issue was intended for "home consumption" only. We take the liberty of appending a paragraph that was incorporated in the letter of this inquirer: "I want to say that after an absence of twenty years from philatelic circles, I have found upon rejoining the ranks many things changed for the better. Dealers are more agreeable in their treatment of customers than formerly, and I find a higher intelligence prevailing than in the old days. The whole spirit of stamp collecting is more attractive and I feel the old enthusiasm even more strongly than before. One thing that I miss is the old high-grade stamp monthlies; there were no weeklies at the time. I remember that John K. Tiffany said that if one wished to do so, one could have a stamp paper come to him every day, provided that one subscribed to them all. This average is sadly diminished, I judge from a survey of the papers of today."

R. E. J.:—As has been said previously the adoption of the postal union colors for the stamps of each country claiming membership in the organization becomes compulsory after the first of October, 1907, and if the law is observed various of the British colonies whose present issues do not conform in color to the accepted standard must change the colors. As you say, there are a good number of countries whose stamps will be affected by the new order and no mistake would be made by securing any of the stamps slated for color change, although they are necessarily of the lower denominations. It is possible, of course, that the changes that must necessarily be made, may make it advisable to choose other colors for stamps of higher value in the sets, so that their colors may not conflict with those to be adopted in the stamps of denomination equivalent to one, two and five cents, respectively.

H. B.:—Stamp societies are not run on a financial basis in the sense that any money gain accrues to members; they are co-operative in their nature and have to do with philately only in its propagation and progression as benefitting members primarily. They are protective of the individual members and philately, alike, and they are semi-public institutions whose influence are of much good to the hobby. Membership in a leading society is usually regarded as a recommendation of reliability.

E. E. W.:—The large ten shilling stamp of New South Wales that first appeared in 1885 is still in use but "its withdrawal in the very near future may be anticipated." (2) The first issue of New South Wales was printed from different plates, which show evidences of re-touching, as the catalogue indicates, in cases, and if in doubt as to the genuineness of your one penny, send it to a counterfeit detector.

Q.:—"When a letter is posted on board a ship, stamps of the nationality to which the ship belongs may be used, according to postal union rules. They are taken ashore at the nearest port, and obliterated in the usual manner by the postal officials there."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Have you joined the A. P. A.? Why not?

—A Budapest, Hungary, lottery concern is flooding the mails with advertising matter. Our readers receiving the same will do well to communicate with the Postmaster General at Washington, as suggested by Joseph A. Steinmetz, in a letter just at hand.

—The last number of the Monthly Journal has an extended editorial reference to the A. P. A., and plainly yearns for a similar organization on the other side of the Atlantic. It refers to our large membership of 1200, but even this number will be surpassed in the work of the coming year.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—The New England Stamp Co., and Robert S. Nelson have shown us an albino of the new 2c envelope. Otto F. Moses has also informed us that he has found the same thing, doubtless due to too great hurry of the printers in trying to fill the orders received.

James S. Hardy notes the item in No. 870 from Mr. Chevrier, and sends us a copy for inspection. The top of the head comes within about ½ mm. from the oval line. There are other differences, the whole head seemingly printed from a different die. The specimen submitted by Mr. Hardy is unused, but he also has a used copy, so that it is certain that it is not a mere freak. Mr. Hardy suggests that the head reminds one of Webster on the old 30c stamps. The following from Mr. Hardy's letter will be of interest to envelope specialists:

"Yesterday I talked with a postmaster from a city in the vicinity of Dayton, Ohio. He said he had recently been through the plant of the concern manufacturing the new envelopes, and that he was shown a 'stack of half a million' returns, owing to poor printing, lack of gum, albinos, etc. As predicted in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, we may probably find numerous minor varieties among United States envelopes for some time to come."

CANADA.—A. McKechnie writes under date of Sept. 10:

"In reference to an item in No. 871, regarding Canada Postage Due Stamps,—taken from Le Journal des Philatelists, stating that said issue has been suppressed and the remainders burned—I made enquiry this day at the Department here and was informed verbally that the Department has no intention of discontinuing the use of the Due Stamps." This would seem to be conclusive.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—The Sanborn Stamp Co. has shown us the new 5c blue and black, printed on watermarked paper.

ICELAND.—The Nordisk Philatelistisk Tidskrift chronicles another value in the new official set noted in No. 862. and also adds the stationery given below.

LUXEMBURG.—It is reported that the new 12½c stamp is likely to be changed, as the figures of value are too small. The first printing consisted of 70,000 stamps in sheets of 100.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—In regard to the printing of the New South Wales upon paper with the Victoria style of Crown A paper, the following from the Australian Philatelist will be of interest:

"In consequence of the prosperity of New South Wales, the demand for the stamps of this State has increased so rapidly that the contract supply of paper was exhausted sooner than it would have done under ordinary circumstances, with the result that the Government Printer had to procure some forty-five or fifty thousand sheets from Victoria. These sheets admit of four of our (120) sheets being printed on each one, consequently the issue of New South Wales stamps on paper watermarked Cr. and A (Victorian type) will not be a small one. Latest information to hand is that a supply of the ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 4d, 6d, 8d, 10d, 1s, and 2s 6d values have been printed and sent to the post office, and that a fresh stock of New South Wales paper has arrived. As the Victorian paper doesn't 'fit' our stamps the watermarks are scattered all over, and it is the exception rather than the rule to find the complete watermark on any one stamp. In addition, the words 'Commonwealth of Australia,' which are to be seen on the margins of the Victorian sheets, appear on the New South Wales stamps—two rows being seen on some sheets and none on others. While the addition of another variety to our already overburdened series is to be deplored, we are satisfied that the difficulty could not have been overcome otherwise. Up to the time of going to press the following values had been seen, viz., 1d, 2d, 2½d, 6d and 1s."

PANAMA.—Francis Rotch, Jr., has shown us two varieties of the 20c, overprinted "Republica — de Panama," Scott's No. 135. One surcharge is normal, with the top of the letters in "Republica" 1 mm. from the obliterating. The other has a space of 2 mm. between the letters and the rule, and the type appears heavier, though the design is the same. The case is still further complicated by the fact that the paper on which the stamps were printed is uniformly stained a good shade of brown, evidently the action of the gum where the stamps had lain a long time in a hot climate.

PARAGUAY.—The Sanborn Stamp Co. has shown a new provisional, the 2c orange, dated "1904" having been surcharged with new value, the overprint reading "Habilitado—en—5—Centavos," the old value having been obliterated by a plain heavy rule, extending nearly across the stamp. The overprint is in black.

Provisional Adhesive.

5c on 2c orange.

PHILIPPINES. — Supplementing Mr. Toppan's information in No. 871 regarding the new printed "O Bs" on Philippine stamps, the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has shown us the $1 of the 1902-03 set, with red surcharge "Philippines" and "O. B." printed in black, near the bottom of the stamp. We are informed by Mr. Putney, Manager of the Scott Co., that it is not intended to include these "O B" stamps in the Scott Catalogue.

The Sanborn Stamp Co. has shown us used copies of the new printed "O B" stamps on 2c, 4c and 8c current Philippine stamps.

ST. LUCIA.—The ½d has appeared in a single color.

Adhesive.

½d green.

SALVADOR.—Mr. Focke has now shown us the 2c on 6c rose and black, noted last week, with wheel overprint and new value and circular obliterations, all in black. He has also shown us another provisional, the 5c steel blue and black, being used this time, receiving the same wheel surcharge over the face of Escalon, as the 2c, the old figures of value being obliterated by heavy black circles and the new value printed in light faced letter just over the President's name. We have before referred to the fact that there are two distinct shades in the 5c stamp,—steel blue and ultramarine.

Mr. Focke also sends us a copy of the 5c ultramarine and black, showing a faint double impression of the frame all over the stamp, and about 1 mm. lower than the normal print. It is very faint, and was possibly caused by the accidental dropping of the sheet upon the plate, followed by its removal to the proper place to make good register. This variety is found in both colors of the 5c stamp, but is scarce in the steel blue shade.

Provisional Adhesives.

1c on 5c steel blue and black.
2c on 6c rose and black.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Don't fail to send to the A. P. A. recruiting committee for the handsome new booklet, giving the advantages of membership in the A. P. A. Should you happen to be a member, pass it to some friend not yet in the field.

—Percival Parrish is said to be slated as the new Sales Supt. of the A. P. A. Eugene Klein, who is associated with him, will be the new Examiner of Sales Books. Philadelphia is honored to have two such prominent appointments, and these two gentlemen being so closely associated should make a great success of this particular department.—A. F. HENKELS.

—We have been favored with the auction catalogue of the 5th sale of the Nassau Stamp Co., to be held Oct. 3, at the Collectors' Club, New York City. The coming sales by this company present some interesting features. Already the collections of W. G. Scott and Gustave E. Strauss are slated, together with the U. S. proofs and essays of Dr. J. B. Newton and also a superb collection cataloging $30,000, replete with old issues in extra fine condition.

—The August number of the Boston Junior Stamp News has been received. It is a mss. paper, published by Day Kimball, 343 Beacon St., Boston, whose enterprise in this direction has already been commended by the WEEKLY.

—The Sanborn Stamp Co. of Washington, D. C., sends out a very neat circular exploiting the advantages of stamp collecting, one that would tend to interest even the most casual reader in our pastime. Dealers do well to take advantage of such means for recruiting the ranks of philately.

—R. Williams favors us with the catalogue of his 30th sale to be held in Elks' Hall, Boston, Thursday evening, September 26. Jas. H. Lyons will be the auctioneer. A nice line of desirable U. S. and foreign stamps is offered.

—The Eben S. Martin Co. favors us with specimens of their "Daily Bargain Sheets". This is certainly an innovation in the realms of philatelic trade, and will be all the more appreciated on account of that fact. An item of more than ordinary interest, however, might be made in connection with the bargain prices presented.

—The call for the Sept. 11th meeting of the Columbus Collectors Club gives evidence that the local collectors are alive to the responsibility and honor that will be theirs in achieving philatelic history during 1908. Action will be taken looking towards the organization of an Ohio State Association, and committees will be appointed to take charge of the 1908 convention arrangements.

—Several correspondents have sent us clippings giving the particulars of the raising of a mortgage by a Washington, Pa., widow, who received $1200 from a Worcester, Mass., dealer for five barrels of cancelled postage stamps. The story sounds well, but is discredited by J. T. Roberge, who resides in Worcester, and informs us that the news dispatch is a hoax.

—A letter addressed to the M. H. Decker Co., La Porte, Ind., is returned to the writer marked "Removed. Left no address" Have any of our readers the new address? If so we will appreciate the sending of the same to this office.

—Morgenthau & Co. favors us with the catalogue of their 11th sale, listing part three of the Thorne collection. The sale will occupy five nights in October. The catalogue is as usual, very well written, and worthy of perusal.

—Two years ago our business manager on his visit to London labored hard with Nissen & Co. for advertising patronage. We failed then but our labor was not in vain as witness elsewhere an attractive advertisement. We bespeak for this firm a share of our subscribers' patronage.

—The first remittance for sales from the circuits of the U. S. Rev. Society, was received in Philadelphia a few days ago, and shows net sales of about 70 per cent of the stamps entered. This is indeed a good showing and speaks well for the interest in Revenue stamps. The Sales Supt. informs me that he has more demands for circuits than he has circuits to supply. The members should hunt up their duplicates and enter them in circuit, thereby helping the good work along.—A. F. HENKELS.

—A few days ago the writer had the opportunity of examining the U. S. Revenue Branch of the collection of Jos. A. Steinmetz of this city. Mr. S. has availed himself of many of the very interesting die and plate proofs of this absorbing branch of philately, and with his admirable arrangement has produced a result that is highly gratifying. Any one who is interested in the subject should not pass through Philadelphia without seeing this collection of Mr. Steinmetz who is the soul of courtesy and is always pleased to exhibit his treasures.—A. F. HENKELS.

—E. L. Warner of "Golden Genie" fame will change his residence, on October 1st, 1907, from 1225 Ridge avenue, to 1139 Ridge avenue, Evanston, Illinois, where he will have more commodious offices and sales-rooms, and better facilities for meeting the demand of his constantly increasing trade.

—V. Mozian of the Ararat Stamp Co., of New York City, was in Boston this last week.

—E. J. Nankivell, editor of Gibbons' Weekly, will shortly sever his connection with that paper. We have nothing definite at hand, but understand that a new magazine will soon be launched, in which Mr. Nankivell will be deeply interested.

—A handsome booklet has been issued showing the advantages of membership in the A. P. A. Send for a copy.

—F. B. Kirby wishes us to state that when he took the nomination of Sec. of the U. S. R. S. he was not so burdened with work as he is at the present time. He found it absolutely impossible to do the work required.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Franklin S. Smith, Sanborn Stamp Co., F. E. McCabe, J. N. 1. Levick, G. de Lachasse, Henry MacConnell, J. T. Roberge (3), and H. S. Johnson, M. D. (2).

—Fitchburg, Mass., papers give the particulars of a sale of 1,500,000 stamps gathered by Miss Litchfield of Lunenburg nearby. A Paxton, Mass., numismatist, purchased the lot, which filled five sugar barrels. According to information given us by Mr. J. T. Roberge, the news item giving the particulars of a purchase of a Pennsylvania accumulation by a Worcester dealer, is a fabrication made out of whole cloth by one of the disappointed bidders for the Lunenburg lot.

CHEAPER POSTAGE ABROAD.

Letters from home to Americans abroad will after October 1 be as fat and as plump as the most welcome letter from home is supposed to be, and the writer in the States will not have to add to his or her postage expenses.

The official bulletin from the department in Washington contains an order of the Postmaster General arranging for the new foreign postal rates which are due to go into effect the first of October and which were agreed upon in the Universal Postal Union in Rome in May of last year.

Foreign postage which has heretofore been 5 cents for a letter weighing a half ounce, will now be five cents for an ounce, and three cents for each additional ounce.

Letters sent abroad which weighed two ounces cost 20 cents under the old rate, and the same weight will now go for eight cents, a saving of 60 per cent. To those who like to make their letters voluminous, who have lots to tell, and like to tell it, this comes as a huge boon. The crisp, word-sparing, adjectiveless and ungossiping letter writer will of course save nothing.

THE FIRST TWO TYPES OF QUEENSLAND.

BY WALLABY.

Few stamps are so full of interest as those known as the first type of Queensland; they abound with scarce varieties, while numerous well defined shades of the commoner stamps enable even the amateur specialist to make a fairly good show at a comparatively early date.

In June, 1859, the London Gazette contained a proclamation to the effect that the northern half of New South Wales was to be formed into a new colony, to be known as Queensland. Sir George Ferguson Bowen was appointed Governor, and took office early in Dec., 1859.

The first Queensland Parliament assembled on May 29th, 1860, while the first issue of postage stamps, consisting of three values, was put on sale early in Nov. of the same year.

Prior to this issue N. S. W. stamps were in use throughout Queensland and while the N.S.W. stamps used in what is now known as Queensland before Dec., 1859, are not of especial interest, I certainly think that after the colony was formed, the stamps take a different status, and those in use in Queensland should rank as Queensland stamps.

The following Government notice places beyond all doubt when the issue of the first Queensland stamps took place:—

GENERAL POST OFFICE, BRISBANE,
21st September, 1860.

QUEENSLAND POSTAGE STAMPS.

It is hereby notified for public information that a supply of Queensland postage stamps has been received from England, and will be issued on the first day of Nov. next, from which date the New South Wales postage stamps at present in use will no longer be acknowledged upon letters posted within this Colony. All letters, therefore, posted in Queensland after the 1st November bearing the New South Wales stamp will be treated as unpaid, and will accordingly be opened and returned to the writer.

(Signed) R. R. MACKENZIE.

Many amateur specialists think that Queensland stamps are difficult, especially the first type, this is really a quite erroneous idea as few colonies are easier to understand, once a few elementary facts are grasped.

I will take each issue and try and make plain any doubtful facts regarding them.

Nov. 1860 Issue.

Early in November, 1860, the first Queensland stamps were put on sale and consisted of three values, 1d, 2d and 6d, these stamps were imperf. and as this is the only imperf. issue it should not be hard to identify; they were engraved in taille douce by Messrs. Perkins Bacon & Co., on stout white wove paper and were watermarked with a large rayed star.

The 1sh stamp was not issued imperf., and so-called imperf. copies are either perforated stamps trimmed down or part of a sheet that escaped the perforating machine.

The stamps of this issue vary but slightly in shade, the penny value showing the most variation. These stamps are exceptionally rare in mint condition, and even used with good margins are well worth full catalogue, while few, if any, of the imperf. Australians are harder to obtain in pairs or strips.

COLUMBIAN STAMP CO., Arlington, Mass.

1860-61 Issue.

Early the following year these stamps were perforated by clean cut perfs. gauging 14 to 15½, like the previous issue they are very rare unused, but are fairly common used.

As the six stamps already mentioned are the only ones printed on the large Star paper, there should be no trouble in discriminating them from the stamps in the same perf. and colours but watermarked small Star.

A. Small Star. Clean Cut Perfs.

The next, or third, issue included three new stamps, a 3d and a 1sh value, while one, showing no value, but used for registered letters was printed; they were all perforated 14 to 15½ and watermarked a small sharp pointed Star. The 2d value varies considerably in colour.

B. Perforated 14.

The 1d and 2d of this set can be found with a very clean cut perf., gauging exactly 14.

C. Sept., 1861. Rough Perfs.

Later on during the same year; probably some time in August or September, these stamps appeared with a very rough perforation, gauging 14 to 15½. All these stamps are fairly common in used condition.

Little or no trouble should be experienced in separating the rough from the clean cuts, any stamps showing one or more sides with the perfs. perfectly clean, that is, each tooth standing out clearly, can safely be called clean cut; should however it appear rough and jagged on all four sides it may be safely classified as a rough perf.

There are several varieties of perf. mentioned by various collectors, notably the 1sh violet, perf. 12, but this stamp with genuine perf. must be extremely rare, if, indeed, it exists at all.

So far, I may say, I have dealt with five issues. Firstly, the imperf. set; Secondly, the same stamps perforated—both watermarked large Star; Thirdly, the same stamps with three new values added, but watermarked a small Star; Fourthly, the stamps, perf. 14; Fifthly, the complete set with rough perfs. Collectors should have little or no trouble in placing any of these stamps.

—A marked demand is apparent here in Philadelphia for fine conditioned copies of the stamps of the Roman States. I have long been interested in this issue of stamps and find that really fine specimens are a scarce article. In my opinion the catalogues do not reflect their true value, especially of the odd shades and higher values.—A. F. HENKELS.

GET BUSY PLEASE.

If you have been appointed a member of the recruiting committee, it is expected that you will get busy at once and prove that the confidence reposed in you has not been misplaced. Note the makeup of the committee above, and do not wait for an official notification of appointment.

Two new names are this week added to the list "Four Applications Guaranteed." We refer to H. B. Phillips, Berkeley, Cal., and J. T. Starr, Coldwater, Mich. Who will follow?

If you are not a member of the committee, and would like your name added, a guarantee that you will secure four new members during the year will put you on the list. Mr. Nelson, sending in his name, pledged six new members. Who will do likewise?

A new booklet has just been issued that is a work of art, and should prove a strong factor in securing new members. A generous supply will be gladly mailed any one on application.

Who will be the first to have his name entered on the Roll of Honor? Ten new applications will win this distinction, and the honor of being mentioned in our weekly reports.

We are pleased to note in R. Williams' latest catalogue, advertising his sale to be held in Boston, Sept. 26, gives the Assn. a good sendoff, urging his patrons to apply to him for booklets giving details of the many advantages of membership in the A. P. A. We are pleased to recognize this kind act, and shall give due credit to such favors, when brought to our attention.

CONVENTION PLANS CONSIDERED.

(Paul Mason sends us a clipping from the "Ohio State Journal" of Sept. 11. It is of interest in that it shows the Columbus collectors to be enthusiastic over entertaining the 1908 conventions. This city will next year be the Mecca of all philatelists. If not a member of the A. P. A. send in your application that you may share in the feast of good things.)

At last night's meeting of the Columbus Collectors' club, the first after the summer vacation, a comprehensive committee plan for the 1908 conventions of four national organizations of stamp collectors, which will meet in Columbus, was formulated. Only two of the committees — finance and publicity — were formally announced, the appointment of the others being reserved till the need for them develops. The personnel of these committees follows:

Finance—Oscar A. Schenck, chairman; E. F. Dunn, Henry Maetzel, DeWitt C. Sawyer and John Zuber.

Publicity — Paul Mason, chairman; Harry S. Adair, George Ward Linn, Opha Moore and George K. Smith, Jr.

After a distribution of sealed packets of stamps to the members present, a sale of stamps was conducted, which netted a considerable sum for the entertainment fund. It was practically decided that the club shall invite one of the large stamp auction houses to hold an auction here as one of the features of convention week.

WONDERFUL! WONDERFUL!

Nowadays stamp collecting as a fad among women means the accumulation of the sort that come with breakfast foods, soap and other grocery goods. These are traded for hideous objects to be enshrined in the "front parlor." Lamps with green fringe and vases that the preaching of a thousand William Morrises could never exterminate are the favorites. Miss Beatrice Ayer, the daughter of Mr. Frederick Ayer of Boston is, however, as zealous in the collecting of stamps as Princess Patricia is in her search for uncut stones to add to her wonderful array. The Princess cares as little for a crown and jewels of the usual sort as does Carmen Sylva, who refused to wear any regal diadem until it was conceded she might have one—as a symbol—made out of a cannon ball. To return to Miss Ayer's stamps, she has about 4,000 in all—a complete set of Post Office and War Department stamps and those of the Department of the Interior. The complete set of Swedish stamps dating to 1900 and those of some of the old German free States and duchies are, however, what makes the collection remarkable.—Brooklyn Life.

"Good material for auctions appears to be scarce this season."—Advt. B. L. Drew & Co., Sept. 21.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE.

The writer is by nature an optimist. He believes in looking on the bright side of things but this does not mean that one should shut his eyes to actual conditions. If conditions are not as encouraging as one would have them, we have only one course to pursue—meet them and overcome them. Our acquaintance with the commercial end of philately was extended enough to realize that "conditions" do play an important part in the development of business and especially a business that has to do with commodities that cannot be called either household or individual necessities. Philately from a business standpoint will progress as the general prosperity of the nation is assured. In this respect the devotees of philately may feel at ease. We have had no great stringency in the financial world, labor has been in goodly demand and strife between employer and employee has been largely a matter of local concern. The flurries in the stock market have not been a very serious menace.

The large amount of publicity given philately during the past few years must prove a source of great power in promoting the interests of stamp collecting. We cannot measure the results of the good work done by the National Stamp Committee, indeed only through coming years as recruits come to the ranks of philatelists shall we realize the potency of the tremendous campaign that has been waged.

We have every reason to believe that we are entering in upon a year of unexampled prosperity. We believe that thousands of collectors will join us in our pleasure and profit by the educational features that philately offers to her devotees. The WEEKLY will do its part, as it never has done before, in reaching out after those who should pay homage at the shrine of philately.

One of the most encouraging signs that can be noted as indicating the solidity of trade conditions is the fact that no matter how large a collection comes on the market it is quickly absorbed by philatelists waiting to grasp the good things offered for sale. In the very nature of things it must happen that with some the collecting enthusiasm will wane but—"once a philatelist always a philatelist"—is a true word and in subsequent years we may confidently expect to see the flame burning more brightly than ever before.

The WEEKLY has invited certain of its patrons who are close observers of trade conditions to give their opinions as to the outlook for the coming season. The views expressed will, we are certain, be read with deep interest by all our subscribers.

"OUTLOOK GOOD FOR PROSPERITY."

Mr. F. Putney, Jr., the business manager of the old and reputable firm the Scott Stamp and Coin Co., says:—

"A year ago I told MEKEEL'S WEEKLY that stamp collecting, and consequently the stamp business, was on the up turn. The only way for me to judge whether that prediction has come true is from our own experience in the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. I am not giving away any business secrets when I state, as a cold fact, that every single month last fall and winter, when we came to figure up results, we found a decided increase in our business over that of the corresponding months the year before. The same state of affairs has continued through the spring and summer, and the outlook for a prosperous stamp season seems good to me. We have been having not only a gain in our business, but a corresponding increase in the size of our mail and the number of customers served in our stores, which shows that the number of actual collectors is on the increase. Our sales of albums and catalogues point to the same condition of affairs.

"I have been asked many times during the past few months whether the depression in the stock market and in certain lines of general business would not have an unfavorable effect on the demand for stamps. I know of no unfavorable effect thus far, and, to my mind, the quieting down of general business is likely to help the stamp trade rather than hurt it. I do not see many customers personally, but there have been brought to my notice during the past season repeated instances of men resuming as active collectors, who had been out of philately for several years simply because their business had left no time for stamps. The slackening up of business cares has resulted in their getting out their old stamp albums, and some of the dollars accumulated in the interim are beginning to go into stamps. It may be only a coincidence, but the last three financial depressions, those of 1893, 1896 and 1900, have been followed in every case by a boom in stamps. I think history is going to repeat itself this time.

M. Z. BOOLEMAN, AMSTERDAM, NETHERLAND

"If you want to know where the interest lies most strongly at present, it is hard to say. The boom in 20th century issues is now generally recognized as over and the demand for them is becoming more healthy. I am afraid that some of the most inflated prices in this line are likely to be lowered, owing to the sale of speculative lots now being held. But this seems to be the only weak spot in the entire stamp line. Old issues are getting better and better, and I notice that, across the water, everybody is talking Europe. I shouldn't be surprised, however, if the best chances for rises in value lay in the countries which are least known and which have been, up to date, the most unpopular. It is to these that the student-specialists will turn and their discoveries may result in some interesting adjustments of quotations."

"PROSPECTS NEVER BETTER."

Thus declares Mr. Geo. L. Toppan, manager of H. F. Colman, whose opinion will be read with interest:—

"In my opinion, the outlook was never better. In fact, the past year has proved conclusively that there is no regular stamp season, such as used to be the case a few years since. We have had absolutely no falling off in trade during the past year, indeed the so-called dull season (the summer months) has not existed, as our business has been equally as heavy as during the winter months. It is possible, of course, that this is due, in some measure, at least, to the fact that we practically confine ourselves to the stamps of the United States and their so-called 'Colonial possessions.' I am constantly impressed by the fact that good, old United States stamps in fine condition are very much easier to sell than they are to buy, and, when it comes to our colonial possessions, I have found that in several cases where I had laid in a stock which I had concluded to be amply sufficient to last several years, it has been completely exhausted and I am obliged to turn down orders almost daily for lack of the material wherewith to fill them.

"The call for albums and other philatelic supplies has been unusually heavy through the summer and is still keeping up. These facts taken in connection with the very unsettled condition of the stock market, seems to me to point to a greatly increased interest in philately and to be indicative of a most prosperous season ahead of us."

"OUTLOOK MOST ENCOURAGING."

This is the statement of Mr. A. W. Batchelder of the New England Stamp Co. Mr. Batchelder is a keen student upon all matters philatelic and his views are entitled to our careful consideration:—

"In my opinion the outlook for philately from the standpoint of the dealer and the collector alike is most encouraging. Greater interest was displayed last year than for many years. More new adult collectors joined the ranks last year than in any two recent years. The great activity in A. P. A. circles was both a cause and result partially accounting for this. The greatest factor, however, was the work of the National Stamp Committee. This Committee, supported by dealers and collectors all over the U. S., secured the admission into the public prints of a very large number of stamp articles. In previous years the public were occasionally treated to an article on stamps, which, starting with a grain of truth, usually wound up with statements so ridiculous that it injured rather than helped our cause. The articles furnished by the National Stamp Committee not only contained facts, but they were treated so intelligently that they could not fail to interest not only those who were predisposed to read them but also the general reader having no previous interest whatever in stamp collecting. If this work is continued, as I hope it will be, we shall have within a year or two the greatest boom in stamp collecting the world has ever known. I have been a stamp collector and dealer now for forty years, and my interest has not been an intermittent one, but never has the outlook for philately been brighter in my opinion than today."

TWO CHICAGO VIEWS.

As sales superintendent of the A. P. A. Mr. P. M. Wolsieffer has been placed where he could well judge of the recent demand for stamps and conditions governing the market. Says Mr. Wolsieffer:—

"From my view point things are decidedly encouraging.

"I have not been as active in the business for the past two years because so much of my time was taken up with my duties of Sales Supt. of the American Philatelic Assn., but judging from the business done by the Department in the past two months, $1650.00 for July and $2400.00 for August, the stamp business must be booming.

"Also the requests for catalogs of my Auction Sales and new business from my recent advertisements would indicate an unusual amount of activity for this time of the year. I feel quite sure this will be a banner year for stamps."

Another Chicago firm, the Eben S. Martin Co., Inc., writes us as follows through its president, Mr. Eben S. Martin:—"We beg to say that we have had more business than we could properly handle during the summer and we look for a business season this fall that will rival the business done in the early '90s. The unparalleled prosperity of the country we believe has interfered with business men and those employed, from giving much time or attention to stamps or other hobbies."

AN EARLY CATALOG WANTED.

Mr. C. F. Rothfuchs is convinced that an early issue of the Standard Catalog is desideratum of much importance:—

"I have before me a tabulated list of the total sales of stamps for each month from December, 1900, to August, 1907.

STAMPS ON APPROVAL

Prices at less than Scott's Catalogue and ½ commission allowed. Stamp and Coin Cats. 10c each.

Wm. P. Brown, Richmond Hill, N. Y. City

My list and books show that my sales the first six months of this year have been larger than any of the corresponding six months since 1900.

"During July and August of this year I have been kept very busy, and therefore I can see no reason why the coming season of the stamp business should not be a very busy one.

"For something like twenty years I have noticed that many collectors do not buy as readily before the appearance of the new edition of the Standard Catalogue as they do after it has appeared. I suppose on account of not knowing which stamps of their wants (if any) have increased or decreased in catalogue value. And therefore I have always claimed and claim that it would be in the interest of the stamp business to have the new edition of the Standard Catalogue out by the first of September of each year."

SOME ENCOURAGING SIGNS.

Mr. F. W. Reid of Edgewater, N. J., makes the following observations on the present outlook and we will do our part in making his prophecies hold good:—

"Unless all signs fail, we shall at least have a very active, if not an actual 'boom' winter season.

"The continued interest of a large number of collectors during the summer just past, made manifest by their purchases during July and August, has been phenomenal and to my mind, points to a winter of extraordinary activity.

"The unusually large vote polled for A. P. A. officers (a record one I believe), the election of a board of directors composed of leading lights in American philately including such a hustler for secretary as my friend, Dr. Davis, shows conclusively the interest of serious collectors in the National society and augurs well for the future of philately in the U. S.

"Looking ahead, I believe that the new Scott Cat. will show more advances in prices than for several years past. I believe that by next January stamps will be selling at prices closer to Cat. value than in past few years, perhaps, before next summer, conditions will be such, that discounts will be as they were twelve years ago when 10 to 20% was the best one could do on fine U. S. and Br. Colonies and centering was not much of a factor either. That the A. P. A. membership will exceed 1500 by next August and that the WEEKLY will have 25% more subs. than at present and still will not raise adv. rates."

TWO BRIEF OPINIONS.

Mr. Klemann of the Nassau Stamp Co. writes:—"Everything tends to show an advance in the price of old issues in fine condition. Abroad anything in this line has been selling at from 25% to 33⅓% higher than in this country. Formerly European dealers were heavy sellers in the United States, now the situation is reversed.

"We received more and stronger bids for our September 11th sale than for any of our other sales, which indicates that the temporary depression in Wall Street has not affected stamp buyers, and the coming year will be an active one.

"Stamp collecting is strongly on the increase. The good work of the publicity committee is being felt and as stamps are getting scarcer it is inevitable that prices have to advance."

Mr. Stewart, manager of the Toledo Stamp Co., says:—"The outlook for the stamp business looks very promising to me. The summer season has been unusually good. There has been a splendid demand for collections ranging in size from 1,000 to 5,000 var. and there does not seem to be so many collectors selling as usual. Under these considerations we look for a very good season."

SOME AUCTION PRICES.

The office of the WEEKLY has been favored during the past week with a call from Harry B. Mason, of Washington, D. C. Mr. Mason was feeling very much pleased at the results obtained in connection with the fourth auction sale of the Nassau Stamp Co., held Sept. 11. This sale was made up of stamps, the property of Mr. Mason, who quoted us the following prices realized:—

*U. S., 1851, 30c orange,	$105.00
*U. S., $20 State,	27.00
U. S., 6c Proprietary, fair,	25.25

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The marriage of Eben S. Martin, president of the Eben S. Martin Company, and Miss Helen McBean, Chicago, was solemnized on September 19th, in Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin left on a bridal trip to the Thousand Isles. There were a number of romantic attending this happy union and the newspapers did them the fullest justice. The WEEKLY extends its congratulations.

—During the past week the office of the WEEKLY has been favored with a visit from Theodore Siddall of Manila, whose visit to the States has already been referred to. Mr. Siddall came by the way of Siberia and is planning to return within a few weeks probably by a more southern route, possibly via the Mediterranean. We appreciated very much the opportunity of coming in contact with one who has served the WEEKLY and its readers so faithfully in days gone by. He promised that on his return home he would give us the privilege of again hearing from him. It is unneccesary to add that Mr. Siddall specializes in the stamps of the Philippine Islands, and he has a fund of information in regard to these issues that one might well envy.

—Herman Focke, our well known correspondent whose services in connection with our chronicle have been so much appreciated, is taking a two weeks' trip to Mexico.

—Cards are out announcing the wedding of Miss Florence A. Baird and the well known president of the Boston Philatelic Society, Clifton A. Howes, which will take place Monday, October 7, at the Epworth M. E. Church, Cambridge, Mass.

—John W. Heseltine, the president and acting sales mg'r of the Philadelphia Philatelic Society, Branch No. 18, A. P. A., reports that the sales from A. P. A. Circuits sent to the Philadelphia Branch amounted to over $300.00 in the past three months. This is a record well worthy to be put before the philatelic public.—A. F. HENKELS.

—Dr. Henry C. Pope, Birmingham, Alabama, was a welcome visitor to Chicago, recently, where he met several of the philatelists who have known him so long and pleasantly through correspondence.

—The B. P. S. has taken a room in the Kast Bdg. as permanant headquarters.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Edward Howard and Geo. S. Dates, Jr.

—A new Chicago advertiser will be found in our columns this week, C. H. Gabriel, Jr., of Chicago, Ill. Mr. Gabriel is a member of the A. P. A and comes to us with most excellent recommendations. We present him to our readers, with the hope that he will get a goodly share of their patronage.

—Flint Kennicott, a prominent Chicago citizen, known to collectors through his philatelic affiliations, died recently. Mr Kennicott was a florist and all the wholesale flower houses were closed for several hours on the day of the funeral.

—The handsome booklet describing the benefits of membership in the A. P. A. can be had for the asking. If you are in a brown study as to its merits, the booklet study in brown will dispel all doubts.

—John W. Coonan very kindly favors us with clippings from the Fur News and Office Appliances, both dealing with philately. The page sent from the Fur News shows the cuts used in the Burroughs animal story, and makes an attractive appearance. Thus the good work of the National Stamp Committee lives on.

—Paul Mason favors us with a clipping from the Ohio State Journal, giving information of the breaking and entering of the residence of I. L. Beach of Columbus, a collection of postage stamps valued at $300 being among the things taken. Mr. Beach is a leading member of the Columbus Collectors Club and the collection represents years of philatelic interest.

—E. H. Adams, a special correspondent of the New York Sun and other papers, is in Chicago at present. Mr. Adams' stamp stories in the Sun have attracted much favorable attention from collectors.

—Com. W. C. Eaton writes us that he has given up active collecting and intended to resign from all philatelic societies: "As you are the third man who has written me asking me to withdraw my A. P. A. resignation I give in. 'Three times and then out' must give way to 'three times and stay in'."

—At a field day recently held under the joint auspices of the Chicago Philatelic Society and the Chicago Estimators' Club, the base-ball team of the stamp society was victorious in a match over its challengers from the other club.

—Information reaches us of the formation of a United Service Philatelic Society (U. S. P. S. in honor of the U. S. watermark) among the officers of the army, navy, marine corps, revenue cutter and marine hospital service. Lieut. Fred V. D. Chamberlain is actively connected with the new society.

—Congratulations to the Revenue Society. A. F. Henkels has been prevailed upon to accept the secretaryship. Surely under his administration the society is bound to prosper.

—Ben Hilbert, Jr., writes us that his recent advt. of La. law stamps was a tremendous puller. He has practically everything sold out of stock.

EDITORIAL.

Revival Time—This is the time of year when the album after having been placed safely away for months is brought out of retirement; in other words, the stamp season has opened. However, it is not to be supposed that there is any formal opening of the stamp season according to absolute rule and regulation, or that it begins to tick away as a clock does that has been wound up, after having run down. Only in a comparative sense should the season opening idea be regarded. After an enforced period of apathy on the part of collectors, conditions now invite philatelic attention. As we have said before, the time of the opening of the season is not fixed but is dependent on the weather to some degree; heat carries with physical objections to stamp handling, but the beginning of the last quarter of the calendar year is a favorable time for the renewal of philatelic activity. When the weather is cool enough to make it comfortable in-doors, the stamp album is likely to have a prominent place on the table in the philatelic home.

Trade Winds Blow—The beginning of the stamp season means that business becomes vitalized and that dealers start to vie with one another for the trade of collectors, chiefly through the columns of the philatelic papers. The collector will give close scrutiny to advertisements and bestow his patronage according to his inclination. As a buyer, the collector is in a more comfortable position than ever before as he may at his convenience choose his stamps on any comparison or prices or analysis of values that may appeal to him. Each year dealers are more anxious to favor stamp buyers who find relations continually improving from their viewpoint. Every facility is offered collectors who buy stamps and the growth of the collection is to be maintained under more pleasant conditions than ever. There was a time in the past when it was the desire of the collector to find stamp dealers from whom to buy stamps; the circumstances are now reversed and the dealers are the ones who are keen to find the stamp buyers.

Pleasant Prospects—The season that we are now hailing affords every indication that it will prove to me one of the best philatelic feeling. There is every warrant for the assertion that stamp ardor burns brightly throughout this country, or, for that matter, the world. There is a constantly broadening spirit in a collecting sense that has a tendency to make philatelic existence the more agreeable. Personal interests in the hobby seem to have been united for the common good and the motives of those collectors who exercise an individuality, if not eccentricity, in collecting method are not impugned. There is every disposition to place a fair construction on the preferences of philatelists who collect on unusual lines and the friendliness that prevails in all the departments of philately makes all philatelic life the more enjoyable.

Extend a Welcome—With the new season, new collectors make their entry into the philatelic circle and the duty of all those who are familiar with the hobby is to welcome heartily the strangers in the fold. The natural questions that are asked must be given courteous attention and all assistance must be extended those whose tread has not yet become firm. It is incumbent upon the philatelic papers, the dealers and the collectors to keep their eyes on beginners so as to be alert to give their counsel and information at the first indication of desire for instruction or advice. It is true that the beginner is often of a character sturdy enough to take care of himself whatever his situation in philately may be, but, nevertheless, he is impressed by the evidences of good-will toward him. Philately is founded on sentiment largely and the persons who are most receptive of the philatelic idea are likely to be of delicate susceptibilities; these must not be wounded if entire satisfaction is to be cultivated. It is quite as important to keep collectors within the ranks as it is to make converts. Each philatelist should realize that individually he is a positive force for philatelic good by doing what he can, when opportunity offers, by word or act to help the tyro or interest the outsider.

A Fair Field—One commendable trait that the followers of philately, dealers and collectors alike, possess, is embodied in their eagerness to explain all about the hobby, not alone in its artistic sense, but also, as to its material or dollar side. There is no understanding among dealers to keep back, for instance, knowledge of values, even though it might not be considered good policy from a selfish view-point to give them publicity. They are not averse to giving circulation to information that in other lines of similar kind would be regarded as trade secrets. Collectors do not withhold knowledge that if suppressed might be reduced to advantage to them, occasionally. This broadmindedness and fairness bespeak the liberal tendencies of philatelists generally and thinking outsiders who have reason to inquire into philatelic conditions often comment with surprise upon the candor of philatelists.

Not a Sun-Flower Anyway—William Herzstock, Chicago, who expresses himself as being interested in the discussion on the subject of the chrysanthemum and sun emblems on the Japanese stamps, writes: "William Elliott Griffis, D. D., an educator and a student who has devoted attention to Japan, says: 'Instead of the two swords of the Samurai crossed over the Tycoon's spear with the trefoil of Iyeyasu, who hoped to keep his system of inclusion and exclusion intact and iron-banded forever, the national emblems are the imperial chrysanthemum in full bloom and the risen sun in his strength.'" This statement is confirmatory of the explanation given by Mr. Howes in the issue of two week's ago.

Postmarks—We remember having read one of the claims advanced in favor of the collecting of postmarks that they were used long before the advent of postage stamps and that in consequence, some of the markings were not lacking in significance. This argument is conceded and many collectors will sorrowfully avouch that they have been disappointed in "finds" of covers used before the era of stamps, that are supplied with postmarks. In many instances, the postmark has a decided interest for the collector, although primarily it is the stamp that he recognizes; he necessarily is a student of postmarks to some extent and does not profess to regard them lightly. A newspaper item making the rounds says that the postmark was originated in Great Britain so early as 1660. In the pioneer postmarks only the month and day were indicated. In this connection, it might be added that Blood's Despatch, Philadelphia, has the credit of first having indicated the hour of the day on the postmark, in the early 40's.

Chemical Paper—A correspondent who was interested in the question of the possibility of disintegration of the chalk paper varieties, British colonies, through the action of the chemicals employed in surfacing the paper has pursued the subject somewhat further. He says that there is a disappearing paper, which is manufactured by being steeped in sulphuric acid, dried and glazed, the acid being partly neutralized by ammonia vapor. It is doubtful whether such a paper could be put to practical use in stamp making. The authorities denied that the chalk paper process would crumble the paper in course of time; and this distinctive paper probably marks the limit of protective measure for years to come.

—Advertisers and society secretaries must have their copy reach Boston Saturday, to insure its insertion the following week. This is especially true of society matter as page eight is in the first form made up.

NEW ENVELOPES MADE IN DAYTON, O.

Numerous complaints have been made at the failure of the Mercantile Corporation to meet government requisitions for the new envelopes. The N. Y. press has been especially sharp in its criticisms but the Third Asst. P. M. Gen. defends the contractors claiming that with the difficulties they have had to contend with excellent progress is being made.

A correspondent submitting an extended clipping from the Worcester Telegram dealing with this matter calls attention to the following paragraph:—

The new contractors do not know the meaning of the word failure and have plenty of money to back up their ideas, among others of which in regard to the stamped envelope trade, is the putting of that article on the market as a staple article to be carried by drummers and have the country thoroughly canvassed for the sale of them, an idea that meets with the favor of the postmaster general, who thinks people can be educated to the idea of buying stamped envelopes as well as buying the envelopes and stamps separate as they do now.

This is a novel proposition surely and some day side lines of United States envelopes may be seen in drummers' trunks along side of calico and crinoline.

MORE REVENUE BARGAINS.

The "busy season" for stamp dealers will soon be with us, also the 1908 Scott Cat. showing many advances in prices. On June 29 I began a series of U. S. ads which have appeared every week to date, this being the last. During that period I have sold over $800.00 net of U. S., my object being to reduce my U. S. stock gathered together during 20 years dealing in this country and abroad, as I find I cannot afford to keep up a stock of both U. S. and Australians (my specialty). Many items are sold out, but will continue to fill orders for any remaining. Look up the ads and send in your order, you will not get such a chance again. Send list of more than remittance in case any sold out. Many orders for 2 to 10 of a kind have come from dealers at adv. prices. Money back for anything.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PHILATELIC LITERATURE.

Read at the Denver Convention of the American Philatelic Association.

ERNEST R. ALDRICH, Chairman of Com.

The Committee on Philatelic Literature herewith submits its ninth annual report relative to publications of a philatelic nature appearing during the past year.

The first attempt at a philatelic "Poole" made its appearance shortly after our last convention in "The Philatelic Index" by Wm. A. R. Jex-Long. Fourteen different English magazines are indexed, in all one hundred and twenty-two volumes. The work contains VII, 114 pages, is bound in blue cloth and published by Douglas & Co., 10 Waterloo St., Glasgow, Scotland, and sold for $1.00 per copy. Under the title Philatelic Literature we find the following references:

"Notes upon United States and Confederate Stamps and Their Varieties," by Geo. L. Toppan, is the best guide to the different types and minor varieties of our own country ever published and it is especially fortunate that the low price places it within the reach of all. 120 illustrations appear in its 27 pages. Scott Stamp & Coin Co., New York City. Price 10 cents.

"German-Swedish, English-Swedish and French-Swedish Philatelic Dictionary" is by Hilmer Djurling and L. Harald Kjellstedt. Published by Swedish Philatelic Society and can be had for 27 cents of Mr. Kjellstedt at Scranton, Pa.

"Priced Catalogue of Railroad Letter Stamps of Scotland and Ireland," by H. L'Estrange Ewen, contains 90 pages and can be had of its compiler at 32 Palace Square, Norwood, London, S. E., England, for 2sh 6d (62 cents).

"Priced Catalogue of Railway Newspaper and Parcel Stamps of the United Kingdom" is by the same hand and costs the same and contains 100 pages.

"Countries and Stamps," by Harriet E. Colville, is being published in parts at 2½d (5 cents) by Chas. J. Endle & Co., Boscombe, Bournemouth, England, and when completed can be had bound in cloth for 3sh (75 cents) net.

"Catalogue Illustre des Timbres Fiscaux de Grande Britange, Ireland and Ecosse" is a valuable work on the revenue stamps of the United Kingdom. 148 pages. Published at 2fr 50c (50 cents) by Gilbert & Koehler, 51 Rue Le Peletier, Paris.

"Orignale und Neudrucke von Helgoland" is a valuable monograph on this country published by Arthur Wilbern, Neuer Steinweg 73, Hamburg, at 1 60M (40 cents) postpaid.

A valuable little work for collectors of philatelic literature which has been issued for some time but which has failed to be noted in these reports is "Jones' Check List of Philatelic Journals of the British Colonies," 15 pages. Can be had of the publisher, E. B. Jones, Sioux City, Ia., for fifteen cents.

The Springfield (Mass.) Stamp Club has issued a neat little pamphlet entitled "Philatelic Side Lines," containing a number of valuable reference lists, some of which can be found nowhere else and the most of the others in no readily obtained work. 24 pages. Can be had of R. C. Monroe, 40 Mass. Ave., Springfield, Mass. Price 15 cents.

For the collector of philatelic literature who can read German, a valuable monograph upon the subject by Victor Suppantschitsch, entitled "Die Entstehung und Entwickelung der Philatelistischen Literatur in der Zweiten Halfte des XIX Jahrhunderts." It contains 63 pages of interesting reading on this subject and though published several years ago is yet obtainable from Ernest Platz, Dresden A. Rabenerstrasse 18, II, for 2.50 Marks. The edition is limited to 150 numbered copies.

Early this year a Washington publishing firm announced that they had in preparation the following work: "Memoirs: With Special Reference to Secession and the Civil War. By John H. Reagan, LL. D. Edited by Walter Flavius McCaleb, Ph. D., Fellow in History in the University of Chicago. With introduction by George P. Garrison, Ph. D., Professor of History in the University of Texas." These recollections of the postmaster general of the Confederacy could hardly fail to be of considerable interest to stamp collectors. The price was announced as $3.00.

In a recent journal a work published in 1905 but not before noted in American publications is reviewed. It is "Estudas de la Filatelia de Chili" and its author Rafael Aguirre Mercado of Coquimbo, Chili. The review states it consists of 66 pages replete with statistical information but no price is stated.

"How to Collect the Stamps of Holland and the Colonies" is the title of a work by Naret Koning, the first part—The Stamps of Holland—of which has appeared. It is published by Koning's Philatelistische Boekhandel, Amsterdam.

As usual the Annual Report of the Post-office Department contains considerable matter of interest to the stamp collector, 379 pages, and can be secured through request to your Congressman.

"Catalogue Universal des Timbres de XXe Siecle" is a list of stamps issued from Jan. 1, 1901, to October, 1906. 104 pages. Th. Lemaire, 16 Avenue de l'Opera, Paris. Price 50fr (10 cents).

From Gebrüder Senf, Augustus Platz, Leipsic, German, comes the second edition of "Illustrierter Spezial-Katalog der deutschen Kolonialmarken." Pages VIII, 47, with 197 illustrations. Price net 1 mark. Arranged upon somewhat similar lines is a 32 page list from L. Barnard Rue de Clignancourt 18 Paris "Franzosischen Kolonien Postantern und Frankreich. Price 12 cents.

Collectors of Italian stamps will want the "Catalogue Illustre des Timbres-Poste d'Italie et des Anciens Duches Italiens," issued by Alberto Bolufu, Via Roma 31, Turin, Italy.

In December the J. M. Bartels Co., Boston, Mass., issued a neat little "Check List of the Canal Stamps." "A Catalog of the Stamps of Australia, New Zealand and South Sea Islands," is the title of a 150 page little work issued by Fred Hagen, Ltd., 182 Pitt St., Sydney, N. S. W. Price postpaid 12 cents.

Yaremdji et Tschakidji, 40-41 Tidjaret Han, Constantinople, issued an 80 page list of Turkish and oriental stamps.

Jose Monge, 51 Callede Escudillers, Barcelona, issued a 76 page list of Spanish and Colonials. It is, I understand, sent for the asking.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—E. W. Murray sends us a specimen of the new 2c envelope, which is not only printed in a much lighter color than the earlier and more common printings, but is entitled to rank as a distinct variety, from the fact that there is a white line running from the centre of the front of the bust to the inner oval line, making a perfect connection. Regarding this and other varieties, Mr. Murray writes: "I am enclosing for your inspection a new type of the present issue of envelopes. Note the line running from lower end of bust to inside oval line. This is a new one on me. I have five copies from the same place, and all show this line. I now have four types of the new die. C. E. Jenney of California sends me a copy in which the end line at bottom of bust at the left shows same downward projection that bottom line at right shows, where the hair comes below the bust line. Have handled many hundred envelopes but have not seen any from any point except California. It looks as if we were to have as large a variety of new types as we had in the '03 issue. I also note that the 'big head' and linotype card settings, with all lines evened up at their left are scarce."

AUSTRALIA.—The Australian Philatelist says that the postage due stamps without initials at the foot are now used in New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania and Western Australia, but that Victoria still uses its own type.

BRAZIL.—We have omitted to mention the fact that while the portrait is the same, "Affonso Penna," on all the new official stamps, the frames are different for each value, thus avoiding a monotonous appearance, except in color.

BRITISH CENTRAL AFRICA.—The 1sh has appeared on chalky multiple paper, according to Le Timbre-Poste.

CANADA.—Referring to the statement recently reprinted from Le Journal des Philatelistes regarding the suppression of the postage due stamps, and the intended burning of the remainders, Henri R. Landry informs us that he has been officially informed by the officials of the Post Office Department, Postage Stamps Branch, that such a step has never been thought of. On the contrary, the Due stamps have given full satisfaction since their inauguration, a year ago, July 1.

CYPRUS.—Gibbons' Weekly chronicles the 30pa mauve and green on multiple paper.

JAMAICA.—The London Philatelist chronicles the 5d arms, on multiple paper, in black and orange instead of black and yellow.

JAPAN.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. and H. Wesley Legg have both shown us the new value in the current Japanese set, the 6 sen appearing for the first time since 1876. The design is Scott's Type A27. The color is very deep and rich, and the perforation is 12.

Adhesive.

6s violet brown.

MARIANNA ISLANDS.—J. M. Bartels writes: "A very interesting issue of these islands has, by some strange oversight, entirely escaped the chroniclers of the philatelic press. Several denominations of the 1898 Philippines issue during 1899 were surcharged with rubber stamp 'MARIANAS ESPANOLES' in violet ink, the surcharge being placed vertically in an octagonal single lined frame. The letters are small capitals, block type, and the surcharge is in two lines. The necessity of this surcharge is plainly evident. When the Philippines were acquired by the United States, all Spanish issues became obsolete. At that time the only stamps in use in the Marianna Islands were the regular Philippine stamps. For almost a year the islands remained in the possession of Spain before they became a German colony. As the stamps of the Philippines were obsolete and demonetized the Marianna Islands were left in a peculiar position.

"Communication with the home country was very infrequent, and it naturally took many months to secure new supplies. We therefore find that this surcharged issue was in use possibly about a year until the surcharged German stamps were employed. I have seen copies of the 2, 3, 5, 6 and 8c stamps of the Philippines 1898 issue which were thus surcharged used on mail to Manila. I have also seen the cover with the full cancellation. This is a large oval with the coat of arms in the centre, at bottom 'YSLAS MARIANAS,' and at top 'GOBIERNO P. M.' The date on back of the letter was the ordinary cancellation of the Manila military station, and dated December 11, '99. There is a prospect of getting the official decree concerning this issue. I understand that one is to be had in Manila."

NEW ZEALAND.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., and the North Shore Stamp Co. have shown us the 1d postage due stamp, printed in green and carmine, on paper watermarked Star and NZ, and perforated 14.

Gibbons' Monthly chronicles the 1½d stamp, perf. 14, and says that a new design has been prepared for this value, which will come into use shortly.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us the 1d and 2d values on paper watermarked with the Victorian type of Crown A. The 1d is in used form.

PANAMA.—Gerald D. Bliss calls our attention to what appears to be a new shade of paper, and sends a used copy of the 2c Panama, and an unused stamp of the same denomination surcharged "Canal Zone" to illustrate the point. If the color of the stamp were of a different shade, it might be deemed due to an imperfectly cleaned plate, but how so rich a red could produce so delicate a pink shade is difficult to understand.

ST. LUCIA.—The ½d stamp has been seen in one color.

Adhesive.

½d green.

SALVADOR.—We find we were in error in describing as a "wheel" the overprint by which the face of Ex-Pres. Escalon, on the new Salvadorean provisionals was obliterated. It is "Shield and Anchor with Rays," the type being that overprinted on Scott's Nos. 270 et seq. Hermann Focke has now shown us the 1c with face obliterated, but with value unchanged, while the Ararat Stamp Co. has shown us the 5c ultramarine and black, with the same overprints as the 5c steel blue noted last week. Mr. Focke says, in closing: "I had expected this would happen a long time ago, since there was a change of presidents in March last, and was rather surprised that they continued to use stamps, with effigy of Ex-Pres. Escalon. I suppose they will keep us busy from now on with their surcharges."

Provisional Adhesive.

With face obliterated.
1c on 5c ultramarine and black.
1c greenish blue and black.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the 9d, long form, with large "Postage," on paper watermarked Crown A. As the watermarks are arranged for smaller stamps nearly two full watermarks appear on each stamp.

TASMANIA.—We have been shown the 1sh rose and green on paper watermarked Crown A, and perforated 12½, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—J. W. Haseltine of Philadelphia has on exhibition at his store a copy of the Philadelphia postmasters' stamp, Scott No. 877, printed in red on the cover of a medical magazine issued in the early fifties. In this shape it is unique and particularly interesting on account of its being such a very fine impression. This calls to mind the fact that the same gentleman had about two years ago a copy of the same surcharged on the 1c regular issue of 1851. Copies were known printed on the margins of sheets of the regular issue but this is the only one that has turned up in the above mentioned form. This rarity now rests in the collection of Count Ferrari of Paris.—A. F. HENKELS.

—The competitive exhibition to be held in connection with the 500th meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, October 17th, will be divided so as to include two main classes, general and special collections. All members of the society may compete for the prizes in the shape of medals.

—Hattie R. Stratton contributes a short article to the Southern Farm Journal, containing several hints to school teachers as to methods of interesting scholars in postage stamps. It is practical and will no doubt bear good fruit. Miss Stratton is deserving of the thanks of her A. P. A. associates for the faithful manner in which she presents philately to the public.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PHILATELIC LITERATURE.

H. F. Colman, Washington, D. C., has issued his 1907 list of U. S. and U. S. Colonial Stamps which contains a valuable check list of Canal Zone stamps. 44 pages. Gratis.

The Bogert & Durbin Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., has sent forth a 148 page price list; free.

Carl Willadt & Co., Pforzheim, Germany, have also issued a large free price list of 168 pages.

J. M. Bartels Co., Boston, Mass., issues a 48 page list of U. S. and Colonials gratis.

The annual work of our own society, "The American Philatelist," is Vol. XX. It contains a half tone of the convention group and another plate. 126 pages. Can be had by non-members of the Secretary for 25 cents.

The Metropolitan Philatelic Association has issued their Second Year Book. 20 pages. Whether non-members can obtain copies or not I do not know but the secretary, F. A. Mueller, Pleasanton, Nebr., will undoubtedly impart this information to any one interested.

"Vertrauliche Mittheilungen, No. 29," the annual of the International Philatelisten Verein of Dresden, Germany, was issued on Jan. 15. Contains nought but official matter including a list of 1829 members. 140 pages. Whether non-members can obtain copies or not I cannot say but those interested can address Ernst Plotz, Rabenerstrasse 18, II, Dresden A, Germany.

The Swedish National Society have also issued a year book but not having seen a copy I can give no particulars, while at least three English Societies, the Leeds, Junior Philatelic and Herts—have issued pamphlets for their members.

The Colorado branch of the American Philatelic Association in May issued an 8 page illustrated program for our annual meet which was circulated gratis.

Our fellow member, L. Harald Kjellstedt, announces that the Swedish Society have in press a work by himself entitled "Philately as a Pleasure and a Study." Also in preparation and ready for the press the second part of Catalog of the Swedish Postal issues—being on Entires. Also that after its serial publication in the Svensk Filatelisk Tidsskrift, Rudolph Krasemann's "Bibliography of the most important special literature pertaining to the postal issues of different countries," will be issued in book form.

The Handbücher für Philatelistische Aufklaring is announced for early publication by P. Ohrt, Rethelstrasse, 6 Dusseldorf. It will be issued in parts and the subscription for the work is 4M ($1.00) net.

In periodicals the most notable change of the year was the suspension of the second series of the American Journal of Philately with the December, 1906, number, thus completing its eighteenth volume.

In January the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. started a small eight-page monthly circular which they send for the postage—12 cents per annum.

The Columbus Philatelist absorbed the Chicago Stamp News last fall, while a new journal, the official organ of the C. P. S., the Chicago Collectors' Monthly appeared in January.

The Inland Philatelist appeared in August from Renville, Minn., but I have seen no later numbers. From Abbeville, S. C., a single number of the Carolina Philatelist appeared. In June, the Quaint Old Collector appeared at Belvedere, Ill., which promises to be partially philatelic. Annual subscription 50 cents. Mekeel's News and Trade Circular, St. Louis, has issued a couple of numbers. In each a number of out of print philatelic works are offered. In March the Philocartist News and Camera Craft of Oklahoma City, of which about a third of its space was devoted to stamps, was consolidated with the Columbus Philatelist. One number of the Perforator which was supposed to have suspended appeared in February but no subsequent number has been seen. Fads and Hobbies appeared from 4014 Michigan Ave., Chicago, 25 cents per year, but I have seen no late number. From Milwaukee in January appeared the Stamp and Post Card Collector, 3406 Linden Ave., subscription 25 cents. The Post Card Magazine, Russellville, Ky., is now conducting a stamp department (25 cents per year), as is also Randall's Magazine, Rochester, N. Y. (50 cents per year). In April No. 1 of Philatelic Clipping appeared at Syracuse, N. Y., 900 Teall Ave. Subscription 25 cents per year, two years 40 cents. I have seen but one number. A new weekly has just appeared from Smithfield, Pa., Redfield's Stamp Weekly, 50 cents per year. Under the able editorship of L. G. Quackenbush its future seems assured.

The daily newspapers have contained much of interest to collectors the past year. The series prepared by Dwight Burroughs under the auspices of the National Stamp Committee have received especially large circulation, being published in prominent papers in nearly every state in the union.

Our fellow member, Miss Margaret B. Reynolds, has contributed an interesting stamp column regularly to the Sunday Milwaukee Free Press.

THE POET'S CORNER.

MINIATURES.

Address replies care of the WEEKLY.

For the next few weeks, there will appear
In the paper somewhere, if not just here,
Some "Miniatures" of men whose fame
Is known to many. Guess the name!

And if correctly you should guess,
And the "POET'S CORNER" you address,
An unused stamp to you will be sent
Which catalogues twenty-five times one cent!
But to get the stamp and be out of debt
Enclose five cents, please don't forget.

14.

There is a man who comes to town,
He takes the Portland steamer down;
After an explorer famed
I think this man perhaps is named.

15.

And last, before you comes the man,
Who has mystified you all he can;
Known as "The Poet!"
Forgive him if you think him rude
In his attempts to earn his food,
He does not know it!

A Poet is thought to have long hair
But his is short—the little there—
And there will not be any long!
So perhaps "The Poet" is a misnomer
He's only a dreamer and a roamer
Along the lanes of song!

Regular meetings 2rd Monday at Oppenheimer's Hall, 514 9th St., N. W.

The 21st regular meeting was held September 9th, 1907. Many of the members were out of town and therefore the attendance was not very large. William Sahn was elected to membership and regular routine business transacted. The rest of the evening was spent in members exchanging stamps and an auction sale comprising 50 lots.

F. R. Cornwall, St. Louis, Mo., a member of the Board of Directors of the A. P. A., was a visitor. P. H. Ward, Jr., 1756 Penna. Ave., N. W., chairman Program Committee, requests each member to forward to him at once one or more stamps cataloguing not less than 25c each for use in contests to be arranged for future meetings.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. M. SCHORMAN, Exch Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The sixty-sixth regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, September 17th, 1907, at the usual time and place, Vice President Humes presiding and eight members present and two visitors, I. Eckhart of Anderson, Texas, and his brother of St. Louis. Committee on Emblem, through its chairman, Mr. Long, reported progress.

Mr. Hopkins, chairman of the evening's Entertainment Committee, being absent, this committee's contest, requiring the naming of twenty countries on whose stamps certain inscriptions are found, was conducted by the Secretary. Many wonderful replies were submitted, showing a depth of imagination amongst our members not dreamed of before. The difficulty of the contest may be understood when it is told that the highest percentage was 25, in other words five correct answers out of a possible twenty—the lowest marking is better unmentioned. Messrs. Eckhart and Wood, having equal percentages, divided the prizes.

At Mr. Diamant's suggestion those present were asked to write in ten short minutes the names of as many stamp issuing countries, initial letter "C" as possible, Mr. Myers winning first honors. Also at this same gentleman's invitation members endeavored to list the dates of the various issues of U. S. postage adhesives; the result of this contest is still in doubt, the judge being unequal to the task of grading the varied replies offhand and promising the decision at next meeting.

Next "Installment Plan Entertainment Committee," Messrs. Diamant (chairman), Baer and Myers. The auction of an enormous hat box full to the brim with stamps (kindly donated by Dr. Baer) was furiously spirited and netted a comfortable sum for the treasury. Membership cards were distributed as promised. There are a few more still in the hands of the Secretary for distribution at next meeting to those present, not having already been supplied. Owing to conflicting date with the annual Veiled Prophet celebration the next meeting has been postponed until Friday, October 4th. All members and visitors will be welcome. Rooms 803-805 Wright Bldg. Be there, a well spent evening is assured.

CHICAGO BRANCH NO. 1.

The 253rd regular monthly meeting of Chicago Branch No. 1, American Philatelic Association, was held in the club-room of the Chicago Philatelic Society on the evening of Sept. 11th.

Mr. Severn, the outgoing President, called the meeting to order with twelve members present. With a few appropriate remarks Mr. Severn closed his term as President of the Branch and Iver R. Johnson, the newly elected President, then took the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. Mr. Rosenthal, chairman of the Campaign Committee, rendered a final report and the committee was discharged with a hearty vote of thanks.

Mr. Wolsieffer spoke about a recent newspaper article, stating that there was a shortage of current 1c stamps at the Baltimore Post Office owing to the post card craze, and also exhibited several interesting split provisionals and curiosities. Mr. Wolsieffer's remarks were supplemented by Messrs. Hosmer, Severn and Johnson, who also related experiences about United States split provisionals and freaks.

It was decided to have discussions or debates pertaining to philatelic subjects as the entertainment feature of our meetings and numerous subjects were proposed for this and subsequent meetings.

The topic of discussion at this meeting was "What Constitutes a True Philatelist?" and the concensus of opinion was that the definition: "One who collects for the pleasurable information obtained from stamps without thought of financial consideration," is practically perfect.

At the next meeting there will be a debate, "Should the current issue 1c and 2c imperforate stamps be considered major or minor varieties?"

Upon proper motion being made, meeting was declared adjourned.

Next meeting October 9th.

LEONARD MICHAEL, Sec.

HAVE YOU ANY DUPLICATES?

The recruiting committee suggests that if you have any to dispose of, the sales dept. of the A. P. A. is just the place to patronize. Send in your application and then get into touch with Mr. Parrish at once.

The machinery is getting well oiled and ere many weeks have passed we shall be in the swing of a great campaign. Our committee must hustle and justify the wisdom of its appointment. No one or two should do all the work. Watch out on the references. We want members but they must be worthy of membership.

H. B. Phillips sent the Sec. four applications all in a batch. This is going some! Mr. Phillips is a candidate for the "roll of honor" surely, his "four applications guaranteed" coming early in the day. All members securing ten new applications will have weekly mention on the roll of honor. Who will be first?

Two new names for "four applications guaranteed" will be noted this week: J. M. Bartels of Boston and Chas. E. Fisher, Taunton, Mass. We shall be pleased to add your name. Send for handsome booklet giving a fine presentation of association benefits. An electro of our association seal will be loaned any member wishing to use the same on stationery or association advertising.

From the above it will be seen that the wires are beginning to sizzle. If any members on the committee are unable to keep step—an honorable retreat is possible. It's not enough to mark time.

At the meeting of the Society held on the 17th instant, it was voted to rent Room 506 Kast Building, Boston, for permanent club room, and $100.00 was placed at the disposal of the Governing Board to purchase necessary furnishings.

The Board desires to draw on this fund as little as possible, and, therefore, urges the members to make donations of stamps to be sold at auction for the purpose of raising a "furnishing fund," and avoid drawing on the treasury of the Society.

Members who have no suitable stamps to donate are assured that cash will be cheerfully accepted in place of stamps.

Members who have appropriate furniture or furnishings they desire to present to the Society are requested to communicate with the Secretary.

The 5th special meeting was called to order by President Nast at 8.15 P. M., Sept. 17th, 1907. Report of retiring secretary read and accepted by the club. The report was very flattering, and the club can be well pleased with the very efficient work done by him.

The treasurer's report read in detail, examined by the members and pronounced correct and accepted. Balance on hand, $3.50.

The report of the sales manager, not being itemized or detailed, it was deemed expedient that a committee be appointed to obtain proper report, and make a report of the same to the club later. Adjourned at 9.30 P. M.

September 10th, 1907.

The 22nd regular meeting was called to order at 8.45, with President Nast in the chair. 16 members answered to the roll-call. One visitor present. The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. Communications were read, received from L. C. Hassler, Louisville, Ky., and Chicago Branch No. 1 of Chicago, Ill., both of which were of congratulatory nature and appreciative of the Club's efforts in entertaining the 22d Annual Convention, A. P. A.

A bill of $5.01 for Secretary's supplies was ordered paid. H. A. Davis tendered his resignation as secretary of the Club, which was accepted with regrets, and a resolution of thanks for efficient work tendered him.

E. R. Vanderhoof was elected to fill the vacancy. The Arrangement Committee of A. P. A. convention made its final report and were discharged with thanks.

A short auction session was held. Among the lots was a 30c 1869 U. S. which was found in a ten pound lot purchased of a Boston dealer, to be distributed by the daily papers.

Meeting adjourned 10.45 to meet on the evening of the 17th for the purpose of receiving the Semi-Annual Reports of Officers, which on account of Convention affairs had been postponed.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

PHILATELIST.

By H. B. PHILLIPS.

In the issue of the WEEKLY of Aug. 31st, 1907, I note an article treating of the origin of the word "Philately," in which the writer reaches the conclusion that all writers have, that have come under my observation, that it is derived from two Greek words meaning "loving or fond of" and "tax." I have reached other conclusions as to the origin of this term and for the benefit of the class who term themselves philatelists, will give a brief account, which will I hope serve to shed some additional light upon the mooted question.

There was founded in the year 1773, at Paris, a society the members of which termed themselves "Philalethes or Seekers of Truth." This Society was founded by Savalette de Langes, keeper of the Royal Treasury, within the Masonic Lodge of Amis Reunis as a side degree in Masonry. The word literally means "Friends of Truth" but in their work the highest degree was termed "Philalethes or Searcher after Truth," and from the designation of this degree they became known as "Philalethes or Seekers of Truth."

This Society had an eventful existence, and from the high rank and celebrity of many of its members became well known to the rank and file of intellectual life in Paris a century ago and less.

When the business of searching for postal tax stamps began and the need of a new word to designate those who indulged in the pastime was felt, what more natural to the citizen of Paris who first used the word "Philatelist" to call on his memory for the elements with which to compose it.

Remembering the famous society of "Philalethes" as searchers after Truth, by a slight variation he had it exact, "Philatelist" a Searcher after that which taxes, in other words a Stamp Collector. I do not think there is any reasonable doubt but the word is thus derived, and in this connection a short account of the Society or Rite of Philalethes may be of interest.

As stated, it was founded in 1773 by Savalette de Langes, some of his associates were: Vicomte de Tavannes; Count de Gebelin; M. de Sainte-Jamos and the Prince of Hesse.

The rite, which was principally founded on the System of Martinism, did not confine itself to any particular mode of instruction, but in its reunions, called "Convents," the members devoted themselves to the study of all kinds of knowledge that were connected with the occult sciences, and thus they welcomed to their association all who had made themselves remarkable by the novelty or singularity of their opinions.

It was divided into 12 classes or chambers of instruction, the names of these degrees, or classes were

(1) Apprentices,
(2) Fellowcrafts,
(3) Master,
(4) Elect,
(5) Scottish Master,
(6) Knight of the East,
(7) Rose Croix,
(8) Knight of the Temple,
(9) Unknown Philosopher,
(10) Sublime Philosopher,
(11) Initiate,
(12) Philalethes or Searcher after Truth.

The first 6 degrees were termed petty, and the last 6 high Masonry. The rite grew, and in 1782 it counted 20 lodges; in 1785 it attempted a radical reform in Masonry, and for this purpose invited the most distinguished Masons of all countries to a congress at Paris. The project failed and Savallete de Lange, its promoter, dying in 1788 the rite of which he was the moving spirit, passed its zenith, and when the period of the Revolution was passed it was little more than a memory, it counted among its members such names as Cagliostro, Mesmer and Saint Martin.

During the time of its active life it collected a library famous for its completeness in all books appertaining to the advanced thought of that age, this library was in a large part removed to Scotland during the time of the revolution and there passed out of common knowledge. It would be a labor of love for some good Philatelist who at the same time belongs to the Craft of Masonry, to make search among the old libraries of Scotland for some of these famous books.

To those who are interested a further reference to this rite may be found in Vol. 3 of Gould's History of Freemasonry. The writer had this history before the San Francisco fire but it is now only a memory, and these notes are from memory as well, he hopes they may now get into type before they are entirely forgotten. Some of these books if found would give in a very complete way, the reason of taking the name "Philalethes," and its derivation and significance, which at the same time would be a valuable addition to the literature of Philately.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Utica Press speaks in a very flattering manner of an address recently delivered by John B. Howe of Syracuse before the Utica Chamber of Commerce. The Press says among other things: "Mr. Howe is properly regarded as one of the ablest newspaper men in the state. He is well informed on general as well as current topics and is a thoughtful and forceful writer." Mr. Howe is the editor of the Syracuse Herald and has contributed several mss. to the WEEKLY, his defense of the Jamestown stamps as a non-speculative issue being his most recent philatelic production.

—We are indebted to J. D. Cox of Upper Steinacke, N. S., for an official circular, viz.: "Revised Circular re Special Delivery Service." From it we note that similarly to our own recent regulation, a special delivery letter can now be mailed from any P. O. in Canada to some twenty-five cities with ordinary stamps provided the words "Special Delivery" are written on the envelope.

—H. Cormack has favored us with two price lists of Central and South American stamps, in which countries he specializes.

—Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., favors us with a clipping from the New York Sun of Sept. 29 dealing with the "Secret Marks on Stamps." The article is a very interesting one, in keeping with the other articles from the pen of Mr. Adams, and is well worthy of a place in the stamp collector's scrapbook.

—Chas. Steigerwalt of Lancaster, Pa., paid a flying visit to Philadelphia on the 11th inst. Whilst not an avowed philatelist he has in his possession some very good things both in the postage and revenue lines. It was through his efforts that one of the finest known copies of the Caterson, Brotz & Co. Playing Card stamps was brought to light some few years ago.—A. F. HENKELS.

—We have received from the J. M. Bartels Co. catalogues of their 39th and 40th sales. The 39th, to be held in Boston, October 24-25, comprises the remainder of the collection of the late W. F. Lambert. The 40th sale, to be held in N. Y., Nov. 12-13, lists a fine lot of unused British Colonials, the property of F. C. Foster of Boston. A few Lambert numbers are also included.

—J. Leiblinger very kindly favors us with three books of his authorship, dealing with matters pharmaceutical. One of the books is illustrated with photographs, the work of the author.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from L. Lazarus, Hugo Kuenstler (2), Jas. M. Porter, Julian Park and J. A. Steinmetz.

—Warren H. Colson favors us with his desk calendar for October, a very convenient office accessory. The subject for illustration is the 10p purple brown on wove paper, Finland error.

—Henry Chapman of Philadelphia showed your correspondent a few days ago a very fine copy of the $5.00 proprietary stamp, lightly concelled. This is the third copy offered at private sale in this city within the last year. As according to the records there were but 124 copies of these stamps printed, it seems strange that there should be so many offered within such a short time and in one locality.—A.F. HENKELS.

Gerald D. Bliss and Emil J. Rall favor us with specimens of the Canal Record published weekly at Ancon under the authority of the Canal Commission. In the numbers at hand we note nothing of a philatelic nature.

—Miss Hattie R. Stratton very kindly favors us with no less than six newspaper clippings pertaining to stamps and stamp collecting. Though none of these are hardly suitable for us to use, nevertheless, we appreciate the spirit of co-operation that prompts their sending.

—We regret that a slight error crept into the report of the Committee on Philatelic Literature last week. Page 333 column 2 Smithfield, Pa., should have read Smethport, Pa.

—We have at hand from the J. C. Morgenthau Co. a catalogue of their 12th sale, in which will be sold the collection of Lyman H. Bagg, containing stamps issued prior to 1870. The sale also contains a fine collection of Newfoundland, and a special consignment of rare stamps.

—The New York Press of Sept. 29 gave an entire page to an illustrated article on the parcels post as operated in England. We are indebted to Hugo Kuenstler for the clipping.

—The WEEKLY acknowledges with thanks the receipt of the wedding announcement of Miss Helen Stuart MacBean and Eben Squier Martin. The hearty well wishes of a host of friends will follow the happy couple in the weeks to come.

RAINBOW MONEY.

By courtesy of Jos. A. Steinmetz.

At the recent Convention at Atlantic City of the American Bankers the novel idea was suggested of following out the postage stamp color scheme for bank notes.

The motion to color bank notes in tints, like postage stamps, to distinguish their face value was submitted to the Convention by John Schuette, banker and financial author, of Wisconsin, and caused a stir among delegates and a nodding of heads that signified popular approval of the scheme.

Mr. Schuette declared the Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to make the change without further legislation from Congress, and would probably accord with any recommendation from the bankers of the country. Such a change, which could be made with practically no additional expense, would facilitate the labor of the bankers and people generally; would be a guard against errors, and would make the raising of smaller denominations to larger almost impossible. The groundwork tint for all bank notes, he suggested, might follow this plan:

Bills of $1 denomination in slate, $2 in brown, $5 in green, $10 in blue, $20 in yellow, $50 in pink and $100 or over in white, or such other colors as may be most easily distinguishable.

Another suggestion from Mr. Schuette was the application of the same system to bank stationery, the latter to be of uniform size, three by seven and a half inches, in tints, as follows: Checks, white; bills receivable, green; certificates of deposit, pink; drafts, yellow; receipts, slate.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. Severn.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

Mac H. Sanborn, Washington, D. C., writes: "Having noticed in the issue of September 7th, mention of a double transfer, three-cent, 1861, I take the liberty to write you in regard to something that I discovered recently, in the shape of the five-cent inland exchange, first issue, perforated, showing double transfer. The stamp was found in a lot of revenues and not being sure of what it was, I took it to Mr. Geo. L. Toppan, who, after having examined it, pronounced it to be a double transfer. He said also that it was the first and only one that he had ever heard of. The double impression shows up best at the bottom. Thinking that the specimen might be of some interest to you, I send it for inspection, together with one of the ordinary stamps for comparison." No doubt, our correspondent intended to say that Mr. Toppan remarked that he had not seen heretofore the particular stamp with double impression. The revenue stamp submitted shows a double transfer particularly in the lower label, although evidences of the repeated lines and dots are seen elsewhere. It is a specimen fairly illustrative of a double transfer, even though it does not compare in distinctness of double impression, with the stamp first mentioned by us.

There are a good many varieties showing a double transfer in the stamps of the United States and Mr. Luff calls attention to a few of the more prominent varieties; he does not pretend to list them all. Perhaps, the most striking double transfer is that on the three-cent, 1851, with a horizontal line through "Three Cents" in the lower label. As accounting for the existence of double transfers, Mr. Luff says: "In making the plate, it sometimes happens that the transfer roll is set down upon it, slightly out of the intended position. The pressure on the roll forces into the soft plate those lines which are most in relief. When the incorrect position of the roll is noticed it is moved to the proper place, and the impression is then 'rocked' into the plate. The result of thus twice placing the design is that some of the lines show double. These are called double transfers, shifted transfers and shifts." It is patent, of course, that when the first impression is quite deeply marked on the plate and decidedly out of register, the impression is considered defective and unavailable.

J. E. S.:—"Will you please tell me of the difference in price and why, on the United States revenues, 1898 to 1902? Some have what is called cut cancellation and others have not. Were some used for a different purpose?" After the stamp tax of 1898 became operative, it was found by the treasury department under whose administration the tax was levied that the pen and ink cancellations particularly of the higher values of the documentary stamps often were removed with the result that the stamps were used repeatedly on instruments or documents of a temporary validity. With the intention of defeating the fraudulent practice, a law was passed requiring that all stamps of ten-cent denomination and above be canceled by cuts. Large users of the stamps usually employed a machine especially made for the purpose. Thus, it is seen why the cut revenues are recognized in the catalogue but as the cuts are a mutilation of the stamps, it is only fair that the stamps be priced at a figure lower than that prevailing on stamps normally canceled.

E. B.:—Strictly speaking, there are three types of the first issue of Samoa. In type I, the upper frame of the tablet containing the word "express" is unbroken. Type II: There is a break in the frame of the tablet above the "x" of "Express." Type III: The break in the frame has been repaired but in so clumsy a way that the repair looks worse than the break. In the type I of the catalogue, both types I and II are included. (2) Bacon's work on "Reprints" published by Stanley Gibbons contains a long description of the reprints, Samoan express stamps.

W. E. F.:—Mauritania is a western portion of the Sahara, situated between Senegal and Morocco. "It is separated from the sea by the Spanish colony of Rio de Oro. It was in this territory that the well-known French explorer, M. Coppolane was assassinated in 1905, by the Moors." Thus, it is seen why his portrait appears on some of the stamps. (2) Moheli "forms part of the Comoro group and its inhabitants are a mixture of Arabs, Malagasy, Makois, etc." (3) The fame of some of the celebrities depicted on certain of the South American stamps is local rather than universal and consequently, biographies of those who are honored are not always included in the standard lists of celebrated persons.

B.:—In the "Hints for Collectors," which is a sort of preface to the catalogue, you will find all the questions that you ask fully covered. The questions of watermark, paper, impression, etc., are adequately considered and a great amount of valuable information is given in condensed form.

Several readers are informed that a single United States stamp, imperforate at side and showing part of the next stamp is not a guarantee of original imperforation on one side. The three-cent 1861, for instance, was issued in sheets of two hundred, and were divided in half or sheets of one hundred as sold at the postoffice, by cutting the blank margin down the center. When the knife or shears did not fall in the center of the dividing blank margin, the inequality of margin resulted, affecting those stamps immediately ranged along the line. In some instances, the stamps were cut into; hence, the imperforate side showing part of the next stamp.

R. M.:—It is true that some of the stamps of the Waterlow printing differ somewhat noticeably from those of the American Bank Note printing, and the difference has been spoken of in the stamp papers. (2) Mr. Seebeck on one occasion said that he would have been glad to have canceled his ten year contracts that he entered into in 1890 with certain South and Central American countries some years before their expiration, if the parties of the second part would have agreed to release him.

T. R. R.:—The Royal Philatelic Society's, London, "British Colonies in Africa," is in three volumes. Part I included Bechuanaland to Cape of Good Hope; part II, extended from Gambia to Natal, and part III, Orange River to Zululand, inclusive. Part I was issued a good many years ago and is out of print. Part II and III are offered for sale occasionally and perhaps a London dealer could obtain them for you.

W. E.:—Many collectors have expressed surprise that no postal parcels system have been adopted by our department; they realize that such a post would be a great convenience for them and see no reason why there should be any opposition to the establishing of it. Politics must be considered in the case. The express companies and merchants in the rural districts object to a parcels post, the express companies for obvious reasons and the country merchants because they believe that if the system were adopted, the people of their communities would buy practically everything from city merchants. The present postmaster says that he favors the post but it is by no means a foregone conclusion that his wish will triumph.

EDITORIAL.

Broader Significance—There is a growing body of philatelic observers imbued with the thought of the promotion of the hobby, who subscribe to the doctrine that more attention should be given to the suggestions of the stamp in its facial aspect; in other words, the design should be analyzed as well as the characteristics of impression, paper, separation, etc. This does not imply that it is inadvisable to closely study the stamp in the accustomed way but the wish is to enlarge the significance of the stamp in the particular of the meaning of the illuminated surface of the stamp, or the design. The educational value of the description of portraits, scenes, animals, vegetation and other subjects, as depicted on stamps is a strong factor in favor of philately in the estimation of the outsider, and the historical, geographical and symbolical ideas that are conveyed by the designs should be cultivated and enlarged upon. The suggestions of the stamp as well as its palpable physical properties should be appreciated, and not a few thinking philatelists recognize that fact and are doing what they can to propagate the conviction that they entertain.

Example—As illustrating the working of the plan that receives a word of commendation in the preceding paragraph, let the 1900 issue of Turks and Caicos Islands be cited. The design, a ship near the shore on which there reposes white piles resembling snowbanks, is not understood by many collectors, although they may be given a hint of the meaning by the paranthetical remark in a catalogue, "salt raking." The broader suggestions are that salt raking is a principal industry on some of the islands; it may be mentioned incidentally that it has been somewhat curtailed by the heavy duty that was placed on salt by the United States. The salt is used chiefly in packing fish. The salt raker gathers the salt from enclosures from the sea. The date, 1848, on the stamps paves the way for the information that the Turks and Caicos Islands had been attached to the Bahamas by Act of Parliament in 1779 and were separated from the colony in 1848.

All Suggested by the Stamp—While in the West Indies, it is opportune to refer to the bi-colored commemorative stamp of St. Lucia, two pence, 1902. Collectors have noticed the side designs of bird and reptile, respectively, and no doubt some of them wish to know the names of them. The Colonial Stamp Co., Chicago, writes: "The bird pictured on the two pence, St. Lucia, the handsome two-colored stamp, is a native parrot and the reptile is called the fer de lance, the bite of which is always fatal." It may be added that the snake in question is indigenous to tropical America and the islands of St. Lucia and Martinique; it probably derives its name, "spear-head," from its triangular head. The history of St. Lucia is the most interesting of that of all the other smaller islands. Though discovered early in the sixteenth century, it was left in possession of the Caribs for over one hundred years. A settlement by the English in 1639 was unsuccessful; the natives massacred some of the colonists and the survivors fled from the island. In 1642, the French, nominally controled the island; the English claimed ownership from 1665 to 1667. The title then became the subject of dispute between the French and the English until possession was surrendered by the French in 1762, but the Treaty of Paris in 1763 assigned the island to France. Admiral Rodney by his victory over Count de Grasse on April 12, 1782, established English control but the following year the island was restored to France by the peace of Versailles. When the French republic in 1793 declared war on England, a British force under Sir John Jervis and General Sir Charles Grey took Martinique and St. Lucia. By the peace of Amiens, 1802, it was again relinquished to France, but in the succeeding year, it was again taken by the English who have since held the island. Castries, the capital of St. Lucia, has one of the finest harbors in that section.

Philatelic Masterpiece—A copy of a remarkable picture of striking interest to collectors is presented in a recent number of the American Boy; it shows a youth arising from the bed in his room, with an expression of wonderment on his face. "A boy dreams that his postage stamps come to life. All the different figures on the various stamps suddenly become invested with life and are moving about, much to the boy's bewilderment. The picture is from a painting by Mucha, the celebrated Hungarian artist and in the original is beautifully colored. We believe this picture has never appeared before in print in this country." The personages, the animals, the birds, etc., so familiar to us on stamps are depicted as endowed with life and the grouping by the artist is something to command the admiration of all. The wierd pleasantness of them is instantly recognized and applauded and the original conception of the artist will be lauded particularly by the philatelist. In the philatelic art gallery this picture by Mucha will have first place; it is doubtful whether stamp collecting has ever before been signalized in an impressive way by the painter and it is certain that no artist has achieved the triumph that Mucha is granted by the consensus of philatelic opinion. No doubt, we shall be able to give further particulars of this painting, whose appearance records a high tribute to philately.

Great Expectations—The colony of Uganda has been opened up by the Uganda railway and it is predicted that the future of the country will be very prosperous, and that it will rival Egypt in greatness. Uganda is said to be the only country of large area in the world that teems with big game; so plentiful are the "circus" animals, such as the lion, hippopotamus, rhinoceros, etc., in Uganda, that the supply will last for years to come, notwithstanding the activity of Nimrods. The primitive conditions of Uganda in 1895 are reflected in a measure by the typewritten issues of that year. As collectors know, the stamps of Uganda were superseded by the 1903-04 issue of East Africa and Uganda Protectorate.

Advanced Advertising—The Junior Philatelic Society, London, is planning a "British Empire" exhibition of stamps for next spring. This progressive organization already has conducted several successful exhibitions and the well-applied energy that marks the preliminary proceedings attending the coming display almost is a guarantee of happy fruition. In a number of the Sunday newspapers in America the proposed exhibition was giving flattering attention recently; in the notice, we read: "There have long been societies for grown-up philatelists, but it was not until 1899, when, with the founding of the Junior Society, a movement was set on foot for young collectors all over the world. Already the society has held two most successful exhibitions, the second being visited by over 11,000 people in two days. A third exhibition is now being arranged, and it is the intention of the promoters that it shall be one of the most important held in the history of stamp collecting. The exhibition will be an imperial one, devoted entirely to the stamps of the British colonies, and the total value of the exhibits will, it is believed, exceed $300,000." The exhibition managers have a good press agent; it is a satisfaction to think that the newspapers of the world recognize the importance of publicity for a prospective stamp exhibition.

THE FIRST TWO TYPES OF QUEENSLAND.—Continued.

By WALLABY.

Stamps Printed in the Colony from Perkins, Bacon & Co.'s Plates.

A. 1862-7. No Wmk.

The next stamps to be described differ in many ways from the previous issues, they are nearly all printed in new colours, there is a new perf., gauging 12½ to 13, and they are on a much thicker and unwatermarked paper. The two first values to appear were the 1d and 2d, issued in December, 1862. The penny in an entirely new colour—namely Indian red—which, however, was changed only two months later to an orange vermilion. The 2d and 3d values vary but little in shade from the previous issues, while the 6d and 1sh (April and July, 1863) came in new colours—the 6d in a light green, varying to yellow-green; and the 1sh in grey.

As this issue is on a thick unwatermarked paper there is not the slightest difficulty in recognizing these stamps.

Various stamps of this issue are known imperf. also imperf. vertically or horizontally.

In describing the above stamps I have followed S. G. and described them as perforated 12½ to 13; this is slightly misleading, as they are perf. either 12½ by 13 or 13 all round. Many collectors are not aware that the no watermark issue, with the exception of the 1d Indian red, can be found with a compound perf., i. e., 12½ clean cut by 13 rough, all square holes; the 2d and 6d values are the hardest to find, the 3d being quite common.

B. Perf. 13, Round Holes.

The next issue, consisting of the 1d, 2d and 6d values is somewhat confusing as the stamps only differ in the respect of half a perforation, and not always that, fortunately however the perf. can be otherwise distinguished, it is known as perf. 13 round holes, while the previous one was 12½ to 13 square holes. In the square hole perforation there are either clean cut square holes or square punctures, while in the issue known as clean cut, perf. 13, the holes are circular and generally cleaner cut, while they gauge 13 exactly.

Only the 1d, 2d and 6d are known with the latter perf., which was done by the Government, the previous or round hole set being perforated by the printers.

1865. Wmkd. Small Star.

Early in 1865 the 1d, 2d and 6d were again printed on watermarked paper with the square cut perfs. gauging 12½ by 13, or 13, but on a thinner and whiter paper than that used for the two preceding issues. These stamps vary slightly in shade, and most values, I believe, can be found horizontally or vertically imperf.

The registered stamp was also issued uniform with this set, but I have not seen it with the compound perforation.

The Tapling collection contains a pair of the 3d imperf. vertically. Many of the so-called imperf. stamps of this issue are merely perforated stamps cut down, the margins are so large that unless in pairs or blocks collectors should be very wary before they purchase.

Jan. 1866. Wmkd. Script.

In January, 1866, the small sharp rayed Star was dispensed with as a watermark, and the two low values, the 1d and 2d, were printed on sheets of paper bearing "Queensland Postage Stamps" in disconnected script capitals repeated four times, so that only a portion of one letter appears on each stamp. These stamps are perforated 12½ to 13 square holes, and were only in use for a short while.

I have not seen the "Script" stamps with compound perfs., but I think that possibly they exist.

Sept. 1866. Lithographed.

In September 1866 two new values were issued, namely the 4d and 5sh stamps, both lithographed locally, from the old plates on thick unwatermarked paper. These two stamps are interesting as being from altered plates, traces of the previous value being discernable in the earlier printings. The 4d first appeared in slate, but this colour was shortly changed to lilac, while the 5sh comes on various shades of rose. Owing to its being from an altered plate there are many slight differences in the words of value on each stamp.

1868-74. Truncated Star.

The next stamps to be described are known as the truncated Star and the Q and Crown watermark issue. I have reason to believe that these two watermarks were concurrent, at least for a short while, but to simplify matters I will take each issue separately and will describe the truncated Star one first.

There is no difficulty in distinguishing this watermark from the two earlier Stars, or indeed from any other Colonial watermark, as it consists of a small squat 6-pointed truculent looking Star, the word Queensland also appears in single lined capitals repeated four times on each sheet so that a portion of a letter usually accompanies the Star on each stamp, but the Star is so easily discernable that it puts the other portion of the watermark in the shade.

All values perf. 13, used are comparatively easy to find, although there are one or two scarce shades, notably the very deep green sixpenny; numerous shades of the 3d exist, but most of these are due to chemical changes in the ink, curiously enough the penny value shows the fewest variations.

All five values are found perforated 12, this is really a trial perf. prior to its general use in 1876, and stamps with this perf., watermarked truncated star are fairly hard to find

The 2d is known with a compound of both perfs. and is well worth looking for, the 1d and 6d are also listed but they are extremely rare.

Early in 1895 all five values were reprinted, these reprints are not common and can be easily detected from the originals by their colours.

The paper on which they are printed appears to be white, while the colours are brighter than in the originals.

1868-79. Q and Crown.

The truncated star, as a watermark, was now discarded in favour of the Q over Crown, while the colour of the 4d was changed to yellow as before, this stamp was lithographed, the same plate being used, numerous minor varieties exist. As in the previous issue two perforating machines were used, only in this case the stamps perf. 13 are the rarer, many shades of all values exist, some of which are very scarce, the 6d deep green being again a scarce one.

Various minor varieties are to be found on this, as in the previous issues, mostly due to specks of dirt on the plates. Several values are said to exist imperf. Several values are known compound, i.e., 12x13; the 2d and 6d are not unobtainable, but the 4d, which is a very recent discovery, is a rara avis.

I have seen a copy of the 4d yellow (litho.) with a distinct hair-line running from the "u" of "four" right up the face to the crown.

Varieties Without Watermark.

During 1879 several sheets of the 6d green were issued without a watermark; this stamp is only known in one shade, a light emerald green, and can be easily recognized. In several collections, however, I have seen the 6d of the 1862 issue, no watermark, doing duty as this stamp, and occasionally vice versa, but the perf., paper and shade are so different that there is really no excuse for this mistake.

Prior to the issue of this stamp the 1sh red violet had been printed on unwatermarked paper, but in this case a lilac burelé band was printed at the back, this burelé (or band of interlaced thin wavy lines) is sometimes very indistinct and never so well marked as in the well-known issue of the 1d red of 1894.

1881. Lithographed.

Owing to the growing demand for higher values for postal use, stamps with a face value of 10sh and 20sh were issued and at the same time the colour of the 5sh was changed to yellow-ochre. Two other values were also put on sale, the 2sh and 2sh 6d.

All these stamps are lithographed, and postally used copies are fairly scarce although penmarked or bank cancelled ones are fairly common, unfortunately many of the latter have been cleaned and regummed, but do not constiute a very dangerous menace to the careful collector.

Type II. April 1879.

In April, 1879, a stamp from an entirely new design was printed—namely, the 1d brownish red, on watermarked Q and Crown paper, perf. 12. This stamp was shortly followed by a 2d value, struck from the same die, the original value being removed, and the new one engraved in its place; these stamps are electrotyped in sheets of 120 so that in the case of the 2d there are 120 slight minor varieties The fourth stamp in the fourth row of the 1d on each sheet is lettered "Qoeensland."

This design proving satisfactory three more values, 4d, 6d and 1sh were issued, as in the case of the 2d the original die was used, the value being altered, so that there are again slight varieties.

The three new values were all printed on watermarked paper, so we now have the whole set comprising five values, on the current Q and Crown paper.

There were two, if not three plates of the 2d value, in the second plate the words "two pence" are taller and thicker and generally the T and W of "two" touch.

All these stamps were locally made at the Government lithograph and engraving office in Brisbane, and printed direct from electrotypes. Early in 1882, or late the previous year, both the 1d and 2d values were printed on unwatermarked paper, bearing a burelé band at the back. This paper was, I believe, originally intended only for printing fiscal stamps on, but owing either to an oversight, or to a temporary shortage of the regular unwatermarked paper, it was used. The stamps on this paper are fairly scarce.

As in previous issues there are many shades, while owing to the fact that all values are printed from one die, altered to suit each value, there is a great number of minor varieties.

All these stamps exist imperf., but I don't think genuinely used copies are known.

Early in 1880, probably January or February, a number of sheets of the 1d brown-red were vertically surcharged "Half-penny" in black, one stamp on each sheet being the error of lettering, QOEENSLAND, as before described. This provisional was needed for the purpose of making up the rate of 1½d, which was charged on newspapers posted in Queensland for the United Kingdom. Before, however, a special stamp was printed, the rate was changed, making a 1½d value of little or no use.

This provisional is scarce, postally used copies being really very hard to obtain and although there was a very limited demand for the stamp it would be rather unfair to condemn this, the only Queensland surcharge, as unnecessary.—P. J. of Gt. Britain.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—In regard to the "large head" die of the 2c envelope, noted recently, Mr. Louis G. Barrett writes: "It is not a die variety, but due to the fact that electrotypes have been taken to serve as the 'under-dogs' in the printing, to force the paper into the dies. If these do not 'register' with the dies, imperfect impressions are the result. Mr. Mitchell informs me that but one die has been engraved; so his evidence ought to be conclusive."

Mr. Barrett also encloses a copy of the 5c envelope on white, and reports having seen the 4c on amber, size 8. The head is Franklin's as on the 1c, and the impression is in black. The 5c has a head of Washington, the impression being in very dark blue.

Kendall P. Smith and the Sanborn Stamp Co. have shown us specimens of the new 2c envelope, printed in a much lighter shade than the earlier printings, and evidently color varieties are to be even more common than die varieties. Mr. Smith says in his letter:

"I enclose specimens of the dies of the new 2c envelope which have been mentioned in recent numbers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS. I have called these 'Die A' and 'Die B.' Die A is the more common; of 76 envelopes examined 12 were of Die B, and with one exception were on special request envelopes coming from New York, Buffalo, Rochester and Amsterdam, N. Y., and Philadelphia, Pa. The exception is a plain envelope posted in New York City. I have one copy on blue paper, the others being on white.

"The principal differences, besides those already mentioned, are the thickness of the letters, the shape of the numerals, and the shape of the head. In die B the letters are thinner, and the O of TWO and the C of CENTS are round. The numerals are of almost the same thickness throughout. The head is more slender, the top of the head is rounder and there is no projection at the lower right corner of the bust."

Curiously enough, neither of the specimens submitted by Mr. Smith is the "large head" die shown us by Mr. Hardy, which is strikingly different from anything else shown us by our correspondents.

John A. Solomon reports the following new precancels:

Chicago, on 5c Jamestown, normal.
Minneapolis, Minn., on 3c St. Louis, normal.
East Weymouth, Mass., 1c 1902, error, name of state printed "Masss."

Henry McConnell has shown us the 1c 1902 stamp, precancelled "Jackson,—Mich," the overprint being in two lines between three bars, and all enclosed in a double oval the size of the stamp.

P. H. Hill informs us that he has the 2c vermilion envelopes of the 1903 issue on Nos. 8 and 9 white, and No. 5 blue. They appear to be scarce.

Mr. Hill also contributes to the current discussion of varieties of the new 2c envelope. But we will let him describe the specimen he sends us in his own language:

"I inclose for your inspection a copy of the new issue 2c, size 13. It may be the large head to which you referred in a late issue, but it has other distinguishing marks. The 'O' in 'TWO' is round instead of oval. The 'S' in 'CENTS' has the curve at top much shorter. The '2' at right does not come to as sharp a point. The under part of bust is more curved. The head is larger at top and more round. The regular die has a flat head."

The above is not the "large head" as discovered by Mr. Hardy, but is more like Mr. Smith's Die B, noted above.

AFGHANISTAN.—Two new stamps have been issued from this country, in spite of the recent statement that all stamps were to be done away with. The design is a new one, though resembling its predecessor in having the "gateway and flags" for its principal feature.

Adhesives.

1 abasi blue green.
2 abasi.

BRAZIL.—A new commemorative stamp of 100r is being prepared to celebrate the opening of the Brazilian ports to International Commerce, and will be issued at the opening of the Exposition. The stamp was designed by Mr. Bernadelli and engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Co., New York.

It is also proposed to issue a stamp of 100r next year, in honor of the proposed visit of the King of Portugal to Brazil.

Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have now shown us the full set of official stamps from 10r to 10,000r, confirming the note in No. 874 regarding the differing designs of the frames.

BULGARIA.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly describes the new stamps commemorative of the 20th anniversary of the accession of Prince Ferdinand. The design is good but the stamps are poorly printed. The shape is oblong, the scheme showing two portraits of Prince Ferdinand, one taken from his portrait in the year of his accession, and the other his likeness at the present time.

Adhesives.

5s dark green.
10s red brown.
25s blue.

CANADA.—W. S. Lloyd has shown us the current 1c stamp on paper with a green tint, previously noted.

CEYLON.—The post cards, single and double, type of 1903, have been changed, the face being divided into two parts for correspondence and address.

CRETE.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us two stamps just issued. Both are of large size, horizontal oblong in shape, the 25l having a portrait of the High Commissioner of Crete, Alexander Zaimis, and the 1dr showing the reception extended to Prince George upon his arrival at Crete, Dec. 21, 1898, by Admirals Pottier, Bettolo, Scrydloff and Noel.

The stamps 36x20mm. and 43x26mm. respectively are very handsomely printed by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., London, in two colors and are perf. 14. A new 10l, with a representation of the "Hermes of Praxitele" will shortly be issued.

Adhesives.

25l blue and black.
1dr green and black.

COLOMBIA.—Cucuta.—In addition to the varieties of provisionals given in No. 870, we take from Champion's Bulletin, a number of others, all ostensibly due to the same cause,—the change in currency, and the abolition of the various state or department issues. The value surcharged on these provisionals is expressed in gold and not in paper money. The stamps used are apparently Scott's Nos. 208 to 219.

There are five varieties of the "Medio—Cvo." surcharge, three of the "Un—Cvo.", one printed "2—Centavos" and four "2—Cvs." The case is further complicated by an invert of the 2c on 10c blue, three varieties of the "Un—Cvo," having the surcharge printed "NU." four varieties of the "2-Centavos" with the word spelled "Cantavos," and four others spelled "Centavas."

We now give the full list for reference:

Provisional Adhesives.

½c on 50c lilac.
½c on 50c red on yellow.
Five varieties of surcharge of each of above.
1c on 1c black.
1c on 1c green on yellow.
1c on 1p yellow.
1c on 1p red violet.
Three varieties of surcharge of each of above.
2c on 2c green, one type.
2c on 2c rose on yellow, one type.
2c on 5c green on yellow, three types.
2c on 5c carmine, one type.
2c on 10c dark blue, four types.
2c on 10c red brown on yellow, one type.
2c on 20c green on yellow, four types.
2c on 20c red brown, one type.
Five different types of surcharge as above.

Santander.—As noted in No. 870, a similar process has been gone through to supply stamps for this state, the 1904 and 1905 issues being used.

The same errors are found in varying frequency, and there is an additional type of surcharge in which the surcharge appears as "Medio Centavo" in one line on Scott's No. 3. To give further variety the word "Correos" is spelled correctly, and also "Cocreos" and "Corceos." There is only one "NU" variety but seven "Cantavos," and seven "Centavas."

Provisional Adhesives.

½c on 50c rose.
Two types with "Correos" mispelled.
½c on 50c yellow.
½c on 50c red violet.
Five varieties of surcharge of each of above.
1c on 1p black.
1c on 1p dark blue.
Three varieties of surcharge of each of above.
2c on 5c green, four types.
2c on 5c blue, one type.
2c on 10c red brown, one type.
2c on 10c rose, one type.
2c on 20c brown violet, three types.
2c on 20c green, one type.
2c on 5p dark blue, four types.
2c on 5p rose, one type.
2c on 10p carmine, one type.
2c on 10p red, one type.

As we have not the stamps before us we cannot give with certainty the color of the surcharge, but black, blue and green ink have been used, and judging from previous experience with Colombian stamps, it would not be surprising to find any one of the above provisionals with surcharge in any or all of the colors named, and perhaps others. It is curious to note that in all cases in both states where there is only one type of the surcharge of the 2c it is invariably the "2—Centavos," with the word spelled out, though further modified by the two misspellings of "Centavos."

Together the above will add 102 collectible varieties to the list.

CONGO.—The Illustriertes Briefmarken Journal reports that the current pictorial set has been overprinted with the word "Taxes" in a rectangular frame 8x27mm., and used for Postage Due stamps.

DANISH WEST INDIES.—Mr. Phillips, the accomplished editor of the "New Issues" Department of Gibbons' Weekly, has just discovered that there are different types of the 4c postage due stamps of 1902. The fact that there were several types of these stamps was noted, and some of the differences illustrated as far back as No. 611 of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY printed in July, 1904. However, Gibbons' now illustrates and describes the different types more fully, and we give our readers a summary of the latest discoveries. Of the 4c there are three main types, with two minor varieties.

Type III, the top of each figure "4" slopes downward from right to left and the upper downstroke of the right hand "4" is thin. Gibbons' calls this Type IV.

There is a variety of Type II in which the first "E" of "Portomærke" is broken to look like "F." Gibbons' calls this Type III.

There is also a variety of Type III in which the downstroke of the right "4" is much thicker. Gibbons' calls this Type V.

As numbered by Gibbons' the varieties are arranged thus. The sheet consists of one hundred stamps, ten horizontal rows of ten. In each horizontal row the five types appear twice, arranged thus: I, II, III, IV, V, I, II, III, IV, V; the ten horizontal rows being identical. This proves that five cliches were bound together, from which two impressions were taken and placed side by side to form a row of ten stamps. This row was then used to make the ten transfers to complete the sheet, the process of production being that of lithography.

Minor differences exist in the other values showing that a similar process was used in their production.

COLUMBIAN STAMP CO., Arlington, Mass.

FRANCE.—L'Echo says that another of "the pretty shades of the Semeuse cameo type has already begun to pale. The 5c has changed from a decided dark green to a clarified moss-green. On the other hand, the 30c is of a rather more vermilion shade." We have already noted the change in the 25c.

Gibbons' Weekly notes that the 2c, 3c and 4c of the 1900 issue, and the 5c, 10c, 25c and 30c, latest Sower type, have been seen imperforate.

ITALY.— Offices in Crete — The 15c card, 5c green and 10c rose on gray, has been surcharged "La Cauca" for use at the Italian offices in Crete.

MONTENEGRO.—Mr. Schachne has the latest from this country. The new stamps have the figures of value in each corner. (See No. 863.) Both cards and letter cards now appear with the entire impression in a single color. The 5p and its double have the third headline (U. P. U.) cut out and the letter cards have a hyphen added in "Carte-Lettre." Other wise than above the same plates seem to have been used.

Post Cards.

5pa olive green on buff.
5x5pa olive green on buff, T.3.
10pa red on pale blue.
10x10pa red on pale blue, T.3.

Letter Cards.

10pa red on pale buff, inside white.
25pa light blue on pale gray, inside white.

MOZAMBIQUE Co.—Cards and letter cards have been issued with colors changed.

Post Card.

10x10r red on buff.

Letter Cards.

25r carmine on buff.
50r brown lilac on gray.

NATAL.— A correspondent of the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly writes: "It may interest you to know that the Natal stamps surcharged 'Official' have been gradually dropping out of use, and that a circular was issued to the Government Railway Offices, dated May 30, to the effect that all 'Official' stamps were to be returned at once, and they would be replaced by ordinary postage stamps. These are being perforated 'N. G. R.' for 'Natal Govt. Railways,' and many such have already been used."

PHILIPPINES. — Mr. Toppan writes: "I notice that in the last issue you list the $1.00 Philippine, of 1902, with the new printed surcharge 'O. B.' in black. At the time of my advertisement, I could have given you, for the purpose of chronicle, both the 50c and $1.00 of this issue, but the surcharge was in dark blue instead of black. I did not advertise them because I did not have enough on hand to warrant doing so. As I do not know just what stamps of the 1902 series received this surcharge, I am unable to dispute the assertion that the $1.00 was surcharged in black, but so far, I have only seen them as stated above, with the dark blue surcharge."

2k black and green, of the 1868-72 issue, on horizontally laid paper, imperforate.

1r orange and brown, of the 1889 issue, with centre inverted.

2k green, of 1890-92 issue, with centre inverted.

5k mauve, of the 1890-92 issue, without background.

25k lilac and dull green, of the 1905 issue, with background inverted.

10r pale gray, scarlet and yellow, of the 1906 issue, perf. 11½.

SALVADOR.—Mr. Focke reports that he has seen the 2c Escalon stamp with "shield and anchor" surcharge, also two new provisionals, with same obliteration of Escalon's face.

Provisional Adhesives.

With face obliterated.
1c on 6c rose and black.
10c on 6c rose and black.
2c rose and black.

Stanley Gibbons, Inc., informs us that the 5c double impression, shown us by Mr. Focke, and noted in No. 873, is not an accidental dropping. It is a double transfer and occurs once in the sheet.

The International Secretary read the program of the 19th German Philatelic Congress, held in Hamburg August 24th-26th, features of which were the usual Bourse, and, appropriately, considering the place of exhibition, the exhibition of the famous collection of Hamburg, owned by Mr. Vicenz; scientific addresses, among which was noted that of W. Sellschop, whose subject was, "Western Franks of the United States Express Companies."

Among the social features was a trip to Heligoland, the inspection of the giant vessels of the Hamburg American line, etc., etc.

The program gives every promise of a very instructive and entertaining occasion.

The President called Mr. Bartels to the Chair and then reported for the Exhibition Committee that arrangements are underway looking toward the securing of the Print room of the Boston Art Museum for a loan exhibition at a date in the near future. The report was accepted as a report of progress.

Mr. Howes then proposed a vote of congratulation to the Chicago Philatelic Society on the occasion of the five hundredth meeting of that Society, to be held in October.

The motion being seconded by Mr. Batchelder, was unanimously passed, and the Secretary instructed to have the vote suitably engrossed and forwarded to the Chicago Philatelic Society.

The following were elected to membership:

On motion by Mr. Carpenter the Secretary was instructed to communicate the Society's congratulations to our President on the occasion of his wedding, lately announced to occur next month.

The collection of "U. S. Oddities," property of W. H. Schneider, of Cleveland, Ohio, was then shown, and proved vastly interesting.

Mr. Schneider was given a hearty vote of thanks for his courtesy in allowing his remarkable collection to be shown and in appreciation of the originality of selection and arrangement shown in the collection.

Luff's and Tiffany's histories of U. S. postage stamps gives the date of issue of the first regular U. S. postage stamp as August 5th, 1847, while Mr. Schneider shows an entire original cover, bearing a 10 cent 1847, postmarked New York 17th July, and Belleville, Canada West, July 21st, 1847.

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

FELLOW MEMBERS:—

The Sales Department is ready for business. We have about $40,000 worth of books awaiting your call. They are of excellent grade. Let us put you on circuit without delay. The new blank sales books are ready and may be had at the usual price of 5c each, stamps or money-order.

A RECRUITING WORD.

Have you sent yet for a copy of that handsome booklet recently issued by the Recruiting Committee? Mr. Jewett has certainly given us a work of art. If not a member of the association, send for one. If a member get one for some friend who is a collector.

In the catalogue of B. L. Voorhees' auction sale No. 17, just at hand, may be found a full page advertisement of the advantages of membership in the American Philatelic Association, and the recruiting committee is pleased to acknowledge the favor extended.

From the list of members submitted by Sec. Davis as having obtained applications during the present year, up to and including Oct. 5, the following have three or more to their credit:—H. A. Davis (6), C. B. Duffy (5), H. B. Phillips (4), A. P. Hosmer (3), C. C. Johnson (3) and Ross O'Shaughnessy (3).

Mr. Klemann of the Nassau Stamp Co. generously donates space in his auction catalogs for the recruiting of the association. We acknowledge the courtesy with thanks and will be pleased to recognize similar favors.

It is expected that every member of the recruiting committee will get busy. If anxious to work and unable to find anything to do, drop a line to the chairman. A recruiting committee is supposed to recruit and thus justify its appointment. Have your name in the first summary published by Sec. Davis.

As I have been selected to fill the Secretaryship of this Society in place of F. B. Kirby, resigned, I take this opportunity to request the support of my many friends who have so kindly assisted me in my previous philatelic efforts. This branch of stamp collecting has been neglected, but now since the organization of the U. S. R. S. it is fast coming to the front again. Almost every stamp collector includes Revenues in his collection, and therefore should be a member of our Society and participate in its benefits. I will be most pleased to give all information in my power to any person writing me, and I trust that I may receive the same generous support as was accorded to Dr. H. A. Davis, our retiring Secretary.

Very respectfully,

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec.

BOSTON, Sept. 20, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-eighth regular meeting of the Society was held in Elks' Hall, Boston, on September 17th.

Thirty-seven members were present, an attendance that promises well for the success of the second half of the Society's current year.

The Committee on Permanent Quarters presented its final report, and, as a result of the information contained therein it was unanimously voted to instruct the Governing Board to secure room 506 Kast Building, corner Washington and Hanover streets, for a permanent meeting place and club room for the Society.

One hundred dollars was appropriated to be expended by the Governing Board toward necessary furnishing of the club room.

Mr. Bail gave notice as required by the By laws, of his intention to at the October meeting propose a change in the By-laws making the dues of members $3.00 per year instead of $2.00 as at present.

The sentiment of the meeting appeared to be that it would be necessary to divide the membership into an active and a passive class with increased dues for the former class.

The Governing Board was instructed to consider this matter and report its recommendation at the October meeting.

The following applications for membership were posted:

P. H. WARD, JR., Wash., D. C.; proposed by Mr. Kelley.
HERMANN WOLFF, Worcester, Mass.; proposed by Mr. Wylie.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE REVENUE STAMPS OF ARGENTINA.

By FREDERICK E. HEYDON.

Philatelists may be classified in various ways, as to which I will not enlarge here, further than to remark that this article is written only for those who pursue the study on account of its inherent interest and not for speculative motives or even as an investment. To those who view the matter as I do, the study of these stamps is recommended for several reasons, any of which seems to me quite sufficient, and all of which I can find united nowhere else in equal degree.

To begin with the stamps are with very few exceptions interesting as regards their designs, which are frequently artistic in the highest degree, and they include beautiful specimens of steel engraving by the National Bank Note Co., of New York, and the Compania Sud Americana de Billetes de Banco, fine examples of typography, and, as regards lithography, many series which for beauty both of design and execution leave all other lithographed stamps, with which I am familiar, completely outclassed. No one, who is unfamiliar with the splendid series of Documentos and Guias de Campana stamps of Buenos Aires, has any idea as to what perfection the art of lithography as applied to stamps has been carried. However, should there be any collectors who prefer stamps almost as hideous as some of our own locals, the stamps of Corrientes will assuage their morbid appetites.

The various issues may be primarily divided into: 1. Stamps issued by authority of the general government.

2. Stamps issued by the provinces.

3. Municipal stamps.

The national issues include three series of special interest, in which I should decidedly give the first place to the documentary stamps; and these are all very beautiful both in design and color. As originally issued these stamps were lozenge-shaped, and I do not know as there are any pages in my collection as to which I feel more real satisfaction than those on which this and the next issue are mounted. The earlier issues are not very readily obtainable, however, and before long the visible supply of all except the lowest values will be exhausted.

The Letras de Cambio (Bills of Exchange) stamps are also very interesting, but seem to me to lack a little of the artistic completeness of those just mentioned. The third series to which I would call attention are the Servicio Consular stamps, which include several rare provisionals.

Besides these three series there are others including some similar to our "Tax Paids," which I would not recommend so particularly, as they are inferior in execution and the field is wide enough without touching them.

The provincial stamps, particularly those of Buenos Aires, are extremely interesting, and those of Buenos Aires are even superior to the federal issues. At first sight the number of these stamps seems appalling, but I can assure the reader, from my own experience, that at the present time it is possible to make a creditable showing at moderate cost of time and trouble; but—and there is always a but,—it will not be so for many years. I can not but feel regret at blank spaces which not many years ago I could have filled. I saw not so very long ago priced at 100 francs a stamp which within my own recollection could have been obtained for a mere trifle. The stamps of Cordoba are beautiful productions and not very numerous, those of Santa Fe are interesting and will be found a good field for making an interesting exhibit at very moderate cost. All of the other provincial issue stamps.

The municipal stamps of Buenos Aires are a fascinating study, but in my experience, are, at least so far as this country goes, hard to obtain. Those of many other cities well deserve study, and probably every collector here has something which his brother collectors have never seen which adds to the interest of the subject.

Now a word as to the literature on the subject. The catalogue of the Sociedad Filatelica Argentina would make the best of all our catalogues, that of the United States revenues issued by the Boston Philatelic Society, take an inferior place; because in addition to all the excellencies of that classical

DID YOU REALIZE

What a snap that special mixture was at 20c per 100? Many customers did, and now they are happy in the bargain they got. Here it is again—read it slowly and try to realize what it says—what it says, it means:

Special app'v'l sheet mixture, without U.S. or European, fine lot of 1, 2 and 3c stamps, } 20c per 100

There are many other bargains in my packet list—send for it. Better yet, try one of these:

PHILIPPINE "O.B.'s"

Of the old, handstamped series the ONE CENT of 1899 has always been exceedingly scarce. I have just obtained a few of them, with the surcharge in purple ink, and offer them, while they last, at

$5.00 EACH, NET

I still have few of the 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 and will quote prices upon application.

All of the above are used and still upon the original cover.

H. F. COLMAN,
GEO. L. TOPPAN, Manager,
725 Eleventh St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

work, it is splendidly illustrated with full size reproductions of the stamps which our own absurd laws do not permit in this country.

All prices are based on the French catalogue of Forbin-L'Hoste, which sometimes are fairly indicative of values and at others seem to have been inspired by a dream-book. There is no excuse for guess-work as to values or degrees of rarity, as the quantities issued are given for nearly all stamps mentioned in the Argentina catalogue; aside from which the control numbers which are present in many series give a fair idea as to rarity. However, I must thank the compiler's ideas as to values, as I have now several stamps of which only 1000 examples or so of each were issued, which cost me the very moderate sum of five cents each.

To those who desire to make a study of these stamps, I would suggest the following series as starters, which may be enlarged as experience and interest suggests.

Argentina—Documentary, bills of exchange, consular.

Buenos Aires—Documentary, bills of exchange, guias de campana.

Should any further information as to the revenue stamps of Argentina be desired by the readers of MEKEEL'S, I shall be pleased to give any suggestions which may enable them to start in such a manner as to promise a reasonable amount of satisfaction to themselves and also to others.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Among the finds that have come to light in Philadelphia is one of French covers that turned up about one year ago in the old correspondence of a distillery. Among the good things in this find were two tete beche pairs of the 25c of the first issue, and several pairs and one strip of three of the 1f of the second issue, besides many scarce shades of stamps of these two issues all on the original covers.—A. F. HENKELS.

—At the C. P. S. meeting of Oct. 3rd Edgar Nelton gave an illustrated talk.

—Among the strange uses to which the U. S. mails are put the following seems to me most curious:—A friend a few days ago told me how he had hung up his coat in a barber shop, in which was his wallet. He did not think of the wallet again until on arriving home when he missed it, and even then thought his wife had taken it from his pocket as a joke. After she had assured him that she had not seen it, it occurred to him that it had been taken from his coat at the barber's. The next day he received a note from the P. O. authorities to call and claim a wallet with his card in it, that had been found in a mail box. He found everything in it as he had left it,—excepting sixty-two dollars in cash.—A. F. HENKELS.

—Have you joined the A. P. A.? Why not?

—Branch No. 18, A. P. A., of Philadelphia, held their annual meeting at the School of Industrial Art, October 3rd. The following officers were unanimously elected: President, A. F. Henkels; Vice President, Theo. Von Westernhagen; Secretary, F. Hahman; Treasurer, Chas. Beamish; Sales Mgr., John W. Haseltine. One new member was admitted and two applicants were posted. The outlook for the Society is very bright, and it is the general expectation that there will be a large increase in membership in the near future. Mr. Parrish, the new Sales Supt. of the A. P. A., delivered to the Society in person, a number of Circuits which to all appearances will meet with great favor.—A. F. HENKELS.

—E. J. Nankivell, who has been associated with Gibbons' Weekly as editor, is no longer connected with that magazine. A new philatelic effort, known as the Postage Stamp, is to be launched with Mr. Nankivell as editor, and so far as we are able to glean, publisher as well.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. Severn.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

W. R. F.:—"A boy friend of mine found a one-cent blue, 1861, United States, with double perforation at the sides. What is the stamp worth?" The double perforation varieties, United States, are of some added interest over the normally perforated varieties but they are not to be considered as having any extra value by reason of the vagary. (2) "I have Denmark No. 25 of the catalogue, apparently re-engraved; it shows the following main differences. The leaf of the wreath pointing between the 'p' and 'o' of Postfrim touches the edge of the inner oval. The vertical lines of the groundwork of the inner oval are heavier. The leaf of the wreath pointing to the 'r' of ore touches the frame of the inner oval. In No. 25, normal print, the posthorn is exactly ½ mm. above the oval containing the inscription. In the re-engraved stamp it is only about ⅜ mm. above this oval. I notice also that in the 4 ore, No. 26, the cross on the top of the crown touches the oval in some specimens and in others, it does not; the same is true of the 8 ore, No. 28." The stamps mentioned by our studious correspondent have not been re-engraved but are minor varieties due to variations of a mechanical nature in printing, such as this issue abounds in.

A correspondent who asks for explanations of the terms, recut and redrawn, may be answered opportunely of the foregoing item. Recutting means that the original or creating die, or the plates used for the direct printing of the stamps, has been subjected to alternations intended usually to supply lines that have become worn and to bring forth the details of design more clearly; as the term implies, recutting or re-engraving signifies that a secondary process has produced on the die or plate, lines and details of design that approximate those shown originally. In some instances, the recutting may change the first design to a second, impressions from which will be radically different from the first printings. Redrawing means that a new die has been made which while following the general design of the old die is palpably a new variety; usually, the stamp that is redrawn is a modification in design of the prototype.

P. W.:—The complete sheet of the five pence, arms type, Jamaica, contains 240 stamps divided into four panes of sixty stamps each. (2) The distinguishing characteristics of toned paper are embodied in the noticeable "sizing" of the paper and a faint, elusive tint that it carries. In this connection, we quote: "There are two methods of sizing paper; one termed engine, and the other machine sizing. In the first case, the size is put into the beater engine or vat, and the paper is dried once for all at the machine; in the second, part of the size only is put into the beater, and then when the paper is dried, as I have described above, the dried paper passes through rollers, which are supplied with animal size, and then has to be dried a second time." "Size," it should be added, is a solution of gelatinous material, as glue, starch or rosin, used to glaze a surface, as of paper.

E. J. D.:—Surcharges in different colors usually are considered major and not minor varieties. (2) Common stamps are practically worthless, if torn or heavily canceled; stamps of better grades have their values radically reduced if in the condition named but it is a bit extreme to say that they are without any value, whatever. (3) "Block of four" means four stamps all attached to one another, arranged two vertically and two horizontally. "CC" means "crown and CC," the form of watermark that preceded the "crown and CA" watermark in the stamps of the British colonies. (4) "Specimen" stamps are those sold or distributed for non-postal use; they have the word "specimen" printed across their face. (5) The address of the Ohio State Journal is Columbus, Ohio.

E.:—At various times in the past, we have heard of a stamp, the three-cent, 1861, United States, surcharged, "CSA," but there has never been any disposition to take it seriously as an authentic variety of Confederate issue. Your recollection of having seen a reference to "this great rarity" is correct, without doubt, but, you know, you cannot believe everything that you see in the papers.

A correspondent sends us an interesting excerpt from a French stamp paper of 1895, "to prove that pre-cancellation was indulged in by Belgium many years before the United States employed the system: Art. 1. Postage stamps of one and two centimes are put on sale in certain post-offices, which are obliterated in advance for the prepayment of printed matter and newspapers. Act. 2. These stamps cannot be sold in quantities of less than 1,000 stamps. Art. 3. They are obliterated by a rolling stamp bearing the name of the office and the indication of the year of the obliteration. Until further orders, they are valid during that year, and the first month of the succeeding one. Art. 4. Articles prepaid by stamps obliterated in advance must be delivered at the window of the receiving-office in quantities of 1,000, at least. These stamps are not valid when affixed to articles put into the boxes."

A reader who has closely followed the remarks that have been made recently on the subject of double impressions or shifted die varieties sends us an extract from an article by J. N. Luff that appeared in the American Journal of Philately many years ago; our friend very properly calls attention to the process of "re-entering" as described by Mr. Luff as to its employment, some of the seeming double prints are to be attributed. Mr. Luff, after telling of the destructive qualities of mineral inks, especially, in steel-plate printing, says: "Steel plates are very expensive, and if they were to be thrown away whenever they become too much worn for further printing, the loss to those using them would be serious. To avoid this, they are re-entered, as it is termed. The process of re-entering consists of softening the plate and making fresh and deeper impressions of the design. When portions of the plate are not much worn, it may not be deemed necessary to re-enter, and there is nothing in the process to compel the whole plate to be so treated. The imprints, plate numbers, and guide lines for setting the impressions are seldom re-entered. The new impressions should occupy exactly the positions of the old. Occasionally, they get slightly out of place, and a double impression results, but these are of the greatest rarity. It has been said that the well-known variety of the five-cents New York, with double printing of the value, the 10 cents, 1847, with the words Post Office double, and the variety of the 5 cents Canada, 1859, are examples of this. I am, however, inclined to consider them the result of defective transfers in the original making of the plate."

T. C. M.:—The portrait on the new Luxemburg stamps is that of Grand Duke William. (2) A few of the 1898 documentary issue, United States, two-cent, passed through the post on envelopes on which no postage due was rated but this was clearly irregular as the stamps were intended for revenue purposes only; a cover such as you describe is of some interest but it cannot be given any particular value. (3) The one and two-cent adhesives, surcharge, I. R. inverted, 1898 revenue issue, are legitimate varieties and were not made for collectors; in the hurry of surcharging large numbers of the stamps, it was only natural that mistakes of this kind resulted.

EDITORIAL.

A Superlative—The rarest stamp in the world, that exemplar of the ultima thule of philately, the one cent black on magenta, 1856, British Guiana, only one specimen of which hitherto has been known to collectors, has been exploited from collecting time immemorial. It has been the subject of many newspaper articles in days gone by, some of which, needless to say, were wonderfully constructed, but in them, it was never forgotten to emphasize the fact that the stamp was the envied property of the "celebrated Parisian collector, Baron Ferrari," or words to that effect. Now, the sensational news is received that a Mr. Riley has found another copy of this stamp of stamps, in excellent condition, at Turnditch, England. A reader says: "It will be most interesting to know, in case the copy is put up at auction, what record-breaking price will be paid. We will hazard the guess that it will not be under five thousand pounds!" Few cataloguers have the temerity, or assurance, to place a valuation on this extreme rarity but in one work, the tentative figure of one thousand pounds is named for the rarest stamp in existence. If this second copy is offered for sale, imagination may run riot in price prediction, as never before in the history of stamp collecting has there been so large a number of ardent and wealthy collectors who are disposed to pay liberally for rarities of sterling grade and unimpeachable character, as at present. One effect of the discovery of this extra specimen will be to prove that the day of "finds" has not passed. Just as collectors become almost reconciled to the thought that the great rarities of classic kind are all included in the visible supply of such specimens, a startling find of a post office Mauritius, or, as in this instance is announced.

Good Idea—L. A. Beebe, Yonkers, New York, read an editorial in the issue dated September 21st, headed, He Has a System, and now sends the following suggestion. We are always pleased to give publicity to any plan, the simpler the more practical, that has for its object, the advertising of stamp collecting before the non-philatelic body: "In a recent issue, it was suggested that we older collectors should in a tactful way lead up to the subject of stamp collecting when entertaining visitors to our homes, who might be interested to take up the hobby if they were not already collectors. Something was said in a very neat way as to how we might so bring up the subject as to be asked to show our collections. It occurred to me while reading the article that a little scheme of my own would answer the purpose beautifully, although I had no such idea in mind when I put it into practice. When the Pan-American issue came out, I thought a sheet of one hundred nicely framed would make an inexpensive and pleasing wall decoration for the space over my desk in the den. I was so pleased with the result that I followed the same plan with Louisiana Purchase and Jamestown issues; they are quite generally admired and never fail to attract attention and elicit inquiries as to my interest in stamps and stamp collecting. Many other schemes for a frame of stamps can be worked out; an unused set of the 1893 Columbians arranged as in the International makes a fine wall decoration; so do a few choice original covers. Perhaps, the suggestion will appeal to some of your readers, if you care to set it before them." As a supplementary word, it is to be said that the stamp frames should never be hung so as to be exposed to the direct rays of the sun or even a strong light; otherwise there is danger of a decided fading of color.

On Probation—Every now and then, a new philatelic term or descriptive is noticed, and in some instances, it is welcomed and incorporated into the parlance of philately. It is remembered how the word "mint" was immediately accepted as happily describing a certain stamp condition and instantly accorded a place in the lexicon of philately, even though it could not be claimed by collectors as their distinctive property. "Post-office state" succeeded to a place in the philatelic dictionary and "part gum" is a comparatively recent addition that has attained some popularity. We now hear of "semi-varieties" and it is possible that the term will achieve a place among the standard descriptives of philately, and relieve the words "minor varieties" from some of the overwork to which they are subjected. As the prefix "semi" means "half" or "partly" its applicability becomes evident.

Money Back, Perhaps—Difficulties attend the progress of the collector who sends money direct to countries for their issues, as has been pointed out in the past. A French paper cites an example of the annoyance experienced by a philatelist who sent fifteen rupees to a postmaster of the Maldives for stamps that he wished to import. After a wait of many months, the correspondent heard from the postmaster, who conveyed his regrets, but sent no stamps; he said that the limited supply of the stamps on hand was intended for home consumption. All this was regular enough but the postmaster complacently said that he deducted five rupees "for expenses, etc.," and consequently returned but ten of the fifteen rupees sent originally. The amazement of the correspondent may be imagined upon reading of this cool proceeding; and he protests against the enterprise of the postmaster of the islands. Perhaps, he should be thankful that the "expenses" did not amount to over fifteen rupees and that he did not receive a bill for the deficit.

Called to Account—H. A. Croghan, San Diego, Cal., has written us an interesting letter from which we make a few excerpts: "In your issue of August 31st, Mr. Eliot Hiltman discourses very readily and ably on Peruvian stamps and the writer was much interested in the article. One remark does not reflect much knowledge of conditions in California, however; Mr. Hiltman says: 'Peru is a South American California, earthquakes and all.' Perhaps, Mr. Hiltman does not know that the earthquake in itself did very little damage to California, as authentic history will affirm." Mr. Croghan thinks, and fairly, that the numerous earthquake allusions indulged in generally should be discouraged. Speaking for Mr. Hiltman, whose article, it may be said in passing, was copied by a leading newspaper, we say that his reference to earthquakes was a chance remark that was not intended to carry any harsh or objectionable inference. He would be the last person to intentionally speak disparagingly of any section of our country, let alone one that combines so many virtues, not forgetting philatelic quality, as California.

Light Wanted—The conductress of a column of queries and information in a leading newspaper has been corrected on several occasions by philatelic readers when misstatements concerning stamps and stamp collecting were made in the department. One enterprising collector in submitting an explanation of the rationale of stamp collecting, ends his letter: "I shall be pleased to answer any 'philatelic' inquiry." His offer elicited the following acknowledgment: "I thank you heartily for the offer to answer queries relative to stamps. I am as arrant an ignoramus on that subject as with regard to old coins, dealing with both as present and active currency." Philately has fought its way to recognition as a staple pursuit and at least a passing knowledge of it is a requisite for the person who answers questions. We know of at least one instance where the editor of a question department of a big newspaper, who at first knew nothing whatever of stamp collecting but who upon the receipt of several inquiries about it, took the pains to study the rudiments of the hobby so as to be able to answer questions intelligently.

A PHILADELPHIA FIND.

By A. F. Henkels.

In the fore part of March, 1903, there was in Philadelphia a notable find of the stamps of Modena and Tuscany, amongst the old correspondence of the firm of Vito Viti & Son, importers. The full authentic account of this important find is herewith given.

Of the first issue of Modena there were nine of the 5c, seventy-seven of the 10c, twenty-seven of the 15c, fifty-two of the 25c, one hundred and eighty-seven of the 40c and one hundred of the scarce 1 lira.

Of the first issue of Tuscany there was one of the 1s, forty-five of the 1c, twelve of the 2c, nine of the 4c, twenty-one of the 6c, one hundred and eighty of the 9c, and eight of the 60c. Of the Provisional Government issue there were two of the 20c, sixteen of the 40c and two of the 80c.

All of the above stamps, both of Modena and Tuscany, were in various combinations used on the original covers with letters attached, and consisted of 254 covers in all. There were some of the scarce errors of spelling in the first issue of Modena, and two horizontal strips of three of the 1 lira, and amongst the Tuscan stamps there were two unsevered pairs of the 60c. There was also a good selection of early Italian stamps, and taking it all in all, it was the most important find of these scarce and interesting stamps that has occurred in recent years. The correspondence had fallen into the hands of a dealer in old paper, and was rescued by the finder just in the nick of time to prevent it from going to the pulp mill. Every letter with the accompanying stamp was in a fine state of preservation, having been folded and endorsed at the time of receipt, and having rested all these years in the original packages until they fell into the hands of the finder.

A CURIOUS COINCIDENCE.

The Head of a Cook Plainly Discernible on the New Iceland Stamps.

The readers of the Weekly will not soon forget the fact that the much exploited death mask on the Servian set was first announced in our columns, J. H. Lyons of the Boston Philatelic Society being entitled to the honor of the discovery. We have now to announce another curious discovery, this time by Geo. S. Dates, Jr., of N. Y. City, and none other than the head of a cook on the new stamps of Iceland.

Take any value, turn the stamp upside down and the outline at the left will upon study bring out the head mentioned, the features being very distinct. The nose forms the chin and mouth, the moustache doing its own duty, the chin making the nose, the lower end of the side whiskers forming the eyes and the neck and base forming the cap.

The line cut that we use does not begin to do justice to this freak of the engravers' art. It is a reproduction of another illustration and the fine lines shown in the stamp itself are here somewhat blunted or lost. Take the stamp itself and lay a piece of paper over the right hand portion of the stamp just outside of A in AUR and through the centre of final I in FRIMERKI and you will catch the likeness very readily.

OUR REVIEW.

We have received from L. Harald Kjellstedt, American representative of the Philatelic Society of Sweden, a neat little pamphlet of convenient pocket size entitled Bibliography of the Most Important Special Works upon the Postage Stamps of Individual Countries. This is a reprint of the list, compiled by Rud. Krasemann, which has been appearing in the Society's journal, the Svensk Filatelistisk Tidskrift. The work was intended especially for those students of philately whose inclinations might lead them to go deeply into the issues of some favorite countries, and who therefore would be desirous of knowing what special works there might be to help them in their study. It took sixteen months of correspondence with various authors, translators, societies and sundry philatelists to obtain the material set forth, and Americans will be glad to note that the Catalogue of Philatelic Works in the Boston Public Library, issued by the Boston Society, is credited with valuable assistance.

The pamphlet itself contains 45 pages, and is interleaved with blanks which will enable corrections and additions to be easily noted by the possessor. The lists are arranged under sub-headings, e. g., Afghanistan, Africa, France and Colonies, etc., so that any group or country is readily accessible. Following the heading, the list is alphabetical by authors' names, and the complete title is given in its original form without translation. Then follows the form of the book, number of pages, illustrations, plates, number of edition, place of publication and date, with any other necessary descriptive matter.

To say that the pamphlet "fills a long felt want" is in this case perfectly justifiable, as there is no list of this scope and convenience in existence as far as we know. It is intended to bring out a further edition when the amount of additional matter warrants it, and we are sure that all interested in philatelic literature will lend their assistance to the author. This branch of philately is growing in importance and such a work therefore becomes indispensable. The work is published at 35 cents, and can be obtained of L. Harald Kjellstedt, Scranton, Pa.

The Postage Stamps of Sarawak.—We have received from Chas. Nissen & Co., London, a copy of this handbook written by Fred J. Melville, and concerning which notice has already appeared in the philatelic press. The book consists of nearly 100 pages, neatly printed and very fully illustrated with collotype plates. The various issues are treated from the standpoint of the specialist, errors and varieties being listed in extenso. A couple of chapters are devoted to postal statistics and notifications, helping to round out what will be a very useful guide to the stamps of Sarawak. The price is 25c Published by Chas. Nissen & Co., 7 Southampton Row, W. C., London, England.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Frederic C. DePuy writes that he has seen a couple copies of the new 2c envelope in which the vertical stroke of the "T" in "United" projects above the horizontal line. The head also differs from the normal. They are in the dark color characteristic of the earliest printings. All the letters and the oval lines are thinner than in the later copies.

BOSNIA.—The 5h pictorial stamp has been issued in a new color.

Adhesive.

5h yellow green.

COLOMBIA.—Bolivar.—In addition to the varieties chronicled in No. 875 for Cucuta and Santander, Ewen's Weekly gives a long list of varieties from this department, but as there is some doubt as to whether they are genuine stamps or only printers' waste, we refrain from chronicling them. It is enough to say that the 50c, 1p, 5p and 10p of the 1903 issue have been found in new colors on paper of as many varying shades as Joseph's Coat. The Retardo, Registration and A. R. stamps have also been included in the distribution of new colors of paper.

CRETE.—Gibbons' Weekly says that the new 25l and 1dr noted in No. 875 were issued Aug. 28. The old 1dr of the 1905 issue may still be used, but the 25l of both the 1900 and 1905 issues are no longer available for postage, the remaining copies outstanding in the Island having been called in.

DENMARK.—Following the lead of the adhesives, the cards now come with the portrait of King Frederick. Otherwise there is no change. Mr. Schachne has shown us the following.

Post Cards.

5 ore green on white.
10 ore red on buff.

Letter Card.

5 ore green on white.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—We have been shown the rupee values of the current set on chalky multiple paper, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

ECUADOR.—Gibbons' Weekly reports that several of the long fiscal stamps have been seen with overprint like Scott's Nos. 376 to 380, but with date changed to "1907 y 1908." The surcharge is in black.

Provisional Adhesives.

1c deep brown.
2c carmine.
5c green.
10c black.

EGYPT.—J. Leiblinger has shown us a complete used set of the new official stamps, with overprint of "O. H. H. S." and native characters.

Sudan.—The new 4m, issued a short time ago, has already had its color changed, according to L'Echo.

Adhesive.

4m brown and red.

FRANCE.—The 10c Semeuse, without ground, has been overprinted "F. M."

HONG KONG.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 30c and 50c on chalky multiple paper.

ICELAND.—The Nordisk Filatelistisk Tidskrift lists the following stationery with stamps of the new design.

Post Cards.

3a yellow brown and gray.
3x3a yellow brown and gray.
5a green.
5x5a green.
8a red lilac.
8x8a red lilac.
10a red.
10x10a red.

Letter Cards.

4a gray and red.
10a red and gray.

ITALY.—L'Annonce Timbrologique learns that the printing of the new 15c (with portrait facing the right) has been stopped, as it is found to be too expensive. The stamp is to be replaced by another in the same design as the current 5c and 10c.

Offices in Crete.—In No. 847 were noticed the issue with surcharge "La Canea" across the stamp of 1903. Mr. Schachne now reports the receipt of the later issue having the current stamp (with head to left) and the surcharge (which appears in same type as before) below, instead of across the stamp.

Post Cards.

5c green x 10c carmine on gray "06."
10c carmine on white "06."

JAMAICA.—The 5d orange and black has been shown us on chalky multiple paper, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

LUXEMBURG.—Three more values in the new set have been shown us by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

Adhesives.

15c brown red
37½c green.
50c brown.

MONTENEGRO.—The Monthly Circular reports the additions to the new set chronicled in Nos. 863 and 875.

Adhesives.

1kr carmine.
2kr green.
5kr red brown.

Envelopes.

10pa carmine on white.
25pa blue on yellowish.

Wrappers.

5pa green on yellowish.
10pa carmine on yellow.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—Ewen's Weekly notes that the ½d and 4d have also appeared on the Victorian type of Crown A paper, in addition to those previously chronicled.

NEW ZEALAND.—According to Ewen's Weekly the 3d has been reduced in size, like the 6d previously chronicled. The design is the same as before, but smaller. The stamp is watermarked NZ over Star, and perf. 14.

Adhesive.

3d yellow brown.

NICARAGUA.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. reports that a new surcharge has just been received, 5 peso stamp, American print, having been surcharged to serve as a 1 peso stamp. It is understood that the surcharge is similar to the high values recently surcharged on official stamps. Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have also shown us this stamp.

Provisional Adhesive.

1p on 5p dull violet.

NORTHERN NIGERIA.—The London Philatelist notes that ½d purple and green has been issued on chalky multiple paper.

ORANGE RIVER COLONY.—The ½d yellow green stamp with King's Head has been issued on multiple paper, and a copy has been shown us by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

ROUMANIA.—The Illustriertes Briefmarken Journal chronicles the 25b oblong pictorial in ultramarine and black, instead of pale blue and black.

SALVADOR.—Champion's Bulletin notes another value of the current set with ex-President Escalon's face obliterated with "Shield and Anchor" overprint.

Provisional Adhesive.

With face obliterated.
3c yellow and black.

SOUTHERN NIGERIA.—Ewen's Weekly chronicles the 1d all in one color on white paper.

Adhesive.

1d rose.

SPAIN.—Madrid Filatelica reports that a special issue was made for use at the postoffice in the Madrid Exposition, the values being the same as those of the regular set, and the stamps having portraits of King Alphonse XIII and his Queen.

TUNIS.—A reply post card has been issued with stamp of the current adhesive type.

Post Card.

10x10c red on blue.

TURKEY.—We have been shown by J. Leiblinger, a copy of the current 20pa carmine, with the design printed plainly on the back, though reversed.

URUGUAY.—Philip H. Ward, Jr., reports that he has seen the 50c in the type of the new 5c stamp.

Adhesive.

50c carmine.

VICTORIA.—J. Leiblinger has shown us a curious variety of Scott's No. 75, the 2d. gray lilac, on paper watermarked single lined "2", in which the value at the bottom shows a very pronounced double strike.

Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us the 1d carmine on paper watermarked Crown A and perf. 11.

NOTES UPON U. S. STAMPS AND THEIR VARIETIES.

By Geo. L. Toppan.

Published by courtesy of the Scott Stamp and Coin Co., to whom we are also indebted for loan of cuts.

Reprints—1847 Series.

When it was desired to reprint these stamps in 1875, it was found that, owing to the original dies and plates having been the property of the contractors, Rawdon, Wright, Hatch & Edson, of New York, who had destroyed them after the termination of their contract, it would be necessary to have new dies and plates prepared. This was done, so that, strictly speaking, these stamps are not reprints, but official counterfeits. They differ from the originals in many points, the following being the most notable. They are slightly shorter and wider than the originals. The initials "R. W. H. & E." at the bottom of each stamp are quite indistinct and it is usually difficult to tell what some of the letters are intended to be. They may be further distinguished by the following points:

5c.—In the originals the background of the medallion is formed of vertical and horizontal lines: In the reprints the vertical lines are either very indistinct or entirely wanting. In the originals the left side of the white shirt frill touches the frame of the oval on a level with the top of the "F" of "FIVE", while, in the reprints, it touches the oval opposite the top of the figure "5".

10c.—In the reprints the line of the mouth is too straight and there is a sleepy look about the eyes. The white collar is so heavily shaded as to be barely distinguishable from the collar of the coat. In the hair, near the left cheek, there is a lock which apears like a very small, white circle with a black dot in the center; this is not found in the originals. On the originals there are four horizontal lines between the "CE" of "CENTS" and the lower line of the central oval. On the reprints there are five lines in the same space, the upper line touching the oval and the lower one the top of the letters "CE".

Fig. 53

3c. Die 1.—This die has short labels with curved ends which come close to the inscriptions. There are ten loops in the ornamentation on the left side and nine on the right. (Fig. 52.)

3c. Die 2.—Short labels with straight ends. Eight and one-half loops on the left side and nine on the right. (Fig. 53.)

This die, with the inscription suitably altered, was also used for the six cent value and one of the ten cent values.

Fig. 55

3c. Die 3.—Short labels with straight ends having a diagonal line at each corner. Eight and one half loops on the left side and nine on the right. (Fig. 54.)

3c. Die 4.—The upper label is very long with straight ends. There are seven loops on each side. (Fig. 55.)

This die was also used for the second die of the ten cent value, the proper alteration, of course, being made in the inscriptions.

Fig. 56

3c. Die 5.—The labels are as in die 1 but longer. There are nine loops on the left side and eight and one-half on the right. (Fig. 56.)

1857-60.

1c.—There are two distinct varieties of this stamp. One has a period after the word "POSTAGE", while the other lacks it. There are, also, several minor variations, both of this and the three cent value, which are solely dependent upon the relative position of the bust in the central oval to the inscriptions. These, however, are not sufficiently prominent, or of enough interest, to warrant a detailed description in this connection.

2c. Die 1.—This variety, generally catalogued as "Large figure 2", has decidedly large and heavy numerals of value. The flag of the numeral joins the down stroke of the stem about one mm. above its lower end. (Fig. 57.)

2c. Die 2.—This, comonly known as the "Small figure 2", is easily distinguished from die 1 by the numeral of value. It is thinner and the flag starts abruptly from the lower end of the down stroke of the stem, leaving an appreciable space between the strokes. (Fig. 58.)

Fig. 60

1c. Die 1.—This is the common die. The old fashioned choker which encircles Franklin's neck is decidedly notched where it meets the slope of the chin and, also, to a less degree, where it meets the bust. Thus showing a decided projection between the chin and the bust. (Fig. 59.)

1c. Die 2.—The projection between the chin and the bust is lacking the choker forming a perfectly straight line between the two points. (Fig. 60.)

1c. Die A.—The bust is rather large and the front is twice as far from the frame as is the back which nearly touches the frame-line. The top of the head is much further from the frame-line than either point of the bust. The engine-turned work is very irregular; generally showing sharp outer ends to the loops and many of the dots missing.

The "o" of "POSTAGE" has a large center, either plain or containing a small oval or dot. The "o" of "ONE" has a large center, with dot, scratch, small oval, or plain. The period after "U" is sometimes round, sometimes blurred. That after "S" is a triangle or blurred. There is much space above the numerals; the dots on the bottom bars are small and very near the border, but far from the stem. (Fig. 61.)

1c. Die B.—The workmanship is much superior to that of die A. The bust, also, is smaller and inclines forward much more. The spaces between the front, back, and top of the bust and the frame line are wide and nearly equal; the "o" of "POSTAGE" has an oval center which is crossed by two, intersecting lines. The left side of the "o" of "ONE" is too thick and its center is oval. The engine turning is more regular and the ends of the loops are more pointed than in die A. There is considerable space over the numerals and the dots on the lower bars are distant from the stem. The periods are both round. (Fig. 62.)

1874.

2c. Die A.—The workmanship is very poor. The numerals, which are in circles, are very thin and badly shaped. They begin with a very small dot at the top and end with a line at the foot of the down stroke. The "o" of "POSTAGE" has a large round center which is crossed by two intersecting lines. The base of the bust has four square corners and the periods are nearly round. (Fig. 63.)

Fig. 64

2c. Die B.—The workmanship is much superior to that of Die A. The numerals are in ovals instead of in circles and the "o" of "TWO" has a plain center. (Fig. 64.)

2c. Die B2.—This differs from die B only in that the tail of the left hand numeral of value touches the frame-line of the oval. (Fig. 65.)

1874.

1874. 2c. Die B3.—Another variety of die B, and differing from it only in that the center of the "o" of "TWO" contains two crossed lines. (Fig. 66.)

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to oreak the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

FELLOW MEMBERS:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

PERCIVAL PARRISH, Sales Supt.,
1204 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.

1500 MEMBERS WANTED.

To attain this mark means hard work but this is our aim and when we meet next year in Columbus you will want a share in the credit. Then go after that friend and secure his application.

To illustrate the spirit that is actuating certain members of the recruiting committee we quote the following from a letter just at hand from D. T. Eaton: — "I am going to guarantee four applications for this year, if I have to pay for them myself." From all sides come promises of hearty co-operation in the work of recruiting of the association.

Four new names are added this week to the "Four Applications Guaranteed," and this does not include the name of Mr. Eaton, who was appointed as a member of the original committee. There is still room for a few more and we shall be glad to hear from you if you mean business. We want workers and not wall flowers.

The auction catalogue of B. L. Drew & Co. contains a page advertisement of the A. P. A. This is, however, no unusual thing, for Mr. Drew last year gave more space, advertising the association, than any other dealer. We shall be pleased to recognize courtesies of this kind wherever extended.

R. S. Nelson of Birmingham, Ala., sending in his dues adds $1.80 towards recruiting expenses. What do you think of that? The committee calls it tangible appreciation of its efforts in recruiting and all the more appreciated because it comes unsolicited.

Send for a copy of that handsome booklet just issued.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. M. SCHORMAN, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The sixty-seventh regular meeting, postponed from Tuesday, Oct. 1st, was held Friday, Oct. 4th, 1907, at usual time and place, Vice-President Humes presiding, 11 members present and one visitor, Mr. Goerke. B. G. Johnson was elected as member No. 59. Jno. A. Francisco was reinstated as member No. 10.

The entertainment of the evening was provided by Mr. Diamant, Chairman of the Temporary Entertainment Committee, in this form: Each member was asked to draw from memory the one cent stamp of the current issue, U. S., and the 2½d stamp current issue, Great Britain, indicating all important features of the design, no credit whatsoever being allowed for artistic drawings, thus placing all on an even basis. Several highly amusing conceptions of these very common stamps resulted and the two winning entries submitted by Messrs. Long and Millhouse were awarded equal shares of the prizes. For the second contest a list of twenty U. S. postage stamps was read and contestants required to write the colors in which these stamps were printed. The list submitted by Mr. Myers was declared winner.

A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Wood for his very kind invitation to all members to attend as his guests, a lecture by Gen'l Booth. The Entertainment Committee for next meeting, Messrs. Millhouse, Humes and Kring, promise a highly entertaining evening. Next meeting Tuesday, Oct. 15th, 8 P. M., Rooms 803-805 Wright Bldg. All members and other collectors are cordially invited.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

REMINISCENCES OF AN OLD TIMER.

By G. de LACHASSE.

It was in 1857 or 1858, living in Paris my birthplace and then a mere lad, that I was at first struck with the stamp fever, which at once proved to be incurable. Stamp collecting was not then in as high an esteem as it now is; it was looked upon as a kind of inoffensive "distraction"; and many a grown up collector when asking for or buying stamps, invariably did so in behalf of some boy and would have blushed at the thought of being known as a stamp collector.

Almost from the beginning forgeries were nearly as numerous as genuine stamps and were to be seen everywhere; every tobacco shop had them for sale at the uniform price of 15 centimes (3 cents). Those were the grand old days of philatelic frauds, for alas! MEKEEL'S WEEKLY was not there to warn the unwary not to steer our beloved ship among the rocks and the fog. In fact with the exception of a very small monthly published by Arthur Maury, philately's realm was at that time about as little known as the dark continent. However, towards 1866 stamp collecting began to be thought of more favorably, and I often saw gentlemen buying stamps for their own collections from our then two leading Parisian dealers, Arthur Maury, whose shop was "rue St. Lazare"; and Pierre Mahé, then "rue de Clichy," and who afterwards cared for (and may still) the world renowned collection of Philippe de Ferrari. Both of those amiable gentlemen must be pretty old now. At that time also the famous stamp bourse, held every Sunday in the Champs Elysées, was very active. There I went many a Sunday afternoon, either to make a good bargain or to be fleeced,—more generally the latter; — for many bogus stamps were floated on the market, finding eager buyers. Among the stamps most in favor, those of the United States were holding the first place, on account of their fine engraving, as well as of the friendly ties that have always united my native to my adopted country. U. S. envelopes too, notably the 1861 4 cents, were very much sought after. As a matter of course in those early times, envelopes were always cut very close or to shape. I remember I had many of the early U. S. envelopes, but I did not (nor did anyone else) pay any attention to the difference of dies; our modern genius, Mr. Berthold, had not yet revolutioned the collecting of U. S. envelopes.

Speaking of envelopes, I might say here that in 1866, there was a project of issuing stamped envelopes for France. Three very handsome dies, two embossed and one for surface printing, were engraved by Mr. Renard, and some essays were struck therefrom at the large imperial printing establishment of Paul Dupont; but somehow the idea was abandoned. I have still in my collection a few of those very interesting essays.

In 1875, circumstances obliged me to part with my collections, which would now represent a fortune, and I came to New York. When in the following year, I again submitted to the gentle yoke of philately, I soon found out that stamp collecting was more openly indulged in in this country than in France, though collectors did not know much of each other as yet. Of course the first dealer I became acquainted with was the "Father of Philately," our genial John W. Scott, who was then doing business in a basement on Nassau Street. I also knew very well Wm. P. Brown, well known at that time through his small but very interesting publication, The Curiosity Cabinet. In addition to his pretty large stamp business, he started in 1876 a kind of local post, which did not meet with much success. If my memory serves me well he had his offices (two rooms) on the top floor of 145 Nassau Street in the N. Y. World Building, which had also an entrance on Park Row. He had a very efficient assistant in Miss Ella Small, who had such a narrow escape from a fearful death when the building was burned down.

About 1880, I made the acquaintance of the well known N. F. Seebeck; he was then in a small basement at 97 Wall Street, where he had his engraving shop, and incidentally dealt in stamps. I still have in my collection two post office envelopes addressed to him, and which he gave me. I seldom met a gentleman more courteous than Mr. Seebeck was.

In those distant days it was much easier than now, as far as money is concerned to build up a fine U. S. collection. For instance $25 would have bought all the

THE REVISED LIST for this season's Auction Sale Catalogs is now being tabulated. For several years we have mailed a very large complimentary list to well known collectors and others all of which will this year be discontinued.

Our regular list of auction buyers has grown so large that we are compelled to drop out all non-buyers or those that send in bids at very rare intervals or desire catalogs only for their library. We will, however, continue the service of mailing catalogs to non-buyers on receipt of 25c per year.

All orders for our large "Selections by Countries on Approval" are now filled and we can accommodate a number more of consistant and liberal buyers. Each stamp in these selections is catalogued, priced and marked net, put up in neat style for the busy man. 1907 cat. prices still prevail.

now rare department stamps, with the exception however, of the three higher State values; and a set of the 1875 Periodical stamps from 1c to $1.92 inclusive, now so hard to get, was openly sold by Scott for $5. Ah! these were the good old days for bargains! Envelopes were not then in great favor, and were still collected either cut square or to shape; such collectors as were collecting them entire being but a few. I can say I have never mutilated an envelope, and always gathered them in their original state. I remember I got at the old post office on Nassau Street, some very good 1874 Plimptons that were still for sale at the window. There was also, about at the same time or a little later, on Nassau near Maiden Lane, a small money broker who used to sell at face, by the single specimen or in quantity, the now scarce 1875-81 rouletted proprietaries, as well as stamped envelopes, some of them quite obsolete, and several then current but now rare, among them for instance the 1879 5c blue on buff No. 7. How few collectors have availed themselves of those opportunities, or even paid attention to that shop!

Towards the latter part of 1879 or early in 1880, I am not quite sure, the "penalty" envelopes came into use. I at once began to gather all that came my way, and I can assure you that at the present time, some of the earliest used are hard to find, to say the least. Though that branch of our U. S. philately is a very interesting one, I have seldom if ever heard of any one collecting these official envelopes, their bona fide character notwithstanding.

In 1889, being unable to devote enough of my time to a general collection, I disposed of all my foreign stamps and entires, henceforth collecting but the United States of America and France, and their dependencies. I have since added to them a rather complete collection of the Roman States, as a sort of personal protest against the infidel government of France.

As the years rolled by, stamp collecting has become more and more in favor as well as in honor, and little can, so to speak, be now added to our philatelic knowledge. During all the long years of my collecting life, I have been in contact with a number of philatelists, collectors and dealers alike, some of whom have already preceded me into the beyond; and in these after years, the remembrance of those relations will bring me pleasant recollections; for as the saying goes, "once a collector, always a collector." According to these words of Keats, quoted some time ago by the WEEKLY, we all know that: —

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever,
Its loveliness increases, it will never Pass into nothingness" . . . .

OHIO COLLECTORS TO ORGANIZE.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 14.—On the initiative of F. D. Goodhue, of Cincinnati, attorney of the American Philatelic Association, the Columbus Collectors' Club tonight issued a call for a meeting on Wednesday, October 23, of all stamp collectors in the state, to be held in this city. The purpose of the meeting is to establish a state association.

NOTES ON ENVELOPES.

Edited by LOUIS G. BARRETT.

Any notes in the way of discoveries, explanation of dies or new issues, either of our own or foreign countries, or other matters of interest to envelope collectors will be greatly appreciated and acknowledged if sent to me at 754 Centre Street, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

There will be no newspaper wrapper of the 4c denomination in the design of the new issue of 1907. According to a circular issued by the P. O. department, all requisitions for this item will be filled from the old stock, issue of 1903, of which there is a large supply on hand; and when this is exhausted no more will be printed. This large-sized wrapper was introduced to facilitate the mailing of the Sunday editions of newspapers, but the above announcement would seem to indicate that it was not much in demand.

Within the past year the 2c wrapper was found printed on a peculiar flakey paper unwatermarked. The impression was from the original die. Recently Mr. Lachasse writes me that he has seen the Post Office "Penalty" envelopes, Sizes 3 and 7, on manila, showing the penalty watermark No. 10; and the latter, Size 7, on the same flakey paper, unwatermarked, as noted for the 2c wrapper. He also calls attention to a change in "wording," as well as the "types of letters" in the penalty inscription.

The recent suggestion of the Post Office department, to have the names of the larger post offices either surcharged upon the adhesives, or incorporated in the designs themselves, is fortunately not likely to be carried out; but did it ever occur to the collector that practically every post office in the country already has its own envelopes? I refer to the ones known as "Office request" envelopes. As to their local character, what can be more conclusive than the following,—1st, they are printed to order on the requisition of the postmaster of such sizes, colors and denominations as he shall specify from the schedule; 2d, they can only be purchased at the office issuing them; 3rd, if the party addressed is not found the letter returns to office of issue. While I should hesitate to suggest collecting envelopes of this nature as separate varieties, yet they have a certain amount of interest which cannot be entirely ignored.

Type 68, Size 13, appears to be the hardest variety to find of the 1903 re-engraved dies, and as I have had several requests for a more explicit description than was furnished in the published list, I will endeavor to do so here:—

(a) The lower lobe at right end of lower ribbon is nearly horizontal but is triangular in form with its narrowest part towards the stem connecting it with the ribbon.
(b) The lower lobe at left end of lower ribbon is narrow and slants up.
(c) The inner border line about the large numeral 2 in upper right corner is very uneven.
(d) The lower line of lower ribbon under CE of CENTS is very irregular.
(e) The line indicating the reverse fold of the right end of the upper ribbon, immediately to the left of E of POSTAGE, is higher than the fold itself, curving down to meet it as in Types 43 and 76.
(f) Three teeth over AT of STATES extend into upper line of ribbon.

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY,
PERCIVAL PARRISH, MGR. EUGENE KLEIN, ASST. MGR.
1204 CHESTNUT ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

in Types 32 and 101, both on Size 5. Cannot some correspondent extend this list? Other types were in all probability used, especially on "Office request" orders from offices in the archipelago; and as now that a distinctive issue of envelopes for the islands is practically assured and the dies are being engraved, it is necessary to have all the information we can in regard to the 1903 issue, surcharged for use there.

I have noticed from time to time the past month, references to die varieties of the 1907 or current issue envelopes. In the last number of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY at hand, bearing date of Oct. 5, considerable space in the "Chronicle of New Issues" column was given to descriptions of these variations by Messrs. K. P. Smith and P. H. Hill. Some of my correspondents had noticed these same variations over a month ago, and I stated in my notes of Sept 14, that only one die had been engraved and that these variations were due to faulty workmanship. Since then I have found that these differences were caused by printing from copper "electros" in addition to the steel working dies, as there were not enough of these latter to meet the demands on the presses. The softer copper spreads, flattens, blisters or cracks under the pressure exerted and thus causes the extreme variations now so noticeable. As soon as more steel working dies can be furnished these copper make-shifts will be abandoned. I will give here the characteristics of the type most easily found outside the normal Type A:—

1907 Issue, Type B (not "Die" B) two cents:
(a) The O of ONE is round instead of oval.
(b) The C of CENTS is round and more open than in Type A.
(c) The stem of T of CENTS slants towards the S; in Type A it slants towards the N.
(d) The S of CENTS has a smaller curved top than in Type A.
(e) Numerals of value are of nearly an even width throughout.
(f) The T of UNITED has similar characteristics to the T in CENTS.

Type B (sub-variety 1).
There is a well defined period between TWO of CENTS.

Type B (sub-variety 2).
There is a nearly vertical line extending from the lower point of bust downward between TWO and CENTS and across outer colored border line. Mr. Mitchell says this is due to a cracked "copper" die.

Type B (sub-variety 3).
A blister on an "electro" has caused a large addition to the forehead of Washington, giving him the appearance of having appropriated Franklin's head.

Another result of the use of the copper dies has been the appearance of recent printings in a seal-brown color, entirely unlike the red-browns of earlier date; due to chemical action on the pigment by the copper. It is a rich brown with no reddish cast at all, and this shade will be useful in distinguishing the later printings from the copper dies, should they be afterwards discarded. In other words keep everything that comes to hand in this issue; one cannot tell what next may happen.

The following appeared in the Boston Transcript for October 5th:—

"HARTFORD, CONN.

"The Hartford Mfg. Co. has been notified that it has lost the contract which it held for supplying the official envelopes for offices in the postal service. The contract has been awarded to the United States Paper Good Co. of Cincinnati, a new concern, which underbid the local company by about $11,000 on the four years' contract."

From a long despatch to the Boston Herald from Washington, under date of Oct. 6th, the information is obtained that up to some months previous to the expiration of its contract of 1903 the Hartford Mfg. Co. had been supplied, it is stated by the paper makers, with a poorer quality of paper than called for by the specifications of its contract. By this change the company had wrongfully benefited to the extent of about $425,000, on its four years' contract. For several months previous to July 1st, 1907, however, the paper used, it is stated, was up to the contract requirements. Under the specifications of the present contract, the formula as to the quality of the paper was changed to a slightly lower grade, a small proportion of sulphite being used with the rags—which does not affect the weight or strength. Previously all rag paper was called for.

In this connection it is interesting to note that I called attention to a change in the paper being used, in my notes under date of April 6th. This paper, with its slightly changed watermark, must then, according to the above despatch, have been of the superior quality mentioned as having been furnished for the last months of the Hartford Company's contract.

Again the "orange" varieties of the 1899 issue are being attacked. This time, I understand it is the intention of the publishers of the Standard Catalogue to omit them entirely from their next edition. It is hard to understand why this step has been taken as their authenticity had been pretty carefully proved, both by affidavit and experiment. It was pretty thoroughly shown at a previous time when their status was questioned, that it was impossible to change by chemical or other means, the aniline coloring matter of the ink, from carmine to orange. Prominent chemists here in Boston made an extensive series of experiments at that time to see if the color could be changed by artificial means, and failed utterly to produce such a change in color without at the same time destroying or changing the paper itself. The fact that the paper of these envelopes bearing the orange impressions is in no ways different in texture or appearance from the other envelopes of the period leads to the same conclusion, viz., that they were printed in orange as found. If such a disposition is to be made of these varieties, why cannot the same be done with the scarlet printings of the 1903 issue? Surely no doubt has been expressed as to their genuineness, and yet the conditions are the same. Carmine cannot be changed to orange; it can be faded out to rose or pink, but will never encroach on the vermilion and orange side of the color scale, as there is no yellow pigment in carmine.

Here is another new type of the retouched dies of 1903:—

Type 140, (Size on W).
(a) There are but two shade-lines in either end of lower ribbon; the outer one at the left end extends into upper line of ribbon while the inner one extends into the lower line. At the right end of ribbon, both lines extend upwards into upper line of ribbon.
(b) PO of POSTAGE touch; N of UNITED is tall, also W of TWO.
(c) Second T of STATES shows remnants of the old top-bar below the new one.
(d) Saw teeth are mostly detached from each other.

A FORTUNE LOST

because I didn't have the $1 to have my ad copyrighted. But it's too late, and yet it's well I did not, for I never would have known how great I am? In a recent issue of the Philatelic Journal of India the editor copies the entire heading of my two ads. "ALWAYS IN TROUBLE" and "DON'T EAT" and then calls them funny, and adds, "That prince of humorist, Mark Twain, need not worry about a successor, D. T. Eaton of Iowa is coming along." (Going some would sound more familiar to we Americans.) Will somebody take something on me, especially some of the following stamps.

EDITORIAL.

Changes Certain—The change in postage rates, effective October 1st, 1907, governing the interchange of mail between the countries of the postal union will have a direct influence on the use of high values of postage stamps, as by the new ruling the first ounce of letter weight is charged at five cents and additional ounces or fractions thereof at three cents each. Thus it is seen that while the innovation is favorable to the general public by its saving advantage, the philatelic effect will be to decrease the use of high values and indeed render the necessity for the highest values practically void. Ewen's Weekly Stamp News submits a table comparing the old with the new rates, from which it is seen that the new tariff imposes charges that are less than one-third of the old, on an average, when the weight reaches six ounces or over. A second table of postage rates between Great Britain and its colonies shows a uniform reduction of one-half in the price of postage. It is said by our contemporary that the change is a "revolution,—an event of far-reaching importance to stamp collectors," and it asks, "Are high values doomed?" As illustrating the scheme of the new rates, it is said: "This means that a used one pound British postage stamp will now become practically as rare as a strip of three has been hitherto, whilst the ten shilling stamp will be less used than the one pound was up to the present day." As affecting the rates between Great Britain and colonies: "To require a one pound stamp, a letter must in future weigh ten pounds or fifteen pounds, according as it is sent to a foreign country or British colony and it is safe to say that very few letters of that weight are carried. The five shilling stamp will be less used than the one pound was formerly. Ten-penny stamps will be as rare as two shilling, six pence ones. Another result may be the issue of one shilling, six pence and two shilling stamps. In the case of British Colonies, the use of high value stamps for postage purposes will become almost nil. Such stamps as the recently issued surcharged five and ten shilling Morocco Agencies and five shilling Levant will now be rarely used, and having been so short a time in use, should become very rare, especially if withdrawn from use. It is obvious that quite a revolution is to take place." There must be some radical results to follow the marked readjustment of postal union rates; the lower plane certainly will restrict the use of high values and make the issue of new denominations advisable, arguing from the most conservative standpoint.

Submitted—Commenting on the news embodied in the preceding remarks, the Colonial Stamp Company, Chicago, says: "A moral in buying becomes obvious, and it is: Buy all stamps as they are issued. There appears to have been several revolutions in the last five years in the way of British colonials, but the latest upheaval embraces all the world." From the same source, we have received a new issue, just as we go to press, that we believe has made its appearance unannounced, as yet; the stamp in question is the current king's head one penny Cayman Islands surcharged in black, "One Halfpenny" in two lines; and now the neat issues of this country include an unexpected surcharge.

Playing Safe—It is well to buy as a collector the new issues as they appear, regarding the stamps in their philatelic aspect and not as a source of money-making or speculative profit. The speculator in the new issues, who pecks here and there invites danger but the collector who gets his single specimen and covers the entire collecting surface is on safe ground and has stretched to the maximum the possibility of making the purchase of some stamps, at a nominal price over face value, that rapidly appreciate in cost. The latest number of the London Philatelist ends its leading editorial with a paragraph that approves this observation: "We counsel collectors to collect or specialize new issues, if they so will, but not to accumulate with a view to ultimate profit, as they are assuredly rushing in where dealers fear to tread." As to the statement that dealers are not prone to stock new issues heavily, different reasons have been advanced to account for the restrictive tendency. First of all, the material consideration that an unlimited amount of capital would be required to consistently follow the plan, is an obstacle. Then, the close figure at which the new issues are sold has its influence and inclines dealers not to rely too much upon the business in this department. It was the common cry of English dealers that their stocks of king's heads, single CA's for instance, were so small that they were depleted almost so soon as the demand for the stamps in question rose above the normal; they regarded the single CA's merely as ordinary new issues such as they stocked in a small way.

An Investigation—The newspapers say that "the postmaster-general at Washington today turned over to the department of justice, all the information at hand on which was based the suspension of the payment of $140,000 due from the postoffice department to the Hartford Manufacturing company of Hartford, Conn., because of the supply to the department of envelopes of alleged inferior quality."

Impending Restriction—In the new catalogue, the advance sheets of which are being distributed by the publishers, the Scott Stamp and Coin Company, the following notice prefaces the lists of the stamps of the Chinese treaty ports: "The stamps of the various treaty ports (except Shanghai) are now proved to be locals. For the present we retain them in the catalogue as being of interest to many collectors but it is only a question of time when other demands on our space will force their omission." The statement is tantamount to a declaration that in view of the constantly increasing number of wholly legitimate issues, it becomes necessary to ignore the stamps of weaker philatelic character, if general collecting is to be kept within the possibility of individual attainment. The decision of the cataloguers in this instance invites speculation as to future developments along the line of the present case.

Of Philatelic Interest—A newspaper clipping from Julian Park, Buffalo, tells us that a biography of Sir Rowland Hill, the great postal reformer and father of penny postage, has been prepared by his daughter and is to appear shortly with the imprint of the publishing house of Unwin. Of the various newspaper stories of Rowland Hill, readers well know, for they have been related time and again. We are aware that Mr. Hill has had several able biographers, at least one of whom has been kind enough to furnish information of value to philatelists when occasion allowed, but a biography from the authoritative source of a daughter inspires favorable consideration.

On Sale—Several readers have shown us specimens of the new universal postage stamp coupon that is sold at the postoffices of countries that are in the compact at the rate of six cents or its equivalent; and now it is possible to really enclose "return postage" when addressing foreign correspondents.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from H. C. Upson, G. de Lachasse, A. McKechnie and Rev. Karl Rodemeyer.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—H. E. Carpenter, Jr., of Bay City, Mich., has returned from his trip abroad

—A. C. Stewart of the Toledo Stamp Co., accompanied by Mrs. Stewart, is on a two weeks' trip through the eastern states, combining business with pleasure.

—At the dedication of a new court house recently at Osborne, Kansas, our philatelic friend, Joseph L. Weber, was instrumental in placing in the corner stone a collection of postage stamps and also a few U. S. copper coins. Mr. Weber congratulates himself that this is a rather unusual proceeding, and one that might well be emulated by collectors elsewhere.

—The WEEKLY acknowledges its indebtedness to H. S. Linnemann for a glimpse of the new postal reply coupon, to which reference has already been made in our columns and which was illustrated in a recent issue.

—We have received a copy of the Ohio State Journal, as recently as October 7, containing the Burroughs article, "Philatelic Monuments to War," prepared last May for use in the campaign of the National Stamp Committee. This is a marked testimonial to the value of the publicity work done by this committee.

—We have received from F. C. Grosse of Chicago, Ill., a novel production from an artistic standpoint. It is a 1907 calender, and accompanying it is a drawing of an envelope, having a peculiar appropriateness to Chicago, the city of its birth. The postmark bears the inscription "Windy City Station," and it neatly cancels a stamp illustrating an elderly gentleman whose whiskers and general bearing indicate that a lively gale is blowing in his immediate vicinity. Mr. Grosse indicates that the affair is the work of J. J. Ruzicka of Chicago.

—The Epworth M. E. Church at Cambridge, Mass., was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Monday, October 7, when Miss Florence Alberta Baird and Clifton Armstrong Howes were united in marriage. Mr. Howes is the popular president of the Boston Philatelic Society, has been a frequent contributor to the philatelic press, and is well known as one of the most studious of American collectors. The hearty well wishes of a host of friends will go with the newly wedded couple.

—The Nassau Stamp Co. sends us the catalogue of its 6th sale, to be held Friday, November 8, at the Collectors Club. The collection of W. G. Scott is offered in this sale.

—Whitfield King & Co. informs us that reprints of the "Un Real," Dominican Republic, 1865 issue, may shortly be expected on the market, as the original cliche has passed into the hands of a private party in San Domingo. Collectors will do well to enter this fact in their notebooks.

—Lyman H. Low favors us with a catalogue of his sale to be held Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 2 P. M. A large variety of medals, tokens, coins and books, publications and periodicals dealing with the same are listed. Anyone interested will find the catalogue of great value.

—October 1 the Cornell Stamp Club was organized in Ithaca, N. Y., with fifteen charter members. The following officers were elected: —Pres., L. Crandall; Sec., L. Mintz; Treas., J. R. Oakden, Jr. The Club purposes to give several lectures, accompanied by lantern slides, in an endeavor to increase the interest in philately among the university community.

A FEW AUCTION PRICES.

We are indebted to the Nassau Stamp Co. for a priced catalogue of their fifth sale, in which a large number of very desirable stamps were disposed of. We append a few of the prices realized, and will recognize any courtesies of a similar character that may be rendered. Catalogue prices are Scott's unless otherwise indicated:—

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—E. W. Murray has further favored us with specimens and information regarding varieties of the new 2c envelopes. He submits two specimens, one being the ordinary head, but with the bust touching the inner oval line at the back. The other is the large head variety discovered by Mr. Hardy, but further complicated by a white line extending from the bottom of the "T" in "Two" diagonally to the edge of the stamp. It is very plainly marked, and nearly as thick as the inner oval line, so that it cannot by any conceit be called a "hair line."

Mr. Murray writes about "die varieties" in a breezy way and perhaps we cannot do better than to let him speak for himself:

"In regard to the die varieties, especially the big heads, Mr. Barrett says it is not a die variety. Well, if it not a die variety, what kind of a variety would it be considered? Tho under dog usually is a counterpart of the upper dog, see? Now I am enclosing you two new ones I picked up this week,—wonder if the dogs made these varieties. Think if the dogs cannot do any better, try some 'cats.' Are we going to have a series of types like the 1903? If so, we all want to get busy and make hay while the sun shines."

J. T. Kaemmerlen sends us a specimen of the new envelopes, with a broad band of color over the bridge of the nose and running well into the eye. He asks: "Should this be considered a distinct variety? He also sends us three distinct shades in the printing, one of them being the large head die.

Charles Huscher sends us an elaborate and carefully worked out description of the new type-set officially sealed stamp, which was noted in No. 721. Mr. Huscher, however, reports having seen the stamp with the first "O" in "Post-office" inverted, which brings it above and out of line with the other letters in the word. It is printed on wove, unwatermarked paper.

Ulmont Stewart shows us a copy of the new 2c envelope on paper of a dull yellow shade quite distinct from the clear canary shade of former years.

D. L. Sprage reports an Albino of the new 2c envelope on blue paper.

Mr. Linnemann writes: "I notice in the WEEKLY of Oct. 5, that the controversy is on about 'big heads,' 'flat heads' and 'heads larger at top and more round,' also 'thick letters' and 'thin letters' of the current stamped envelopes. Now I hope the following detailed explanations will cause all variety finders to realize that the differences noted are only due to poor printing and not to different dies.

"In the first place, perhaps the method of printing is not understood so I will explain. The printing presses are of the so-called 'circular press' variety which have the dies on a sort of cylinder which goes across or rolls over, the paper; and in the making of the current issue the stamp is printed from the right to the left, as one looks at the stamp held upright, not from top to bottom. The 'under-dog,' as Mr. Barrett so aptly calls it, is a copper electrotype and is very soft. Hence the heavy cylinder with glass hardened steel dies, as it is called, rolls out the soft copper electrotypes and causes all kinds of impressions, which I do not blame collectors from thinking are different dies.

"In fact, nearly all the envelopes I have show minor (some very minor) differences from one another. But in truth they are not varieties, but due to faults in printing, as I hope I have satisfactorily explained and proven. I am not at liberty to divulge my authority but no doubt among the knowing he will be recognized, and I may add I believe his explanation is absolutely correct; any way it is very logical.

"Then again there has been but one 'matrix' made and so of course all 'dies' have to be exactly alike and, unless damaged, print the same.

"In a former issue of MEKEEL'S a so-called cracked die was chronicled which I think all will acknowledge can be accounted for by the mode of printing. To bring this variety to mind I copy from MEKEEL'S of Sept. 18, in part: 'but is entitled to rank as a distinct variety from the fact that there is a white line running from the centre of the front of the bust to the inner oval line, making a perfect connection, etc.'

"This in my mind was caused by the paper being slightly creased by the cylinder in its revolution but not creased hard enough on account of the speed said cylinder was run. This crease was probably also somewhat smoothed out in the balance of the operation of making the envelope, such as cutting, folding and gumming, so that very little or none of the creasing showed in the finished envelope. I have seen some that this crease runs way through beyond the printed stamp. Isn't this conclusive?

"Finally there is a new ruling that only one matrix shall be made and if any of the dies made from this matrix wears and is worth retouching, the retouching shall only be done by the engraver of the original matrix.

"Therefore to sum up and clinch this matter, as the original matrix was cut by Mr. Mitchell and as we have his word that only one matrix was made (thereby all dies being alike), it is conclusive that any varieties (?) must be only errors in or carelessness of printing.

"Your space is, I know, valuable in MEKEEL'S but I think you will feel that if you can settle this controversy satisfactorily, as I believe has been done above without being egotistical, you as well as your subscribers will be content.

"As secretary of the American Envelope Society I shall be pleased to answer personally any future inquiries or assertions in regard to these matters and I trust the above explanation will be satisfactory and conclusive."

We have been giving a great deal of space to these envelope matters, without, thus far, having developed any varieties worthy of a place in the Catalogue, unless it is possibly the "big head" discovered by Mr. Hardy. Even this would seem to be a freak of the printers, according to Mr. Linnemann. It is well understood that the new envelope contractors are "up against it," and that a multitude of freak envelopes have already been issued, due to their inexperience and the difficulties they have encountered in getting the new machines to work properly.

We have therefore decided that further extended discussion of the matter will be profitless, and no doubt our friends and subscribers will recognize the necessity of hereafter limiting our Chronicle to actual varieties, and not giving space to mere freaks of printing. With this explanation and our very cordial thanks to the many friends who have favored us with communications and specimens, we must consider the discussion closed.

ANTIGUA.—Ewen's Weekly reports having seen the ½d bi-colored stamp on Crown CC chalky paper.

AUSTRALIA.—The special committee to consider the question of the issue of a uniform series of stamps, noted in No. 863, is already a fact, as our readers have doubtless seen in the news columns. The Melbourne Herald says the business of the committee, as stated in the departmental minute, is to "consider and report upon the best methods to be adopted to ensure a suitable issue of stamps that will be available for immediate use during the bookkeeping period, and thereafter for use as an issue for the Commonwealth without distinction as to States." In other words, the stamps issued for use during the bookkeeping period will require to bear some indication of the State in which they were issued. At the expiration of the term, the reference to the State will be removed, and probably the words "Commonwealth of Australia" substituted.

BARBADOS.—A correspondent writes to Ewen's Weekly that the 2d Nelson reprinted on multiple paper shows differences in the color of the frame, appearing from a bright, nearly orange, yellow to a dull or brownish yellow.

BRITISH CENTRAL AFRICA.—The name of this Protectorate has been changed to "Nyassaland Protectorate" and a new series of stamps may doubtless be expected shortly.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA.—The only values that have not yet been seen with surcharge "Papua" in the second type, are the 2d and 2½d.

BULGARIA.—J. E. Dennett has shown us a used copy of the new commemorative stamps chronicled in No. 875. Gibbons' Weekly says there were printed of this commemorative set, 500,000 each of the 5s and 10s, and 200,000 of the 25s.

DENMARK.—Mr. Schachne has additions to the cards noticed last week, as follows:

Post Card.
5x5 ore green on white; T.3.
Letter Card.
10 ore red on white.

DOMINICA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that 2d brown and green pictorial stamp has been seen on Crown CA multiple chalky paper.

THE REVENUE STAMPS OF BRAZIL.

By FREDERICK E. HEYDON.

The fiscal issues of this country are quite numerous, including several series issued by the general government and others by individual states and cities. These present a great variety of types, some of them both interesting and beautiful. It may be as well to note at the start that Brazil is little more than a geographical expression; as the country consists of several distinct centres of population and industry, which have almost nothing in common, and are separated by wide expanses of sparsely populated territory. Hence the cohesion of the republic is very slight, and its disintegration into two or three entirely separate republics is not at all unlikely.

The general issues for documentary use begin with a very neat series bearing the portrait of the late Emperor, Pedro II. The four lower values are in green, with value in red, all of the others orange with value in blue, but, in spite of this monotony, the general effect is pleasing. The next issue, all in a light claret are far less attractive, and since the advent of the republic, the central design has consisted either of the value in numerals, the southern cross, or a head of Liberty. Of late years a variety of colors has prevailed, and generally the central vignette and frame have differed in color. Some of these designs have been very poor affairs, others on the contrary are very pretty, but as a rule the colors are rather pale, and there has been a little too much pelure paper to suit my individual fancy. There are special series for checks and receipts, consular stamps, and also stamps for liquors, tobacco, playing cards, proprietary articles, matches, etc. The ruling prices for these stamps are uniformly low, and at present there seems to be a fair supply of some of them. How far it would be possible to complete a collection, I can hardly say, not having made a specialty of these issues; but it would not be expensive if they can be obtained at all.

Permit me to make at this point a suggestion that beginners will do well to attend to. It is the practice of some dealers, who have little or no trade in foreign revenues, to throw them all into a box and charge a uniform price per stamp. There are also collectors, whose means and experience should teach them better, who spend hours in gunning through this junk hunting for bargains. Take my advice and let them alone, these bargain counter lots, as you may be sure that particular box has been gone over a hundred times, and contains nothing worth wasting your time over. Present prices are low enough in all conscience, and if you buy from some dealer who has decent stamps in stock, you will save yourself annoyance and waste of time. I did the same thing myself until I found out where to get my supplies, and only once came across a stamp worth the time I spent to get it. The above remarks apply to all foreign revenues and are the result of years of experience.

After this discursion, I will make a few remarks on the issues of individual states and towns; and among the state revenue stamps, I am inclined to give the preference to those of Amazonas, which, by the way, occupies a territory into which a good sized country of Europe could be dropped out of sight. On the whole, I rather prefer the set with an eagle with outstretched wings, but there is another issue with a portrait of Columbus, issued in 1900 to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of Brazil, which is one of the neatest commemorative designs I have yet noted.

Immediately south of Amazonas is the state of Matto Grosso (the great forest), so called on account of its vast expanse of primeval forest which has hardly been explored at all. The stamps of this state bear a star as the central design, and are very neat.

The stamps of the state of Pará, which occupies all the northern portion of Brazil and includes the great city of that name, are also very interesting, the high values of the 1891 issue being as pleasing as any.

The issues of Rio Grande do Sul, one of the most flourishing of all the states, are characterized by delicacy of design, and are rather smaller than is usual for this class of stamps.

I do not know exactly what to compare the stamps of Sergipe to, unless it may be the fearful creations that some countries in Africa print for alleged postal purposes, but really to sell to collectors. The central design represents an Indian with what is presumably a head-dress but looks like an inverted flower pot, also a background which may be understood as a representation of a forest scene. Still the general effect is certainly neat, and the inscriptions are disposed in an artistic grouping.

All of the other states seem to have their own series of stamps, and the designs are often pleasing, and without exception interesting in one way or another. The general practice seems to be to give each value its own color, and thus avoid a tiresome uniformity. The design adopted for the stamps of Goyas is one of the most original that I can now recall. Taking it all in all, it seems to me that the state issues are more interesting than the federal series.

Quite a number of Brazilian cities have issued revenue stamps, but they do not compare either as regards number or interest with the municipal stamps of Argentina. However, the comparatively limited extent of this field may appear as an advantage to many collectors. Everything considered, Brazil is a decidedly interesting country as regards its fiscal issues, and a fairly representative collection would be very interesting and beautiful.

Report of the Counterfeit Detector.

October 4, 1907.

A party by the name of Segui in Spain is offering what he calls facsimiles of Spain 1850-54 issue, thirty-four stamps. According to the samples sent me directly they are rather good imitations, and collectors would do well to be on their guard against these forgeries.

He goes so far as to state that orders amounting to more than $100 at one time will be discounted 20%. Various bank references are given. As this seems to be a new name in the field of philatelic forgers I thought it well to bring this to the attention of our members.

Have You Any Duplicates?

If you have any duplicates, the exchange department of the A. P. A. is the very best possible place in which to dispose of them. Join the Association and get into touch immediately with Mr. Parrish, the sales superintendent. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Have you noticed the number of new applications this week? It totals thirteen and with two applications for reinstatement indicates that the campaign is on. Remember there is no time like the present for you to get after that friend of yours with an application blank.

We still have some of those handsome booklets exploiting the advantages of membership, and every reader of the Weekly may have one on application. Members admitted before the publication of the Year Book will have the advantage of having their names and addresses inserted.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

F. C. D.:—"What is the difference between types A22 and A25 of Brazil?" In type A25, the head is larger than in the other type; the difference in size is noticeable when the two stamps are compared. (2) "What is the status of a cancellation (or surcharge) reading '1394 Centenario 1894' in a circle, on the Prince Henry issue of Portugal?'" The marking in question is a special cancellation that was applied to the stamps to loan appropriate and added distinction to them. The stamps with this cancellation come under the category of used stamps only. (3) "Is a cancellation reading 'Stamp Office,' etc., in an oval, fiscal or postal? This is on various stamps of the Malay States and in both black and violet inks." We are informed that specimens canceled as described have done fiscal duty. (4) "Can you give me any 'Golden Rule' for distinguishing between 'blue' and 'ultramarine?' What is the essential difference between them?" It is almost impossible to express in text recognizable differences between similar colors and in the instance of the companion colors named an easy means of infallible identification is not at hand. Ultramarine may range from light blue to greenish blue or deep blue in chemistry; ultramarine blue is one hundred parts blue while blue, itself, has about ten parts of green to ninety of blue. It is somewhat indefinite to say that the blue of the ocean typifies ultramarine, as the color of the water has not a single standard, yet ultramarine suggests what the average mind would say is regarded as the color of the water. The 5-cent Pan-American is a good example of ultramarine and the 5-cent of the current issue of blue. (5) "I have noticed in the stamps of Guatemala, 1886 issue, lithographed, that the position of the numeral of value varies considerably in relation to the cartouche. Were the numerals printed separately or do they vary in different stamps on the same sheet? In the engraved stamps of the same design, they seem to be perfectly centered. This would seem to be a good way to distinguish the lithographed and engraved sets, which troubles a good many collectors." We understand that the numerals were printed separately, and so, the test suggested by our correspondent is one worth noting. (6) "Did you ever notice the similarity between New Brunswick, A3 and Hawaii, A30, in design, shape, color and value? Is this a case of 'plagiarism?'" While it is just possible that the design of the earlier stamp suggested that of the later stamp, it would have taken a collector or one familiar with old issues to have provided the thought; it should not be forgotten that the United States 12-cent, 1869, shows a ship and is of unusual shape.

C. H.:—Our correspondent asks: "On what date did the revenue law of 1861 go into effect?" Some historical information attaches to the date of the operation for the first time of the civil war revenue tax, and the following explanation may be of interest: "The internal revenue law of July 1, 1862, was not only one of the most important in the annals of congress but was remarkable for its great length, minuteness and the time which it required to pass it. When the House Committee of Ways and Means framed the bill in the last part of 1861 and first part of 1862, they made its various provisions to go into effect on May 1st or July 1st, 1862, accordingly as they considered more or less time needed to get ready to carry them out. But when May 1 came the bill was still in the Senate, which body changed a few of the dates, but not all, and July 1st saw the signing of the bill by President Lincoln. A queer situation was the result. To remedy the confusion of a law, which, among other curious things, made invalid all legal documents unless they bore stamps which were not in existence, and would not be for months, it was provided in a law passed July 14, 1862, that the section making invalid unstamped documents should not go into force until January 1, 1863." Without detailing the other delays attending the preparation of the stamps, we shall include the following official notice proving that while the stamps may have been issued on November 17th, 1862, it was not until December 1st, 1862, that the law imposing the use of the stamps went into effect: "Treasury Department, Office of Internal Revenue, Washington,

THE REVISED LIST for this season's Auction Sale Catalogs is now being tabulated. For several years we have mailed a very large complimentary list to well known collectors and others all of which will this year be discontinued.

Our regular list of auction buyers has grown so large that we are compelled to drop out all non-buyers or those that send in bids at very rare intervals or desire catalogs only for their library. We will, however, continue the service of mailing catalogs to non-buyers on receipt of 25c per year.

All orders for our large "Selections by Countries on Approval" are now filled and we can accommodate a number more of consistant and liberal buyers. Each stamp in these selections is catalogued, priced and marked net, put up in neat style for the busy man. 1907 cat. prices still prevail.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF A MERGER
John R. Miller begs respectfully to inform his many friends and collectors generally that he has bought the stock, lease, good will, etc., of the Manhattan Stamp Co. of New York, and has assumed entire control of same.
The Manhattan Stamp Co. is now in a better position than ever before to supply stamps—medium, high-grade and rarities—in the finest possible condition.
Approval selections arranged alphabetically ready to send out. Orders and enquiries will receive the most careful attention.
MANHATTAN STAMP CO.,
DEALERS IN POSTAGE STAMPS
234 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK.

D. C., November 17th, 1862. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is prepared to supply the following stamps in quantities sufficient for the use of the people of the District of Columbia, and of the states east of the Rocky Mountains, viz: 'Playing Cards, Proprietary, Express, Telegraph, Insurance, Life Insurance, Fire and Marine, Passage Tickets and Protest.' The use of the stamps herein specified is hereby required in the District and States above described on and after the first day of December next, and the persons guilty of willfully neglecting to use said stamps will be subject to the penalty provided in the law. George S. Boutwell, Commissioner of Internal Revenue." It is somewhat puzzling to account for the "Fire and Marine" stamps; it is unlikely that they were ever prepared, as the Insurance stamps were used for the several services. No doubt, the words were included by error; and the Passage Tickets stamps should have been called Passage Ticket.

B.:—The rarest stamp in the world is the one cent British Guiana, 1856 issue, only one copy of which is known to collectors, and it is in the possession of a great Parisian collector. Under the circumstances, it is almost impossible to estimate the value of this single specimen, which emphatically is not for sale. We add this last clause to save our correspondent, who signs himself, "Beginner," sore disappointment; he asks, "What is the rarest stamp in the world and what will it cost?" For a short time, we believed, in our guilelessness that a second copy of this extreme rarity had come to light, as we read recently in a London paper that a Mr. So-and-so of Such-and-such a place had found a copy; and we commented editorially on the wonderful good fortune of the finder and the great rarity of the stamp, to say nothing of guessing how much the second copy would bring if sold at auction in London. In imagination, the Mauritius stamp record was sadly shattered and we saw the news cabled around the world that the stamp had been disposed of at a sensational and fabulous price. To our chagrin, the English stamp papers which we anticipated would present the news of the amazing find with first page riots of big type, are coldly skeptical of the truth of the announcement; indeed, they dismiss the report with small type and little of it at that. They are slighting, not to say sarcastical; one stamp paper says: 'We do not publish the gentleman's address and name, as we should not like to give him unnecessary trouble, but we wonder which of the numerous one cent stamps of British Guiana he possesses." The sting of this comment lies in the fact that the newspaper publishing the story called the stamp the 1c, British Guiana, without giving any date of issue. Our faith in the veracity of the English newspapers, hitherto firm, has been sadly shaken.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Ewen's Weekly calls attention to the fact that the postal rates between Postal Union countries have been so greatly reduced that the high values of recent years will practically pass out of use. We quote as follows:—

"A used £1 British postage stamp will now become about as rare as a strip of three has been hitherto, whilst the 10sh stamp will be less used than the £1 was up to the present day. In the case of British Colonies the new rates are still lower, and the use of high value stamps for postage purposes will become almost nil. Such stamps as the recently issued surcharged 5sh and 10sh Morocco Agencies and 5sh Levant will now rarely be used, and having been so short a time in use, should become very rare, especially if withdrawn from use. It is obvious that quite a revolution is to take place."

—Some months ago the advertising of H. M. Clark was noticeable in our columns. After an interval of two or three months Mr. Clark has resumed his advertising and signed a contract with us, which means that his adv. will hereafter regularly appear in our columns. He has taken a place in column 1, page 3, and we recommend him to our readers, feeling sure that all dealings will prove of a perfectly satisfactory character.

—The Economist Stamp Co. favors us with specimens of a new hinge that they have just placed upon the market. It is certainly a splendid article, and while we cannot very well call it, for business reasons, the very best hinge on the market, our readers will do well to send for samples, when they can judge for themselves as to its merits.

—As will be noticed elsewhere, John R. Miller has acquired the stock, lease, goodwill, etc., of the Manhattan Stamp Co., and we congratulate Mr. Miller upon the acquisition. Our remembrance of the Manhattan stock which it was our privilege to examine on a recent trip to N. Y., is that it contained numerous rarities and hard-to-get stamps. Well able as Mr. Miller has been in the past to please his patrons, he will have a far better stock to offer during the coming season.

—Members of the B. P. S. are notified that keys to the society room may be obtained at the office of the WEEKLY.

—Receipt of clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Joseph A. Steinmetz.

THE FIVE HUNDREDTH MEETING.

A Notable Celebration by the Chicago Philatelic Society.

(Just as we go to press P. M. Wolsieffer favors us with a carbon of the records of the proceedings of the first evening of this notable celebration, from which we glean the following facts. Mr. Severn will next week favor our readers with a further account.—Managing Editor.)

The 500th regular meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society was held in its club room, No. 145 La Salle St., Roanoke Bldg., on Thursday evening, October 17, 1907.

Pres. Mudge called the meeting to order and forty-six members responded to the roll call. There were also present four visitors. The minutes of the previous meeting having been approved, four applications for membership were posted, two active—Joseph Mizera and Rev. Fr. Sixt, and two passive—Fred Doughty, Saginaw, Mich., and W. A. Greenbaum, Denver, Colo.

A communication was read from Sec. Kelley of the Boston Philatelic Society, extending congratulations and expressing the hope that all might be spared to help celebrate the "One Thousandth Meeting." Accompanying the letter was a handsome engrossed vote of greeting under the seal of the society and bearing the signature of Pres. C. A. Howes and Sec. Edw. de Z. Kelley:—

THE BOSTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY
in meeting assembled, sends greetings to the
CHICAGO PHILATELIC SOCIETY, with hearty congratulations on the approaching celebration of its Five Hundredth Meeting.

This is an event of which few philatelic societies can boast, and the fact reflects great credit upon the earnestness, enthusiasm and activity of the members of our sister society.

May it keep up the good work, and now strive for the ONE THOUSANDTH MEETING, is the earnest wish of its Boston friends.

BOSTON, MASS., Sept. 17th, 1907.
CLIFTON A. HOWES, Pres.
[SEAL.] EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec.

A hearty vote of thanks was unanimously voted the Boston Philatelic Society and the secretary was instructed to officially communicate the same.

A telegram of congratulations was received from Eugene Doeblin, and a letter from the Columbus Collectors Club conveyed the fraternal feelings of that body.

A. W. Dunning contributed a poem congratulatory of the occasion, pointing the way to the 1000th meeting "two decades from now." This poem was received with applause and Mr. Dunning was thanked for his expressions of good will.

Henry Ades Fowler, being unavoidably detained, telephoned his regrets and expressed his good wishes for this auspicious occasion.

Mr. Iver R. Johnson then delivered an address explanatory of the symbolism expressed on the reverse of the token prepared by the Committee which resulted in the new coined word in philately, "Chalef," standing for "King of Thought." The tenor of Mr. Johnson's remarks has not been given us and we therefore quote from the call for the meeting:—

"The significance of the symbolism of the token is as follows:—

Nations have often expressed their ultimate thought in symbol.

Many of these emblems are on the stamps which we collect.

An artistic record is thus preserved of the frank of the continuous message of mankind to their fellows.

Thus the history of the events of time is preserved to the friends of stamps in the smallest space and with the greatest accuracy.

The earliest love of the stamp collector is found in the geometrical figure as instanced by the triangle.

The absolute truth of the power of inspired thought to outlive the times and occasions that gave it birth is typified in the seventh wonder—the Pyramid.

The appropriate appeal to the highest emblem of power and the light of revelation is well suggested by a heaven's star.

We have coined a word, in good faith, upon the principles as taught by the symbolism of initials, and so believing it better to build than to borrow, better to create than appropriate, Chalef stands for King of Thought—Philately and what it teaches.

The token was especially designed and struck for this anniversary, and is given only to members in full standing on the date of our five hundredth meeting. Hence there will be no duplicates available, except that, for a limited time new members will be given one as a reminder of the stability of this society with which they become affiliated, in achieving such an enviable record among philatelic organizations.

It is hoped that the token and the full significance of its symbolic design may be both a source of philatelic inspiration and the means of awakening, if such be possible, a still greater love for and interest in the future welfare of your society."

Pres. Mudge then distributed the token to all members, each one being called on by number and name to receive it, with a few appropriate remarks to the recipient.

The Rev. D. D. Vaughan, one of our new active members, delivered an address on the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man," as applied to philately, with special reference to the symbolism as expressed on the reverse of the token.

The report of the judges for the competitive exhibition was as follows:—

Specialized, Class I: 1st. Silver Medal to F. R. Cornwall, St. Louis, Mo., for his Cape of Good Hope and Ceylon; 2nd. Bronze Medal to Eugene Doeblin, Pittsburg, Pa., for his Germany; 3rd. Bronze Medal to Geo. L. Toppan, Wash., D. C., for his Canal Zone; 4th. Honorable Mention (Medal) to Dr. J. A. Schmidt, Chicago, for his United States.

General, Class II: 1st. Silver Medal to C. B. Rogers, Chicago, Ill.; 2nd. Bronze Medal to Howland Speakman, Chicago, Ill.; 3rd. Bronze Medal to Rev. Fr. Sixt, Chicago, Ill.; 4th. Honorable Mention (Medal) to C. Johanzon, Chicago, Ill.

Collections for Exhibition Only: J. N. Huber, Chicago, collection of pairs; John A. Klemann, N. Y. City, portrait collection; E. R. Webber, Jr., Chicago, general collection; S. Valentine Saxby, Rockford, Ill., United States.

The committee reported that the fine collection of Azores, property of Mr. E. M. Carpenter, Boston, Mass., was sent for the competition, but for some unknown reason did not arrive.

After the report of the judges, Messrs. F. N. Massoth, A. P. Hosmer, A. F. Boehm and P. M. Wolsieffer, the various collections were placed on exhibition and the members had the pleasure of viewing many fine stamps.

This meeting adjourned to meet at 7 o'clock the following evening to continue the exercises and festivities of this gala occasion.

EDITORIAL.

Deserved—It is always a source of gratification to learn of the success in a worldly or material way, of those who are known to be ardent philatelists, and the records of the past show that there is no dearth of philatelists who have achieved renown in the outside world. An instance of remarkable advance to the highest citizenship is afforded by the career of Brigadier General H. H. Bandholtz, who, before the war of 1898, as Lieutenant Bandholtz was well known as a most intense collector and specialist in the issues of the United States. While General Bandholtz sold his special collection about ten years ago, he has never relinquished his hold on the hobby; and today, he gives his stamps all the attention that he possibly can. While a general collector, he has a few preferential countries and in these his showing is superb. From the Manila newspapers, we learn that signal honors have been bestowed on General Bandholtz; Occupation Day, August 13th, 1907, the ninth anniversary of the day the American troops captured Manila, was celebrated by a convention that elected Brigadier General Bandholtz the Department Commander of the Veteran Army of the Philippines; thus, he becomes chief of the greatest agency for peace now existing in the Philippines. The Manila newspapers teem with laudatory accounts of General Bandholtz; and from one of the sketches, we abridge the following: "Brigadier General Harry H. Bandholtz is the first regular army officer to be elected department commander, as well as the only chief of constabulary to be so honored. He is a graduate of West Point. In 1902, he was elected governor of Tayabas, being the only American army officer to be elected to such a position by the Filipino people. He served one term and then became colonel of constabulary, succeeding to the supreme command last June." General Bandholtz has sent the WEEKLY an interesting table of recent Philippine issues, which appeared on page 307.

Uncle Sam Watches—Indications are not lacking that trouble is in store for Liberia whose gorgeous issues make it prominent in the collecting eye. It is represented that both England and France are looking with covetous design upon the territory of the negro republic, with its immense undeveloped mineral wealth and virgin forests. Under pretext of boundary disputes, the powerful nations of Great Britain and France are preparing to take aggressive measures to enforce their demands. President Barclay of Liberia did not succeed in his mission to London. to secure an equitable adjustment of his differences in conference with British and French representatives. It is probable that the United States will be called upon to protest against the rapacity of the two European countries if the black republic is to endure. Sierra Leone is on the northwest and French territory is on the southwest of Liberia. The extension of the Sierra Leone railroad gives England its opportunity for imposition while France notwithstanding that Liberia has ceded the Ivory Coast to it, will not agree to the establishing of a definite boundary.

Progress—While speaking of the political side of stamp issuing countries, the present is an opportune time to refer to the great progress that has been made by the South American republics in recent years through the introduction of American capital, principally. Paraguay and Bolivia, inland countries, are to be opened to the sea, with beneficial results to the two countries that may be imagined. Concessions to American railroad contractors have been made by Brazil, and an immense territory, hitherto inaccessible in a commercial sense, will be opened up by the railroad. Bolivia is still a "splendidly isolated" country because of the physical barriers that hem it in, but it is expected that within a comparatively short time, even this backward republic will take its place among the thriving and progressive countries of the western hemisphere.

Provisional—A reader sends for inspection an old chattel mortgage, dated May 23rd, 1864, the revenue tax on which was paid by a thirty-cent postage stamp, 1861 issue. The instrument was regularly filed and recorded. Our correspondent says: "This is the second find that I have made of this kind within the last year; the first was a ten-cent of the same issue on a receipt and was uncanceled." There is no gainsaying the fact that documents showing the provisional use of postage stamps for revenue purposes during the civil war period have a curious interest, yet the employment of the stamps in this way was never authorized officially. At the time of the Spanish-American war, the Omaha stamps, as well as the ordinary issue, were largely used for revenue purposes. Readers often submit oddities of varying degrees of interest, almost invariably with the request that we tell them what value the unusual items have, and while we are always grateful for the privilege of inspecting curiosities of the kind, yet the thought of having to disappoint the questioners by an inability to appraise, with any degree of certainty, freak or fancy varieties is not pleasant. These specimens have a decided sentimental value in many cases, but it is impossible to reduce that intangible quality to a dollars and cents basis.

We Have a Medal—The Chicago Philatelic Society has distributed to all its members, a handsome token or medal in commemoration of the five hundredth meeting of the organization. The medal is full of significant detail and its symbolism is replete with meaning. The token well reflects the best suggestions of postage stamps and the technical explanation of the emblemism is of striking interest, as our readers will find when we publish it. The members of the Chicago Philatelic Society are to be congratulated in the possession of so worthy a talisman.

Saves Money—The new postal union rates are a boon to philatelists having foreign relations and it is possible now to send packages at first class rates to countries where heretofore one balked at paying the exorbitant rates demanded by the express companies for carriage there. The following is a case in point: A one-pound package, costing fifty cents postage from Madrid, Spain, to Chicago, was mailed at Madrid, October 1st, arrived in Chicago October 10th, passed the custom house and was delivered on the same date, without any extra charges. This would have taken at least three weeks if sent by an express company, and would have cost $1.25 for forwarding, besides which it would have cost $3 custom entry fee, twenty-five cents marine insurance and forty-five cents for custom blanks and notary fees.

His Advantage—In tests requiring color discrimination and nomenclature, the stamp collector has an advantage and it has been brought to our attention that in an examination recently at a school of technology one examination question had to do with colors that were shown the students, who were asked to name them on their papers. It was not supposed that such questions would be asked and consequently, some of the students made a sorry showing but not so with a philatelist who was among the workers; his stamp knowledge was brought into play with happy result, as his marking was nearly perfect.

Double Extra—A sprightly reader says: "Get out a special extra of the WEEKLY to herald the glad news that a high-browed writer in one of the big newspapers says, after pondering the subject for many days, that 'stamp collecting has not disappeared from view, but, indeed, is holding its own, and is almost as popular as the collecting of souvenir postal cards.'" Our correspondent relieves his feelings by using two exclamation marks. We suggest that he write to the paper and submit a short sensible account of philately, in rebuttal, as it were.

Some recent statements in the philatelic press in regard to the status of "cut-squares" may have led some collectors to believe that the collection of these varieties was on the wane. In fact just the opposite is the true condition, for at the present time there is a greater interest shown in them perhaps than in many other lines; prices have advanced materially in the last few years barring a few exceptions, and all dealers handling "cut-squares" report a greater demand for them than ever before.

The American Envelope Society, with its fast increasing membership includes many enthusiastic collectors of these varieties. At our last meeting on Oct. 9th it was felt that the situation should be explained in its true light and that all encouragement should be given to those collectors who might be wavering in their faith on account of these statements, circulated by one who could not have been in touch with collectors of "cut-squares."

Lately collectors have heard considerable about proofs, essays, etc., but probably but few have ever seen any envelope proofs. Mr. Rothfuchs has shown me three cut square proofs of the Reay issue; the 1c, 2c and 3c values; which he purchased sometime in 1891 among other envelopes. Inquiry of the late John K. Tiffany soon after brought the following reply:—

"The enclosed are evidently cut from die proofs, or more properly hub proofs and were struck before the outer rim was removed. Perfect specimens would show a colored rim about three-fourths of an inch wide around the die; this is afterwards cut off up to the fine white line."

A comparison of these proofs with envelope impressions as issued, reveals some differences, especially in the case of the three cent one. On the proof of this value, the numerals are large and coarse, nearly filling the circle containing them, while as finally adopted they are finely cut and proportioned to the size of the circle. The head also shows many differences in the arrangement of the hair, in the position of the ribbon on the queue, and in the slope of front part of bust. The O of POSTAGE has a larger central oval on the proof than on the finished stamp, and the periods after U S are smaller on the proof. The colors are practically the same as those issued, the one cent, however, being printed in a beautiful clear shade of ultramarine. It also has the Franklin head of the first type.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Paul B. Littlehale shows specimens of the new envelopes very badly printed, the ink on the face being muddy, the white lines discolored, and the back showing strong color from offsetting.

BELGIUM. — Mr. Morse has received the 5c cards on white used on the Dover & Ostend steamers with slight changes. No doubt the regular cards show the same. The four stars give place to numerals. The two at the left end of card connected with the lines reading up are now "(1)" and the other two are "(2)."

Post Card.

5c green on white, variety.

CAYMAN ISLANDS. — As announced editorially last week, a provisional has just been issued consisting of the 1d carmine, Crown CA, multiple watermark, overprinted in two lines "One Halfpenny". No details are at hand in regard to the circumstances that called this provisional into use.

Provisional Adhesive.

½p on 1d carmine.

CHILI.—H. Leonard sends us a freak which he found in an old collection, which bears all the earmarks of being one of the S. Allan Taylor gems. It is perforated, but has a female head, instead of that of Columbus, which the Chilean law says shall be on all the postage stamps of the country. Our subscribers are cautioned to beware of oddities that cannot be found in the catalogues.

COSTA RICA.— Hermann Focke has shown us a new stamp from this country, the 25c having been printed in a new design. The portrait presented is that of Eusebio Figuerda. The design shows "Correos—Costa Rica—U. P. U. 1907" printed in three straight lines at the top, with the value in figures in an ornamental tablet at the bottom, and the value in words at the left reading up, and "Centavos" at the right reading down. The design is quite elaborate, but the frame is so pale that the whole effect is neutral.

Adhesive.

25c pale lilac and black.

DENMARK. — Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us a number of values of a new postage due set from this country, the design being the same for all values, and all in one color except the 1kr. The inscription reads "Avis Porto—" at the top, and "Mærke" at the bottom in straight lines, in color. The figures of value are in white on an irregular shaped shield, with "Ore" on a ribbon at each side. There are four crowns and four posthorns arranged around the central shield. The stamps are about the shape and size of the regular postage set, and perforated 12½.

Postage Due Adhesives.

1 ore olive.
5 ore blue.
7 ore red.
10 ore lilac.
20 ore yellow green.
38 ore orange brown.
68 ore brown
1kr pale blue and red brown.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.— We have been shown the full set of cent values by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., and find that there were some errors of color in the list as printed in No. 872. The worst error was in the color of the 25c, which is a very dark gray green and green, instead of black and green.

FIJI ISLANDS.—The 1d carmine has now been shown us on chalky multiple paper, by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., supplementing the information in No.810.

GIBRALTAR.—The 1d in single color and printed in chalky multiple paper has been shown us by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co

Adhesive.

1d carmine.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Offices in the Levant —Ewen's Weekly chronicles the 10d on chalky paper, surcharged "4 Piastres" for use in the Levant.

HAYTI.—A. W. Dunning has shown us Scott's No. 108, but with the overprint in red instead of black. Each stamp is surcharged separately with a rubber stamp.

INDIA. — Nepal. — Gibbons' Monthly gives the following translations of the Devanagri characters on the set of stamps recently issued. In the outer frame, at the top, the characters read "Glorious Lord of All Living Creatures"; at the bottom, "Goshi Sirkar." In the inner frame, the characters at the left read "One's Own People", at the top "are Dearer than," and at the right "One's Own Life." The figures in the lower corners are "19—64", the Samoat year corresponding with 1907.

JAPAN.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us the new 6 sen stamp, perf. 11½ instead of 12 as noted in No. 874. Evidently both perforations are current.

NICARAGUA.—H. Wesley Legg has shown us copies of the 1c green and 2c rose, American print, with the new "B — Dpto. Zelaya" overprint, printed horizontally. Mr. Legg notes that these and the 5c on 4c with same overprint all come without stop after "Dpto". The Waterlow stamps are perforated 14, instead of 12, like the American printing.

PARAGUAY. — Philip H. Ward, Jr., informs us that he has seen the 2c gray green, surcharged Habilitado—en—5—Centavos," like the 2a orange noted in No. 873. Mr. Ward also informs us that the 2 peso stamp has been issued in the type of the new 1 peso.

Adhesive.

2p blue and black.

Provisional Adhesive.

5c on 2c gray green.

PORTUGAL.—Gibbons' Weekly notes the fact that three of the current stamps have been seen without value in black, and that the 25c has been found with the figures of value upside down at the top of the stamp.

QUEENSLAND.—The Australian Philatelist chronicles two of the current set in new colors, but on Crown Q paper and perf. 13.

Adhesives.

3d gray brown.
5d black brown.

SALVADOR.—A new set of stamps has been issued by this country, full sets having been shown us by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., and the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. The shape and design are both new, the stamps being a tall narrow upright oblong, 21x29mm. As we have not seen a full sheet we are unable to say where they were printed, though the appearance suggests the later work of the American Bank Note Co. In a mass of scroll work, "Correos — de — El — Salvador" appears in the upper part of the stamp in white letters, while "U. P. U." is printed in the color of the frame, in small letters just below the name of the country, which is curved downward. A narrow irregularly shaped opening extends nearly across the stamp, with a picture of the National Palace as the pictorial feature. This is in a different color from the frame, being in black on all denominations. The figures of value are printed below, being arranged just above the word "Centavos," with only a narrow line of color between. The two are centered in a pyramid of lathe work, with scalloped edges. All this is also in black and is surrounded by elaborate scroll work in the color of the frame. The colors are tasty and the whole effect not unpleasing. The stamps are disfigured by the same control mark, noted recently as having been overprinted on the Escalon stamps, "Shield and Anchor, with rays and D. G. C." Stanley Gibbons, Inc., however, have shown us a copy of the 2c without any control mark. Singularly enough the 10c and 12c are printed in almost exactly the same shade.

Philip H. Ward, Jr., also sends us information regarding the new set.

Adhesives.

1c green and black.
2c red and black.
3c yellow and black.
5c blue and black.
6c vermilion and black.
10c purple and black.
12c purple and black.
13c dark brown and black.
24c carmine and black.
50c orange and black.
100c pale blue and black.

Esmond K. Sunday reports having seen the 3c of the 1906 issue, Scott's No. 338, perforated 14½ instead of 11½.

Hermann Focke has also shown us used copies of several of the new values noted above, all with overprint.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. have shown us the $25 green and black on chalky paper. The 4c carmine noted in No. 872 should have been listed as on chalky multiple paper.

Malay States.— The same Company has also shown us the 1c green tiger on chalky multiple paper.

TASMANIA.—We have been shown the 2d mauve in a lighter shade, on paper watermarked Crown A and perf. 11.

TRINIDAD.—The 1d has appeared in new colors, and printed on chalky multiple paper, a copy having been shown us by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.

Adhesive.

1sh brown and blue on yellow.

WEST AUSTRALIA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., shows us the 2d yellow and 3d brown, both on Crown A paper and perf. 11.

St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. M. SCHOEMAN, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The sixty-eighth regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, October 15th, 1907, at the usual time and place, President Cornwall presiding and 11 members present. Mr. Millhouse, chairman of the evening's entertainment committee, submitted ten questions covering a wide range of topics, and they were so easy that sixty per cent was the highest mark scored. Messrs. Delafield, Baer and Reudi were appointed on the committee for the next meeting's entertainment. The evening's entertainment was concluded by an auction sale of stamps donated to the Society by the President, which added $7.40 to the treasury of the Society, the prices paid averaging more than 50% of the catalogue value of the stamps sold. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, October 29, 1907, at Rooms 803–5 Wright Bldg.

The Boston Philatelic Society.

Club Room, 506 Kast Bldg., Boston.

C. A. HOWES, Pres.; WILLARD O. WYLIE, Vice Pres.; EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec., 83 Summer St., Boston; J. M. BARTELS, Int. Sec., O. S. Bldg., Boston; L. L. GREEN, Treas.; J. H. LYONS, Supt. Auc. and Sales; I. W. RISDON, Supt. Bourse; J. M. BARTELS, Chmn. Expert Com.

Regular meetings 3rd Tuesday in each month at Club Room, 506 Kast Bldg., at 8 P. M.

BOSTON, October 19th, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-ninth regular meeting of the Society was held in the Club Room, 506 Kast Building, on Tuesday evening, October 15th, with 59 members and guests present; Vice President Wylie in the Chair.

Mr. Kelley reported for the Governing Board, recommending the division of the membership into two classes, active and passive, active members to be all those residing within 35 miles of the Mass. State House.

All others to be passive members unless they choose to join the active class.

Dues of active members to be $3.00 per year. Passive members $2.00 per year.

Mr. Carpenter for the Library Committee reported removal of the library to the Club Room, and called attention to the following rules governing the use of the library in its new location, viz.: —

LIBRARY COMMITTEE RULES.

No current unbound magazines shall be taken from the room, but will be on file and can be read there.

Any member of the Society may take not over two bound volumes from the Library upon filling out and depositing a signed card bearing the title of the book or books and the date on which they are taken, and a similar card must be filled out and signed upon their return.

No member shall keep any book over two weeks without special permission of the Library Committee, and all books kept beyond that limit will be subject to a fine of two cents per day for each and every day in excess of that time, and no other books shall be taken until these are returned.

Unbound magazines (not current) shall only be taken from the Library by special arrangement with the Library Committee.

E. M. CARPENTER, } Library
C. K. B. NEVIN, } Committee.

The sub-committee of the Governing Board having in charge the furnishing of the Club Room, reported progress, and called attention to what had been purchased and to a number of generous gifts from members, also pointing out that there was yet a chance for those who had not given, to do so effectively.

H. C. Bradley, Roxbury, Mass., was proposed for membership by Mr. Woolley. P. H. Ward, Jr., Wash., D. C., and Hermann Wolff, Worcester, were elected to membership.

Mr. Bail having given notice at the September meeting of his intention to propose at this meeting an amendment to the By-laws increasing the dues of members to $3.00 per year, but not being present to make the proposed motion, Mr. Kelley moved that by unanimous consent the meeting accept Mr. Bail's notice and adopt the recommendations of the Governing Board.

After debate this motion prevailed, dividing the membership into an active and passive class. The former to consist of all members residing within 35 miles of the Mass. State House, and paying dues at the rate of $3 per year from January first 1908, and to be entitled to all the privileges of the Club Room. Passive members to pay $2 per year.

An invitation was received from the Springfield Stamp Club, Springfield, Mass., inviting the members of this Society to be its guests at the next meeting of the Club Nov. 15th.

It was voted to accept the invitation with thanks, and to print ample notice of trains, etc., in the Official Organ.

Letters of congratulation were read from President Luff of the A. P. A., and President Howes of the B. P. S.

Mr. Dunning contributed a paper appropriate to the occasion, beginning:

"How happy is the B. P. S.,
To have both HOWES and home," and replete with clever combinations in verse of various members' names, which was well received.

Brief addresses, appropriate to the occasion, were given by C. F. Rothfuchs, Ex-President of the B. P. S., W. C. Stone, Ex-President of the A. P. A., J. W. Prevost, President of the Springfield Stamp Club, and J. D. Bartlett of Springfield.

Mr. Fowle read one of his masterpieces, giving Messrs. Undooley and Finnerty's views of the latest happenings in local philatelic circles.

Three of our Springfield members—Messrs. Prevost, Stone and Bartlett—furnished the entertainment for the latter part of the evening, consisting of the exhibition of a fine collection of tax paid stamps.

The showing of these stamps was a revelation to our members, and was very much enjoyed.

The large attendance at this, our first meeting in the new Club Room, is very gratifying to the Governing Board and the members are urged to make the Club Room a frequent point of call. Keys may be had of the Secretary or Mr. Wylie at 25c each.

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec.

Notice.

Many members have generously responded to requests for stamps for auction for "furnishing fund," or with furnishings for the Club Room, but there are yet many members to be heard from who, the Secretary feels sure, would like to contribute, and all such are asked to send to the Secretary as soon as possible good stamps to be sold for account of the furnishing fund; pictures of philatelic interest, or sets of proofs or essays, covers, etc., to be framed and hung on our walls.

We also need a gavel, and black, small roll-top desk, small table, umbrella holder, etc., etc.

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec.

The fifth regular meeting was held Wed., Oct. 9th, 1907, at 8 P. M., at 813 Old South Bldg., Boston, Mass. Meeting was called to order at 8.20 with Mr. Sawyer in the chair and eight members and two visitors present. Applications were received from H. MacL. Southgate, Altrincham, England, and W. M. Stillman, Plainfield, N. J. The following were elected to membership: Messrs. Dunning, Dodge, Hutchins, Kelley, Marquardt, Schachne. Mr Sawyer exhibited part of his collection of cut square British envelopes and Mr. Linnemann his U. S. entire envelope albinos, misstrikes, etc. Meeting adjourned at 10.10 P. M.

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

Fellow Members:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

CHICAGO BRANCH NO. 1.

The 254th regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Branch No. 1, American Philatelic Association, was held in the clubroom of the Chicago Philatelic Society on the evening of October 9th.

President Johnson called the meeting to order with ten members present. Edgar Nelton of Battle Creek, Mich., and Jos. Mizira were present as visitors.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. A communication from the Denver Stamp Club, acknowledging the Branch's vote of thanks, was read, received and placed on file.

A framed official photograph of the American Philatelic Ass'n delegates at the Denver convention was presented to the Branch by Messrs. Rosenthal and L. Michael.

The debate "Should the current 1c and 2c imperforate stamps be considered major or minor varieties?" which was scheduled for this meeting followed, C. E. Severn taking the minor and L. Michael the major side of the question. After hearing the pros and cons the members present decided that the stamps in question should be catalogued as minor varieties. Mr. Massoth then made the startling declaration that in the new Standard Catalog they are listed as major varieties.

To complete the evening's entertainment, all present participated in an interesting discussion as to "whether a thin spot on a used stamp detracts from the value as much as it does on an unused stamp."

The topic for discussion at the next meeting was announced as "Why a mechanical error on a stamp should have any Philatelic bearing." All members are requested to bring to the next meeting a rare or curious stamp and to prepare a short talk about their treasure.

Meeting then adjourned.

Next meeting November 13th.

NEW YEAR BOOK SOON TO APPEAR.

If you have not sent in your application for membership in the A. P. A. do so at once and it will be possible for you to have your name and address inserted in the Year Book soon to be published. This is more important in more ways than one.

Not only will you have the satisfaction of having your name associated with the foremost collectors in America, but you will have the added advantage of securing the addresses of philatelists in your immediate vicinity.

Membership in the Assn. will make you feel at perfect ease in addressing any fellow member and especially in coming in contact with those who may reside in your immediate locality.

The dealer who fails to join the A.P.A. is certainly missing a rare opportunity to know the standing of more than 1200 collectors, which would prove of material aid in deciding upon the responsibility of approval selection applicants. Get busy at once and forward your application.

STAMPS OF GOLD COAST.

By P. L. Pemberton.

From a philatelic standpoint, Gold Coast holds a very clean record. All its stamps have been printed by Messrs. De La Rue, and only four surcharged stamps have been found necessary. Despite this regularity, there are many points which render the stamps interesting, even to a specialist.

ISSUE OF 1875, WMK. CROWN AND CC.

July 1st, 1875, was the date of the first set, which consisted of three values, viz., 1d, 4d, and 6d perf. 12½. The stamps were printed at two operations, the body of the stamp being printed first, and the value, which appears in the lower label, afterwards. Consequently, specimens may be found in which the body of the stamp and the value display slight variations in shade or depth of colouring, or in which the value is slightly misplaced; but these variations are so inconsiderable that they are only worth a passing mention. The perforation is 12½, and the watermark Crown and CC. The stamps in this perforation are all from the first plates, and collectors should make a point of looking out for specimens to which the part of the margin bearing the plate number ("I" in relief on a coloured disc) is attached. The stamps are scarce in mint condition, and especially so in pairs or blocks.

ISSUE OF 1876-79, WMK. CROWN AND CC.

The 1d, 4d and 6d of this issue were among the first stamps to be perforated by the new single-line machine which Messrs. De La Rue had purchased in 1875. This machine gauged 14. The exact date of issue of the stamps with this perforation is unknown, and postmarked copies bearing dates earlier than the following, which are the earliest recorded, so far, are worth hunting for.

1d. Sept. 28, '76.
4d. Nov. ? '76.
6d. Jan. 5, '76.

The two new values, ½d and 2d, were apparently first issued towards the end of 1879, and early dates of these might be looked for with advantage. All the values may be found in slightly varying shades.

At various times the stamps of this issue were cut into halves or quarters and the sections used in place of lesser values which had run short in some of the post offices. These are what are known as "split" provisionals, and, in the case of Gold Coast, are well worth collecting. There is no doubt that there was absolute need for cutting the stamps up, and though it is not known that any official decree was published authorizing their use, they are found in sufficient quantity to show that they constitute a genuine provisional issue.

The following are the varieties which are known.

half of 1d used as ½d (1882).
half of 2d used as 1d (1883).
quarter of 2d used as ½d (1882). quarter of 4d used as 1d (1884).

Of the last mentioned I have seen two copies on parts of original, both used at Winnebah, and dated August in the one case and November in the other. I have also seen one used at Axim dated 31—(month illegible)—1884. The Tapling collection contains a strip of two and a half of the penny, used as 2½d at Quittah on 8th March, 1883. A quarter of a 4d on piece postmarked with the obliterator of Cape Coast Castle (556) and a half of the 2d with the same obliteration are also shown at the British Museum. I have, too, seen a half of the 4d and a half of the 1d used together on the same envelope, to make up the rate of 2½d, which was then the postage to England. It is probable that though they allowed the use of bisected stamps, the Gold Coast Post Office felt that the system was open to abuse, and that a surcharge would be more satisfactory. There is evidence that a trial, at least, was made in this direction, for two specimens of the 4d are known with "1d" surcharged in black, in small type, in the centre. This is a stamp which has never been illustrated for fear of its being imitated by fakers. One specimen is in the British Museum and the other is in the collection of M. Ph. la Renotière, of Paris. According to the Philatelic Record of October, 1883, it was issued in May, 1883.

The obliteration used on the stamps of this issue are the ordinary circular town-dated postmark and the familiar oblong obliterating mark, composed of thick short bars with a number in the centre. The towns which used the latter were Accra (554), Cape Coast Castle will not be in any hurry about getting their 1908 catalogue. Our catalogue has for many years been the World's Standard Authority. We base our prices on actual stock. We neither guess at or copy a price and what is more important still we have the goods and the backing to buy what we have not got. For example we lately purchased a collection for a quarter of a million dollars. Now then Mr. Collector let us urge upon you to wait for our new edition—it is bigger and better than ever. We do not list either U. S. envelopes, telegraph, local or revenue stamps, neither do we list such things as Chinese locals, Tierra del Fuego and such like nonsense. What we list are postage stamps and postage stamps only.

(556), and Quittah (B 27). These were the identical ones apportioned to, and used at, those towns before Gold Coast issued its own stamps and when ordinary English stamps were used there. Specialist collections should therefore start with specimens of British stamps bearing these obliterations, but they are exceedingly scarce. Another form of obliteration which I believe, is only found on the CC issue, is one which is peculiar to this Colony—nothing at all like it being known elsewhere. It is an oblong oval, and all the inscriptions, including the name of the town, are left uncoloured, i. e., in relief, the whole of the rest of the design forming a solid background. This is exceedingly effective when looked upon as an obliteration, but it sadly mars the beauty of the stamp. It is found in black and also in red, and, in my opinion, specimens should be included in every collection.

ISSUE OF AUG. 1883, WMK. CR. & CA.

This consisted of fresh supplies of the ½d and 1d in the same colours as before but with the wmk. changed from Crown and CC to Crown and CA. I believe the date of issue, as given above, is based upon the evidence of the earliest known postmarked copies and some of my readers may come across something earlier, in which case I should be pleased to hear from them so that it can be placed on record.

ISSUE OF 1884-89, WMK. CR. & CA.

According to "The Postage Stamps of Africa" the ½d, 1d and 2d were issued in changed colours and with the CA wmk. in August, 1884. The ½d was changed from olive-yellow to green and the 1d from blue to rose carmine. These two changes were made in conformity with postal union recommendations and they necessitated the alteration of the 2d from green to slate-grey. The 4d appeared with the new watermark in March, 1885, and the 6d in January, 1889. Three new values were issued, viz:—a 3d (in 1889) and 1sh and 2sh (in 1888). The principal interest attaching to this issue centres in the shades (which were caused by the different printings) and in the marginal plate-numbers. At one time or another fresh plates were constructed for each value and printings from them can be distinguished by the shade. The plate-number on the margin was changed to "2" and a coloured line was placed round each pane of stamps. This coloured line was first introduced in 1887 and is called, by collectors, the jubilee line. Owing to this it is easy to tell whether a stamp belongs to plate 1 or plate 2 if it has any of the outside margin attached. The shades alone are enough to denote the plate when the eye has been sufficiently trained. Those from the first plate are distinctly paler than those from the second, and the 4d and 6d are much more like the shades of the CC stamps.

"Split" provisionals are known in this issue, but they are scarcer than in the last. I have seen both the 1d and 2d bisected, while the 6d cut in halves and each half used as 3d is on record.

In March, 1889, the 6d was surcharged "one penny" and a thick bar placed across the original value. This was at first intended for use at Accra, but as it was required elsewhere, it was sent to some of the other districts also.

ISSUE OF 1889-1894.

Higher values than 2sh being required, Messrs. De La Rue supplied stamps of 5sh, 10sh and 20sh in September, 1889. They were in a design which was afterwards used for Leeward Isles, Grenada, St. Vincent and Zululand. That is to say, the main design was the same in each case, only the name and value differing. There were two plates of the 10sh, the name and value being in red in the first and in carmine in the second. The latter plate is numbered "3." There was apparently no plate "2" for this value.

The 20sh was first issued in green and red, but its life was cut short in April, 1893, owing to the theft of 1,440 of them. It was not until exactly twelve months later that a new supply arrived from England printed in deep lilac and black on deep red paper. The great majority of the obliterated specimens of this issue to be met with have been removed from telegraph forms.

ISSUE OF MARCH 13th, 1891.

This consists of one value only, viz., the 2½d. It is printed in ultramarine, with the value in orange, and is in the same type as the first issue. Plates 1 and 2 are known, and there are light and dark shades. According to "The Postage Stamps of Africa" the stamps from plate 2 are much deeper than those from plate 1, but this is controverted by Mr. E. D. Bacon in a very interesting article in The Philatelic Record for Jan., 1903. I am unable to throw any light on the subject.

ISSUE OF MAY, 1898-1900.

This was a new issue of the lower values in the design of the 5sh, 10sh and 20sh, which had been adopted in 1889, and from which they only differ in having the value printed in colour on a white background instead of on a background composed of horizontal lines. The 6d and the 1sh of the former issue lasted a long time, and were not superseded at once by the new type. In 1900 the 5sh and 10sh appeared in new colours, and a 2d value was added to the set. Of the last mentioned only a very small issue was made—not enough to supply the orders from stamp dealers which were awaiting, in Gold Coast, the arrival of the stamps from England. It is believed that few, if any, of these stamps were actually sold to the public over the counter of the post office.

The plate numbers of this issue are as follows:—

½d, 2½d, 3d, 1sh and 2sh in plates 2 and 3.
1d, 2d, 6d, 5sh and 10sh in plate 3 only.

PROVISIONALS OF 1901.

The 2½d and 6d of the 1898 issue were surcharged "One Penny" in two lines, in type similar to that used for the 1889 provisionals, though rather heavier. The printing was done locally, and was not very successful. It was frequently so defective that whole letters, or parts of letters, failed to print at all. There is a variety of the "one penny" on 6d in which the whole of the word "one" is missing.

ISSUE OF 1902, KING'S HEAD.

This is a straightforward set containing little of interest up to the present. As first issued it contained eleven values from ½d to 20sh like the previous set, and all appeared on ordinary paper watermarked Crown CA. Subsequently the 1d, 2d, 2½d and 3d appeared on similar paper but with the multiple Crown CA wmk.; of these the 1d, 2d and 3d have already appeared on chalky paper, together with the 6d and a new value, viz.:—2sh 6d. The stamps which appear to have the best chance of becoming scarce are the 1d, 2d and 3d on multiple ordinary paper, which were only in use a very short time.

In conclusion I may say that the issues from 1889 to date have been printed in fugitive colours which are destroyed if wetted. There is, however, a way of soaking Gold Coast, or any other fugitive coloured stamps, without doing them any harm, and that is by putting salt (plenty of it) in the water. This fact is not so widely known as it ought to be.—P. J. of Gr. Britain.

THE DOCTOR OF PHILATELY.

By La Fayette Topliff.

After the Doctor had finished his course in the Medical College, and received his diploma, he went abroad for further study in hospital work and travel. He was absent two years. On his return to his native town, Brockville, he found so many doctors, some old and some young, he thought it wise to go to a small city, fit up a fine office, hang out an attractive sign, reading: "Charles Bertram Lindsley, M. D. Office hours from 8 to 9 A. M., 4 to 6 P. M.", and begin the practice of medicine—if any one happened to give him an opportunity—attend strictly to business and let the old doctor do likewise. In this small city of Dundee there lived a family by the name of Lee, whose son John W. Lee was abroad when Dr. Lindsley was traveling; they met, and became fast friends. Young Mr. Lee induced his mother to take Dr. Lindsley into her family and give him such help as she could in his profession by introducing him to her large circle of acquaintances.

Mrs. Lee had a niece in her family just eighteen, Edna Adele Lambert by name; she was lovely to look upon, charming manners, a graduate of an eastern college, a devoted philatelist, a fine musician; in all an accomplished young lady. She was untiring in her stamp work, and always in search of something more to add to her fine collection. Dr. Lindsley was fascinated and anxious to become her friend. Patients did not stand in line, awaiting their turn in his office. The first three months he rode on horseback every day with saddle bags astride the saddle, and made believe business was flourishing. Edna rode on horseback—just for exercise—however it was a little queer they should accidentally meet so often at the "corners" two miles out in the country. With horses walking, they would chat, enjoy the scenery, and finally part company, she to return home, riding in from the west, while the Doctor a half hour later rode in from the east. In a few months he was a very busy man, and very successful in his practice. At the close of the year he began to think about having a home and settle down in life. In calling upon Edna he always found her busy with her stamps, mounting them in albums or arranging them in stock books, or studying the catalogue, which for politeness sake she laid away, until finally she asked him why he was not interested in stamps.

He asked her "what in the world she wanted with those old stamps anyway,—some looked as though they had seen their best days,—and who would care whether they were adorned by a head of Washington or any other President or Queen's head." "It's all Greek to me," said the Doctor, "and I do not care for them; so please lay them aside, and we will have a little music." Edna complied with his request and did her best to entertain him, but when he called the next evening she was not in the library as usual, and he inquired: "Where is Miss Edna?" The maid said: "Miss Edna is very busy with a lot of new stamps she has received by express today."

This in some form was daily repeated, and he only saw her at dinner until he could not keep his mind on medicine. Her sweet face were constantly in his mind, but those old stamps! Could anyone live and be annoyed with them every day. Was there no way to turn her mind and interests into other channels? Really, was the girl in her right mind. Had she some lover who was a philatelist, and is all her work done to please him. Unhappy thought! "Well," he said to himself, "I must look into this. Who is sending her such packages and keeping her so busy? If it is a lover I should like to give him a piece of my mind," thought the Doctor. "Now old fellow," he said aloud, "I am after you in good earnest." At dinner the Doctor asked Miss Edna "Where do you get your stamps; you seem to have new ones so frequently?"

"O, I get some from New York and some from Boston. There are other places where they can be purchased; some come direct from dealers abroad."

"Well," said the Doctor, "I am going to the city next week. If you have any commissions it will give me pleasure to attend to them."

"Thank you," said Miss Edna, "but as my wants are in the line of stamps, a study that you do not care for, you would not find it easy to fill my want list, and I should have no faith in your ability to do so, as it is as thoroughly out of your line as medicine is out of mine. While I decline your offer, I appreciate the kind thought that prompted you to ask me and sometime when you have become a philatelist you may be of service in that line."

"If I cannot be of service to you," said the Doctor, "until I am versed in the use and abuse of stamps, my chances are slim for making purchases for you. You know," continued the Doctor, "that my time must be devoted to my chosen profession, and it is just as hard for me as your work is for you. Why don't you study medicine for a change?" asked the Doctor. "If you sit over those old stamps every day much longer, the roses will leave your cheeks and you will need medicine in good earnest."

"I take medicine every day," replied Miss Edna.

"You take medicine!" exclaimed the Doctor. "Who gives you medicine I should like to know?"

"Black Bess is my doctor. We take exercise every day; take in oxygen, fresh air and sweet odors of the woods, and listen to the birds."

"That's good sense," said the Doctor, who very soon retired to his study, where Lee joined him to enjoy an after-dinner smoke, and his bright conversation, but the Doctor was strangely silent.

"Now Doc," said Lee, "I'm going to give you a pointer."

"Proceed," replied the Doctor.

"That sister of mine at the end of the third coming week is going to entertain here in our home, several advanced philatelists. They will all exhibit some of their choice treasures. You, being a member of our household, will be invited. Take a couple of weeks' vacation in the city, post yourself well about stamps, and return in time for the party. Buy a few rarities. You may make a hit," said Lee.

"Good," said the Doctor. "I will try."

"I wish you luck," said Lee.

The following day the Doctor announced to his patients that business required his attention elsewhere and he should be absent a few days, and then left for the city where he took up his abode in a good hotel and immediately consulted the directory making a list of all the stamp dealers and stores in the city, then hailed a cab and rode away to the first on the list. On entering he was met by a pleasant old gentleman who greeted him cordially. There was no one present; the Doctor began, "I have no information of any value about stamp collecting."

EDITORIAL.

Always in Sight—It is a fact that is of some curious interest that no matter how ardent a philatelist one may have been for a period, long or short, so soon as he has been out of philately for some time, he thinks that there has been a marked diminution in general regard for the hobby, as he hears little concerning it and meets but few collectors. It is natural that one who removes himself from the theatre of stamp collecting experiences a feeling of isolation, but allowing for this, it is surprising, nevertheless, that the news of stamps and their collectors, does not penetrate to all parts of the outside world. If one wants to get away from stamps, he may easily escape their sphere of influence by dismissing papers, societies and collecting acquaintances. The world is large and it contains much to engage all degrees of attention, beyond stamps. If philately is to flourish, it is necessary that it be advertised in a way to enter the horizon of the "man on the street," so to say, and in a somewhat indirect way at least, become a part of the great world that is apart from philately.

Just in Time—The publicity campaign that the stamp interests inaugurated some time ago is based on the consideration that has been outlined in the preceding paragraph, and its influence, as well as that carried by individual movement, has been of immeasureable benefit to all philately. Indeed, judging from an analysis of the able manner in which cults, pursuits and professions outside of the accepted lines or beaten tracks are being advertised by far-sighted promoters philately would have lagged behind in the race for preferment if the tonic of publicity had not been administered to it recently. It is really fortunate that the well-wishers of the pursuit launched their campaign when they did; otherwise, the danger that ground would have been relinquished would have been grave. A substantial foundation has been laid that will well sustain further publicity efforts.

Keep Firing Away—Come what may, we hope that individual collectors who recently have been doing telling work in the promotion of philately will not rest on their oars. If the full benefit of the work that they have done would be obtained, it becomes a duty to continue it. They must not cease their efforts to attract the attention of friends to stamps, to show their collections at every proper place, and to secure printed notice of philately. Philately need not fear competition, if its merits are adequately advertised.

No Joke—The United States Government has proved conclusively to the Hartford company, the contractors who furnished the stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers up to July 1, 1907, that it does not sleep on its rights. Readers of the WEEKLY have been told of the deterioration in the quality of paper stock used in the manufacture of the postal stationery, during the period of the Hartford company's contract, and now, it is announced that the company has paid into the hands of Postmaster-General Meyer one hundred thousand dollars in settlement of all claims and damages by reason of the inferior quality of some of the paper used in the manufacture of the envelopes. Our great and awful government does not regard certain provisions of contracts into which it may enter as mere formality or verbal padding.

Death of a Pioneer—There died in Chicago recently at the age of eighty-two years, Jesse Holladay, one of the pioneer express company men and one of the originators of the famous "pony express" service. With a brother he was interested in the pony express and the two controled other of the earlier stage lines in the west, as well. Mr. Holladay was always willing to relate experiences that he had when the west was young and he furnished the material for many a story that has appeared in newspaper and magazine. It is a matter of some regret that the purely stamp phases of the pony express and other companies with which he had been connected were not remembered clearly by Mr. Holladay, who, we believe, had been known to voice regret at the circumstance that he could furnish no philatelic data to those who inquired for it, in particular.

Shaky—From Belgrade, the news comes that the Servian national assembly has been adjourned by the government and that so intense is the indignation of the people that the throne of King Peter is in danger of being toppled over. The whole trouble is said to be the king's "impecuniosity;" he has more debts than money. We trust that Servia, a country that has been quite moderate in its stamp issues will not emulate the example of Roumania, and not be tempted to recoup its finances by resorting to numerous stamp issues. We believe that the day of the successful commemorative issue from the financial point of view is passing; and so, it may be argued soon that the way for a government to save money is to issue only necessary stamps.

It Is Said—A reader who saw a reference of an old label, "Republic of Ireland," twenty-four cents green, central design harp of Ireland, writes: "From the preface of an old catalogue, 1866, that illustrates the label, I take the following bit of lore: 'It is uncertain whether the Fenian essay can claim even the doubtful honor of being actually the proposed stamp of an abortive government. Not improbably it is the work of some speculative engraver who has not yet submitted his design to the important officers charged with the duties of deciding upon the value of such things.'" It was pointed out in the early days that "it is a source of satisfaction to find that the taste for essays has in this country (England) greatly diminished. The encouragement formerly given to essay-makers had the effect of greatly increasing the number of their production."

A Matter of Ink—An anti-surcharge partizan submits a "horrible example" of overpriting in the case of the Fiji Islands. His figures show that outside of the nine Fiji Times Express stamps, there are but fourteen specimens unsurcharged with a catalogue value of $14.94, while there are thirty-six surcharges cataloguing at $351.50. The Fiji stamp without surcharge is the exception, although not a "rare" one.

* * *

Possible—Manchuria, a name that a comparatively few years ago, suggested a country far beyond the pale of civilization, is making tremendous strides of progress under Chinese control; and the postal regulations are admirably in keeping with the advance of a country that is destined for important place. We learn that "a special department of the Chinese imperial posts has been created for Manchuria. From Mukden the chief postal commissioner will direct a foreign staff and supervise the work of the offices, whose number it is expected will ultimately be increased to about 150, located throughout the three eastern provinces. Japanese post-offices are established in the southern Manchurian cities along their railway lines, and Russian postoffices from Kwanchengtze northward at the principal cities." It is possible that distinctive stamps will be deemed necessary if separate accounts are to be kept by China, a nation that is showing a singularly intelligent governorship in this instance.

He Is Looking—A savant of Sydney, New South Wales, is hunting for the "lost continent" of the South Seas. If he finds it, stamp collectors will not be long in ignorance, judging from the facility with which the continent and its island appendages down there that are already discovered issue stamps.

FIVE HUNDREDTH MEETING OF THE CHICAGO PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

Of all the ceremonies that has marked the career of the Chicago Philatelic Society none has equalled in profound interest and general impressiveness the celebration of the five hundredth meeting of the society on the evenings of October 17th and 18th. The exercises held October 17th at the clubroom were given before fifty persons and the rapt attention that was given the proceedings was a tribute to their high character. The meeting was called to order by President H. N. Mudge, and after a very short business session was turned over to C. E. Severn, chairman of the 500th meeting committee. Mr. Severn introduced I. R. Johnson, who, using a large chart of the reverse of the commemorative token especially designed for distribution among the members, illustrated a lecture that explained the details of the symbolism on the medal; in choice phrase, the significance of the triangle, the octagon, the pyramid, the star, the descending rays, etc., was told. The suggestions in all their delicacy elusive as they may have been to the intensely practical mind, certainly were appreciated; and each member present became to regard his token as possessing talismanic virtues that would endure for all time. After a medal had been presented to Mr. Mudge, he addressed each member personally, as the box was placed in hand. Mr. Severn introduced our member, the Rev. D. D. Vaughan, who spoke most eloquently on the broader meaning of the medal's emblemism; he discoursed on the Fatherhood of God and the Fellowship of Man, and the auditors were uplifted by the beautiful sentiment. The data of the symbolism of the commemorative medal was compiled by C. E. Severn, editor of the WEEKLY, I. R. Johnson, president Chicago Branch No. 1, American Philatelic Association, and E. L. Warner of Evanston and Golden Genie fame.

The results of the competitive exhibition, and prize-winners were announced in the preceding number. The displays were numerous and of a high order of merit.

On the following evening, that of Friday, October 18th, a Bohemian lunch was enjoyed by fifty members and friends. A hall had been engaged at a downtown restaurant and the occasion proved to be an excellent foil to the serious business of the evening preceding. After the repast, the fun became fast and furious, as a programme of home talent was unfolded. Here is the list of "talent:"

P. M. WOLSIEFFER,
Recherche Recitationist.
Shakespeare was nothing like this.

H. N. MUDGE,
Master of Music.
He wins in the thirty-third round with the audience groggy.

E. C. DODD,
Monologuist Magnifique.
His first and last appearance on any stage.

E. M. ROSENTHAL,
Premier Parodist.
He carries his own audience with him.

S. V. SAXBY,
Coster-King.
Chevalier must have been his pupil.

F. N. MASSOTH,
Pert Prancer.
In his copyrighted steps and mis-steps.

EDGAR NELTON,
Jaunty Juggler.
He uses real oranges which the spectators eat.

A. ROTERBERG,
Mighty Magician.
He extracts coin from the pockets of stamp dealers.

Music by the Band.

C. P. S. Song.

Mr. Wolsieffer gave a reading that was beautiful to see. H. N. Mudge coaxed sweet sounds from a harmonica. E. C. Dodd showed that there is no other monologuist like him. E. M. Rosenthal was almost swept from his feet by the eddies of applause. S. V. Saxby scored the artistic success of the evening. A cake-walk by F. N. Massoth and company evoked screams of appreciation. Edgar Nelton juggled edibles in an amazing manner; the crowd relished his performance. H. N. Mudge as an encore gave a chalk talk, and furnished pictures that no artist can paint. A. Roterberg did a mysterious turn that upset the audience. The selections of the orchestra were a sane contribution to the evening's enjoyment. Merriment was enthroned for the evening and all paid willing court. The performers were pelted with verbal offerings that scored cleverly in many cases and the entertainers in every instance acquitted themselves with rare credit. The evening's fun was regarded as a prelude to the serious work of the season that will be inaugurated at the 501st meeting of the society.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Joseph A. Steinmetz sends us an editorial from the Philadelphia North American dealing with the establishment of the parcels post and postal savings bank. Mr. Steinmetz urges us to reprint it in full, but space will not permit. We do not feel that our subscribers need any instruction along these lines. The advocacy of these measures by Postmaster General Geo. L. von Meyer has accomplished much in the education of the public mind.

—Receipt of clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Paul Mason, A. Shircliffe and Chas. E. Fisher.

—F. S. Cook of the Boston Philatelic Society has been elected a fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society of London.

—The New York Sun of October 29 contained an article entitled "Mississippi Valley Stamps," dealing with the locals issued in Chicago, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Cleveland, and St. Louis half a century ago. We are indebted to Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., for the clipping.

—We are pleased to state that the facilities of the office at which the WEEKLY is being printed have been largely increased. Mr. Jewett has acquired another office, at 226 Federal St., Portland, and the business has been incorporated under the name of the Jewett Printing Co. We congratulate our printer upon the improved conditions of his business prospects, and in this our many advertisers, in appreciation of his excellent work in the past, will surely join.

—The last number of the Fortnightly reprints and illustrates the article recently contributed to the WEEKLY by C. A. Howes on the "Postage Due Stamps of Chili."

—The annual meeting of the National Stamp Committee will be held in the B. P. S. room, Tuesday, November 5, at 2 P. M. It will be decided at this meeting whether the work will be continued during the coming winter.

—Chas. King of New York City and Chas. E. Lewis of Osterville, Mass., were recent callers at the WEEKLY office.

A WARNING.

Geo. F. Carlton, 1955 Champa St., Denver, Colo., is writing various dealers and soliciting selections of stamps on approval, giving MEKEEL'S WEEKLY as reference. We beg to say that this is done without our authority. We do not know the gentleman and are unable to find his name on our mailing list. We are informed that this same party is giving the names of certain dealers as references without authority.

OHIO STATE ORGANIZATION.

The Ohio Philatelic Association was organized Wednesday evening, 23rd inst., in the assembly room of the Columbus board of trade by about 50 stamp collectors of Ohio, who met on call of the Columbus Collectors' club. About half of those present were members of the club. The following officers were elected:

Frank D. Goodhue, Cincinnati, president; George K. Smith, Jr., Columbus, secretary; Oscar A. Schenck, Columbus, treasurer; C. B. Duffy, chairman of the committee on constitution and by-laws. The Columbus members will elect three resident vice presidents.

Members of the executive committee for their respective counties will be: Arthur J. Murphy, Logan; H. H. Johnstin, London; H. D. Pursell, Washington C. H. Other members of the executive committee will be appointed later. A meeting of the new association will be held in January, on call of the president.

An invitation to meet in Columbus, with the American and Metropolitan Philatelic associations, American Envelope society and United States Revenue society, was extended to the Southern Philatelic association.

(Supplementing the above report F. D. Goodhue writes us that the organization effected is not permanent, but that new officers will be elected as soon as constitution and by-laws have been adopted. Mr. Goodhue is serving as chairman of the organization effected, but insists that a Columbus philatelist should be chosen as president in view of the activity shown by this city. The plans for entertainment of the A. P. A. will be duly outlined in our columns. — MANAGING EDITOR.)

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed AFGHANISTAN.—Nederland Tidjschrift voor Postzegelkunde gives further information regarding the new stamps noted in No. 875. They were engraved in taille douce at Cabul, and there is sufficient variety in color of ink, paper and perforation, to satisfy the most exacting, though only two denominations have yet been issued. One abasi equals two sanar or four shahi, a shahi being nominally worth an anna or penny, though at present the exchange rate is only about 80 per cent of par.

Adhesives.

Imperforate.

1 abasi green on white.
1 abasi green on yellow.
1 abasi light blue.
2 abasi dark blue.

Zigzag roulette.

1 abasi blue green.
1 abasi deep green.

BELGIUM.—As announced in No. 846 the Sunday newspaper stamps are being issued with single line border around the coupon, like the higher values now current, instead of the ornamental border so long familiar. Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 5c pale yellow green in the new type and we understand the 1c and 2c have also been issued in the modified design.

BOSNIA.—It is announced that the new stamps of this country are to be changed, because the Bosnians, who are of Slav origin, are protesting against the use of the German language on these stamps.

DOMINICA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the 2½d ultramarine and black has appeared on chalky multiple CA paper.

DENMARK. — Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the two higher values of the new newspaper stamps, chronicled in No. 878. They were there erroneously called postage due stamps. Like the 1kr, the other krona values are in two colors, though the design is the same for all values.

Newspaper Adhesives.

5kr red and yellow green.
10kr bistre and blue.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA. — We have been shown the 20r stamp, large form, on chalky multiple paper, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Offices in the Levant.—Ewen's says the 3d registration envelope, surcharged for use in the Levant, as noted in No. 773, has now appeared with the "R" removed from the top left corner, and an inscription, "This space is reserved for Official Registration Label," printed therein.

HAUT-SENEGAL-NIGER. — The 15c value has now been issued in the new type, with portrait of Gen. Faidherbe.

Adhesive.

15c violet.

LUXEMBURG. — The lower values of postage stamps have been issued in a new design, much more attractive than the portrait design of the higher values. The Grand Ducal arms, showing a crowned lion rampant, on a barred shield, and surmounted by the crown of the Grand Duchy forms the central figure in the stamp, and this is imposed upon the lower part of a circular band of white, which bears the inscription, "Grand Duché de Luxembourg." The figures of value are printed in circles of color in the lower corners with "Cent." upon a colored tablet between. The design is simple and somewhat stiff, but on the whole neat and pretty in appearance. It will be noted that the 6c value appears for the first time in the stamps of this country, and L Echo says this is the first 6 centime stamp that has been printed for any country. The stamps are printed on thick white wove unwatermarked paper and perf. 12½. The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the five values.

Adhesives.

1c gray.
2c brown.
4c bistre.
5c green.
6c violet.

MONTSERRAT.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1d carmine and black and 5sh scarlet and black on chalky multiple paper.

NICARAGUA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us a block of six stamps of the "Vale 20 cts" on 1c green official, chronicled in No. 853, but showing varieties of type in the overprint, including the accented "a" in "Vale", with a wrong font "l" on the same stamp, another stamp with a smaller wrong font "t," and still another with a wrong font "a" in "Vale." The same gentlemen have also shown us the "Vale 10c" and "Vale 50c" on the 1c green official, the surcharge on all three reading both up and down, and on the last two showing the usual variations in shape of the cipher.

PERU.—El Eco Postal reports that the 2 soles stamp of the new set has been issued in two colors like the balance of the set.

Adhesive.

2 soles violet and green.

PORTUGUESE COLONIES.—The Diario Oficial announces that the Portuguese Government will issue on January 1, 1908, for use in its Colonies, 248 new stamps.

SPAIN.—The commemorative set already noted seems to have been surrounded with unprecedented restrictions regarding their use, even for sets intended simply to advertise some exposition. Those just issued by Spain are large handsome stamps with portrait of the King and Queen facing each other but slightly tipped back so that there is room between the heads for the royal crown. "Espana" is printed on a tablet just below the portraits, while "Expon. de Industrias de Madrid" runs the full length of the stamp at the top. "Correos" reads up at the left, and "Ano 1907" downward at the right, while the value is printed on large shields in each of the lower corners.

It is the restriction regarding their use that distinguishes them from all similar issues. They had actually no postal value, and yet all letters mailed within the Exposition were required to have these stamps affixed in addition to the regular postage. In other words, double postage was levied on such letters, the only apparent return being the privilege of having the letters postmarked with the special design adopted for the Exposition Postoffice. We learn these facts from L'Echo which treats the set as a barefaced attempt to bleed collectors for the benefit of the revenue.

Commemorative Adhesives.

10c carmine.
15c violet.
20c blue.
50c green.
1p claret.
4p brown.

TRANSVAAL.—The new postage due stamps are not to be sold to the general public, it is officially announced.

THE DOCTOR OF PHILATELY.

"Shake," said the dealer. "I am glad to see you. You are the first stamp man I ever saw who did not think he knew it all."

"But I wish to know. In fact, I am not a collector, a dealer nor a philatelist," said the Doctor. "Listen a minute, my jovial friend. I know nothing of stamps but I want to learn," said the Doctor.

"O, you want a job; I have sufficient help," said the stamp dealer.

"Do let me explain," said the Doctor. "I have a particular reason for wishing to become a well posted stamp collector at the earliest possible date. I am willing to pay a fair price," said the Doctor.

"Sell you anything you want. Glad to do so. Give you good value, but can't supply brains! You must work out your own salvation. Glad to wait upon you if you know what you want, but if you don't I'm going to lunch," said the stamp dealer.

"Good day," said the Doctor. "I judge you are not the man I am looking for."

"You guessed it, and I know your case. You are in love with a girl. She is an expert philatelist. You are not. You must meet her on her own ground to succeed. Go to some young dealer who has the time. Good luck to you. When you get posted, come round, I'll complete your education," said the stamp dealer as the Doctor made his exit.

The Doctor wended his way to the next one on his list. "I am not sure that I am in the right office," said the Doctor.

"Who are you looking for?" inquired the young man behind the counter.

"I am hunting for the philatelic shop," replied the Doctor.

"This is the place. We are all philatelists here," said the man.

"I should like to see the proprietor," replied the Doctor.

"I am he."

"Have you a private office?" asked the Doctor.

"Certainly, step in here," leading the way. "What can I do for you?" asked the proprietor.

"I am entirely ignorant of stamp collecting. I have a private reason for wishing to become a well posted stamp collector at the earliest date. I am willing to pay a fair price for the stamps and the instruction. I will spend one hundred dollars with you. I want it understood, however, that I must be taught so well that I will pass for a real philatelist."

"Well," said the stamp dealer, "I guess we can turn you out posted for a hundred. How much time can you give us?" asked the dealer.

"I will give you four hours a day for a week. Will that do?" said the Doctor.

"We will do our best," said the dealer, and added, "I have here a fine album. I have also at hand a discreet young man who understands all the details thoroughly. I will tell him you are in my employ and you can pass as such. I will give you the small office over there to yourselves for the coming week. You will mount your stamps in this album under his direction. I will guarantee that you will be posted all right when he gets through with you."

At the end of the week the Doctor caught the philatelic fever in genuine style and spent several hundred dollars instead of one. The proprietor laughingly said, "I shall have to raise his salary," but George—the clerk—told the manager "that the boss was going to raise that greeny's wages after he had spent hours teaching him to classify correctly,—positively, he doesn't know a reprint from a remainder now." But the proprietor raised the young clerk's salary at the end of the week, much to his surprise, and discharged the Doctor to the regret of all, as he had been quite free with lunches and cigars.

The Doctor returned home. He told his friend,—as they were seated in the Doctor's library—over their cigars, of his experience.

"At first the stamps I priced and placed were mentioned in so many different places in the catalogue I was in despair. At night I dreamed rouletted, perforated, multiple watermark, and other parlance of the trade, but you can't stick me now. I have the whole story. To illustrate how interesting I can be. I can tell as good a history of Peru as Prescott from the stamps alone, beside the pure philatelic detail. I shall shine at the philatelic meet at your sister's."

"The world is yours," said Lee.

"The girl is mine," said the Doctor.

A maid brought the Doctor an invitation from Miss Lee to the philatelic meeting. Miss Edna greeted him cordially and asked him to see the famous collection. In looking it over he said, "I am afraid you have some of your stamps misplaced."

"How so," she inquired.

"You will observe that these islands you have grouped so carefully are headed British possessions, while some that I see here belong to other countries. I also observe that your Heligoland are cheap reprints. I have some of the genuine, though expensive they are preferable. A few of your stamps are revenues, which appear out of place in a postage stamp collection."

"Why, Doctor, I was not aware that you collected," remarked Miss Edna.

"I have a small collection, nothing wonderful, but choice and correctly classified," replied the Doctor.

The evening passed with pleasure. The Doctor returned to his "den" and finding his friend Lee there, said, "Your advice was good, I hope to marry a philatelist."

C. A. NAST, Pres.; O. K. CARSTARPHEN, Vice Pres.; E. R. VANDERHOOF, Sec'y, 1328 Grant Ave., Denver, Colo; W. G. SWART, Treas.; Sales Mgr.; Trustees, A. M. BALLAU, J. S. DAVIS and W. W. BIGLER.

DENVER, Oct. 22, 1907.

The 6th special meeting of the Denver Stamp Club was called to order by President Nast at the usual time. Fifteen members and three visitors present. The committee having charge of the auditing of the Sales Department made another report of progress to date, and the several matters pertinent thereto were discussed freely for some time. Dr. H. A. Davis gave the club an interesting talk on Esperanto, and left for the library of the club several booklets with reference to the subject.

W. G. Swart exhibited a portion of his superb collection of U. S., which entertained the club until a late hour. General exchanging of specimens consumed the balance of the time until about 11.00 P. M.

After the meeting adjourned several of the interested members formed and projected what will result in the publication of a stamp journal, suitable to the needs of the club, and any collectors who may be in vogue with our ideas. With such men as our President, C. A. Nast, who has been correctly dubbed "The Supreme Grand Master of Revenue Lore," and who for over a score of years has been one of the most entertaining writers on philately, Editor-in-Chief, and with our own Dr. H. A. Davis as head of the Executive Department, there is no doubt as to the successful outcome of the proposition. Dr. Davis has shown his superlative ability as a manager and executive in the philatelic world in more ways than one and we are glad that we can avail ourselves of his able services. We also have in our members a list of very creditable supporters, such as W. C. Bellows, whose collection of Mexico is world famous; C. C. Harrington, who about a decade ago was in the van of Philately, by being the head of the now defunct Rocky Mountain Stamp; J. E. Zahn, who, during the same period was a prominent figure before the eyes of the philatelic world; also our well known Swart, Vanderhoof, McCabe and others. We are effervescing with the prospect of success that confronts us, and, as this can be secured ultimately, by the helping hands of collectors at large, we respectfully ask their support, providing our paper is worth the price of admission, which we guarantee.

Next meeting will be the next to the last regular one in this year, and nominations will be in order. All members are desired to be present.

E. R. VANDERHOOF, Sec.

Oct. 21, 1907.

The president, Mr. Lehmann, called the meeting to order at 8 45 P. M., with seventeen members present. Henry J. Meininger, 34 8th Ave., was elected as a member.

A letter from the National Stamp Committee was read and favorably discussed, and as the society had no suggestion to make for the improvement of the valuable service so ably rendered it was decided to contribute the usual amount and let the affairs be handled by those who have brought the committee to its present state of efficiency.

There will be at the next meeting a very interesting competition for prizes for the stamps of Jamaica and all members are earnestly requested to bring all the Jamaicans they can lay their hands on and make this affair a roaring success.

As the very important business of nomination of officers is to be transacted, all members and friends are urged to attend the next meeting Nov. 4, 1907.

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

Fellow Members:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

REPORT OF THE COUNTERFEIT DETECTOR.

BOSTON, MASS., Oct. 19, 1907.

Dangerous forgeries of the crown design of the Portuguese colonies, especially Macau and Portuguese Indies with surcharges are coming from various sources. The entire stamp is forged. The surchrage is well imitated, although colors are in some cases rather pale.

J. M. BARTELS.

AN APPEAL FOR NEW MEMBERS.

We have every reason to feel satisfied with the results of the circulation of the new booklet. Members are being drawn towards the Association and the coming weeks will show that the seed sown will bring forth a bountiful harvest.

The booklet, however, cannot compare with personal work, and however much we scatter literature, it is the personal word that will secure the signed application. State the proposition squarely to your collecting friend and he cannot but admit that we have a good case.

Let the work of M. Z. Booleman, who sends in two applications from Holland, be an inspiration for us to do better work in the future than we have done in the past. If Mr. Booleman can secure applications in Europe, our members here should be equal to the situation. Get busy. Stay busy. Make others busy.

COLORADO BRANCH NO. 22.

The regular meeting of Colorado Branch 22, A. P. A., met at Nast's Studio on Tuesday eve, Oct. 22, with eight members present. The main business of the meeting was to act on the resignations of our President, Mr. Carstarphen, who has removed to N. Y., and Mr. Hoffman, Exchange Mgr., whose business demands require all his time and do not permit of his carrying out the duties of his office in the Society. Both resignations were accepted with regret.

The Society then proceeded to elect successors for the above offices vacated, with the result that Dr. H. A. Davis will fill the unexpired term of President and C. A. Nast will handle the Exchange Department.

No further business coming before the meeting adjournment was taken at 10 P.M.

JOS. S. DAVIS, Sec.

MILWAUKEE BRANCH NO. 24.

The seventh regular meeting was held Oct. 22, 8 P. M., 1907, at the office of Dr. Teschan, 2416 North Ave., with thirteen members and four visitors present.

It was voted that the Secretary draw up a request on the Sales Supt. of our Assn. to send them circuits and the following members signed: Teschan, Noel, Hoeck, Van Toor, Maloney, Johnson, Staab, Fischer, Linke, Kraft and Mrs. Suits. It was further decided that the Secretary request the circuits be sent to him and the route arranged by him.

The Secretary was instructed to communicate with the C. P. S. concerning the loan of their Lantern Slide Exhibition and Lecture.

Geo. A. Burton was elected to membership by acclamation.

The application of R. R. Thiele was referred to a future meeting and the Secretary ordered to communicate with the officers of our association concerning applications for passive membership.

Exhibition of the evening was Dr. Linke's collection of specialized unused, also Dr. Teschan's book of European blocks and pairs and his partly mounted stamps. All of the foregoing were a rare philatelic treat to say the least and constant terms of admiration were heard as the leaves were turned. After the exhibition the doctor, aided by his charming wife, gave a sumptuous luncheon which all enjoyed. After thanking the hostess and host cordially the members gradually repaired to their homes.

IDENTIFICATION OF STAMPS BY AID OF PHOTOGRAPHY.

By J. LEIBLINGER, U. S. Army.

By the application of photographic printing methods we are able to bring to plain view obscure, indistinct and secreted stamp characteristics, such as are essential to philately and of considerable importance from the collectors' standpoint. The different methods of identification in general use require frequent handling, soaking, hingeing and mounting of a stamp, thereby neither improving its quality nor its appearance. By use of photographic identification the stamp is in no way harmed nor endangered. It is merely brought in contact with sensitive paper, exposed, and thus forced by the sun's rays to leave traces of its indentity on the photoprint, revealing the papertexture, the watermark, surcharges and cancellations, in form of a plain and permanent photographic record.

To bring out the papertexture, the stamp should be exposed face down for the period required to bring out the necessary detail. Thin paper, easily penetrated by light, may be exposed in the shade. Thick paper or stamps on cover require longer exposure to direct sunlight.

The length of an exposure depends upon the stamp's texture, fabric, color, impression, upon the light to which it is exposed and upon the variety of photopaper used. An exposure can not be timed by the thickness of the paper, but by its density and transparency; not by the shade of its color, but by its nature. The fact that silver paper is more sensitive to blue and violet rays and less so to the red and green ones, has to be considered carefully. Stamps printed in purple, blue, violet or brown colors, require shorter exposure than red, oranges, yellow or green stamps, while those printed in two or more contrasting colors will fail to print uniformly.

The following difference in exposure was noted during preparation of prints: A dark blue stamp with black impression printed in 5 minutes, on orange paper in 18 min., on green paper in 8 min., on thick white paper in 4.5 min.; with dark blue impression in 4 min.; with yellow impression in 16 min.; with red impression in 9 min.; with green impression in 9 min.; with vermilion impression in 12.5 min., etc.

The printing quality of stamps as seen from the above varies considerably and a rather difficult problem is the proper timing of a large number of stamps to be printed together on one sheet of paper. Again this difference becomes valuable, in order to ascertain the identity of a certain stamp or a set of stamps, issued or reissued on different varieties of paper. Their uniform appearance on the photograph will soon group them together in their own classes.

Different paper varieties are distinguished by their own general characteristics, which appear plainly on the photograph, when properly exposed. To bring out all details, to best advantage, the print has to be guarded from overexposure. Wove paper shows regular or irregular dark dots on a lighter background. Laid paper is distinguished by dark parallel lines, running vertically, horizontally or diagonally through the stamp, varying in width, distance apart, and symmetry.

Lines crossing each other at right angle, exposing small light squares, are characteristic to quadrille paper. Silk papers show a thin light line across the stamp, or fine light threads, unevenly distributed on a dark surface. Manila paper and fibrous varieties show similar characteristics.

Defects in the paper, as far as ascertained, appear as follows: Erasures, abrasions, a thinning of the surface, as a dark spot of the size of the defect. A cut, tear, a deep scratch, as a dark line. Adhering paper particles, hinges, obstructions, interfering with uniform light penetration, as a light or unshaded spot. A light line is usually due to a crease or a pen or pencil mark.

Repaired and doctored stamps are exposed by their appearance on the print, specially in cases where two different varieties of paper were used in the alteration, where parts were substituted, namely inlaid numerals, letters, marks, artificial inverts, tête-bêches, repaired corners, perforations, etc.

Characters and impressions on the under-surface of the stamp appear on the photograph between the lines of the surface impression (Sweden's posthorns, will not be in any hurry about getting their 1908 catalogue. Our catalogue has for many years been the World's Standard Authority. We base our prices on actual stock. We neither guess at or copy a price and what is more important still we have the goods and the backing to buy what we have not got. For example we lately purchased a collection for a quarter of a million dollars. Now then Mr. Collector let us urge upon you to wait for our new edition—it is bigger and better than ever. We do not list either U. S. envelopes, telegraph, local or revenue stamps, neither do we list such things as Chinese locals, Tierra del Fuego and such like nonsense. What we list are postage stamps and postage stamps only.

WISE COLLECTORS

PLEASURE

YOURS AND OURS

It is with great pleasure we beg to announce that Mr. John R. Miller's magnificent collection of unused stamps has just been added to our stock. The stamps therein are PERFECTION copies which, of course, means original gum and exactly centered. Exceedingly fine unused copies of many stamps are often almost unobtainable and the acquiring of them entails very considerable trouble and expense.

Advanced collectors who are looking for the choicest possible copies of unused stamps are cordially invited to correspond with us. Comprised in this collection which numbers about 16,000 varieties are nearly one thousand used stamps, perfect and lightly cancelled copies. Very fine condition in used stamps of certain countries is almost as hard to obtain as perfect centering in unused stamps.

We will gladly and promptly furnish serious philatelists with particulars and prices. Collectors residing in New York and vicinity will do well to visit our shop and inspect the many beautiful sets and pieces we have to show. Condition alone considered we have never had, and never expect to have, anything better.

MANHATTAN STAMP CO.,
DEALERS IN POSTAGE STAMPS
234 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK.

NOTE.—Readers of this advt. will please not lose sight of the fact that our regular stock is large and averages high both as regards class and condition. Hundreds of books made up alphabetically according to Scott's catalogue always ready for our approval business.

Portugal's prayers, Spain's register numbers, etc.). The impression, in direct contact with the photopaper will print reversed but plainer and sharper in outline.

Photography seems to be of excellent use for the reproduction of watermarks, and in some respects is superior to the use of benzine and ferrotype-plate. It shows the watermark as a permanent, plainly visible record, while benzine exposes its outline as a passing shadow, which vanishes upon evaporation of the odorous liquid. Watermarks caused by thinning of the paper fabric, also such made by compression or impragnation with a fatty substance, print quickly in plain contrast, showing dark outline on a light ground, while such as are formed by accretion of fibre require longer exposure and print light on a dark ground.

For the reconstruction of whole watermarked sheets, or such watermarks as are distributed over a number of stamps, photographic reproduction has special advantages. On the photograph the different features of a specimen are well differentiated and easily recognized, while on the black surface of the ferrotype-plate, the watermark, the surcharge and the cancellation often intermingle, appearing all dark, thereby causing confusion and interfere with ready identification.

Surcharges, black or colored, printed or handstamped, print according to their density and transparency, according to the manner of application and the quantity and quality of ink used. Those impenetrable to light leave the photograph unaffected, while others, poorly impressed print unevenly with spotted surface.

It is difficult to bring out plainly all important stamp characteristics on one photo copy. To get the best possible results, it is necessary to expose the stamp repeatedly, each exposure directed toward the reproduction of a special feature of the stamp. All the above prints were made on sunlight or printing out paper (Solio) which gave excellent results.

THE PECKITT ADVERTISEMENT.

There is no philatelic paper in the world that carries so much "foreign" advertising as does MEKEEL'S WEEKLY. This is a striking testimonial to its ability as a salesman.

In this number is a half page advertisement of W. H. Peckitt, London, who as a dealer in rare stamps has acquired an enviable reputation. The advertisement in question is special evidence of the character of Mr. Peckitt's stock.

The recent purchases made have brought to the surface a large number of rarities that few, if any, dealers can duplicate. We take great pleasure in recommending Mr. Peckitt to any American collectors who may wish to open business relations, assuring them of perfectly satisfactory treatment.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—An envelope to protect souvenir post cards has been patented by John G. Peppler of Weehawken Heights, N. J. Mr. Peppler sends us full particulars, accompanied by an illustration in detail. The device consists of a card holding envelope made of light, transparent paper, through which the superscription may be easily read, and while protecting the card enclosed, has a space cut away sufficiently large to expose the stamp and a portion of the card, so that the postmark can be affixed thereto. In this connection it may be well to note that a recent ruling of the department has decreed that "post cards ornamented with particles of glass, mica, or other similar substance liable to injure the persons of those handling the mails, are hereby excluded as unmailable except when enclosed in suitable envelopes."

—Edgar Nelton sends us two Battle Creek Sanitarium menus dated October 26 and 28. On the daily program for October 26 Mr. Nelton was slated to give a stereoptican lecture, taking for his subject "Rare, Interesting, and Beautiful Old Stamps and Ancient and Historical Buildings." On the 28th Mr. Nelton exhibited his collection of stamps, books, and rare and curious old coins.

—The seventh anniversary of the Quaker City Philatelic Society was observed in Odd Fellows' Temple, Philadelphia, October 25. In the program at hand we note quite a variety of entertainment, comprising recitations and vocal and instrumental music. The address of welcome was given by Forrest B. Hand, while Wm. R. Keeler responded for "Our Society" and James Whiteside, "Reminiscences." Refreshments were served.

—The Economist Stamp Co. sends us a specimen of their new 1908 price list. It is a very handy book of forty pages, pricing a great variety of stamps, including both U. S. and foreign. The book is well worth perusal.

—On Saturday, Nov. 16, a mail auction of U. S. and foreign coins, medals and paper money will be closed by B. Max Mehl, of Fort Worth, Texas. The catalogue at hand lists a great variety of lots that should prove of surpassing interest to anyone collecting the same.

—"Kindly note the attached clipping, from the Pittsburg Gazette-Times, showing a very good illustration of the 1c stamp of the present series. In the same paper, an envelope was recently pictured on which were the 2c stamp and 10c special delivery stamp of the present issue. If such are allowed, why cannot we have in our catalogues likenesses of United States stamps?"—HARRY E. HUBER.

Such are not "allowed" strictly speaking. If called to the attention of any

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY,
PERCIVAL PARRISH, MANAGER. EUGENE KLEIN, ASSISTANT MANAGER.
1204 CHESTNUT ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

SPECIAL Egypt 1907, surcharged O H H S, 1m to 1pi; set of five used, 12c post free.

postmaster prior to mailing the paper, the entire issue would be debarred from the mails. Catalog publishers do not care to take this risk.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from William L. Aldrich, Hugo Kuenstler (4), W. C. Rose, Henry S. Adair (2) and Chas. A. Nast.

—The United Service Philatelic Society is getting upon its feet in good shape. Its officers have been elected, consisting of an Executive Committee of three members and a manager of the exchange, who is also Sec.-Treas. These officers are as follows: Executive Committee, Messrs. Knowlton, Chamberlain and Hyde; Exchange Manager, F. L. Palmer. All commissioned officers and cadets of the U. S. army, navy, marine corps, revenue cutter service, and marine hospital service are eligible to membership, also their wives and children provided that minors be guaranteed in writing by their fathers. Manager Palmer, whose address will be found in our advertising columns, will be pleased to send a copy of the constitution and rules governing the management of the exchange circuits to any interested parties.

—The catalogue of the 13th sale of Morgenthau & Co. is at hand. This sale will be held in N. Y. City four nights in November, commencing November 21, when a collection, the property of John S. Wilson of San Francisco will be sold without reserve. The collection is a general one, and though no great rarities may be found, still a large number of medium rare stamps can be noted. The catalogue is as well written as usual.

—Emil Eckstein informs the WEEKLY that he is receiving very favorable consideration for the claims of Savannah, Georgia, as the convention seat of the A. P. A. for 1909. Mr. Eckstein writes that the novelty of a meeting in the southland is attracting attention, but he feels that the best claim of his city rests upon the fact that no convention has ever been held in the south, and the time is now ripe for such recognition.

—So many kind friends are sending us newspaper clippings in regard to the wonderful Bermuda ball dress made of stamps, that we wish to say that this "wonderful creation" was referred to in the WEEKLY a year ago and the story now seems to be going the rounds of the press a second time.

—Elliott Perry, in purchasing a second block of fifty lines of trade space, writes:—"I might say a few words in regard to the quality and quantity of the results the WEEKLY brings, but prefer to let the enclosed check speak for itself."

—Our thanks are due W. H. Colson for his neat November desk calendar, showing an illustration of the rare 1p "Wale" error of New South Wales. The calendar is accompanied by a prospectus of a new book "Postage Stamps and Their Collection," by Mr. Colson, which will prove a rare treat to the philatelic booklover. This book will be ready for delivery November 15, and a more extended notice may soon be expected in our columns.

—The catalogue of the 109th sale to be held by the United Stamp Co. November 9, lists a large number of lots from the Hussman stock. The catalogue just at hand contains a great many offers of special interest to dealers. The next sale will present the U. S. collection of Chas. S. Smack of Chicago, announced as being probably the best ever made in Chicago. In the collection may be found a splendid lot of revenues, proofs and blocks.

—The International Philatelic Union, of which H. R. Oldfield is president and T. S. Hinton secretary and treasurer, held its third annual smoking concert on October 21 at Anderton's Hotel, London. The program presented a wide variety of recitations and musical numbers.

—We have received the new 1908 Champion catalogue, and an extended review will be given it in an early number.

—F. G. Sweet, Battle Creek, Mich., formerly of Baltimore where he was well known as a dealer, was in Chicago recently.

—Theodore Siddall of Manila, Philippines, whose contributions to the WEEKLY are a feature that is appreciated by readers, passed through Chicago recently.

—The receipt is acknowledged of souvenir postal cards from General H. H. Bandholtz who is taken a trip through the Straits Settlements and British North Borneo.

—Edgar Nelton who lectured recently before the Chicago Philatelic Society on stamps on original covers, illustrated by his own collection, said that J. F. Seybold's wonderful collection of stamps on envelopes must be the most marvelous collection of its kind extant.

—By the advertisement of the Manhattan Stamp Co. it will be noted that John R. Miller's magnificent private collection of unused stamps has been added to the firm's stock. The Manhattan Co. is certainly in shape to meet the needs of its many patrons.

—The American Junior Philatelic Assn., organized last May in Coldwater, Michigan, has a roster of eighteen members. We are assured, however, that with its ambitious name the members are determined to measure up to its possibilities. Interested philatelists are advised to communicate with the secretary, John Walker.

—At the meeting of the Columbus Collectors' Club slated for November 6 there was to have been an exhibit of U. S. revenues, accompanied by a stamp bourse.

—Wolsieffer's 80th sale to be held Nov. 16 is divided into three sections in keeping with his recent catalog efforts. A feature of the coming sale is a goodly number of lots of blocks of four, strips and pairs.

—D. T. Eaton has furnished us with advertising copy of late that has had a wide reading, if we may judge by the mention made of it in the foreign press. Among the answers received to the query "What does D. T. stand for?", Mr. Eaton received the following from H. C. U., Waterbury, Conn.:—

"By Pocahontas' wondrous lid
Pray tell us who you blame?
For turning to the Bible for
This awe inspiring name.
A dollar stamp, why you foxy scamp,
You knew you could easily fool us,
At a guess a minute, no one could win it,
Most illustrious Demetrius Theophilus."

—"S. Schwerzman, former sales manager of the Denver Stamp Club, is a fugitive from justice. Warrants are out for his arrest for forgery and embezzlement. Besides being charged with defrauding members of the Denver Stamp Club to the amount of $175.00 he has added forgery to his other crimes, having forged the name of H. A. Davis to a check for $45.00. He has fled to parts unknown. Any information will be gladly received by the undersigned and an officer will be sent to bring him back to Denver. His picture is in the convention group of 1907."—CHAS. A. NAST, Pres. Denver Stamp Club.

EDITORIAL.

No Case—In an article, "Our Expatriates," by a Provincial Patriot, in the Saturday Evening Post for October 26th, 1907, is a paragraph that catches the eye of philatelists: "There is King Victor Emmanuel, a modest, kindly young man, who enjoys a personal allowance of six or seven millions a year from his loving subjects. His prime object in life is the collecting of postage stamps. And he has one of the finest collections in the world." The motive of the writer of the article from which we have quoted is entitled to all sympathy and commendation; it was his intent to repel derogatory citations and unpleasant insinuations against America that were voiced by a "voluntary expatriate" in a previous number of the paper in question. Yet, the process of comparison generally favorable to our own country, its people and its institutions, by the defender of our faith, is insufficient in one particular; the illustration that has been copied is unfortunate from the point of view of the philatelist. In fact, if the writer thought to score by his allusion to the philatelic proclivities of the King of Italy, he misses his mark entirely. In the philatelic estimation, he has introduced an element into his argument that is distinctly to the disadvantage of his position.

All Credit—Philatelists know what the description, "His prime object in life is the collecting of postage stamps," means, and the significance of "And he has one of the finest collections in the world," is not lost on them. The two statements are in happy juxtaposition. The King of Italy is wealthy and while his riches pave the way wonderfully for stamp acquirement, yet there is no royal road to real philatelic eminence. If the king has one of the finest collections in the world, he at once compels the respect of the quarter-million or more philatelists the world over. If philately is a dominant factor in Victor Emmanuel's life, it is proved that he has a human side, an analysis of which is creditable to him. He is, perforce, studious; he is finely-tempered and he delights in the little things that help to make up the sum of existence. Victor Emmanuel well fills his exalted position, in so far as his stamp pursuit enters into it; and that his devotion to stamps is a praiseworthy and important phase of existence, all philatelists will aver. A king through the lessons that stamp collecting conveys may become the better fitted to rule his subjects wisely and benignly; philately may be his "prime object" in life and yet not crowd out thought that has for its end the betterment of his country and its people.

In Point—It has been said and with no little truth that life in America is not conducive to the highest philatelic refinement possible, which is a growth representing much time and an affluent purse. The wealthy collectors of our country usually are the busiest men of affairs who, to their regret, can give but comparatively little of their time to stamps. Conditions in European countries are more favorable for the highest philatelic development. There, individuals may be found who are persons of wealth and not engaged in trade or business; if so disposed, there is nothing to prevent them from giving practically all of their time to philately, purely as collectors. Stamps afford them, as certain of them have testified, an occupation that is gently stimulating and in many respects agreeable; it may properly be said that stamp collecting is their "prime object in life." Collectors in America consider the conditions as briefly outlined, ideal, and they envy those who are situated so fortunately that the philatelic longing may be fully indulged. They respect, not ridicule, the person who gives the most attention to stamps.

New Guinea—The recent surcharge of "Papua" on the British New Guinea stamps was reported to have been necessitated by the fact that Great Britain has sovereignty over only a small portion of the country. We wonder if all of our readers know how huge a "terra ingognita" New Guinea is. Excepting Australia, it is the largest island in the world and may be called a continent, in fact. It is four hundred and ninety miles wide and one thousand, four hundred miles long and is divided among Germany, Holland and England. Little is known of the country except along the coast and for short distances up the rivers. One of the most barbarous and belligerent of savage tribes has its home in the interior and it is represented that their masters, in name, do not attempt any familiarity or benevolent assimilation with them. The European nations that hold the land are content to leave the terrible tribesmen in peace. The Germans have sent several exploring parties into the interior and they never returned. The postage stamp has been called the advance agent of civilization; evidently, a good many issues will be required before New Guinea becomes effete.

This Is Too Much—Recently, we reported that some great mind lucubrated that "stamp collecting is holding its own, and is almost as popular as the collecting of souvenir postal cards." The worst is yet to come; a prominent newspaper writer says: "The 'fad' has not lost its hold upon our boys and girls, little and big. The craze for postage stamps keeps almost abreast of that for postal cards."

Then and Now—The Colonial Stamp Company sends a clipping that gives a graphic account of the conditions that prevailed in old Tasmania, when it was known as Van Dieman's Land, after the Dutch Governor of Batavia, Van Dieman, who commissioned Tasman, the navigator to make a voyage of discovery in the Southern Pacific, Tasman having sighted the island in 1642. When Van Dieman's Land was used as a penal colony by the British Government, it was sometimes referred to as the "Gates of Hell," but the transportation of convicts ceased in 1853, and upon the petition of the inhabitants, the name of the island was changed to Tasmania, and thereby the thought of sin and suffering associated with the name of the country was dismissed. Since the dark days, the island has become a veritable Garden of Eden. After reading an article of this kind, the early issues of Tasmania yield a more vivid interest than ever for the collector, who finds in the stamps of Tasmania, a striking reflex of the island's interesting political changes.

Printed Away from Home—The provisional One-Half Penny surcharged on the one penny Cayman Islands, a stamp chronicled first by this paper in the issue of October 19th, and referred to in the following number, said to have been overprinted in Jamaica. In this connection, Mr. Ewen says: "Only a small quantity has been done, if reports are true, and they are not to be sold to dealers." We know that in the instance of one American dealer who ordered a quantity of the regular half-penny Cayman, his requistion was filled by the surcharged stamps only.

Needed—One of the English exchange clubs advertises a new stamp sheet that it has had "registered" that it will make fraud impossible and prevent the substitution of stamps. If a sheet has been invented that will serve a practical purpose in its measure of protection, a distinct boon to certain circles in philately will result. There is need for a sheet as described, and it will enjoy much popularity. Samples of the sheets are awaited.

* * *

Looking Forward—The Junior Philatelic Society, London, has decided upon the date of the society's exhibition of the stamps of the British colonies, for which active preparations are in progress. March 12, 13 and 14 will be dedicated to the exhibition which will be given at Caxton Hall, Westminster, England. "Admission will be free by ticket" and donations to the expense fund are invited by the promoters.

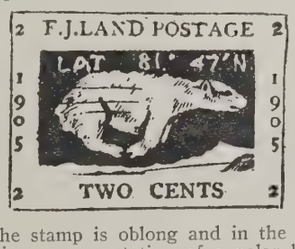
A POLAR ISSUE.

W. L. Babcock, M. D., calls our attention to an engraving of a stamp used in the polar regions by the members of the Zeigler Polar Expedition, under the direction of Anthony Fiala. It is illustrated in Fiala's book "Fighting the Polar Ice", published by Doubleday, Page & Co., of N. Y. City.

It is possible that we have made passing mention of this stamp before. We have not, however, illustrated it, and by courtesy of the firm above named and the author, Mr. Fiala, we are now privileged to give our readers a glimpse of this startling creation.



The stamp is oblong and in the center is a representation of a polar bear, with the latitude of the stamp country stated thereon. It is said that this stamp was printed on a hand press at Camp Abruzzi, Rudolf Island, Franz Joseph Land, in 1905, and served for postage between that camp and Camp Zeigler and Camp Flora on distant islands, the distribution of letters and mail being carried out by means of dog teams.

The bear is evidently "on the jump." We hope that some of our readers will become equally active and present for our inspection one or more copies of this stamp on the original cover.

DEATH OF H. BRADLEY POTTER, JR.

We are under obligations to W. H. Bruce and Hugo Kuenstler for newspaper clippings announcing the news of the tragic death of H. Bradley Potter, Jr., which occurred Tuesday, October 29, at the Waldorf Hotel in N. Y. City. Mr. Potter was a member of the A. P. A. and was the leading agent at Doylestown, Pa., for a score of representative insurance companies.

We quote as follows from the clipping sent by Mr. Bruce:—

"Mr. Potter's house, at Maple and Cottage avenues, was one of the prettiest in the town. With his wife and two small children he had lived there seven years.

"The news of his death came to his home at Doylestown while his mother and sister were trying to comfort his young wife. Not having received any word from him for four days, she had become almost worn out by grief and anxiety. He had left home about two weeks ago in ill health. He went on a short trip to Atlantic City, by which he hoped to combine business and recuperation. A week ago a letter announced that he was going to New York for a few days. Later another letter told that he was staying at the Waldorf.

"Since then his relatives had no word. His widow, who, with two children, survives him, has no relations. Left alone she became almost frantic because of her ignorance of his welfare. Tuesday night his mother and sister stayed with her, and it was while they were assuring one another that all was well that tidings of the terrible tragedy came. Potter was about 40 years of age. His son, Allen, is 13 years of age, and his daughter, Virginia, a few years younger."

The account of the affair as given in the N. Y. clipping submitted by Mr. Kuenstler would indicate a mystery in connection with the death difficult to fathom. A letter addressed to his wife was found in his room, a paragraph of which requested that his stamp collection might be kept intact for his son Allen to whom reference is made above.

ACCIDENT TO DR. POPE.

A most painful sensation was caused in Chicago, some weeks ago, by the news that an accident that terminated almost fatally had been suffered by Dr. Henry C. Pope, Birmingham, Alabama, whose philatelic attainments are familiar to many readers of the WEEKLY, and who, a short time ago, was reluctantly forced to abandon active stamp work because of the condition of his eyes. Doctor Pope had spent one day in Chicago, and on the evening of the second, while crossing the street near the station where he was about to take the train for home was struck by one street car and hurled in front of another. He was rendered unconscious instantly and was taken hurriedly to the Chicago Emergency Hospital, where it was found that Dr. Pope's collar-bone was fractured and that he had sustained a deep laceration of the scalp and many abrasions on face and body. At first it was thought that the shock and severity of the wounds would prove fatal to a man of Dr. Pope's age, and several days elapsed before Dr. Pope could instruct that certain of his friends in Chicago be notified. C. E. Severn and P. M. Wolsieffer, who long had known Dr. Pope through correspondence, were daily callers at the hospital and later, at the Palmer House, where he was removed, and they did what they could to ease his ordeal. After a siege of nearly six weeks, Dr. Pope left for Birmingham, practically recovered, thanks to a vigorous constitution and the best medical attention and careful nursing. He carried with him the hope of Chicago friends that many more years of his useful life would be spared.

AUSTRIA. — Offices in the Levant. — Two new stamps have been shown us by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., one having the value in Turkish money and the other in French currency. The latter has black corner figures on white ground, with the word "Centimes" across the neck and "Hellers" at top and bottom obliterated with a plain rule. The other has the corner figures printed in black on Arabesque work, with "Para" printed over "Heller" at top and bottom.

BRITISH HONDURAS.—Ewen's Weekly reports that "there is something of a mystery about the high value stamps noted in Nos. 844 and 867. When the 'specimen' sets were distributed about six months ago, the Continental philatelic journals recorded it as being printed on ordinary instead of chalk-surfaced paper. We are now officially assured that none of these stamps have been printed except on chalk-surface paper. It is admitted that the first supply was returned to London to be destroyed, the reason being that 'the surface was found to adhere insufficiently.' This is the cause of the delay in the issue. It is interesting to note that the only copies of the first printing in existence are the 'specimen' copies, those now issued being the second printing. Whether there is any difference between the two printings from a philatelic point of view we cannot say as we have not seen 'specimen' copies."

COSTA RICA.—We are indebted to the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., Hermann Focke and Philip H. Ward, Jr., for specimens of additional values in the new set of stamps, of which the 25c was chronicled in No. 878. The designs are new throughout, and all have "Correos—Costa Rica—U. P. U. 1907" at the top, some curved and others straight, while the value in both figures and words is printed at the bottom. The stamps are all bicolored and perforated.

Adhesives.

5c brown orange and blue, portrait of Mauro Fernandez.
10c blue and black, portrait of Braulio Carrillo.

GRENADA.—The following interesting announcement is made made by the Colonial Office Journal: "It has been decided that the Grenada postage and revenue stamps for 3d, 6d, 1sh, 2sh, 5sh and 10sh shall in future bear the Colony's badge, instead of, as hitherto, the King's head, and they will be surface printed with doubly fugitive inks, instead of copper plated."

HONG KONG.—The C. O. J. reports that this colony has ordered a stamp of a new value (or rather resuscitated one that has long been out of use), namely 6 cents.

MAURITIUS.—The following from the C. O. J. confirms the note in No. 868 regarding a new issue for this Colony: "Several corrections have been made in the Arms of Mauritius, necessitating a change in the existing issue of stamps in the early future. Mauritius 3 and 50 cents stamps of the existing design, but on multiple chalk surfaced paper are on order."

MONTSERRAT.—According to the C. O. J. this Colony has been supplied with 1d and 5sh stamps on chalky multiple paper.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1sh Kangaroo stamp printed on Victorian Crown A paper, and perforated 12x11½.

NORTHERN NIGERIA.—According to the C. O. J., the ½d, 1d and 2½d stamps will hereafter be supplied in single colors.

ST. KITTS-NEVIS.—The C. O. J. reports that the 1d and 2½d stamps in single color have been supplied to St. Kitts, and that the 1d value will follow suit when more of that denomination are required.

SALVADOR.—Hugo Zimmermann has shown us used copies of the new set, also informs us that both the 5c ultramarine and black, and 5c Prussian blue and black, overprinted 1c, are coming on the mail from Salvador.

SOUTHERN NIGERIA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the 1d stamp in a single color, noted in No. 876, and we find it is on ordinary multiple paper.

Ewen's Weekly notes that the 1sh black and green has been issued on chalky multiple paper.

SPAIN.—We have now been shown a set of the Exposition stamps chronicled in No. 879, by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., and find that no printed description can give an adequate idea of the beauty of the engraving or the delicacy of the shades and printing. It is an exceedingly handsome series, not the least of its atrractions being the beautiful portraits of the King and Queen.

The regular postage stamps now have control letters as well as figures on the back.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—The C. O. J. says that the 3c King's Head, second type, will shortly appear in rose, and the 4c of the same series in lilac.

Malay States —The following from the C. O. J., regarding changes in currency, will be of interest: "Owing to alterations in connection with the local currency of the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States the 3 cents stamp will in both cases take the place of the 4 cents stamp as the international equivalent of 10 centimes. It will therefore be printed in all red, and the 4 cents Straits Settlements stamp will be in lilac, and that of the Federated Malay States will remain black and red as at present. The 8 cents Federated Malay States will in future be printed in all blue."

According to Ewen's Weekly, the alteration referred to in the local currency is the establishment of a fixed exchange value for the dollar, which has hitherto fluctuated between 2sh 6d and 1sh 6d. A fixed value of 2sh 4d has now been established and British postal orders, for instance, will be cashed by the Post Offices at this rate. In other parts of the world the dollar is still unstable, latest quotations from Shanghai being about 2sh 9d and from Hong Kong 2sh 2d.

TRANSVAAL.—The following regarding the 2½d stamp is from the C. O. J.: "2½d stamps printed in two colours are being supplied to the Transvaal for the last time. In future they will be printed in all blue. The number of 1d stamps required annually by the Transvaal is so large that a fresh 240 set plate is being prepared for use with the existing plate, thus enabling the stamps to be supplied in sheets of 480."

The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new set of postage due stamps, and we find them of striking appearance, the figures of value being very large and prominent. The 2d value was incorrectly chronicled, and we now give the right color, it being a single color, the only one in the set thus printed.

Postage Due Adhesive.

2d brown orange.

URUGUAY.—J. T. Roberge has shown us a novelty, being evidently intended for an "officially sealed" stamp. It is printed in blue on white paper and perforated, the stamp being a narrow horizontal oblong, with Arms at left with "Correos" in a curved line above, while to the right the inscription reads "Y Telegrafos del—Uruguay." In a tablet in the lower right hand part of the stamp there is an inscription reading, "Recibida con el Cierre—en Mal Estado," in two lines of small capitals.

VICTORIA. — Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have now shown us the £1 rose, on Crown A paper, but perforated 12x12½. We had previously chronicled this stamp on the same paper, but perforated 11.

JUST A WORD FROM YOUR SECRETARY.

MEMBERS, ATTENTION! Have you sent in your dues to Treasurer Smith? If not, why not? Just take three minutes, sit down and write that check for $1.30 and mail to the Treasurer which will insure your name being in the American Philatelist. The Treasurer will keep his books open until Nov. 15th. If there are no unavoidable delays the Year Book MS. will go to the printer in November according to the By-Laws. Don't put this matter off, let's have as few suspensions as possible, do it now.

Will proposers, when using the new two-page application blank, see that the name of the city follows the street address of the applicant? Also write the applicant's name just before your own in the place prepared for it. This will help your Secretary in spelling the name correctly.

When sending checks kindly add ten cents for exchange. Will proposers see that two references, other than the firm of which the proposer is a member, are given? I am compelled to hold all applications hereafter until they are in proper shape, before publication. Our By-Laws were made for the best interest of the Association, let's live up to them to the letter. These are not kicks, just reminders.

Just glance over the column, "Applications Received." Have you ever seen this record before? Not in many years. Let's all "get busy." Records are made, only to be broken. Thirty-two new applications this week. Members of the Recruiting Committee, have you noticed the splendid work of your Chairman? Twenty-two new applicants proposed by him in this issue. Isn't it fine, isn't it a grand example? In the issue of Dec. 14th I shall publish a list showing the recruits gained by each member for the first quarter of the fiscal year. Will your name be written there? I sincerely trust so, for at least one new member. Get that friend of yours to join. Altogether now, smile and push.

Eugene Doeblin, honorary member of the Chicago Phil. Soc., had on exhibition the very interesting medal of the 500th meeting. Mr. Doeblin received also a first prize for exhibiting at Chicago his collection of German stamps valued at $5000. Max Wenzel translated several interesting translations from German stamp papers. Regular meetings 2nd Monday at Oppenheimer's Hall, 514 9th St., N. W.

The 22nd regular meeting was held October 14th, 1907. Twelve members were present. F. R. Cornwall was elected to membership. The Committee on Program was instructed to arrange programs for the meetings up to June, 1908, and report at next meeting. The secretary was directed to have application blanks printed. A contest was held, being the values and names of portraits on the current United States postage stamps. The winners were Messrs. Hungerford, Johnson, Sanborn and Engle.

Mr. Ward exhibited his very fine specialized collection of Siam which contained many gems. To enumerate them would take too much space. However it might be of interest to say that he had copies of all the surcharged tical values of 1885 including duplicates of the scarce Scott's No. 6. Inverted surcharges and other minor varieties were greatly in evidence. The rejected die issue of 1900 was represented in its entirety in fine unused condition. At the next meeting, November 11, nominations for officers for the ensuing year will be made.

The sixty-ninth regular meeting of this society was held Tuesday, October 29th, 1907, at usual time and place, President Cornwall presiding and nine members present. Lynn Crandall of Ithaca, N.Y., was elected to membership. A souvenir card from Mr. Patzschke, dated Washington, D. C., sending greetings, was received.

Messrs. Baer and Delafield, members of the evening's Entertainment Committee, submitted for solution a series of fifteen questions which very nearly caused the Society's dissolution. Messrs. Woods and Myers were awarded prizes.

Mr. Diamant then exhibited a series of six drawings representing six stamp issuing countries, requesting members to state countries' names, which occasioned so much laughter that the same gentleman announced a prize of the complete set of Montserrat CA watermark, 1d to 2sh 6d, unused o. g., for the best rebus relating to stamps submitted at next meeting. Many entries are expected from those who have learned how fascinating the drawing and solving of the these puzzles may be made. Next Entertainment Committee, Messrs. Wood (Chairman), Ruedi, Sisson. Next meeting Tuesday, November 12th, 8 o'clock P.M., Rooms 803–805 Wright Bldg. A cordial invitation is extended to all collectors to attend.

From the Sales Superintendent.

Fellow Members:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

PERCIVAL PARRISH, Sales Supt.,
1204 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.

NEW YORK, October 30th, 1907.

To the Members of the Association:

Gentlemen:—The by-laws of the Association provide that the annual dues are payable on September 1st of each year and that, unless said dues are paid within sixty days from that date, the names of delinquent members shall be stricken from the rolls and omitted from the year-book. I assume that all our members desire to maintain their good standing and have their names appear in the year-book, but they cannot expect this if they do not pay their dues.

Thanks to the splendid activity of our Secretary, Dr. Davis, the copy for the year-book has been ready for the printer since the latter part of September. The only thing not finished has been the membership list, which has been withheld until the last moment in order to give every opportunity to our members. There are yet a few days of grace and I hope that any member who has neglected to remit his dues will at once attend to the matter and thus maintain his position in the Association.

We are anxious to publish the year-book as early as possible. The Secretary has done his part promptly and well and it only remains for the members to do theirs.

New Applications.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

HAPPENINGS IN BORNEO.

PHILATELY AS SEEN IN THE BRITISH EAST INDIES.

By H. H. BANDHOLTZ, Brig.-Gen. U. S. A.

During an inspection trip which recently took me down into the southern islands, I was so near Borneo that I stopped off at several ports and I thought it might interest you to have a brief description of what I saw in the philatelic line.

At Labuan, I found they were supplied with the Straits Settlements stamps up to include 30c and that they had any quantities of the 25c, 50c and $1 Labuan surcharged "Straits Settlements." All the lower values had been gobbled up by speculators of whom there are quite a few on the island. They maintain that they will sell none of them except at their own prices, and, as they limited themselves to the lower values, it was not difficult for a few of them to buy up the entire lot. I will not worry you with a description of the island because you undoubtedly know that it is a very small and rather uninteresting place, being of importance mainly because it is a station of the Eastern Extension Cable Co., because it has coal mines, and because it is the shipping point of most of the surrounding territory.

While at Labuan, I took a run over to Brunei which necessitated a three hours' row in a small boat up the Brunei River in the tropical sun. This place is called "The Venice of the East," and, if Venice were still an independent state, I think this would give it a casus belli. It is true that the houses are all built over the river but on piles and are the filthiest, most dilapidated structures I have seen in a country which is full of such articles. Communication from house to house is almost entirely by boat, and, although the natives are no longer the same daring free-booters that three centuries ago levied tribute from Singapore to Manila, yet they show their piratical tendencies in charging ridiculous prices for the few articles they have to sell. The only redeeming feature of the whole place would seem to be the fact that they turn out really the most artistic gong to be found in the Orient. Naturally, I stopped in at the post office to buy a set of stamps. The gentlemanly Chinaman in charge informed me in excellent English that the 1c and 5c values were exhausted but that nevertheless he had some on hand that he would sell me, which he did at several times face value, selling them over the post office counter. While at the post office, which is also the custom house, etc., I noticed that one of the officials was wearing U. S. Army buttons on his coat, and this was the third individual in Borneo that I had seen with these same buttons which seem to be highly prized.

The Labuan stamps surcharged "Brunei" have met the same fate as the Labuan surcharged "Straits Settlements." They all came into the hands of the Labuan speculators who are asking about $17, U. S. currency, per set.

While here, I also picked up a few complete sets of the stamps issued by Brunei while it was still an independent sultanate, the denominations being ½, 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 10, 25, and 50 cents, and $1. These stamps I believe were originally issued as a speculation and were never recognized by the Postal Union. They were, however, I find, actually used in payment of postage from Brunei to Labuan and neighboring places. So far, I have never seen them catalogued but I understand that there is an English firm that is quoting them at about $2.50 per set.

After leaving the west coast of North Borneo, I dropped in at Sandakan, the capital, where we met a most cordial reception and all the customary honors from the Acting Governor who also presented me with a complete set of the current unused British North Borneo stamps. I find that in stamps sold in the post office the 3c, $2, $5, and $10 are not surcharged nor did they seem to have any of the 6c postage dues. In the set the Governor gave me, however, the 3c surcharged "British Protectorate" and the 6c Postage Due are both included.

One thing I noticed in all the stamps of the British Colonies is that the gum they use is, for a tropical climate, far superior to the so-called "Summer Gum" that is put on the U. S. stamps.

As near as I could ascertain, there

We have removed from our general stock a few hundred stamps which have a fine general appearance, but which are not in fact entirely perfect. These stamps, many of which are exceedingly scarce, we have mounted in separate books and have marked each one at a net price according to its merit or demerit, for sale "as is." The total cat. value is over $1000.00 and collectors who are not so very particular as to condition can add to their collections, good nice looking and rare stamps which they would possibly never otherwise possess owing to the high prices at which such stamps are held when in the finest possible state of preservation. We shall be pleased to send these books on approval by themselves or in conjunction with a consignment of our regular books of fine stamps only.

NATIONAL STAMP COMMITTEE.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CONTRIBUTORS DECIDES TO CONTINUE THE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Pursuant to the call of Pres. Howes the annual meeting of the National Stamp Committee was held at the Boston Philatelic Society room, Tuesday, November 5, at 2 p. m., with the president in the chair.

The report of the secretary, Willard O. Wylie, outlined the services rendered during the past year in furthering the aims and objects of the committee, and called attention to the very comprehensive report by Dwight Burroughs, printed in the WEEKLY last July, giving as it did an interesting summary of the circulation of the literature prepared under the auspices of the committee.

Thirteen illustrated articles were prepared by Mr. Burroughs and placed in such representative papers as the Sun, Times and Commercial of N. Y. City, Boston Herald, Chicago Inter-Ocean, Balto. Sun, Gazette Press and Dispatch of Pittsburg, Denver Post, Milwaukee Sentinel, Los Angeles Herald, Newark Call, St. Paul Pioneer Press, Buffalo Times, and others too numerous to mention. No less than sixty of the great daily papers of the country used the articles supplied by Mr. Burroughs. Some papers, notably the Newark Call, Baltimore Sun, St. Paul Pioneer Press, Milwaukee Sentinel, Chicago Inter-Ocean, and the Buffalo Times, used every article supplied them. The "Animal" story released November 11, 1906, was used by thirty papers with a circulation of over 1,200,000. The Christmas story of December 23 was used by thirty-five papers, with a still larger circulation.

The report of the treasurer, E. M. Carpenter, will prove of sufficient interest to give in detail:—

"You may perhaps notice that the amount received in the above statement does not agree with the subscriptions published in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, but this is owing to the fact that I have been unable to collect $5.00 each from two of the subscribers, P. G. Beals and G. H. Stone, although I have written them each several times."

The question arising as to the continuance of the work, the secretary read a number of communications received in response to the call. It was the unanimous sentiment that the work should be continued along lines similar to those of the past year.

We take the liberty of quoting from a very few of the letters received:—

"You can enter me for five dollars to help the work along. Am perfectly willing to leave the entire matter in the hands of your committee, as they are the best judges of the needs and location for the work."

"Being satisfied that the service performed by your committee has produced satisfactory results, it is eminently desirable to have the work continue. In case it is so continued I will cheerfully renew my contribution of last year, which I believe was $25.00. I have no suggestions to offer for the improvement of the service. The work has been so well done by your committee that I should be very sorry to see it turned over to less competent hands."

"The letter of the National Stamp Committee was read before the N. Y. Stamp Society. The society is very much in favor of continuing this valuable work and is so well satisfied with the manner in which the work has been conducted that it has really no suggestion to offer for the improvement of the service so ably rendered. As the funds on hand are not very plentiful, a contribution of $5 was decided upon. Having done so much for the cause of philately, the committee deserves only the best wishes for further success, which are heartily tendered by the N. Y. Stamp Society."—HENRY J. DICKE, Sec.

"I believe that last year I subscribed $5 to your committee. If your committee continues the work, you can count on me this year for $10. I honestly believe that the work of the National Stamp Committee has been productive of better results than any work done by any society or body of men in the history of philately."

"I do not believe that the work of the National Stamp Committee could be better performed by any other number of men than those who have performed this work for the past two or three years, and do not think that headquarters should be taken to any other city. Will be glad to contribute the same amount for this next year that I did last year."

"I should like to see the good work you are doing continued. I am willing to contribute the same amount for its continuance that I gave last year. I cannot make any suggestions for the improvement of the work done by the Committee. I think it was admirably carried out and must have done a great deal of good to philately, which I consider a very important part of the education not only of youth, but of middle and old age."

Coupled with these letters was a hearty spirit of co-operation upon the part of those attending the meeting, no less than $170 being pledged by representatives present.

It was voted to continue the work under the direction of an Executive Board of eleven. It was also voted that the services of Mr. Burroughs be secured on the same terms as last year, the first article to be published as soon as possible. The following executive board was chosen: C. A. Howes, Pres.; Willard O. Wylie, Sec.; E. M. Carpenter, Treas.; J. M. Bartels (Mass.); John N. Luff (N. Y.); F. Putney, Jr. (N. Y.); Henry N. Mudge (Ill.); Percival Parrish (Pa.); A. H. Weber (Cal.); Alvin Good (Ohio); and Chas. A. Nast (Colo.).

It was voted to send out an appeal for funds, proper acknowledgment for all pledges received to be made in the columns of the WEEKLY. Immediately upon reading this report write the committee a word of encouragement and pledge for this work just what you can afford. If you can send the cash, so much the better, only have your name in the first published list.

Remember this fact. Every collector in his new born enthusiasm, increases the value of your own holdings, and our campaign for publicity should appeal just as strongly to the collector as to the dealer.

were no immediate prospects of new issues in any of the colonies above mentioned, for which stamp collectors must be truly grateful.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

W. S. L.:—"I have a stamp of the Canal Zone, Scott, No. 31, 2c, 1906 issue, red and black, black surcharge. The surcharge reads up. It is not priced and I should like to know its value." With surcharge reading up, the stamp catalogues eight cents unused, reading down, four cents unused.

T. E. C.:—The stamp of which you send a drawing is an essay of Denmark, 4r b s, brown, head of Mercury, stamp square. This essay made its appearance many years ago and is seen only occasionally nowadays.

We are indebted to Howard R. Howard, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, but now of Sonora, Mexico, for the following bit of information: "Mexican postage stamps serve as revenues on express parcels containing any written matter, when a 5c 'correo' is affixed and canceled by express cancellation, representing a tax levied by the post office department." From another source, we learn that a new issue of postage stamps is in prospect for Mexico, but the particulars were not given.

A correspondent who asked: "What is the significance of the five-pointed star punched in certain of the stamps of Portugal?" is answered through the courtesy of Mr. E. B. Power of Stanley Gibbons, Inc.: "The star punched on Portugal is very often seen and it notes use of the stamps for some official purpose, but I am unable to tell you whether it is money order business, telegraph business or one of the numerous forms that the post office adopts for keeping its accounts. We find the same thing in the last issue of Uruguay officials."

E. H.:—Mr. Power supplies also the answer to the following question that was referred to him: "I have a Mauritius stamp, catalogue number 61, 1879-80, 8c blue, plainly canceled B32. I do not find this cancellation listed in Morley's; can you kindly enlighten me on the subject?" "The cancellation, B32 of Mauritius is one of the regular cancellations of the country. Our stock book shows quite a number of them, amongst which I notice B53, B34, B26, and so on. The cancellation is probably that from one of the smaller towns in the country."

Jap:—"Will you kindly explain the St. Christopher postmark, A12, being on a one penny CC Bermuda? The Bahama one penny is noted in the catalogue but I do not see anything of the Bermuda. Is this regular?" Thinking that there might be some significance about the marking described that eluded us, we again invoked the aid of Mr. Power, who writes: "The one penny Bermuda canceled with the St. Christopher postmark is one of those freaks that we often meet with. It is the result of the stamp not having been canceled from the place of origin and the receiving office so noting it, canceled it there. We have seen U. S. stamps canceled with the London postmark, and I very often come against stamps of Central and South America that the New York post office has obliterated. There was no special use for the Bermuda stamp in St. Christopher." (2) Something will be said later, no doubt, concerning the date of issue of the Indian stamp in your possession.

R. E.:—This office used 1-2-5-10 and 20 cent stamps, precanceled, in sending out the October number of a magazine published here (Woodstock, Ontario). Are the last three of these new varieties of precanceled stamps? The 5-10-20 cent stamps were used on parcels of the magazine sent to the news companies in the states." We believe that the five-cent stamp has been noticed with precancellation but not the 10 and 20 cent.

E. J. D.:—The United States penalty envelopes are not listed in any catalogue that we know of, and although there are a few collectors who gather the different varieties and issues with interest, there is no general disposition to give them catalogue standing. (2) The expression, "Type 68, size 13," refers to the variety of the stamped impression and the size of the envelope on which it has been printed. There are many sizes of the United States envelopes, past and present, and the numbering system allows of ready reference. (3) The publication of stamp catalogues of some pretentions began early in the 60's. Two little works were issued in France, in 1861; and in 1862, Belgium, England and the United States were represented. In 1862, A. C. Klein, Philadelphia, published "The Stamp Collectors' Manual: being a Complete Guide to the Collectors of American and Foreign Postage and Despatch Stamps." While it has been said that this American production was a piracy of the first edition of the celebrated Mount Brown catalogues, yet, in turn, subsequent foreign catalogues drew on the Klein catalogue for practically all of their information concerning United States carrier and despatch stamps. (4) On H. M. S. means On His (or Her) Majesty's Ship (or Service). (5) The Hawaiian, 2c brown, 1875, shows the portrait of Kalukaua, once king of the Hawaiian Islands.

A correspondent is informed that the eight annas, India, rose, watermarked elephant's head, surcharged Service, first type is omitted from different catalogues because "the best authorities doubt its existence." For instance, the French official catalogue, which lists the stamp, says: The existence of the eight anna, watermarked elephant's head, Service, first issue, is problematical.

M. D.:—Our correspondent writes: "I would appreciate it if you would let me know as to the following: I have a one penny lilac, Great Britain, type A40, on original cover, and stamped on the face of it is the following inscription as a postmark, 'Field P. O. British Army, S. Africa, Aug. 4, 91.' The peculiar thing is that this stamp came from the Orange Free State on a letter to me. Please say in what country I should place it. Transvaal? Orange Free State? or Cape Colony?" There may be an elusive quality about a stamp of this kind that would allow of some controversy as to its assignment, but we should say that inasmuch as the letter came from the Orange Free State, it should fall under that head. The S. Africa postmark is as appropriate to that country as to either of the other two.

A correspondent wishes to know whether the overprint that he refers to has any philatelic significance: "I have a stamp of the German Empire, catalogue number 39, surcharged 'Official' vertically in blue, and postally used. Any information as to the standing of such a specimen would be appreciated."

Several readers are informed that the covers without stamps that bear postmarks and impressions, such as "Paid 5," etc., were used before the advent of stamps or during the stamp period when the prepayment of postage by stamps was not compulsory. Such covers admittedly are of some historical interest but they are not regarded as being of any philatelic value.

EDITORIAL.

A Straw—For many years a national feeling has been developing in Iceland that has its expression in a desire for distinct and separate nationality. While extremists in the movement dream of a republic, the Icelanders generally seem to demand an arrangement that places their country unreservedly before the nations of the world as a "free ally." The people of Iceland say that they are homogeneous and speak a language that is different from Danish, and that they should enjoy an individuality akin to that of the Norwegians, Swedes and Danes. The Icelandic national feeling has been running high latterly and some of the Danish statesmen say that if Iceland cast off all ties of allegiance to the mother country, Denmark might suffer a slight sentimental shock but that in a material way, the change would work to the advantage of Denmark, as Iceland is a drain instead of a source of income to the Danish crown.

Safe for Awhile—Peace in Morocco seems to have been restored and the rich Moslem Empire, the sole survivor of the nations of North Africa will enjoy a further lease of integrity and independence. The jealous eyes of the different European countries will be averted for the time being from this territory teeming with wealth but the prediction is freely made that ultimately, only the dismemberment and distribution of Morocco will appease the covetousness of the powers. The present shereef of Morocco while a "pleasant personage" has not conformed to Mohammedan customs strictly enough to satisfy his subjects, and so, does not enjoy their undivided loyalty. There is likely to be danger from within as well as without for the Sultan of Morocco, who, however, may have the satisfaction of knowing that he passed through a recent crisis in safety.

On the Brink—Persia is undergoing a period of trial and England and Russia, the two countries most "interested" in the domains of the Shah, are discussing whether present circumstances afford them the slightest excuse for extending their mentorships in the shape of protectorates over harrassed Persia. The programme of course is that the two countries will divide the choicest territory between themselves. The report is that Persia recognizes its danger and is making all effort to rehabilitate itself nationally so as to forfend the disaster that may overtake it in the wake of benevolent interference by the two nations that attend zealously to increasing the number of their colonial possessions. The stamp collector may turn to numerous illustrations of how powerful nations have assimilated the weaker ones whose cry for grace is unheard.

No Real Value—So many of our readers submit for inspection envelopes or covers that are unstamped but bear markings such as "Paid—" or "Collect—" with the request that information be given concerning them and their value that we shall devote a paragraph to the consideration of these unstamped covers. The envelopes or covers in question fall under two divisions; those used before the stamp age and those used since the date of the advent of stamps. Clearly, the mail sent before stamps were issued could not be franked with postage stamps; hence, the "Paid," etc., to record the payment of postage when the letter was handed in to the postmaster. As it was not until 1855 that the prepayment of postage by stamps was made compulsory, letters despatched before that time without stamps were delivered and postage collected at their destination. Such letters bear different markings to record charges, etc. Ship letters, however, were exempt from prepayment demands and for years after 1855, they were carried unstamped. These stampless covers are of no philatelic value and there is no present indication that the future holds any in store for them. It may be said, however, that they have a sort of historical or sentimental interest, but there is no market for the covers in question, even though it may be argued that the covers have been sold in lots at auction sales, at prices of a cent or two each.

A Novel Claim—An interesting phase of the Mulready envelope which we do not remember as having been enlarged upon before is advanced by a non-philatelic writer. He said that so artistic an example provided engravers and designers of future postage stamps an inspiration for good work and that they could not be indifferent in their tasks with so worthy a prototype before them. "Though the necessity of something more elaborate and complete than the Mulready design soon became apparent, yet save in the case of a national emergency, due regard has always been paid to having the postage stamp an artistic success." Though the Mulready was widely caricatured at the time of its appearance, it yet set a high standard for subsequent efforts in stamp production, according to the opinion of the observing layman just quoted. This reference to the Mulready envelope is a reminder that Major E. B. Evans, R. A., who is an authority on the Mulready and its caricatures, will read a paper, entitled "The Mulready and other early Envelopes," at a meeting of the Junior Philatelic Society, London, December 7th, 1907.

A Power for Good—The International Bureau of American Republics will soon have a new and exclusive home in Washington. This Pan-American society of nations is doing telling work in advancing the commercial interests and best political forces of the Central and South American republics, and promoting an international feeling of amity. The Bureau has an indirect bearing on philately, inasmuch as its influence is highly beneficial and tends to encourage national stability and regularity; and the more settled a country is politically, the fewer its stamp issues are, in many instances.

Disappearing—The fact that one of our contemporaries over-sea reprints an article from a stamp paper published in the year 1863 leads one to ponder over the growing scarcity of all the early printed matter on stamp collecting. The collector of the pioneer publications must notice the increasing difficulty in obtaining the early papers, lists, catalogues and works, and those who for some time have been keen and active searchers for the records of philately in its youngest days must felicitate themselves upon having began their pursuit when it was easier to recruit their files than it is at present. It is fortunate that there has been at least a few indefatigable collectors of philatelic print for at least a few years past, as otherwise the history of philately probably could not be so completely represented as it is now in certain invaluable libraries or collections of philatelic literature.

* * *

Strength in Union—An examination of the prospectuses of the philatelic societies at home and abroad shows conclusively that activity in the providing of instruction and entertainment for the society members will be greater than ever. The philatelist who is situated so that he may take personal part in the meetings of stamp men should count himself fortunate; he has a privilege that many an isolated collector envies and he should show his appreciation by a loyalty to his organization in the many different ways that present themselves. The increase in the number and usefulness of the philatelic societies is a hopeful augury and as philately becomes the more organized in this regard, the more likely it is to command recognition as a factor even in the workaday world. As a medium of publicity, for instance, the society will receive more consideration than any one of its members; the voice of organization carries much further than the words of the individual.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Our readers will be interested in the advertisement of J. Thumin on page 3. Upon the death of Mr. Thumin's brother, which occurred some months since and concerning which mention has been made in our columns, the business of Thumin Brothers was taken over and is now being carried on by the surviving brother. The catalogue offered will no doubt be added to the philatelic possessions of the many American collectors, especially in view of the favorable offer in connection with the refund of $1 (the cost of the catalogue) to future patrons as indicated.

—F. D. Goodhue of Cincinnati was the victim of an automobile accident last week, being knocked down by the machine and picked up in an unconscious condition. While at the time it was thought that serious injuries had been sustained, we learn that while he will be confined to his home for some time, no permanent effects will probably result.

—We regret very much the inconvenience to which E. Y. Parker has been put by an error in his advertisement of two weeks ago when fifty Canadian revenues were offered for 6c instead of 60c. We hasten to make this acknowledgment but in justice to the printer it must be stated that it is a case of worn type. The cipher was there and showed up in the proofs O. K.

—Mehl's Numismatic and Trade Circular will be issued January 1, 1908. Its name indicates the mission in which it purposes to engage, and the many friends of Mr. Mehl will wish him success in his venture. The first issue will number four thousand copies.

—Dwight Burroughs, whose publicity work is familiar to our readers, has just published a book of "modern" fairy tales entitled "Jack the Giant Killer, Jr."

—Note the splendid compliment paid MEKEEL'S WEEKLY in the advertisement of C. F. Rothfuchs. It speaks volumes for the pulling power of the WEEKLY. Mr. Rothfuchs became so swamped with orders for a packet that he has been compelled to discontinue its sale.

—The members of the Garfield-Perry Stamp Club will have a stamp treat on the evening of November 21, when the Canadian collection of Chas. L. Pack will be exhibited in the parlors of the Colonial House, Cleveland, Ohio. The collection was awarded the gold medal at the London Philatelic Exhibition held last year.

—An annoying error occurred in the advt. of P. G. Beals in the issue of Nov. 2 (No. 879). "1000 var. foreign revenues for 25c" should have read "100." It was not the fault of the printer.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Dr. H. A. Davis, Stanley B. Ashbrook, F. M. Mason, W. H. Bruce and Chas. N. Robertson.

—F. R. Ginn of London some time since entered suit against Louis Laurin of Hull, Quebec, for the value of a selection of stamps submitted on approval at Laurin's request but subsequently stolen from the latter's safe. Laurin refused to pay but the Canadian court has decided that inasmuch as the contract was made by correspondence Laurin was responsible for the stamps and ordered him to settle.

—The advertisement of Stanley Gibbons announces that they have just placed upon the market a blank album, to be sold at the very reasonable figure of $3.50. Their advertisement elsewhere gives the particulars together with the addresses of firms in the leading cities where the book may be examined.

NEW SWISS STAMPS.

Over a year ago we published two designs of a new set for Switzerland. Through the kindness of H. A. Talbot of N. Y. City we have been shown specimens of the new set, a 5c green in what will be familiarly known as the Tell design and a 10c carmine with a representation of Helvetia.

We have no desire to throw stones at the new issue though we are frank in saying that it does not come up to the standard of the great stamp issuing nations. The stamps are supposed to be artistic, they certainly are unique. The 5c as an appeal to the patriotism of the people will meet with a hearty reception. It is quite correctly pictured above.

It will be remembered that considerable criticism was levelled at the Helvetia design. It was "austere," "cold," "severe." The finished stamp shows lines that have softened the effect considerably. The design above is only a suggestion in comparison therewith, Helvetia facing to the right on the stamp submitted. We quote as follows from Mr. Talbot's letter: —

"I understand the post cards are also changed and will have the stamp on the right hand corner in future, the same stamp in the same colors on buff paper. There will also be printed by the Swiss Gov't stamped envelopes of certain size and of different values, i. e., 2, 5, 10, 12 and 15c. However this news may better come later."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—The color of the new 2c envelope has already been changed, and the shades already seen vary from a bright scarlet to a deep carmine red. We have been shown specimens of different colored papers and shades of ink by Frank B. Eldredge, G. C. Russell, B. D. Forster, the New England Stamp Co., Kendall P. Smith, J. M. Stone and W. C. Stone.

Envelopes.

2c red on white.
2c red on yellow.
2c red on blue.

It is officially announced that the Jamestown stamps will remain on sale until Nov. 30.

ANTIGUA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the 5sh gray green, King's Head stamp has been issued on chalky Crown and CC paper, 3000 having been printed.

BELGIUM. — Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1c newspaper stamp with new single-lined coupon; also the 2c in a new shade.

Adhesives.

1c gray, re-engraved coupon.
2c pale claret.

COLOMBIAN REPUBLIC. — Hermann Focke has shown us a cover, having one-half of a 10c purple, Scott's No. 353, cut diagonally and used for 5c. The specimen shown is the lower right corner. Mr. Focke says that these split provisionals have come in from various parts of the Cauca, and were evidently authorized on account of a shortage of the regular 5c stamps.

Provisional Adhesive.

One-half of 10c purple used for 5c.

CYPRUS.—A 5 paras stamp is to be issued for this Colony, the order to print it having already been placed.

EGYPT.— L'Echo notes that the 5pi stamp has appeared with overprint "O. H. H. S." and native characters like the other denominations previously noted.

Sudan.—The Sudan Stamp Co. has favored us with specimens of the 4m stamp for Sudan in changed colors. This was placed on sale at Atbara, in the Sudan, Oct. 3. Our correspondent says: "The 4m pale blue and brown, now withdrawn, was in use nine months, 180,000 being printed. Unused copies ought to be fairly common, but lightly obliterated copies will be hard to get, owing to the postal anthorities, for some obscure reason, (philatelists will doubtless use a stronger term) giving instructions to clerks to cancel heavily.

FRENCH COLONIES.—A number of the smaller colonies have been furnished with the new 45c value in the familiar type of 1892. The New England Stamp Co. has shown us those issued for French Oceanica, French India, Anjouan, Gabon, Moheli, Grand Comore and Mayotte.

Adhesive.

Name of Colony in red.
45c black on greenish.

FRENCH OFFICES IN CHINA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have kindly shown us sets from 1c to 50c surcharged Kouang Tcheou-Wan, Moug-Tseu, Pak-Hoi, Tch'ong K'ng and Yunnan Fou on the Grasset type stamps of Indo-Chine. There is nothing new in these except the 35c value, which we have not previously chronicled with this form of surcharge, except for Hoi-Hao. The surcharge is in red on each of the five 35c stamps submitted.

FRENCH GUIANA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new 45c value for this Colony, the type being that of Scott's A14.

Adhesive.

45c olive gray.

GUADELOUPE.—The 45c value has now been added to the list in the large type, and has been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. It is in the second type.

Adhesive.

45c olive brown on lavender.

HAYTI.—In No. 878, we noted the fact that Scott's No. 108 had appeared with surcharge in red instead of black. We have now been shown No. 109 by A. W. Dunning and Stanley Gibbons, Inc., with surcharge very roughly done in red.

ICELAND. — A correspondent of the London Philatelist says that no 6a official has been issued as stated in 873, nor is any such value contemplated, according to official information.

INDO-CHINE.—The lower values of the new set, of which the higher values were chronicled in No. 871, have now been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. All are of small size, there being two types. The values 1c to 15c have the head of a native woman facing three-quarters to the left, with a fabulous dragon as the principal ornament of the frame, below the portrait. "Indo-Chine" is arranged in a circle above the head, with "R." "F." in large type at either side of the portrait. A large colorless disc in the lower left corner has "Postes" in a circle the color of the frame and the value in the centre in the color of the portrait.

The values 20c to 50c have a different portrait, though still a native woman, the position being such as the head is turned to bring the face square to the front. "Indo-Chine" and "R." "F." are arranged as in the lower values, but this time on a circular band, the letters "R." "F" being smaller and less obtrusive. A hydra-headed monster curls around the lower part of the design, the word "postes" appearing in small letters, in a straight line in the lower left corner. The value is printed in a colorless circle in the lower right corner, though on these values the border of the disc has a double lined and pearled border instead of the single line of the lower values. The whole appearance is very striking, and the series is easily the most attractive of any of the late French colonial issues.

Adhesives.

1c dark brown and black.
2c brown and black.
4c dark blue and black.
5c pale gray green and black.
10c red and black.
15c purple and black.
20c violet and black.
25c blue and black.
30c violet brown and black.
35c olive green and black
40c brown and black.
45c red orange and black.
50c carmine and black.

calling attention to the approaching issue of postage due stamps of the value of 2, 4, 5 and 10c. We gather from the document, which, of course, is in Spanish, that the design has been selected, and that it may be seen at the Government offices. Mr. Bergman says the stamps are now being prepared, and will be placed in use Jan. 1, 1908.

NEW CALEDONIA.—We have been shown the new 45c value by the New England Stamp Co., the design being the second of the 1905 series.

Adhesive.

45c red brown on pinkish.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—We have been shown the ½d, 8d and 10d stamps on Crown A Victorian paper, the 10d, perf. 11, and the others 12x11½, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

NICARAGUA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1c American print surcharged "Vale 15c", reading up, with varieties in size of the "5"; also the 2c rose, American print, surcharged "Vale 20c", reading up, with thick and thin "0".

PHILIPPINES.—B. D. Forster has shown us a copy of the 1c 1898, surcharged "Philippines" in which the "S" and part of the "E" has disappeared. Evidently the plate was accidentally damaged.

QUEENSLAND.—The 2sh 6d vermilion and 10sh dark brown have now appeared on Crown A paper, and have been shown us by Stanley Gibbons, Inc. The same firm has shown us the 2d dark blue, re-engraved type, with crown touching the circle.

ST. LUCIA.—The 1d and 2½d are reported issued in one color, as well as the ½d, previously noted.

SALVADOR.—Hermann Focke calls our attention to the omission of the 26c value from the new set recently chronicled, and furnishes us with the missing information.

Adhesive.

26c yellow brown and black.

SOUTHERN NIGERIA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1d in one color, red, on multiple paper.

THE STAMP MARKET OF TODAY.

A correspondent writes that Canada Postage Dues have been withdrawn and burnt, and that local holders are asking ten dollars the set. The 2c has got into circulation in a used condition and can be supplied in some places by the hundred, but the 1c and 5c will evidently be scarce used. Enquiry of three or four likely English firms fails to find any in stock in a used condition, and the current quotation of two shillings per mint set is sure to go up tremendously in a short time. Of the used copies, it is noticeable that out of a hundred copies to hand, only one bears any trace of a postmark; the rest are struck through with a violet pencil.

Current Russians are evidently coming down, and floods of them seem to be about. The 50 kop, cat. 9d, is selling at a penny, the 1 rouble is very plentiful, the 3½ roubles is priced 1sh 9d, the 5 roubles 3sh 6d, the 10 roubles 2sh, in a German list. Only a few weeks ago the 5 and 10 roubles were selling at 12sh the pair in London. It looks as if some big Continental firm had suddenly unlocked the gates and let loose the accumulated stock of some years.

The present value of Straits-on-Labuan seems to be 10sh for the mint set, minus the three lower values. Such is the figure advertised last week by a prominent firm. This is a fall from the quotation of 60sh per complete set, as advertised by a dealer in a contemporary journal; but it ought to be added that the three lower values are in themselves worth £1. The 2c is valued by the advertiser at 30sh.

Roumania pictorials of 1906, in both the oblong and upright shape, seem now to be available, but are dear. The 25 bani may be 5d, the 40 bani 7d, the 50 bani 1sh at least. Here again there are floods about; evidently the stamps have been held back in their own country or the neighbourhood for some time.

The 1d on 2d Barbados Relief Fund has at length reached its level of 4d. If only 12,000 were issued, how is it that they are quoted in Paris at 20sh the hundred? Collectors in Barbados are vainly offering their stocks at 4sh the dozen; it is another case of the speculator being bitten, and an illustration of the truth that he who waits is often the wiser.

Messrs. Stanley Gibbons' new prices for the 2sh Grenada (10sh), the 5sh (20sh), and the 10sh (35sh) may perhaps be taken as an indication that correspondingly high prices will prevail among the scarcer kinds of CA's when the new catalogue appears. The following may perhaps be expected to rise higher: Montserrat, E. Africa, B. C. A., Cyprus, Sierra Leone, St. Lucia, St. Kitts, St. Vincent, and the two higher values of Ceylon; on the other hand there is a certain class of King's Heads, which though highly priced and scarce in their way, are by no means likely to be hard to get—such as the higher values of Hong Kong, Straits, Natal, Transvaal, Bahamas, Gibraltar (excepting the 2sh CA), Seychelles, and Northern and Southern Nigeria. In the boom of 1906 these, and such as these, were the first to arrive on the market, the higher values of some of the smaller Colonies not being available till much later. These consequently do not seem to show so bright a prospect of rising.

Philippines 1906 seem to be slow in arriving, and promise to be dear; 2d, 3d and 6d is the Continental price for the 10c, 20c and 30c respectively. Denmark 50 and 100 öre of the late King's Head are also scarce, and are priced 8d and 1sh. The 25 bani Roumania error of colour has steadily declined from its old price of 2sh 6d, until now, in Germany, it is 1sh. Papua on New Guinea is 15sh; 1 piastre on 2d Levant is £7 10sh used, £10 mint.

Some interesting stamps to look out for just now are:—Denmark 1, 2, 3, 4, 15 öre, art figures, 5, 10, 20, 25, 50 and 100 öre, King's; Luxemburg 1907; Montenegro 1907; Wurtemburg Service 1907; Honduras 1907; Brazil Officials 1907; Iceland 1907; Hayti 1906; Chili 1906; and the new set for Crete, the 1 drachme of which ought to be interesting since a British Admiral figures in the group thereon portrayed.

The new universal postage stamp is now procurable. It will be a bit of a problem as to which page of the album a used specimen shall adorn!—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

HOLLAND 1852, 5c STEEL BLUE.

This is a hard-to-get stamp, one in which the catalogue valuation does not compare with its actual scarcity. The stamp is catalogued by Scott at 25c. The following clipping from Gibbons' Weekly will prove readable:—

"I was recently speaking to a friend from Holland about the relative rarity of various stamps of Holland and her colonies, and he happened to comment on the low price at which we catalogue the above stamp. He told me that some time ago he secured some six thousand stamps of 5c, first issue, and, after searching them thoroughly, he found only ten copies of the real steel-blue colour. According to this, it should be worth six hundred times fourpence, the price of the common 5c, or, say £10, in place of the 10s it is quoted in our Catalogue."

We learn from the same source that a new hand book on Netherlands stamps is in preparation, though neither the price nor the date of publication has yet been announced. It will be in English by Narat Koning, of Amsterdam.

THE NEW GOLDEN GENIE PACKET No. 1

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

Fellow Members:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

VARIOUS OTHER PREMIUMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO STAMP COLLECTORS.

It can be truly said that there is no hobby presenting features so diversified, so educational, so enchanting, so profitable as the collecting of postage stamps. The above striking headlines will this week reach an extra thousand of readers who have yet to learn that in worshipping at the shrine of the fair goddess Philatelia, MEKEEL'S WEEKLY is absolutely essential.

To be interested in any business or pursuit and not be kept posted upon its progress would be considered suicidal. Today every trade, every fraternal organization, every religious body has its newspaper mouthpiece and the enthusiastic ambitious spirit cries out for more enterprise in its quest for information.

In its efforts to be the purveyor of readable matter MEKEEL'S WEEKLY has spent many thousands of dollars. Few realize what it means to establish a journal such as ours, aside from the cost of maintainance which amount is a no small one when the month's expense column is figured up. In spite of all this, actuated by a desire to widen our circle of subscribers we present you a proposition that is well worth your consideration.

For nearly a score of years MEKEEL'S has steadily, persistently pursued the even tenor of its way until it has become justly famed as the "King of Stamp Papers and the Stamp Paper of Kings." A glance at the contents of this issue will confirm its value as an exponent of philately. To induce you to become a regular reader we give you a choice of various premiums. OUR BOOK REVIEW.

How to Collect Postage Stamps.—By Bertram T. K. Smith. The title is not a happy one, but as the naming of a book is indisputably the prerogative of the author we will pass onto the subject matter of this very well printed book of nearly 200 pages. Mr. Smith in the thirty-three chapters gives over twenty-three to the history of issues by countries and divisions of territory where they can be better considered in this form.

The titles of some of the chapters will give an idea of the scope of the work: "The First Postage Stamp and its Forerunners," "Local Postage Stamps," "Postal Stationery," "How Postage Stamps are Printed," "The Stamp Market," "The Stamp Collector's Outfit," "Terms Used in Philately," "Bibliography," etc. Mr. Smith is well known as a thorough student of philately and the advanced collector as well as the beginner will find in this book information that is given in compact form and in a very interesting manner. We should be very glad to reproduce in the WEEKLY several of these chapters above referred to were it not for the fact that so doing might deprive the publishers of prospective patrons.

Not the least of the good features of this work is a set of no less than 48 full page plates, every stamp standing out with a distinctness that will delight the eye of the philatelist. Plate 30 with its U. S. half tones shows the possibilities in the art of illustrating. In all some 770 stamps are pictured. The frontispiece consists of a plate showing seven of the rarest stamps in the British Museum collection, a 1d Mauritius (on original cover), 2d Mauritius, two 2c Hawaiian missionaries and three British Guiana. The book is published by Geo. Bell & Sons, London. Price $1.50.

Yvert-Tellier-Champion Catalog.—We are glad to welcome as the avant courier of the season's catalogues the twelfth edition of the well-known Yvert-Tellier-Champion catalog. This work appears much improved over last year's edition, largely because of the paper used. The previous quality, while making the book handier in size, perhaps, was yet rather thin, so that it became easily torn and also showed the printing through to some extent. This year's volume, though containing but twenty pages more due to new issues, is nearly twice the thickness of the previous one because of the better quality of paper used. We think the illustrations show up to better advantage, also.

The catalogue as usual is arranged alphabetically with the exception of a few cases like the Colombian States, which are placed after Colombia itself, and the stamps of the foreign bureaus in China, which are all placed under that heading. An index removes any difficulty, however. The lists include not only postal adhesives, but telegraph stamps, envelopes and wrappers. Only the adhesives are illustrated, and the cuts are on a reduced scale; but while they may not be up to the standard of clearness found in some catalogues, yet they serve their purpose of giving the general effect of the design, which is the prime consideration and which we think is entirely sufficient. For varieties due to special points about the design, or types of surcharges, we find a great number of full size or enlarged cuts which answer all requirements. The major varieties are given full catalogue numbers, and the minor varieties as a rule, following the general trend nowadays, are sub-lettered under their principals.

The introduction contains the usual information which an up-to-date catalogue should have, including a table of terms used in philately with their explanations, a list of the colonies, protectorates and foreign offices of the several European States, a money table, a plate of watermark designs, enlarged and improved over last year's plate, and a new feature: a sort of Key giving a "quick and sure method of recognizing to what country any stamp belongs." Translations into French of the names of countries not in that language, as well as identification of Greek and Russian names and abbreviated names; a list of inscriptions on stamps which do not bear the name of a country; a list of subjects or designs or stamps bearing no name or inscription; and finally a number of illustrations of stamps composed almost wholly of Oriental characters. The whole Key is excellent and should prove a great help to those who are not advanced enough to be able to place any stamp that may come under their notice. We congratulate the publishers on an excellent work which we are sure can be used to advantage by many American collectors. Price 80c of Th. Champion & Co., 13 Rue Drouot, Paris, France.

Postage Stamps of France.—A monumental work by Arthur Maury. Consisting as it does of over 400 pages, by a philatelist of international repute and taking for its subject the stamps of one of the great nations of the world, this book will be accorded a high place in the literary annals of philately. It is of course a labor of love upon the part of Mr. Maury. The paltry sum of $1.00 at which price the book is sold seems a ridiculous figure when one measures value received with the selling price of this splendid history. Mr. Maury has achieved a remarkable and praiseworthy production. He has written about the stamps of his country, written with the zeal of an enthusiast, with the patience of a philatelist and the eye of a scientific expert. Nothing has escaped him in his twenty years of indefatigable delving after material.

Do you want to know anything about the adhesives of France? Its envelopes, wrappers, cards, telegraph and telephone stamps, essays, post marks and obliterations? Let us refer you to this book. Would you learn of the early postal history of this country, the local posts, the various issues, official decrees, particulars of manufacture, statistics? Surely the "Postage Stamps of France" will give it you.

The outlay for cuts in connection with this volume must represent a very large expense. Illustrations are as varied as the subjects considered and scattered profusely throughout the book. We do not think we need say more. Only this: Take out a M. O. for 6fr, mail it to Arthur Maury, 6 Boul Montmartre, Paris, France, and give MEKEEL'S the credit.

A RARE TREAT.

The managing editor was given a rare treat last week when a representative of the New England Stamp Co. took the trouble to place before us in our office for inspection the "Two Important Purchases" referred to on page five. We feasted our eyes upon a range of stamps that fairly made our mouth water. It is really too bad that newspaper editors have such flat pocketbooks.

We cannot describe all we saw. Each page was a marvel of neatness, beauty and perfection. No great rarities, but stamps that catalog from $10 to $100, in singles, pairs and strips shaded to a nicety and arranged by one who made his work a labor of love.

A catalog value of $15,000 is a conservative estimate of the general collection formed by a western philatelist whose "condition" requirements will be recalled by many a dealer who reads these lines. He was an exceedingly particular collector.

A lover of the early Perkins, Bacon & Co. issues, a splendid array greets the eye in such perfect condition that one might well question whether any dealer's stock in the world could yield up their equal. St. Lucia furnishes a page of exceeding beauty, while Ceylon, N. S. Wales, St. Vincent, Nevis—and we could go the entire gamut of colonies—are of surpassing interest. We have not said anything about the U. S. but here "condition" is omnipresent.

Of the collection of France the highest praise can be spoken. The "tete-beche" Empire francs and the 15c rose error are notable features.

N. B.—Our 11th Auction Sale will be held in Philadelphia, December 21, 1907. Catalogues in press.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—In the 7th auction sale of the Nassau Stamp Co. the collections of Gus. E. Strauss and Dr. J. B. Newton will be disposed of. The sale will be held December 5 at the Collectors Club in N. Y. City, and the auction catalogue is just at hand.

—We are pleased to say that we are able to remove from our list of accounts for sale the long standing one against Morley, for $106.80. The account was collected by M. A. Lesser, of New York City.

—J. A. Steinmetz favors us with a copy of the Roosevelt pronunciamento in regard to leaving off the phrase, "In God We Trust" from the new gold coins. Mr. Steinmetz considers this an important historical document and worth while re-publishing in the WEEKLY. We really have not the space, however, to devote to this and especially as it has been so widely published in the general press.

—There is an interesting sequel to the paragraph published a couple of weeks ago in regard to the envelope invented for the protection of souvenir post cards. It will be remembered the inventor claimed that the envelope will enable one to protect the card, yet have the stamp properly cancelled. E. W. Heinrich of Chicago, Ill., writes:—"Even though it is a protection to post cards of the kind described, it does not afford a better means of mailing these post cards than an ordinary envelope. Even though there is an opening in the envelope sufficiently large to expose the stamp so that it can be cancelled, the postoffice rules will not allow the cards to be mailed in that manner for one cent unless the stamp is pasted on the envelope."

—Geo. R. Tuttle, the Sales Manager of the U. S. R. S., reports that he has more demands for circuits than he can supply. No doubt every member of this society has duplicates that he would like to turn to account and could relieve the stringency of the revenue market by getting some blank mounts and forwarding said duplicates to his address, 116 Nassau St., N. Y.—A. F. HENKELS.

—E. Doeblin calls our attention to the fact that the secretary of the Twin City Phil. Soc. made an error in his report of two weeks ago in giving Mr. Doeblin credit for having received the first prize at Chicago. The second was awarded him.

—Are any of our readers acquainted with Joseph L. Rawlings, 81 N. Main St., Fall River, Mass.? Mr. Rawlings writes Miss E. C. Pierce for an approval selection and gives as reference the United National Bank, no address however accompanying the same. No such bank exists in Fall River and Mr. Rawlings is not to be found on our mailing list.

—A. H. Hoffmann sends us a clipping from the Denver Republican giving the particulars of the new philatelic magazine soon to be issued by Denver collectors. The first number will appear in January, and the moving spirits in the new enterprise will be H. A. Davis, C. A. Nast, F. E. McCabe, W. Greenbaum and E. R. Vanderhoof. The magazine will contain about thirty pages and will devote a considerable portion of its space to coin collecting.

—The WEEKLY acknowledges with thanks the receipt of an invitation to attend the meeting of the Garfield-Perry Stamp Club held Nov. 21. It was at this meeting that the famous collection of Canadian stamps, the property of Chas. L. Pack of Cleveland, Ohio, was to have been exhibited.

—H. P. Norris favors us with a Pa. clipping entitled "Foreign Stamps on Sale" but investigation shows that the "foreign stamps" are nothing more nor less than the international coupon.

—"There was a mistake in my adv. last week through whose mistake I don't know but as your paper is as near typographical perfection as is possible, I'll guarantee it's on me. Nevertheless please make a note in your 'News Gleanings' column that an intended item of U. S. 1857, 90c very fine, cat. $30.00, at $13.85 was made to read U. S. 1857, 30c &c."—WENDOVER NEEFUS.

—We acknowledge the receipt of the catalogue of the 110th auction sale of the United Stamp Co., listing the United States of Chas. S. Smack. Lovers of condition will find in this collection all that could be desired. Date of sale November 30. We have also received the catalogue of the 8th mail auction sale of the Co-operative Exchange, which closes November 29.

—C. A. Howes and Edward de Z. Kelley of the B. P. S. were the guests of the Springfield Stamp Club on the evening of Nov. 15. The Club met at the residence of the president, J. W. Prevost, and was highly entertained with the exhibition of Mr. Howes' collection of the stamps of the Chinese treaty ports, Korea, British Africa and Hong Kong.

—Neyroud & Sons of London wish the information spread broadcast through the U. S. that on October 18 they sent a small book containing practically all the rare stamps of Great Britain, including officials, valued at $750, to an actor by the name of Frank Dacre, performing at the Prince of Wales Theatre. Dacre has absconded and is believed to be in America. Should stamps as described above be offered for sale communicate with the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.

—The Toledo Stamp Co. reports that they have been unable to effect a settlement of claim against the Century Stamp Co. of Seattle, Wash. Dealers will kindly take notice.

—Lyman H. Low will hold an auction of American and foreign silver coins, also medals in silver, bronze and white metal at 14 E 23rd St., N. Y. City, Tuesday, November 26, at 2 P. M. Catalogues may be obtained by applying at the above address.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from J. N. T. Levick (2), J. T. Roberge (2) and G. S. Dickinson.

—The publicity campaign of the National Stamp Committee will be opened in December with an article to be widely circulated, entitled "How the Holiday Mails are Carried." It will be fully illustrated and should do a world of good. We shall be very grateful to correspondents who will favor us with stamp matter appearing in the local press, due credit being given in every case.

—The printer appreciates the value of a filler, but such matter occasionally puts the editor in a peculiar position. In "The Stamp Market of Today," published last week, reference was made to the Canadian postage dues as having been withdrawn, while a denial of this claim upon the part of the foreign press had previously appeared in our columns.

—Edgar Nelton, who is now in Buffalo, N. Y., is expecting to sail in December for England and the continent where he will remain during the winter months.

—The N. Y. Herald, as lately as November 17, reprinted the Burroughs story on Crete, which was given to the public last spring. Thus the good work of the National Stamp Committee is repeating itself. This clipping was kindly submitted by J. N. T. Levick.

—One of our A.P.A. members, Thos. W. Voetter, of Santa Fe, N. Mex., has been appointed American Consul at Saltello, Mexico. Congratulations.

EDITORIAL.

On History's Page—Of the early postmaster stamps of the United States, the Brattleboro has been the subject of more extended comment in the newspaper press than any other stamps in the same category; there are many considerations that enter into the story of the preparation and issue of the Brattleboro that make the subject of the stamp one of much human interest, such as the newspaper is likely to appreciate. Outside of this stamp, the Providence locals perhaps have figured most extensively in publicity of the kind described. Certain phases of the Providence postmaster stamps long were obscure, but through the researches of investigators, the facts concerning the stamps have been recorded. This preamble paves the way to reference to a valuable article that appeared in the Providence Journal for Sunday, November 10th, 1907, which has been forwarded to us by Mr. H. M. Mason. This account is of no ordinary kind and it embodies one feature of strong historical bearing; it is a facsimile reproduction from the Providence Journal of August 24th, 1846, of the original notice calling attention to the innovation of the postmaster, Welcome B. Sayles, as follows: "Post Office Stamps.—The Postmaster has issued postage stamps of the denominations of five cents and ten cents, for the payment of postage in advance. They are very convenient and will save the trouble of making change at the Post Office, and will enable people to send prepaid letters at hours when the Office is closed. To cover the expense of engraving and printing, these stamps are sold at five per cent. advance upon the regular rates of postage. They are for sale at the Post Office." Mr. Luff's statement in his history of the stamps of the United States to prove that the stamps were actually used for postal purposes is as follows; incidentally, Mr. Luff's remarks show that used specimens of the five-cent Providence are extremely rare, while the ten-cent is practically unknown used, circumstances that account in a measure for the claims that have been made in the past that the locals were never in postal service. Mr. Luff says: "Canceled copies on the original covers are not unknown and it must be remembered that of the loose stamps, which remained in the postmaster's hands and which were sold with the plate, there were 61 five-cents and 18 ten-cents, which would indicate that a number of sheets had been cut up, the majority of the five cents sold and the ten cents left on hand. All used copies which I have seen were canceled by a 'V' shaped mark, made with a pen and black ink. The covers also bear the dated postmark of the city, the word 'Paid' and a figure '5.' All these are handstamped in red."

In Explanation—The late John K. Tiffany in his work on United States stamps said that no notice of the Providence stamps appeared in the cotemporaneous newspapers in the locality that he had been "permitted to consult." The paragraph from the Journal disproves the inference of Mr. Tiffany that no newspaper recognition of the stamps was given. Credit for the resurrection of the notice is conferred as follows: "Recent researches among the early files of this newspaper by Edward F. Coffin, a philatelist of Worcester, Mass., have resulted in the original item announcing the issue of these stamps. This notice appeared in the issue of Monday morning, Aug. 24, 1846. As the earliest known canceled copy bears the postmark of Aug. 25, 1846, it may safely be assumed that this announcement fixes the date on which the stamps were first placed on sale." The notice is a distinct addition to the archives of philately and due acknowledgment should be made to the successful searcher for printed annals of the Providence stamps. Before dismissing the Providence Journal's admirable article, attention may well be directed to the closing paragraph which makes a claim so reasonable and so logical that it must be admitted by the most skeptical: "The statement contained in the announcement that the stamps were for sale at the Post Office warrants a reasonable belief that at least a few of the stamps of the 10-cent denomination must have been sold and used."

* * *

China Likes It—While the chrysanthemum is associated generally with Japan, a writer says that in China it enjoys equal favor. The flower was first known to Chinese gardeners who still take the utmost delight in cultivating it. It is declared that the love of the Chinese emigrant for the chrysanthemum is so great that he will grow the plant if the conditions of his exile will allow him the slightest opportunity to do so. After reading the glowing words of the writer the conclusion is forced that China instead of Japan is the country that should have exploited the chrysanthemum on its stamps, if only one of the two countries were to do so.

In the Air—Stamp collectors will be interested to learn that indications warrant the prediction that a Dutch South African dominion will be a part of the British Empire in the future. It is probable that so soon as the elections in Cape Colony and Orange River Colony are held, a plan to federate the British colonies in South Africa will be launched. It is expected that the politics of the union will be dominated by the Dutch, who are giving all evidence of loyalty to the British crown. Three of the five countries that will be affected will be under Dutch administrative control, it seems to a certainty, and these will shape the destinies of the confederation. The community of interest served by a unification as proposed will easily outweigh the difference in customs and methods, nationally speaking, of the various colonies. One of the most potent factors arguing in favor of the proposal is that the scheme is not viewed with disapproval by the British element. The Transvaal has been given self-government practically, and Orange River Colony is to have the same boon conferred upon it.

A Little Monarch—Those who remember King Alphonso of Spain, as the "boy king" and Wilhelmina of Holland as the "girl queen," as examples of juvenile royalty may be interested in knowing that the youngest reigning monarch is Duy-Tan, seven years of age, who succeeded to the throne of Annam on September 5th, 1907. The Colonial Stamp Company sends a portrait of this "monarch" that shows the august personage with wide open mouth that perhaps is exercising the "voice of authority." Annam, be it remembered, is a protectorate of France, now included under Indo-China, and the native monarch is little more than a ruler nominally.

Improved Microscopy—A recent invention in microscopy may have a philatelic bearing as applied to critical stamp examination. The new plan allows of the "use of a high-power lens as large as six inches in diameter—thus bringing the whole of objects instead of details only, under observation." Under these conditions, a stamp would be revealed to the microscopist in its entirety, and while the advantages that might accrue to the stamp student through the improved method are not so pronounced as those holding in other fields, yet they are worthy of appreciation. The field of the glass is so ample that the opportunity for study becomes enlarged.

All Right Now—The Solomon Islands stamps have been "gazetted as usable for international postage," as the Australian Philatelist records it. Mr. Woodford, the enterprising resident commissioner, first got his stamps and then he got his postal union franchise; he rises superior to the carping critics who condemned the issue merely because it was premature, in the sense that it came before the privileges of the postal union were granted.

THE THREE STAR

FILLED APPROVAL SHEETS FOR DEALERS

These lots of "Three Star" sheets have been sold by us to all the principal dealers in the United States, some large concerns taking from ten to twenty-five lots at one time. The sheets contain 50 stamps each and there are from 35 to 45 sheets in a lot.

The stamps are all priced and they can be sent out the same day that you receive them.

The stamps run as high as 25 cents and sometimes above that. Each lot foots up over $70.00.

Price $8.00.

You can give 50, 60, 75 or even 80 per cent discount and still double your money.

No sheet of 50 stamps foots up less than $1.00 up to about $5.00 for a sheet. You can judge of the Average Price. A sheet of 50 stamps for $5.00 would average 10 Cents per Stamp. The sheets are in good order, have never been sent out or folded in any way and contain a large variety.

The "Three Star" sheets are known to almost every collector or dealer.

TRY A LOT. You will surely come again.

REMEMBER: From 30 to 50 sheets over $70.00 value for $8.00.

Respectfully,

WANT LISTS

I want want lists. Send me yours, together with reference or deposit, and see if my prices don't make you buy the stamps. Deposit returned if no sale.

Every collector has some pet country or countries that he wants to "fill up", at least up to a certain limit of price.

Waiting for them to turn up in general approval selections is slow work, many stamps, including stamps catalogued at less than 50c are never seen in approval lots.

I have a good many want lists now, always send all I can as soon as list received, then file and send any other stamps that I get from time to time.

If the writer of the want list has bought any of the stamps in the mean time, he has only to send mine back, but several collectors find they save money by not buying elsewhere any stamps of which they have sent me list.

Of course I haven't everything on hand, but I have at present over 12,500 vars. of which over 5000 are British Colonials.

No reference or deposit necessary from Am. Phil. Association members nor from collectors who have dealt with me previously.

Send the list. It's up to me to tempt you to buy.

NOTES ON ENVELOPES.

Edited by LOUIS G. BARRETT.

Any notes in the way of discoveries, explanation of dies or new issues, either of our own or foreign countries, or other matters of interest to envelope collectors will be greatly appreciated and acknowledged if sent to me at 754 Centre Street, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

On page 353 of the issue of Oct. 19, 1907, under the description of Type 140, it is stated that it is found on Size 1. This is an error; it should read "Size 9 on W, A."

At the February meeting of the B. P. S. there was a competitive exhibit of "Twenty most attractive postal cards." Although now so long after the event, it may yet be of interest to collectors to know just what cards were included in the winning lot. E. M. Carpenter, the holder of the blue ribbon, informs me that they were the following varieties:—

Azores 1895, 10reis.
Brazil 1890-1, 80r (with paid reply).
Guatemala 1875-6, ¼ real.
Guatemala 1890, 3c.
Guatemala 1897, 3c.
Guatemala 1897, 3c (with paid reply).
Hawaii 1882, 2c.
Hawaii 1882, 3c.
Hawaii 1894, 2c.
Heligoland 1878, 10 pfennig.
Honduras 1892, 3 centavos.
Japan 1875, 1sen.
Macau and Timor 1894, 2avos on 10reis.
Macau, 1898, 2avos.
Mozambique Co. 1898, 10reis.
Newfoundland 1873, 1c.
N. S. Wales, 1887-9, 3p (jubilee card).
Salvador 1891, 3 centavos.
Salvador 1892, 3 centavos.
San Marino 1882, 15c (with paid reply).

The "three-half-penny" English envelope is now seen printed in dull violet instead of yellow.

It has been called to my attention that Scott's 1398 and 1711; the 1c, die A on white and the 1c, Die A manila, respectively of the 1874 or Plimpton issue; have both been found printed in light blue as well as dark blue. This Die A has only been known previously in both shades on orange, Scott's 1465 and 1466.

I quote from a letter of Mr. Lachasse's:—

Until recently, though not from the beginning, the War Department penalties had the penalty worded thus: "Penalty for personal use $300" in one line in the right upper corner. I saw but recently a No. 7 of the usual white unwatermarked paper, with the penalty as follows: "Penalty to avoid payment of postage $300" in two lines, and always in the same corner.

Apropos "War Dept" penalties, I got yesterday a curious one; generally the name of the department is in the left corner, and the penalty in the right corner. This one (No. 8 on white paper) reads in the left

Treasury Certificates
Return if not called for in 15 days, and in the right,—

War Department
Paymaster General's Office
Official Business.
Penalty for private use $300.

Miss Amy L. Swift calls to my attention some variations in the current 2c "King's head" Canadian envelope. Of the two envelopes submitted, the one bearing postmark of Nov. 5, 1906, shows all the A's of CANADA and POSTAGE as having flat tops; the E of POSTAGE and the E of CENTS both show a heavy middle bar; the O of TWO is round and the W narrow. The front of bust points to the O of TWO, the loops just inside the outer oval are heavy and the lathework enclosing the labels is of a much more intricate description than in the second type.

The later specimen, postmarked Jun. 13, 07, has all the A's pointed at the tops, the E's have short thin middle bars, the O of TWO is an oval lying on its side, the C of CENTS is more open than in the earlier type, the W of TWO is wide and the S of CENTS is further from the end of the label. The front of bust points towards the W of TWO, the outer border of loops is thin and flatter than in the other type and the lathe-work is of a simplified character. Various details in the embosing of the head are different in the two types, but enough has been noted to pick them out readily. To me, the formation of the E's is the characteristic most readily seen.

Here is a recent order of the Post Office department in regard to special request orders:—

POST OFFICE, BOSTON, MASS.,
Oct. 30, 1907.

"Order No. 798 and dated Oct. 24, 1907, issued by the Third Assistant Postmaster General, requires that envelope and printing value only, be collected from purchasers of special request envelopes when the order is taken, the balance (stamp value) to be collected on delivery."

(Signed) G. E. BARNARD,
Clerk-in-charge.

There are a number of novelties to chronicle in our latest issue of stamped envelopes. Perhaps the most noticeable is a change in color of the two cent ones from the familiar red-brown to a beautiful rose-carmine. These appeared wholly unannounced about the first of November, although in my notes some months back it was suggested that such a change was probable. Already they have been seen on Sizes 5 and 13 on white and Size 5 on amber. It may be readily seen that it is going to be hard hunting to find some of the sizes and papers bearing the brown impressions. Probably some of these will never be found, as only about 20 of a possible 35 varieties have been seen to date.

Another surprising thing is the appearance of the 1c and 2c wrappers of the new issue on paper bearing the 1894 watermark. The 2c is in brown, so a change in color as well as watermark may be looked for with this value. How the 1894 paper could be used at this late date and by different contractors is a mystery. Who can solve it? The New England Stamp Co. showed me specimens of both values.

Some of the later printings show quite a variation in the 1907 watermark. The earlier watermarks of this issue showed a round bottomed U and the sides of the U not flaring out to meet the top lines. In the new variety the U has a slanting bottom as in the 1903 watermark and the sides flare out at the top. Another noticeable difference is in the 9 of 1907, in the new type, this has a short, straight stem, while in the older type it is long and curved. It is very evident that this issue is to be as much a source of worry to collectors as the 1903 issue.

A freak of rather an unusual nature has been found in this issue, namely an envelope printed and cut correctly, but folded inside out, and then gummed correctly. The result is that the stamp appears on the inside of the envelope in the upper left corner (as seen from the front). A copy of the 2c green of the 1889 issue is known in this condition, but it remained for the present contractors to go this one better, as two have been found already, one on white and one on amber. While on the subject of freaks it might be mentioned that double envelopes of this issue invariably have the inner one showing a colored impression, where formerly envelopes of this nature had an albino for the inner one. The processes of printing and folding are evidently much different from those used in former issues.

—There is quite a demand in Philadelphia for "Tax paid" stamps. Several collections have been bought by a local enthusiast in this line, who bids fair to have a fine collection in the near future. This class of stamps is undoubtedly the scarcest of any class of U. S. Revenues and any collector who is fortunate enough to possess a fair sprinkling of them in his collection would do well to cherish them. A good comprehensive catalogue would be a great blessing.—A. F. HENKELS.

—The stock and good-will of the Lake View Stamp Co. of Toledo, Ohio, has been purchased by Edwin B. Hill of Lakeland, Mich. We wish the firm success under the new management and are satisfied that under Mr. Hill's direction it will meet with a large patronage.

Both of the gentlemen were classed among the

as the condition of their stamps cannot be beaten.

They were very much alike in their tastes, preferring lightly cancelled copies of the early issues of line engraved stamps, and in these the collections are nearly complete and very rich in shades.

Among the particularly fine things in the general collection are early U. S. in superb condition, early British North America, including the shillings, Triangular Capes, Pence issues of Ceylon, the early issues of the Australian Colonies, the German States, British West Indies, Wurtemburg, Tuscany, etc., while the France contains such varieties as the franc Empire "tete beche," 15c rose error on the original postal card and many others.

These collections can be seen at our office on and after Monday, November 25th, and we also would like to receive want lists from collectors who

UNITED STATES.—E. W. Murray has shown us the new 2c envelope in red on amber and oriental buff, and Frank B. Eldredge reports the same colors. P. H. Hill has also sent us information regarding the change of color. All our correspondents seem to have been unable thus far to discover anything but size 5.

W. S. Fuller informs us that he has discovered an unlisted stamp, an East River local, Scott's L123, in a beautiful shade of pink instead of the catalogue color, brown. It is pronounced genuine by Messrs. Stone and Bartlett of Springfield. Mr. Fuller states that it was unearthed in some old correspondence that has been laid aside for some fifty years. It is on the original envelope with the 3c 1851 and the N. Y. postmark cancels both stamps.

CHINA.—A. W. Dunning has shown us a new value from this country, the design being Scott's Type A18. It was issued Sept. 23, 1907.

Philip H. Ward, Jr., has also informed us regarding the issue of this stamp.

Adhesive.

16c olive.

COSTA RICA.—Hermann Focke has shown us a new printing of the current 10c envelope, the color of the ink having been changed from yellow brown to dull blue.

Envelope.

10c dull blue on white.

Mr. Focke says that the stamps of the new issue are coming in very slowly.

NETHERLANDS.—Le Collectionneur de Timbres-poste confirms the report that the remainders of the De Ruyter commemorative issue are to be surcharged, but states that they are to remain postage stamps and not to be transformed into postage due stamps.

Le Collectionneur de Timbres Poste reports that the De Ruyter stamps are to be surcharged for use as postage stamps and not for postage due stamps as previously reported.

Otto Weismann informs us that the de Ruyter set has been surcharged for use as postage due stamps, as indicated would be done in a recent issue of the WEEKLY. The three values have been overprinted with the word "Postzegel" together with the new value, though Mr. Weismann does not acquaint us as to the color nor does he give us a detailed description of the type of the surcharge. Thirteen values have been thus created, as follows:—

Provisional Unpaid Letter.

½, 1, 1½ and 2½ on the 1c
5 and 6½ on the 2½c.
7½, 10, 12½, 15 and 25 on the ½c.
50c and the 1g on the ½c.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke has shown us a used copy of the $3.00 on 2c rose official, previously noted.

PARAGUAY.—We have chronicled the 1 peso fuerte oblong stamp with view of the Government Buildings, with frame in pale rose and also in yellow brown. We have now been shown this stamp dated "1904" but with the frame in deep red orange, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc. The changes of color in the stamps of this country are bewildering. The same firm has also shown us what appears to be a complete set of the current issue, of which the 2c and 60c have not previously been noted in the colors given. All are dated "1904."

Adhesives.
Dated "1904."

1c carmine.
2c red.
5c orange yellow.
10c emerald green.
20c yellow brown.
30c pale blue gray.
60c violet brown.
1p red orange and black.
2p blue and black.
5p red and black.
10p orange and black.
20p olive and black.

QUEENSLAND.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 5sh carmine lithographed stamp watermarked Crown Q sideways.

URUGUAY.—L'Echo is informed that the postal authorities of Uruguay have become tired of the poorly printed stamps that have been turned out by the School of Arts and Trades, and have therefore cabled the Messrs. Waterlow & Sons, London, for a supply of the old designs, amounting to 8,000,000 stamps. The locally printed stamps were not only a failure from an artistic standpoint, but their poor printing opened the way for counterfeiting, which appears to have been made full use of.

While the old designs will reappear again, this is said to be only temporary, as a complete new issue has been authorized, having a portrait of Artigas, the founder of the Republic of Uruguay.

The 2c and 7c values have been issued in the new Arms design, like the 5c recently issued, and the 50c chronicled in No. 876.

Adhesives.

2c red.
7c brown.

The 7c value has appeared in the new 5c type.

Adhesive.

7c brown orange.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

G. M. S.:—"I have seen a copy of the United States, 10 cents, 1861, blue instead of green; is this a genuine color?" It would prove hopeless to show that the 10-cent green, 1861, in blue was really an error. Green is readily changed into blue by the easiest of chemical actions and large lots of the 3-cent green, type 1870, yield an occasional specimen that accidentally has been changed to blue. Fumes of different chemicals or impregnated atmospheres will change mineral green into blue.

J. L. W.:—The "paid all" postmarks were applied to letters received from abroad upon their receipt at New York City; they have no philatelic standing. (2) The 10 groschen, Hanover, 1859-61, long has been a scarce stamp; there are no reprints of it but counterfeits are known. Though postmarks are sometimes forged, yet all things being equal, the stamp with postmark has more chance of being genuine than the one without it.

W. K.:—Catalogues give the price of the large one shilling fiscal or revenue stamp, Jamaica, 1880, rose on blue paper as fifteen dollars, if postally used, but the fact that your specimen is pencanceled is proof that it was used fiscally consequently, its value is only nominal.

W. T. W.:—This correspondent asks: "Will you please tell me, of all the stamps issued, first, how many catalogue one cent each, and secondly, how many catalogue two cents each." Some time ago, we saw, if we remember correctly, statistics that embraced answers to the questions of our reader but we are unable to locate them. It is possible that some reader can supply the information.

T.:—Write to Julian Park, 510 Delaware Avenue, Buffalo, New York, for information on the subject of the new universal language. (2 The Esperanto articles that you speak of, the work of Richard H. Geoghegan, appeared in the WEEKLY in 1904.

THE NEW SCOTT CATALOGUE.

(Our readers will be interested in the following forecasting of the new Standard Catalogue soon to be issued. It was expected that the book would be placed in the hands of its patrons by this time, and the delay in publication is because of the great difficulty in securing from the mills the necessary stock of paper. This is due to the severe drought through the summer months making it impossible for the manufacturers to keep up with orders.)

The publishers state that, in their pricing this year, they are continuing the policy of conservatism and that there is more likelihood of complaint that rare stamps are priced too low than that they are too high. Such a state of affairs, however, has always in the past betokened a healthy activity in the stamp business, as, when stamps bring full catalogue or a little over at auction or private sale, it certainly shows that the catalogue is not reflecting fictitious values and strengthens confidence throughout the stamp world. In a similar way, the publishers state that they are endeavoring to avoid sensational rises in price and, particularly, startling increases where it is evident that speculators hold the supply or are endeavoring to effect a "corner." Increases in price, under such circumstances, experience has always shown to have been followed by a corresponding reaction, which only serves to disgust those who had bought at the high figures and considered themselves to have been misled by the catalogues.

There have not been very many changes in U. S. postage stamps, and it takes one familiar with the market and ordinary condition of U. S. stamps to appreciate the dilemma of any cataloguers at this point. Only a very small proportion, particularly of the early issues, of U. S. stamps, are in fine condition. Fine specimens, either used or unused, are bringing today close to catalogue prices, while, on the other hand, ordinary and poor stuff may be had at large discounts. If catalogue prices were raised, the claim is made that those collectors who judge market conditions only by quotations in advertisements, without knowing the quality of the stamps, would consider the increased prices exorbitant. On the other hand, people who have had difficulty in filling their U. S. spaces with anything like fine copies, realize that it is only a matter of a short time when fine specimens of many U. S. stamps will bring considerably over the catalogue figures, as, in fact, they do already in a few instances.

Quoting figures, we note the 5c 1847 has been raised to 85c; the 3c 1867, No. 82, to $40.00; the high value Columbian stamps from 10 to 20%, both unused and used; $2 Omaha has gone up to $3.00, and there are various minor changes in an upward direction. In envelopes, most of the "Syndicate" lot of the 1886 issue have been reduced to conform to present market prices. No. 1518 is now described as carmine, which, while not quite the color of the stamp, will prevent collectors from buying the more common lake shade as the real thing. There seem to be few changes in revenues other than a few raises in Match and Medicine prices.

Under foreign stamps, we note a larger number of price changes than the Scott catalogue has shown for years. There are, also, a great many new quotations where formerly blank spaces prevailed, particularly in the way of minor varieties, errors, etc. As the publishers frankly state, the prices are not based wholly on their own stock but they have endeavored to price every stamp on which they have a reliable recent quotation. If the office of a standard catalogue is to give as many quotations as possible, purchasers of the Scott book this year will have no fault to find in this respect.

We regret that space does not allow us to give detailed quotations on foreign stamps. Generally speaking, prices, as a whole, have considerably more than held their own. Previously overpriced varieties, which have been obtainable at wholesale for a small per cent of previous figures, have been sharply reduced, in many instances, but the advances more than balance reductions of this sort. There are some advances in 20th century stamps, but the extent of these will not, in all cases, be wholly pleasing to speculators who have been holding for a rise. The demand for old issues, including such lines as old Europeans, in which there is now an active boom progressing in the European markets, is reflected by hundreds of increases in catalogue prices. Certain classes, such as medium-priced early British Guiana, British Honduras, Falkland Islands, Finland, Thurn and Taxis, Hong Kong, Hungary, Martinique, Mecklenburg, Natal, etc., are worth remarking, not because a few stamps have made sensational jumps, but because of the large number of old issues, which have advanced generally 10, 20, 30 and even 50 per cent. This does not mean, however, that rare stamps have not also advanced, for there are many such instances. But, as it is now generally recognized that the condition of any particular specimen counts very largely in its value, a catalogue quotation on a rare stamp can, at best, be only an approximate value. When exceptional copies of rare stamps bring, as they do in many cases, prices far above any catalogue, the collector must not attach too much importance to catalogue quotations on this class of goods as indicating the condition of the general stamp market.

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

Fellow Members:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

We have scored this week 1250 and the 1300 goal is only four weeks away. Congratulations to our membership upon the steady increase. Larger things are in store for us and to feel the enthusiasm of the hour get hold and push.

Mr. Chester Myers of St. Louis has three to his credit this week, a splendid piece of work. And have you noticed the steady, persistent work of Mr. Klemann of N. Y. City?

As soon as Sec. Davis presents his tabulated report showing credit for applications received we shall insert at the side of each Recruiting Committeeman's name the stated number, changing the same as the secretary, from time to time, files his report.

Just time enough to get your name in the year book. Send in your application.

H. W. LEGG, Pres.; WILLIS D. KING, Vice Pres.; CATANO FRATUS, 100 Federal St., Boston, Mass., Sec.; A. P. BROWN, Treas.; WM G. BAIL, EDWIN F. SAWYER, CHAS. H. STONE, Governing Board; EDWIN F. SAWYER, CATANO FRATUS, Ent. Com.

The regular monthly meeting was held Tuesday evening, November 5th, in Room 506, Kast Building. Meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by the President, H. Wesley Legg. Eleven members present. Secretary's report was read and accepted. Treasurer reported cash on hand Nov. 1st $35 63 with all bills paid. Committee on special meeting and outing in August rendered their report which was accepted and committee discharged.

A communication was received from the Secretary of the B. P. S. regarding use of Society's Club Room and it was voted that a committee be appointed to see if arrangements could be made for the use of same as a meeting place; report to be made at the next meeting. The chair appointed A. P. Brown as committee. There being no special exhibitions of stamps the meeting adjourned at 9.10.

CATANO FRATUS, Sec.

After the meeting the members present held an informal stamp talk during which choice specimens, rarities and new issues were shown and much information exchanged. These talks have become a regular feature of our meetings and are thoroughly interesting both to the advanced collector and to the amateur. At the next meeting there is to be a competitive exhibition and each member is cordially invited to show a collection of stamps of his favorite country. Any collector, not a member of the association, is cordially invited to attend the meetings, due notice of which will be given in the NEWS.

FINEST COLLECTION OF U. S. REVENUES.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. EAGLE, WHO GIVES SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT HIS COLLECTION.

Clarence H. Eagle has been called the "Man With the Revenues." He is worthy of the title. Certainly no one will dispute this title after an inspection of the splendid collection that he has succeeded in getting together. Once seen it will always be remembered. We do not intend to take the space to enumerate all the nice things in it. We content ourselves with an opinion from no less an authority than our revenue editor, C. A. Nast, who has said:—

"In New York I had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Clarence Eagle's collection. I had never dreamt of anything like it. It contains everything in the first place. Then it contains pairs and blocks of imperforates and part perforates. Shades come next, and finally many of the pinks are in blocks; many unused with original gum; parts of sheets and full sheets of other stamps. All the provisionals issued by firms who afterwards used private die stamps, many of these heretofore uncatalogued. Now the chief value of this numerous accumulation, is its historical worth. Any question arising as to the validity of a certain stamp can be pretty well settled here. The question of color, paper, mode of separation, etc., is equally easy of solution when one has this collection before him. Differences in dies can be noted here easy enough, because all the varieties are at hand. Only a few hours were allotted me, but enough to satisfy me on one point, and that was that the 3c green proprietary was issued as a part perforate. In Mr. Eagle's collection I found a strip of three which had been torn apart roughly, but all the little interstices fitted in nicely, proving to my mind, that these identical stamps had once been unsevered.

"This is an old time test. Centuries ago instruments of writing were torn apart in the same way, hence we still have, "This Indenture," etc. The two torn edges of the deed had to match. One half on record, the other half in the grantees hands."

Our own call at Mr. Eagle's office in N. Y. City was made in the round of business. His is a busy man, but not too busy to enjoy a little recreation. Indeed it is the busy man who finds the time for such a diversion as stamp collecting. A large printing business makes severe inroads into the hours he might give to philately were he not compelled to provide food, shelter and clothing for one or more younger Eagles.

CLARENCE H. EAGLE.

Knowing that Mr. Eagle's views on certain matters would be of interest to a wide circle of readers I propounded a few conundrums. I asked him first about the extent of his collection. He replied:—

"My U. S. postage is far from complete, as compared with some of the up-to-date collections, but still it has some pretty good stamps in addition to the general line, such as 5c St. Louis; all the 'reprints', 1869 15c invert; Pan Amer. three inverts; all the Departments complete unused; all the War envelopes. One of the prettiest pieces is the 3c rose, grilled all over, unused with original gum, including the attached margin of the sheet which is also grilled. This came from the Harrison Sanford collection.

THE E. J. SCHUSTER CO.,
DEPT. 4, ST. LOUIS, MO.

"In regular revenues I think I am complete. I collect in pairs and blocks also both perforated, part perforated and imperforate; and am almost complete in all known in pairs. For instance in good things I have a block of four, $20 probate of will perf.; block of five of the 5c roulette 1878 o. g. All the inverted heads known, some in pairs. All the Spanish war issues, complete single, and in pairs uncut. A pair of the $50 green and black, o. g. with the plate number, is one of the rarest pieces. All the part-roulettes known in pairs.

"Now in pairs of imperf. first issue there are some very rare ones and some unique ones. The 1c and 3c Playing Cards, 10c Power of Attorney, 50c Surety Bond, $1.60 Foreign Exchange, $2.00 Probate, $2.50 Inland, $3.50 Inland, $10 Probate of Will, $20 Probate, $25.00 Mortgage and $200 Inter. Rev.

"In Match and Medicine, I think I have all that are catalogued, and a number of things not generally known. I also collect these in pairs and blocks. This is particularly interesting of stamps that were never perforated, or that were die cut. To get the latter uncut and in pairs is hard work."

Our next question was of course our old friend "How did you commence your collecting?" Mr. Eagle was ready with his reply:—

"About the year 1889 I began collecting as an adult; altho about twenty years prior to that I had a boy's collection, which had been traded off, as boys do jack-knives, and which had disappeared.

"My taking it up again came through helping my little daughter to arrange a few cast-off 'Continentals' in a cheap album, which I purchased for her to preserve them in.

"From that I became an ardent collector of general issues of the world. From time to time I would get interested in some side-line, such as U. S. Envelopes, or U. S. Locals. Later I set out to complete U. S. postage; and from that I advanced to an unused collection of the same. In the meantime I disposed of my U. S. Locals to Mr. Henry Harbeck, who was writing a book on the subject. I put the proceeds into U. S. stamps and those of 'countries adjacent to the United States;' for I had begun to specialize, finding all issues too great an undertaking for my time and purse. In that way, I acquired good and fairly complete collections of Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, British Columbia, and Mexico.

"While pushing U. S. issues I became interested in completing the Revenues also; knowing that the Civil War issues had long since become obsolete, and that it was only a question of patience and perseverance to make, and own, a complete collection.

"When I found that the Match and Medicine stamps, being regular U. S. Revenue issues, were naturally to be included to cover the whole subject, I started in on them, and became so absorbed, that I had to drop all other collecting, and so decided to sell my foreign stamps, which I did, about three years ago; and now all my interests are centered in anything and everything U. S."

There was a big auction sale of Match and Medicine last spring and in it were one or two rarities that Mr. Eagle needed to complete his collection. The sale is a matter of history, but I felt that a personal word from Mr. Eagle would be interesting coming from one of the principals in the spirited bidding connected with the sale. Our friend had this to say:—

"At the Phelps sale last spring there were two stamps that only one existed of each. Fortunately they came to my collection, which could never have been complete without them. Completeness, however, may not last for long, because there is a possibility of something new being found even at this late day. Less than two years ago I found the William Swaim on old paper, in uncut condition, and it is the only copy as yet. The best known unique Medicine stamp is the Thomas E. Wilson, although I have a number of unique ones, such as the 4c Jayne, square, perforated and not die cut, on old paper; the 4c Ayer, green; the 1c red Ayer; the Swaims, one signed by hand, one without the usual printed signature, and one with the printed signature inverted or printed with the stamp upside-down. The Simmons of Iuka on watermarked paper is unique also.

"The history of the two Phelps stamps has been written about before in your paper, suffice it to say that the 4c purple Ayer, came from the well-known Vanderlip collection of Boston, and the Maryland Match on watermarked paper was found accidentally in an old collection of cheap stamps, that was handed down to Mr. Phelps."

It is the fortune of most collectors to capture some varieties that are prized because of their very novelty. When they can add a new number to the catalog a distinct service has been rendered philately. What Mr. Eagle has in uncatalogued varieties will prove of interest:—

"In uncatalogued varieties, one of the best is the Macklin Match on thin brown manila tissue paper like match wrappers, but rouletted all around and exactly like the Macklin on the regular white paper, which latter is a rouletted adhesive stamp. From the rouletting, I should think that the buff one was also used in the same way, and was not a wrapper.

"A rather odd piece I have is a verticle pair of 2c Lyon, watermarked, not perforated between. A verticle pair of the 4c Ring on silk, perforated at the sides only, proves that the single copies that we occasionally see, with no perfs. at top and bottom, are not trimmed copies, but genuine single copies of a part perf. issue."

There is also a keen feeling of satisfaction in the making of a find but this pleasure Mr. Eagle has been denied. He said:—

"I have never made any great finds. My collection is an aggregation of the best of all other collections that have been obtainable. I have watched and waited, and been willing to buy always at fair figures many things that others have refused. My reward has come at last for the faithful watching all these years. I think it is worth the space to mention the many collections from which I have had to draw, to arrive at the present state of completion. It does not include all, nor does it mention any dealers, from whom I have bought—probably every one in the United States. Amongst the well known collections that I have gleaned from, are the Deats, Vanderlip, Farnsworth, Castle, Ayer, Sterling, Andreini, Thorne, Hunter, Wm. Alex. Smith, Toppan, Holland, Phelps, Dr. Bowers, Mandel, De Coppet, J. D. Rice, Nast, and many others not so well known."

"What of the future of Match and Medicine stamps?" I asked.

"As to the future of Match and Medicine stamps the interest in them may die out for the same reason that Buffalo-hunting has—no more buffalos to shoot—but my experience has been that there is keen enjoyment nearing a goal of completion always in sight. Where the output of stamps ceased forty years ago, the postage stamps, like 'the brook,' goes on forever."

Mr. Eagle as we have already stated is the proprietor of a print shop and our next question dealt with paper. We asked for a comprehensive yet simple interpretation of the terms ribbed and laid as applied to paper:—

"Laid and wove paper are the two kinds that are used universally. The laid shows the parallel lines, most commonly used in what the public call 'linen paper.' Wove paper shows no lines, all newspapers are printed on wove paper. Ribbed paper is a minor variety of laid paper, sometimes accidental, and is usually caused by the web or threads in the cloth which come in contact with the moist paper in the machinery during the process of manufacture. Laid paper is made intentionally so, by using a wire screen, called the 'dandy' which also is used in a design form when making a watermarked paper."

One of the interesting side lines in Mr. Eagle's collecting is his precancelled postage stamps. It is by far the best in existence, being composed of the three finest, Messrs. Duck's and F. L. Smith's and his own, combined in one aggregation that cannot be surpassed. It also absorbed Townsend's of Akron, O., Stebbin's of Binghamton and Dr. J. B. Newton's. The collection is practically complete to date. It represents an interesting phase of the postal service and shows how the increased use of the mails outgrew ordinary facilities in the hand-cancelling of large quantities of mail matter. We now find that the continued increase of such matter has caused practically the discontinuance of the precancelled stamp in favor of the "permit" system.

It is Mr. Eagle's intention to present this collection just referred to, to the P. O. department to be preserved in its archives as a unique history of the use of the precancelled stamp.

Mr. Eagle has entertained a similar feeling for some time in relation to his Match and Medicine stamps and expects ultimately to present his wonderful collection to the U. S. Government for public exhibition in some building in Washington. He has many stamps that cannot be duplicated and feels that their relationship to the public is such that he is more of a custodian than owner of the stamps. Assuming a trust, the collection has reached proportions where it should be beyond the risk of destruction and convenient for the use and instruction of future generations.

Outside of philately Mr. Eagle has achieved fame as a yachtsman and as well in military circles. He has been called to official position in the Atlantic Yacht Club as secretary. From his father he inherited a love for military duties and when hardly 19 years of age joined the Seventh N. Y. Regiment, in which he remained eight years, seven of them on the Creedmoor rifle team—the champion marksman of his regiment.

The many friends of Mr. Eagle, and the number is legion, join with the writer in wishing him a long life and plenty of prosperity.

GEO. R. CARLTON, DENVER, COL.

Secretary H. A. Davis of the A. P. A. is sending out the following in relation to Mr. Carlton:—

"He does not belong to the Denver Stamp Club, nor is he known by any of the local collectors. He has used as a reference, the New England Stamp Co., MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, D. T. Eaton and others. None of these parties know him or have given him authority to use their names. He stated to the writer that he was employed as a bartender at the 'Arch Saloon' in Denver, but on a call made at this place, no one knew him. He has up to this date failed to pay for stamps received from at least two dealers. Personally I have no confidence in him, and advise that no stamps be sent him without advance deposit. All attempts to see him within the last three weeks have failed.

STOPS SALE OF COINS.

King Emmanuel Does Not Want Collection to Leave Country.

ROME, Nov. 18—While the Nervegna collection of coins, considered to be one of the most important in the world, was being sold at auction in this city today, an official of the government appeared and stopped the sale of the rarest coins in the collection, which are valued at $600 each.

He explained his action by declaring that the coins in question should be considered as national treasures and that King Victor Emmanuel, who is an enthuiastic numismatist, did not wish them to leave the country.—Asso. Press Despatch.

A NEW REGISTRATION IDEA.

Horace W. Davis sends us the particulars of a new registration stamp idea that has recently been patented, and which will be of interest to the readers of the WEEKLY.

The invention has for its object the providing of a stamp with a coupon, the latter to be detached therefrom and retained by the user for identification purposes, while the stamp proper is attached to the letter and dropped into a letter box at any place, the registration stamp indicating to the postmaster the character of the letter. The presentation of the coupon will be a sufficient identification for the receipt of the registered article.

It is claimed by Mr. Halse, the inventor, that by the use of his device registered mail will be promptly forwarded, and the annoyance occasioned by the necessity of securing the registration receipt will be done away with.

The registration stamp and coupon are both triangular in shape, separated with a line of perforations. The entire inscription on the stamp reads as follows:—"YEAR 1906. REGISTRATION POST STAMP. 8C SERIAL NUMBER 405 605." The coupon differs from this only in the insertion of the word "COUPON" where "POST STAMP" occurs. The stamp is of a triangular nature so as to be more noticeable when applied to a letter, and therefore to more readily attract the attention of the postmaster to the fact that the letter is to be registered.

In the presentation of the virtues of his invention Mr. Halse does not dwell upon what seems to us a serious drawback, namely the loss of matter ere it gets into the hands of one who will properly care for it.

EDITORIAL.

For Sale Cheap—A curious advertisement has appeared in several newspapers published in Europe. The ruler of Aysbonia, a strip of land in Africa, 250 miles long and 90 miles wide, offers his kingdom for sale at a price that should not prohibit any individual with regal aspirations and a share of material wealth from indulging them. The sum demanded for the sovereign rights of his country by the occupant of the throne, Yborshi, is $200,000, and in return for the amount his dusky highness will relinquish his scepter, domain, subjects, and his authority over his people, including thirty wives, which is that of absolute despotism. "The throne is made of skulls and thigh bones" and the crown itself is "a neat diadem made of human skulls." If an enterprising philatelist should happen to acquire the crown, he would start at once to issue sets of gorgeous stamps that would rival the best sellers now enjoying the favor of the young collectors.

What a Difference—It may be remarked that on the map of the continent of Africa as published in D. Appleton & Co.'s. "Album for Postage and Other Stamps, American and Foreign," New York, 1863, but seven stamp issuing countries (including Reunion Isle) are named. Among the divisions now controlled by European states we find the following obsolete names on the map in question: Caffraria, Zoolu Country, Cimbebas, Country of the Hottentots, Ethiopia, etc. Now, Great Britain and France alone have two score stamp issuing dependencies in Africa.

Not So Slow—The million stamp story, in some guise or other, has long been with us, a fact that is proved by a correspondent who found in an old album evidently, a clipping from the Pall Mall Gazette, London, 1868, as follows: "Thanks to a public appeal by Pastor Maurach in Livonia, we have at last learned what becomes of the old postage stamps, and to what end the thousands of aged and youthful collectors are in the habit of plaguing our lives out. It appears, then, that the Chinese have contracted the habit or passion of covering their umbrellas, and rooms, and houses—everything, in short—with old European stamps, and they buy them by thousands and millions. The Rhenish mission, which has a station in China, collects these stamps, and sells them at three shillings the thousand. For the money so acquired, the mission educates such children as have been either exposed or sold as slaves by their unnatural Chinese parents." We cannot say that this is the original explanation of the hoary tale, but subsequent revisions of it are scarcely an improvement on this one.

Brunei's First Attempt—In his interesting account of philately in Borneo published two weeks ago in this paper, General Bandholtz referred to a set of speculative stamps that was issued from Brunei, while it was still an independent sultanate. This set appeared in 1895 and consisted of ten stamps ranging in denomination from one-half cent to one dollar, inclusive. At first, the disposition was to take the stamps seriously but it was not long before the chroniclers of new issues dismissed them as unworthy of recognition. At the time the editor of an American stamp paper asked a correspondent at Singapore to investigate the circumstances of the issue of the suspected set and under date of May 14th, 1895, the following letter that tickled the risibilities of the philatelic public was received: "It appears that the Sultan of Brunei has not been able to work the stamp business yet. He has only one clerk, and the clerk's wife has been sick a long time so that business in Brunei has been at a standstill. This sounds absurd, but it is true." The editor in commenting on the letter, said: "We shall at least not recognize these stamps until the clerk's wife is well." The fact that the stamps were never recognized does not necessarily mean that the clerk's wife never got well. In his article, General Bandholtz said that he found that the stamps in question actually were used in payment of postage from Brunei to Labuan and neighboring places. In 1895, when the stamps were first seen, a correspondent in Labuan said that the stamps were on the same footing as those of Sarawak and native states not in the postal union.

Chance for Discrimination—A writer in a London paper says that he is prepared to find in a new edition of the leading catalogue of his country, the stamps of Great Britain priced according to condition, or as fine and average copies, respectively. A comparison of prices that may be asked under this arrangement that is submitted proves how difficult it is to secure some of the stamps of Great Britain in fine condition, certain of the prices for such stamps being more than three times those asked for average copies. The typical cancellation on the earlier issues of Great Britain is disfiguring, as a rule, from the philatelic viewpoint; the ink was of oily blackness and applied liberally. The collector who has a knowledge of cancellations in respect to the standards of condition as prevailing in different countries has a working advantage that allows him to know when condition as well as price is a factor in a stamp bargain.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—F. Roterberg, Chicago, has shown us the most perfect "off-set" on the back of a three-cent green, 1870 type, that could be imagined. It has almost all of the characteristics of an actual printing on the reverse of the stamp.

—Major F. L. Palmer has removed from Baltimore to Philadelphia, where he may be addressed hereafter at 1224 Spruce St.

—B. L. Voorhees, Chicago, will use the WEEKLY to call attention to his mail auction sales of stamps, which he has conducted successfully for some time past, as a principal feature of his business.

—Jas. B. Patterson sends us a clipping from the N. Y. Herald, the Crete article referred to in our issue of last week.

—The address of W. F. Gregory has been changed from 65 to 116 Nassau St., N. Y. City. After a long occupancy of his store at 65 Nassau, he has sold out the stand, and will hereafter be found at the address above given.

—H. S. Adair sends us a clipping from the Ohio State Journal dealing with the new gold coins, which formed the subject of an exciting meeting of the Columbus Numismatic Society last week. The society voted by a large majority that the much discussed motto was wisely omitted from the new coinage. We are also indebted to Mr. Adair for the information relating to the last meeting of the Columbus Collectors Club. Stamps of the old German states were shown by C. B. Duffy while W. H. Field showed Sarawak, Siam and Uruguay. The first anniversary of the Club will be celebrated January 16 with a banquet.

—The Eben S. Martin Company, Chicago, has purchased two collections of importance, both transactions having been consummated on the same day. The company has acquired the famous collection of H. B. Seagrave and also the twentieth century collection of C. T. Rogers, which took first prize at the recent competition held by the C. P. S.

—The Toledo Stamp Co. will close its 17th mail auction sale November 30, at its office in Toledo. The catalogue is at hand, offering a thousand lots or more of especial value to the dealer.

—H. Wesley Legg, Pepperell, Mass., was a visitor to Chicago recently.

—Fred C. Grosse recently sent us an envelope bearing the postmark of a town in Alabama, the peculiarity about it being that the cancellation of the stamp, with postmark, was in a blue ink. Mr. Grosse queried "Does the government allow the use of blue ink on cancelling machines?" We applied to the proper place for the answer, and received the following reply:—"You are informed that postmasters are required to use a black ink in cancelling postage stamps. It appears that the postmaster at the town in question is not so doing, and for that reason the necessary instructions have been sent him today."

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Charles F. Rouse, John N. Luff and Edward Howard.

—W. G. Swart, Denver, spent some days in Chicago recently.

—Paul Mason favors us with two clippings from the Ohio State Journal. One of them gives us the information that F. W. Pickard of Cincinnati has removed to Denver, Colo., where he will be located as an agent for the Du Pont Powder Co. It will be some months ere he will be able to resume his advertising.

WANT LISTS

I want want lists. Send me yours, together with reference or deposit, and see if my prices don't make you buy the stamps. Deposit returned if no sale.

Every collector has some pet country or countries that he wants to "fill up", at least up to a certain limit of price.

Waiting for them to turn up in general approval selections is slow work, many stamps, including stamps catalogued at less than 50c are never seen in approval lots.

I have a good many want lists now, always send all I can as soon as list received, then file and send any other stamps that I get from time to time.

If the writer of the want list has bought any of the stamps in the mean time, he has only to send mine back, but several collectors find they save money by not buying elsewhere any stamps of which they have sent me list.

Of course I haven't everything on hand, but I have at present over 12,500 vars. of which over 5000 are British Colonials.

No reference or deposit necessary from Am. Phil. Association members nor from collectors who have dealt with me previously.

Send the list. It's up to me to tempt you to buy.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

E. H. K.:—United States stamps, single specimens, when imperforate at side, even to the extent of showing the next stamp in part are not accepted generally as proven original part imperforation. For instance all the United States stamps that you name were printed in sheets of two hundred stamps each, one hundred stamps having been ranged on each side of a vertical blank margin down the center. Before the sheets were sent to the post-office, they were divided into sheets of one hundred stamps as sold to the public. In some, the separating was not well done, the knife or shears having veered so as to cut into the complementary stamp across the margin at the right or left. A stamp imperforate on both sides may have resulted from the combination of the irregularity just cited with an abnormally wide perforation on the other side that allowed of clipping without removal of all the printed design in part.

J. A. S.:—"I notice occasionally that the earlier issues of Saint Christopher are found canceled with a single line circle, 23 mm. in diameter, and across the center of the circle, appears the single word, 10 long, 'Army.' I shall be glad if you can explain this oddity, and its history. I have it on the 1d and 6d, 1870, and the 4d, 1882." This query was referred to Mr. E. B. Power who had the kindness to say: "The word 'Army' as canceled on these stamps indicate that the letter was written by one of the garrison, as perhaps you do not know that the British government maintains a garrison at St. Kitts. There is nothing official about the cancellation and it has no more significance than if you, Mr. Armour posted a letter when he had a minute or two to spare in the wheat pit and the stamp happened to be canceled 'Board of Trade Building.'"

J. D.:—The difference between the 30-cent, 1861, August or first issue, and the same stamp of the second or September issue is chiefly one of color, the suggestion of red in the former color of the August variety being very striking. (2) The difference between the 24-cent purple and 24-cent Continental prints is somewhat elusive; there is a slight difference in the paper and the color of the Continental 24-cent is of a shade somewhat darker than that of the National.

H. M. A.:—"Albino" is a term applied to those stamped envelope impressions that show no ink but merely the blank outlines of the envelope die; the albino is found practically in all issues of the United States envelopes, from the first to the last. "Essay" means a design for a stamp that is submitted for the approval of the authorities having the question of selection of design in charge, but not accepted by them. (2) We find no reference to a broken "8" Canal Zone, 8c on 50c, bistre brown, in an exhaustive list of the stamps.

E.:—The so-called Clipperton Island stamps were a fraudulent creation of a dozen years ago. At the time of the appearance of the labels, the following warning was issued: "A set of stamps bearing this name has lately been distributed anonymously among the London dealers; the specimens are obliterated by a hand stamp, with the name of a firm in San Francisco. Clipperton Island is off the Western coast and is a part of the United States; so that even if these stamps are not absolutely illegal and bogus, they are, at any rate, either speculative or unnecessary, or both. Under these circumstances, collectors and dealers are warned to beware of them." It was soon found that there was not a scintilla of philatelic evidence in favor of these stamps. (2) Solferino is a bright purplish-red color; in later years, it is rarely used in connection with stamps.

Reader:—The extension of the boundaries of the Straits Settlements so as to include the Colony of Labuan was promulgated in the latter part of 1906 and so philatelically, as well as geographically, the island of Labuan became part of the Straits Settlements. (2) We feel certain that there are several of our advertisers that have the several single CA's on sale at fairly adjusted prices and that they would be glad to supply your wants. (3) The new catalogues are expected in the course of a month or so. We have no other information as to their coming than that which is possessed by the public generally. We believe that much care will be exercised in pricing all the recent issues of British colonials in the coming catalogues.

Beginner:—There are four types of the letters "T. F." surcharged on Orange River Colony stamps to denote telegraph use; the one shilling orange was used from 1891 to 1900 and the cheapest type of surcharge on the stamp is worth about ten cents, used, and one dollar, unused. (2) The stamp described is a German local of one of the private carrying companies, all of which were suppressed by the German government some years ago. Collectors, as a rule, do not give these German private locals any attention.

R. W.:—No doubt, after reading the following paragraph taken from the October number of the Australian Philatelist, the explanation of the "different perforation" on the pictorial two pence Tasmania becomes clear: "The Melbourne perforating machines seem to have run amuck on some of the Tasmanian stamps, for we have them coming along in all kinds of combinations. One includes a 12, which had to be supplied in Hobart. It seems to us that the Melbourne folks have got jealous of our Sydney friends, and have started in to see how they can stir up matters—so the story will go round. Perhaps, the whole affair is capable of easy explanation, if only some of our friends in the south would exert themselves to find out." The two pence mauve pictorial, watermark crown and a, is perforated 11 and 12½ respectively, and the one penny carmine, crown and a, is perforated 12½, compound with 11, and 12½, compound with 12. The one shilling, queen's head, comes with the same perforation as the one penny pictorial.

FRENCH OFFICES IN CHINA.—The stamps of 1902–03 have been surcharged with new values in "cents" and "piastres" and also with Chinese characters.

The New England Stamp Co. has shown us several values of these stamps.

Provisional Adhesives.

2c on 5c green.
4c on 10c rose red.
6c on 15c pale red.
8c on 20c brown violet.
10c on 25c blue.
20c on 50c bistre brown and lavender.
40c on 1fr claret and olive green.
2pi on 5fr dark blue and buff.

GREECE.—J. Leiblinger has shown us the 2l, Scott's No. 108, perf. 11.

HAYTI.—We are indebted to Stanley Gibbons, Inc., and A. W. Dunning for the first glimpse of the new provisionals from this Republic. Two more values of the regular issue of 1904 have appeared with new value in surcharge, the overprint being the same as Scott's Nos. 108 and 109, but both are in red.

Provisional Adhesives.

1c on 5c dark blue.
2c on 10c orange brown.

JAPAN.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1½s stamp in the new color, but perforated 11½.

MOYEN CONGO.—A new colony has been added to the French circle, and the first series of stamps has been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. It is Middle (or) Centre Congo. Like all the recent French Colony stamps, there are three types, though all are of the same size, the printing being 21x36mm. The colors are even worse than the regular Congo set, and really have no equivalent in English, all being in two colors. The first type shows a full grown leopard stalking the jungle, the values 1c to 20c being printed horizontally in this type. All the others have the design printed upright, the values 25c to 75c showing a Congo woman standing in the centre, with native implements in her hands. The franc values show a view in a tropical forest, with enormous great fern trees. All have "Republique Francaise," "Poste" and the value, with "Moyen Congo" printed upon two elephant's tusks, arranged in each case at the bottom of the stamp, with the bases crossed.

Adhesives.

1c gray brown and yellow brown.
2c violet and yellow brown.
4c blue and yellow brown.
5c dark green and blue.
10c rose red and pale blue.
20c brown and pale blue.
25c blue and gray green.
30c red and gray green.
35c dark brown and blue.
40c dull green and light brown.
45c violet and light red.
50c green and light red.
75c brown and blue.
1fr dark green and pale lilac.
2fr violet and pale yellow green.
5fr blue and rose.

NETHERLANDS.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the surcharged De Ruyter stamps noticed last week, and find that there were several errors. The surcharge reads "Portzegel" instead of "Postzegel," all the surcharges being in black. The 15c is surcharged on the 2½c stamp instead of the ½c as stated last week.

NICARAGUA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1 and 5 peso stamps, surcharged "B—Dpto Zelaya", with surcharge inverted.

NORTH BORNEO.—J. Leiblinger has shown us specimens of the 6c olive brown and black, surcharged "British—Protectorate" in red, with and without a period after "Protectorate."

QUEENSLAND.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1sh dark blue lithographed stamp, watermarked Crown Q sideways.

ROUMANIA.—L'Echo chronicles a new set of stamps for this country, which are to be issued concurrently with the set now in use for three months. The illustration shows a portrait of the King facing to the left with "Romania" in large type below, and "Posta" in small type at either side. The portrait is in an oval surmounted by a crown, the upper corners being filled out with foliage. The value appears in a square tablet in the SPAIN.—J. Leiblinger has shown us a curious double impression of the 50c, Scott's No. 167, one impression overlapping the other so that the space between the stamps in the second impression appears in about the middle of the stamps of the first impression. There are two complete stamps in one impression and one stamp and two halves in the other. The slip is imperforate. It comes evidently from some printers' rejected sheets.

SURINAM.—Gibbons' Weekly is informed that four new values of the oblong type are to be issued in December or January: 1c olive green, 2c red brown, 2½c deep green and 3c orange yellow.

TURKEY.—J. Leiblinger has shown us the 20pa violet brown, surcharged "Imprime" and Turkish characters in a square frame, but with the surcharge inverted.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—We have been shown the 1sh Swan type in a new engraving and printed on Crown WA paper. This is evidently the stamp mentioned in No. 833.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

C. L. C.:—The Confederate States did not issue revenue stamps because of the difficulties that attended stamp preparation with the restricted facilities at the command of the Southern states. A writer has said that the advisability of the issue of revenue stamps was referred to several times in documents that were exchanged between officers in the legislative service of the Confederate States but that no attempt was made to really provide revenue stamps. (2) The German official stamps, 1904, numbered 21, were issued for the use of the kingdom of Prussia and consequently, they appear usually under that country name in catalogues. The following explanation of the use of the set of official stamps for Prussia and for Baden, number 16, is taken from Gibbons' catalogue: "There are thirty different states and administrations that possess the privilege of having their postal correspondence franked. Hitherto this has been carried out without stamps. The above two sets have been issued each to be used for twelve months, in order to ascertain the amount to be credited to the revenue of the post office for the conveyance of official correspondence." (3) Philippine due stamps were discontinued because this voucher system of collecting postage due was not deemed of sufficient value to demand its retention. The postage due is now rated by stamped impression of amount.

F. B. E.:—Our correspondent writes: "I take the liberty of asking you if you can give any reason why the standard catalogue does not list both of the enclosed stamps, four-cent, type of 1902? In the 66th edition, the first one, dark orange brown, No. 303, is listed but in the supplement to the 66th edition, which brings all stamps down to 1907, the four-cent dark brown that I show you does not appear. This four-cent dark brown was issued in August 1905, and the color was changed, if I remember right, for the reason that No. 303 was so near the shade of No. 307 of the same issue. I should like to see a reply in your paper." Inasmuch as there was no official notice given of the change of color, the catalogue makers no doubt regard the variation in color as a shade and include it under that category, and inasmuch as there is a general tendency among cataloguers to restrict the number of smaller varieties of recent issues, it follows that they must decline to recognize differences in present day stamps that are somewhat elusive in character. While we have briefly sketched the cataloguer's position, yet there is the collectors' side of the question. When the browner shade of this four-cent appeared in August, 1905, chroniclers of new issues greeted the stamp with remarks, such as: "Evidently, the familiar orange brown shade is no longer printed" and "It is thought that the change is permanent and due to the similiarity of the old shade to that of the ten-cent stamp, a similarity that often confused the stamp salesmen and postal clerks."

E. W. M.:—When chalk-surfaced paper came into general use for the stamps of the British colonies in 1905, a London paper described the advantages that it possessed, as follows: "The chalk-surfaced paper is practically uncleanable and has the additional advantage that stamps printed on it have a much finer appearance. The disadvantages are that it is a little more expensive and that it is unsuitable for printing line-engraved stamps such as those of the Falkland and Turks Islands." (2) The advance sheets of the new edition of the Scott catalogue are nearing the end of the alphabet and it will not be very long before the new edition will be ready for delivery.

T. L.:—If you could prove that the Confederate covers in your possession were sold to customers over the counter by postmasters and used at the convenience of the buyers in the way that stamped envelopes are today, it would probably be admitted that your envelopes were provisionals. Let us cite the instance of the Raleigh, N. C., provisionals which were on probation for a long time before they were included in the catalogue. It is apparent that an objection that was lodged against the credentials of these envelopes was removed by strong proof, as nearly twenty years ago, C. B. Corwin, who studied Confederate stamps well, wrote: "I desire to call your particular attention to the words, 'Raleigh, N. C., Paid 5,' stamped in red ink in the upper right corner; also that the bottom part of the 5 has impressed the paper of the envelope so heavily as almost to cut through it. You would naturally expect to find a corresponding impression on the reverse of the envelope, but, on turning it over, you will find not the slightest trace of it. Ergo, the letter was mailed inside the envelope when the stamped impression was applied and its philatelic value is nil, and this, I fear, is the history of most of these envelope locals." This illustration shows how necessary it is to prove that the impression was applied before the envelope was presented for mailing and not stamped upon it when it was handed in.

Meetings first and third Tuesdays in Club Room, 506 Kast Bldg., 7.30 P. M.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS.

BOSTON, Nov. 23rd, 1907.

According to vote at the last meeting the first informal and social meeting of the Society will be held in the Club Room at 7.30 P. M., Tuesday, December 3rd.

There will be a fine program of entertainment provided, and a pleasant evening is assured.

Please make a special effort to be present and assist in making the meeting a success.

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec.

BOSTON, Nov. 23rd, 1907.

The one hundred and seventieth regular meeting of the Society was held in the Club Room on Tuesday evening, November 19th, with 40 members present. The minutes of the October meeting were read and accepted.

The International Secretary made an interesting report on recent philatelic publications.

The Governing Board reported the amended wording of Art. 2 and 3 of the Statutes.

The following recommendations of the Governing Board were adopted, viz.:—

That on the regular meeting night of each month the informal auction be dispensed with and the session be opened at 7.30 p. m. sharp.

That there be a second meeting on the first Tuesday of each month which shall be open and informal, for auction, bourse, exchange, entertainment and general sociability. Also that a special Entertainment Committee be appointed to take charge of the informal meetings.

Application for membership from John E. Holloway, Milford, Conn., proposed by Henry F. King, was received and posted until next meeting.

H. C. Bradley, Roxbury, Mass., was elected to membership.

The exhibition consisted of two collections of Brazil shown by M. H. Lombard and E. M. Carpenter, and Uruguay exhibited by A. P. Brown and F. Hutchins. The judges awarded a blue ribbon to Mr. Lombard for his collection of Brazil.

Nov. 20, 1907.

In place of the regular meeting Nov. 18, a special meeting was held with President Lehmann in the chair and 12 members present. It was decided to postpone the 2nd meeting in December from Monday, the 16th, to Wednesday, Dec. 18, which will be exhibition night. A very active auction and some exchange concluded the evening's entertainment. As the officers for the following year are to be elected, all members and friends are urgently requested to attend the next regular meeting, Dec. 2, 1907.

STAMP LANGUAGE.

"A Reader" wants us to explain the postage stamp language. This is it, as we figure it out:—

Stamp upside down—I am heels over head in love.

Two 1-cent stamps—The druggist was out of twos.

Postage due stamp—This is on you.

Stamp barely adhering—How dry I am.

Stamp in lower left-hand corner—My education was neglected.

Ten-cent stamp—I have something "special" to tell you.

No stamp—I am absent-minded.

Stamp inside the envelope—Please return this poem if not available.

—Henry Hoffman favors us with a clipping from the Buffalo Evening News which reads as follows: "Stamp collectors held their national meeting on the top of Pike's Peak, and they would go to sheol to get a new specimen of stamp, so penetrating are some forms of foolishness or recreation." Mr. Hoffman wants us to give it to them "good and hot," but we hardly deem it necessary. Life is too short.

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

Fellow Members:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

H. A. DAVIS, Sec.

Nov. 6, 1907.

The November meeting of the Philadelphia Philatelic Society, A. P. A. Branch No. 18, was held at the Penna. School of Industrial Art on above date, Pres. Henkels in the chair. There was a large attendance. One candidate was elected to membership and also one candidate proposed for membership.

The Treasurer reported cash on hand $51.60. The Sales Manager reported sales from A. P. A. books for the month amounted to $45 90. It was decided to hold an auction sale at the Dec. meeting.

Pres. Henkels read an article on "Postage Stamps and when they were originated" from Youth's Realm. The date given in this article was 1653 A. D.

Mr. Parrish, Sales Manager of the A. P. A., brought the regular sales circuit of the month, to the meeting, which was turned over to the Branch's Sales Manager, who recorded quite a large number of sales after the routine business.

F. HAHMAN, Sec.

A RECRUITING WORD.

F. W. Reid has his name added to the "Four Applications Guaranteed" this week, and we shall be pleased to perform a similar service by any member who expresses a desire to aid with the good work that we have in hand.

Mr. Reid suggests that the members use their A. P. A. numbers in all their correspondence. This will acquaint those who are in a position to do missionary work with information of considerable service from a recruiting standpoint. It is awkward to ask a man for his application and find that he joined the Association years ago.

Remember that the number of applications secured by each committeeman will be posted at the right of his name with the next tabulated report presented by Dr. Davis. Unless some of the committeemen want blank spaces opposite their names, it will be necessary to make a hustle, and that immediately.

UNITED STATES STAMPS.

By CHARLES R. MORRIS.

Of the thousands of persons from all over the United States, and I might say from all over the world, who annually visit the City of Washington to "see the sights," very few go away without having visited the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the building where all stamps, paper money, bonds, checks, etc., for the Government are prepared. The Library of Congress pleases those who are in search of beautiful architecture and literature, the Capitol, National Museum and Smithsonian Institute satisfies those who are scientifically or historically inclined and the Washington Monument gives the searcher for the unique a thrill that he probably has not experienced before nor soon forget; but the literary person, the historian, the teacher, the layman, the preacher, in fact every one has an interest alike in the building from which comes the little stamps that we all put on our letters and the green (and occasionally yellow) backs that we carry in our pockets. Of the two, stamps or greenbacks, the stamps have the least interest to the majority of visitors because they are not interested in stamps, they are too common and so it is, that when a visitor goes through the Bureau on a sight seeing trip very little is said regarding the making of the stamps nor any part of the process shown, but to a philatelist the whole process is interesting and for the benefit of those who have never had the opportunity or who may never have, I wish to describe the process from the beginning to the end.

The sheets of paper on which the ordinary stamps are printed are 18½x20¾ ins. in size and are shipped to the Treasury Building in large wooden boxes which are strapped and sealed. The boxes are opened here and the sheets counted twice by two different counters. Each day as orders for stamps are received from the Post Office Department, a requisition is made out and sent to the Bureau, together with the necessary number of sheets of paper to fill the orders. These are receipted for by the "Wetting Division," where all sheets are "wet down." This process consists of taking twenty sheets of paper and laying a wet cloth on them, another twenty sheets and another wet cloth and so on until 1000 sheets have been piled up. These are then set aside for three or four hours when they are all gone over again and those that have been next to the cloths are put in the center and the center ones are put next to the damp cloths; these are then piled up in piles and left over night with weights on them; the next day they are sent to the room where the 20 big steam presses are at work. Each machine has four plates on it which go around a square bed on an endless chain, first receiving the ink, then polished with a cloth, then polished by hand by the printer in charge of the machine, a lady assistant places a sheet of the dampened paper on the plate, it goes through the rollers and another lady on the other side removes the engraved sheet, these at certain intervals are removed to another room where they are counted to see that there have been received from the printer the same number of pieces of paper as he received. Each of these twenty machines turn out 4000 sheets of stamps a day; with 400 stamps to a sheet, that means 1,600,000 for one machine, or 32,000,000 stamps a day for the twenty machines. After the count, they are sent to the dry room and placed in tiers of racks, fifty sheets of stamps are put on each rack, the room is closed up and a temperature of about 140 degrees is maintained during the night; the next morning the sheets are all dry and are then taken to the hydraulic press room where each two sheets are turned back to back and put between smooth press cardboards and in a hydraulic press are subjected to a pressure of 5000 pounds to the square inch which reproduces the smooth, glossy surface of the paper that was lost in wetting and printing.

The sheets are then sent to the gumming room where the "o. g." we all like to see is placed upon them. This is done in the most improved gumming machines in the world. The sheets are fed into the machine at one end of a long room, after passing under a roller which puts an even coat of gum on the sheet. It takes just one minute for them to pass through a long hot box on an endless chain and when they emerge from the other end of the hot box the gum is perfectly dry and they are taken at once to the perforating room where they are run through the machines which either make or spoil our "well centered" stamps. Each operator of a perforating machine is expected to perforate 7500 sheets of stamps a day which is about one every ten seconds. Is it surprising that there are so many "off-center" stamps?

After being perforated they are again put between hard pressed cardboards and run through a rotary press which removes the roughness caused by being perforated. The stamps are now in sheets of one hundred stamps each and have passed through the last process and to make sure that no imperfect stamps go out they are looked over by two examiners, one looking at the back to see that the gum and perforations are all right, the other looking at the face to see that the printing is perfect in every respect. They are now handed to ladies who count them into packages of one hundred sheets which are put between cardboards and two straps placed around them, one lengthwise and the other crosswise, and to doubly seal the package a wire staple is put through the margin of all the sheets. The top cardboard has printed across the corner "Notice. 100 Sheets—10,000 Stamps. The sheets of stamps in this package must be counted before breaking the bands. Fold this wrapper along the dotted line below and count the stamps sheet for sheet from top to bottom. If the full number of sheets is not found, the package must be returned to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Stamp Division, in its original condition. If the bands are broken, no claim for shortage will be allowed."

There are two kinds of gum prepared, called Summer and Winter gum and each package of stamps that are sent out are labeled which gum is used and warning postmasters to get rid of the stamps within a certain time in order that the summer gum may not crack with the cold of winter and so that the winter gum which is softer will not run and cause trouble as summer comes on.

These packages of 100 sheets are then sent to the packing room where the requisitions of Postmasters are filled and mailed to them and with the return to the Treasury of a Postmaster's requisition as filled and mailed, the responsibility of the Bureau ceases for that quantity of paper.

From the time the paper is received at the Treasury to the time the stamps are last counted before being packed they are counted twenty-four times. This shows the great care that is taken to prevent loss of paper or any parts of stamp paper and to avoid any kind of errors creeping out and into circulation.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Potomac Stamp Co. desires information in regard to Harry L. Jones, R. F. D. 4, Oswego, N. Y., from whom they are able to receive no replies to letters mailed. This company would also like to hear from Joseph L. Rawlings, to whom an approval selection was sent and from whom no returns have as yet been received.

—"I feel it to be a kindly compliment that I should have been put on the foreign membership committee of the A. P. A. The only thing I regret is that being so completely filled up with work my services will have to be extremely limited. I am doing the press work of the J. P. S. exbibition but am obliged to refrain from taking much further part in the exhibition as my office keeps me night and day and I only get home to sleep. All the booklets you have sent, however, will be dealt with to the best possible advantage. I think the A. P. A. ought to be better supported in England, and any opportunity I have in promoting it here will not be overlooked. Kindly keep the J. P. S. exhibition prominently before your readers."— Fred J. Melville.

—We are indebted to F. T. Wadsworth for a number of old stamp lists and publications issued in 1876-77.

—Receipt of clipping is acknowledged with thanks from Case Stamp Co.

—We do not think that it is generally known that W. H. Peckitt, the well known English dealer in rarities, has a department of service in the supplying of new issues. His advertisement in this issue will be read with a great deal of interest and we feel sure that his bid for a portion of American patronage will meet with success.

NOTES ON U. S. REVENUES.

Edited by Charles A. Nast.

Any information regarding any class of revenues, but particularly those of the U. S., British Colonies and Mexico, will be gratefully acknowledged, Address Charles A. Nast, Box 14, Denver, Colorado.

Every collector should know by this time that one of the silliest things he can do is to sever pairs and blocks of imperforate stamps, and more particularly blocks of part perforates, as the existence of the strip or block is essential to the validity of the many single specimens afloat. Thus the 2c blue Proprietary, which is listed as imperforate, so far as I know has never been seen in an unsevered pair. The same may be said of the 2c orange Bank Check which one sees listed in auction catalogues occasionally as imperforate, tho it is not given as such in the Standard. A pair of these would validate a whole lot of singles, which now are always regarded with suspicion. And yet one must not be too sure that they do not exist. For instance in a lecture delivered at the Brooklyn Institute by Clarence H Eagle on U. S. Revenues, on the 15th of December, 1899, the lecturer used the following words: "The 10c Power of Atty. is also common as part perforate, but has never been seen in pairs imperforate. This stamp I do not believe exists imperforate altho one sees a good many single copies with fair margins I believe them to be trimmed copies of perforates or part perforates. I have a very clever attempt at making wide margin imperforates in a copy which is now in my collection on so-called original cover." But lately Mr. Eagle acquired an undoubted imperforate pair. It took $80.00 at auction to capture this pair, and he says now "since this turned up I think a whole lot more of my single copy."

Again if the price of a single imperforate is $5.00 it is not good business to apply the strict rule of mathematics, which would make two worth $10.00, when the said two are an imperforate pair. In this state they might be worth $50 00, if a great rarity. Like diamonds, for instance, the doubling of the weight does not double the price, but may increase the cost a hundred times. Recently a friend of mine who had great difficulty in obtaining pairs of imperforates (caused somewhat also by a stringency in the cash drawer) started on a new tack, and it was this: To collect single specimens, but only such as show a part of the adjoining stamp, thus proving their validity as imperforates beyond all question. Even in this state it is astonishing how difficult it is to procure many specimens. However, such a collection invites greater interest than the usual run of imperforates, and I have no doubt would fetch very much more in this condition if placed on the market. The only seeming paradox in our present price list is the listing of the $1.00 Mortgage at a higher price in the perforated state than in the imperforate, a contradiction I never could get reconciled to. There are reasons I might give for this, but dare not publish in these notes.

Pairs of Imperforates.

So then do not think for a moment I would discourage the collection of singles. On the contrary get all you can, even those of which you are not absolutely sure or those whose status is yet undefined absolutely, providing you do not pay fancy prices, because as in the case above alluded to, a pair may turn up sometime which would make your single

$2,700.00 IS THE PRICE

Of the finest known copy of the U. S. 30c 1869, inverted flags, unused, which we offer for sale The stamp is perfectly centered, brilliant in color, and has traces of the original gum. It is the finest of the four known copies: two in this country, one of which has a straight edge; and one abroad, hence its great rarity can be understood.

It is in safe deposit and will be shown only to serious collectors who really contemplate purchase.

Our 11th Auction Sale

Will be held in the Art Rooms at Freeman's, 12th and Walnut Sts., Philadelphia, January 4, 1908, at 2 o'clock. It comprises the superb 20th Century Collection of Mr. O. S. Hart of Akron, Ohio, and other properties If you are a buyer, send for a catalogue.

If you contemplate selling at Auction, correspond with us. We have the best facilities for getting results of any firm in America. Sales held in either New York or Philadelphia. Liberal cash advances when desired copies very valuable. Among the recently acquired pairs of imperforates which now repose in the unequalled collection of C. H. Eagle are the following: Horizontal pair of the $1.60, first issue; horizontal pair of the $2.50 Inland Exchange which is, I think, unique, and a vertical pair of the $10.00 Probate of Will. Also by the same a horizontal pair of the 3c For. Exchange perforated at top and bottom. (For years Mr. E. says he had a very wide margined single copy but he took little stock in it as such.) All of which shows it pays to pick up things when others do not believe in them for sooner or later the proof may come along. Dealers now ask from five to seven dollars for a single 3c Proprietary if it looks at all like a part perforated copy. I know it is listed at $15.00 but no one has been very "strong in his belief" on that score heretofore. Time changes all things, even if its forty years after the issue.

U. S. Revenue Proofs.

There is no doubt about the awakening of interest in proofs of revenues. Lately several collections of Proofs of U. S. Postage and Revenues have come upon the market. Perhaps the largest of these is that formed by C. A. Baldwin and which is now being disposed of by H. Wesley Legg. I was privileged to see a greater part of this and especially the revenue section. Many of these exquisite prices were of surpassing interest, for instance the impression of the black parts only of the $1.00 and $5.00 Proprietary (green and black), both imprints being side by side on one piece of paper. Evidently this was an engraver's proof and as such is very likely unique. Then the series of essays for the $1.00, $2.00 and $5.00 Documentaries of the first issue were numerous but too plentiful for recording here. Interesting they were, all of them. Many of the second series blue and black were there without the centre vignette, which I believe was designed by all engravers to be in black ink. A series of essays with Seward's head in the centre, very likely submitted for the State Department series, were shown in different colors. Then I must not forget that "glorious" proof in black of the $3.50 second series, with the shield and anchor. Altogether the student of U. S. revenues can find much here to edify and interest. Many of the rejected designs were represented.

A New J. J. Macklin.

A stamp not heretofore catalogued is a variety of the 1c black J. J. Macklin. It was turned up in New York but I have been unable to learn the price. If my readers will turn to page 189 of the Boston Revenue Book they will see there the communication from Mr. Macklin, the proprietor, to the government printer, in which he gives directions to print a thousand dollars' worth of his stamps on manila paper. "Manila paper will answer," he says, evidently offering it as a suggestion to be followed in case no other paper is available. Now all the Macklin stamps seen heretofore have been on white paper, and it was never thought heretofore that the suggestion had ever been carried out. That it was followed in part at least seems certain now, as the new stamp is on paper exactly like the manila paper on which the Byram Carleton Co.'s wrappers are printed. All other known copies have been on white paper of ordinary thickness and texture.

The H & S Cancellation.

Geo. A. Bell of Grand Rapids, Ohio, recently "went through" an old drug store. While nothing startling was found many nice little things were picked up—enough to pay for the trouble. Among others he found a lot of original packages with the stamps of war-time days still clinging to them. "White & Howland" it seems were the proprietors of a salve. A very dark blue wrapper was that of "Horne & Stewart," vendors of dye stuffs. Now this latter firm used a cancellation of "H & S" in Roman letters simply without date of month or year. As these letters measured 16x3mm. I at once recognized what has heretofore been supposed to be Hostetter & Smith's cancellation. You will find it so recorded in the Boston Revenue Book. But to think that all these years all of us collectors have been on a wrong scent! So another misconception has been smashed and it falls to my lot to correct this long-cherished idea. But we might have known old Hostetter would never have a stamp cancelled by a type press, unless it was his own. During the 1898 period he used no precancellation while other innumerable firms did. I believe of the Spanish-American War period, only three or four stamps are known bearing his cancellations and these made by a rubber stamp. Exit Hostetter & Smith from the precancelled provisionals.

Another Essay on Bank Note Paper.

H. H. Wilson of Ansonia, Conn., writes me after reading my note about an essay for the two dollar Documentary, first issue, on bank note paper, that he has one of the same series on similar paper but the wording in his copy is different. Having seen it I take pleasure in recording it here. It is in lavender color with head of Liberty and the straw colored engine turned work on the lower half of the proof is an endless net work of the words "50 cents, United States fractional currency, 50 cents," etc. It is a queer subterfuge, this using printed paper to give tone of tint to an essay. The ink in which the federal currency words were printed must have been originally yellow or yellow bronze. This makes two varieties of this series. Are there any others?

The First Foils.

A. S. L.—The tin foil you describe is the forerunner of the tin foils with the stamp printed into the design. At first tin foils were printed, as now, with the name of the brand of tobacco, the firm's name and address, and any other design desired and the first issue of "1 oz," "2 oz" and "3 oz" Tobacco stamps were affixed. The foils were so satisfactory, in that they retained the natural oil and moisture of the tobacco, that manufacturers soon hit upon the device of having the stamp printed on them just like bank checks. With the stamp affixed in place, the "original cover" has interest, but no value.

Brown Lock Seals of 1907.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Hassler of Louisville I am permitted to record the new issue of lock seals. I have seen letters "A," "B" and "C." I am told "D" is also out. The present issue is printed in brown, with the serial letters and figures in red, and altogether it is an unsightly mess. The brown is reddish and the red is not brilliant but very dull. The colors are not complimentary and the whole is very disappointing to collectors who have been used to these gorgeous color combinations for which the seals have been noted. But of course these things are not made to suit collectors anyway.

Plate No. 522.

W. S. Aldrich of N. Y. sends a plate number strip of the inverted I. R. on the 2c carmine. It is numbered 522 and the peculiarity is this: One of the "stops" instead of being a solid period, is a well defined "o". I do not think it has been recorded before, though collectors are acquainted with the vagary.

EDITORIAL.

Merely Suggested—It is somewhat remarkable that the question of description of stamp centering, an important consideration in the estimation of many collectors, has not been solved with an accuracy based on mathematical precision. According to the printed information, the stamp may be "perfectly centered," "well centered," "slightly off center," etc., and while the description conveys an approximate idea of the placing of the printed design in relation to the blank margins, yet it is not to be gainsaid that individual ideas must differ in the absence of a certainty established by an unvarying rule that is accepted by all philatelists. We suggest only an idea leaving the working application to be demonstrated by some philatelist who has a mathematical bent to evolve a plan, that, preferably will be so simple that it will appeal instantly to all those who desire the regulating of centering so that its absolute degree may be described in print and consequently, nothing left to individual views on the subject. Broadly, a printed impression that is upon paper whose edges are perforated exactly, down and across the center of the blank margins separating the stamp from its fellows, means a perfectly centered stamp. On the four sides of the stamp, the margins are equidistant, the result being that the printing is exactly in the center. Such a specimen represents perfection in centering, and it embodies the maximum of condition. Using this correctly impressed stamp as a standard, or, as marking one hundred points of excellence, any variation from this centering would decrease the number of favorable points in ratio to the variation or divergence from centering. The stamp that may be perfectly centered and yet have an abnormally wide margin on all four sides is a perforation vagary or curiosity and special provision should be made for its description, but with normally perforated stamps the rule that we have barely outlined could be applied. We have merely suggested a scheme that some bright mind may reduce to practicability.

Thumbs Down—The beautiful set of Philippine postal savings bank stamps recently issued while having no philatelic significance are familiar to some collectors who may even include them on the "various" page of their collections, if they specialize in America and possessions. An interesting reflection of these labels is afforded in the following paragraph that we have abridged from its original newspaper form: "Finger-print identifications have been extended to commercial uses by the postal savings bank of the Philippines at Manila. When the depositor has stamps to the value of one peso (fifty cents) on the card, it is exchanged at the bank for a deposit book, showing the amount to his credit. Opposite the lines for the owner's signature and address is a square ruled off for the reception of his thumb print, so that, even if illiterate, depositors may readily be identified."

Again—An editorial writer in a newspaper of standing says that again, St. Croix and St. Thomas seem destined to be absorbed by the United States. The discontent at present in the Danish West Indies is so grave among all classes that they feel keenly the necessity for a governmental change and it is expected that the United States will be petitioned to acquire the islands. Denmark is represented as being unable or unwilling to encourage the material side of its colonies, and while the mother country attends to taxing the islands, it does not furnish any appropriations to promote their welfare. About six years ago, the stamp papers had annexed the islands to the United States so often that the subject became something of a joke to philatelic readers. It is likely that the expected will come to pass and that the Danish West Indies will become a part of the United States and share in the prosperity that Porto Rico is enjoying.

What May Happen—In this connection, it should be added that so dominant a factor has the United States become in the western world during the past comparatively few years that the commercial relations of many of the British West Indies are strongest with this country. The ties of loyalty that bind the islands in question to Great Britain constantly are becoming weakened, according to report. It is not that the sentimental affection for the mother country is curbed so much as commercial necessity and expediency that points to one seemingly inevitable destination for many of the British West Indies. By force of circumstances the inhabitants are becoming Americanized and recently "the largest and most influential newspaper in the British West Indies" printed an editorial that shows the trend of thought, "the commercial stagnation in the British islands is driving them to depend economically upon America, and also to regard it as the future dominant influence in the West Indies." The newspaper says that at home, there are Englishmen who are advocating the cession of the West Indian colonies to the United States on the advanced and unselfish theory that the mother country when no longer in a position to benefit its dependencies should dissolve the union and encourage them to make a more favorable alliance. Under an analysis of existing political conditions it does not seem as if the possibility of the United States absorbing the British West Indies is so remote as to make it profitless to discuss it.

A Huge Subject—That the watermark is an important detail in philatelic study is well known to collectors. When watermarks began to receive somewhat general attention in this country after the fashion set by the "French school," there were many collectors who inveighed against their recognition, and while there are some collectors who, today, do not attend to watermark differences yet that the question of watermark is a vital one, even they must admit. A great work in four volumes by C. M. Briquet, 836 pages, has just been published in Geneva; it is in French and entitled, "Les Filigranes." It is a historical dictionary of the watermarks of the Middle Ages, from 1282 to 1600, and no fewer than 16,112 fac-similes of watermarks are shown. The writer of the stupendous work labored for twenty-five years in gathering material and he has dignified the watermark so that it becomes a historical figure of importance. From a review of this scholarly production in the New York Post sent us by Mr. M. A. Lesser, we take the following excerpt, and after reading it, the little stamp devices are invested with an added fascination in the minds of collectors: "The stories that they tell, few would suspect who have not looked through the four volumes filled with thousands of fac-similes, and have not read the explanations of the compiler. Indeed, the filigranes explain some of the mysterious names by which stationers still call certain papers: Crown, foolscap, elephant, postman's horn or post, etc. Often the filigranes have disappeared long ago; but stationers continue to call by the same name any paper having the same form or size or color."

Stampless—Tristan D'Acunha is a little island possession of Great Britain, lying 1500 miles southwest of the Cape of Good Hope. There are eighty-one souls on this principal island of a group and as Ascension Island, 690 miles from St. Helena, has been mentioned as a "possible stamp issuing British colony," it is only fair to advance this lonely little colony as a "possibility." Ascension has no inhabitants, except officers and their families, seamen, etc., while Tristan D'Acunha has 81 permanent residents who compose a God-fearing community that dwells in a veritable Utopia. "Up to a year or two back, it has always been the custom for a man-of-war to visit the island once annually with mail and supplies, but this has now been discontinued, though it is only fair to state that the government offered to give the inhabitants a free grant of land if they chose to leave their isolated island home." The people preferred to stay, however, and they are now working out their own destiny which could be brightened immeasurably, we take it, if they would turn their attention to stamp issues.

WANT LISTS

I want want lists. Send me yours, together with reference or deposit, and see if my prices don't make you buy the stamps. Deposit returned if no sale.

Every collector has some pet country or countries that he wants to "fill up", at least up to a certain limit of price.

Waiting for them to turn up in general approval selections is slow work, many stamps, including stamps catalogued at less than 50c are never seen in approval lots.

I have a good many want lists now, always send all I can as soon as list received, then file and send any other stamps that I get from time to time.

If the writer of the want list has bought any of the stamps in the mean time, he has only to send mine back, but several collectors find they save money by not buying elsewhere any stamps of which they have sent me list.

Of course I haven't everything on hand, but I have at present over 12,500 vars. of which over 5000 are British Colonials.

No reference or deposit necessary from Am. Phil. Association members nor from collectors who have dealt with me previously.

Send the list. It's up to me to tempt you to buy.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

F. W.:—Here is a question that we are unable to answer and it is doubtful whether any of our readers would care to cope with it: "Can you give me about the number printed of each set of United States card board proofs?" We believe that no statistics are available that will afford the desired information.

J. L. S.:—All unused Columbian stamps are genuine, if a few sets marked "fac-simile," which plainly show their character on their face are excepted. Practically, there are no counterfeits of United States stamps, outside of a poor imitation of the 90-cent, 1855-60, the big newspaper stamps, and some of the early envelopes; also, there are "falsch" and "fac-simile" specimens of the high value State department and newspaper stamps. The two-cent, 1894, was forged to defraud the postal service but not collectors. In 1893, when the Columbian set appeared, the stamps so fascinated collectors, that in many instances they speculated heavily in the issue; inordinately large numbers were bought and laid away in the hope of future realization at greatly augmented prices. When the holders were forced to realize on their hoardings suddenly, a sale could be effected only when they were offered at face or under. It is not difficult to understand how copies of the higher values of the Columbian stamps are sold occasionally under face, in view that the postal restrictions of the use of high values are more pronounced than formerly. It is noticeable however, that a really fine copy of any of the dollar values sells at something over face, as a rule, at auction; perhaps, some of the stamps sold under face are not in the pink of collecting condition.

M. B. B.:—All the revenue stamps that you describe have a value that is based on catalogue prices ranging from one cent up to a dollar or even more. There are many different kinds of $1 revenue, for instance, all of which, together with all other revenues are catalogued. The 2-cent, U. S. I. R., orange is worth but a small fraction of a cent each, in quantity, but the same stamp when unused is in better demand. It would be necessary for one to see samples of the stamps in order to value them.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—P. H. Hill writes us that he has seen the 2c red envelope, size 14, on white as well as size 5, previously noted. Mr. Hill thinks that some of the sizes and colors of paper with the early shade of printing should be comparatively scarce.

AFGHANISTAN.—Le Journal des Philatelistes illustrates the new stamps recently chronicled, showing that they are of entirely different types from the earlier issues of this country and suggest the Persian stamps in appearance.

AUSTRALIA. — The 6d postage due stamp has now appeared on Crown A paper, according to the Australian Philatelist.

BAHAMAS. — Ewen's Weekly reports that the 3sh Queen's Staircase is now coming in black and pale green.

BENADIR.—The 60c postage due stamp of Italy has been surcharged "Somalia Italiana Meridionale" in two lines, like the Benadir stamps chronicled in No. 858.

CANADA.—A. J. Edgell has shown us various specimens of precancelled stamps including the 1c and 5c King's Head, precancelled "Montreal" and "For Third Class Matter only"; the 2c, 5c, 10c and 20c King's Heads, all surcharged "Montreal—Quebec" with the usual wavy lines between, but all with surcharge inverted; and the 50c Queen's Head precancelled "Montreal — Quebec", but in different type and with plain rules between.

CHILE.—A. W. Dunning sends us a copy of a new envelope from this country, Columbus being still the central feature, embossed in a circle, with "Chile Correos" at the top and "Centavos" at at the bottom with "10" in a small shield at each side. The whole is surrounded by scallops of lathe work.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—Ewen's Weekly reports that the new cent values are on the following papers: 3c, 6c and 15c on ordinary multiple paper, and the 10c, 12c, 25c and 50c values on chalky multiple. The stamps are printed in sheets of 120, in two panes of 60c stamps each.

ERITREA.—Le Journal des Philatelistes reports that the 25c Express Letter stamp of Italy has been surcharged "Colonia Eritrea" for use in that Colony.

GERMAN COLONIES. — The list of watermarked stamps has been extended by the addition of the 2c for Kiautschou and the 1p, 1.25p and 2½p for Morocco.

MIDDLE CONGO.—A more careful comparison of the new series noted last week shows that designs are very similar to the 1900 series of French Congo, but with such modifications as larger type for the inscriptions, etc., made possible by the changes in size and shape of the stamps.

NEW ZEALAND.—The Australian Philatelist notes that the current 5sh stamp is found perforated 14 at top and sides and 11 at bottom.

QUEENSLAND.—The Australian Philatelist reports that the 1sh stamp has been issued in a new shade.

Adhesive.

1sh deep mauve.

SOLOMON ISLANDS.—The Australian Philatelist announces that the Solomon Islands stamps were gazetted Sept. 3, 1907, as usable for international postage. This forecasts a change in the colors of the ½d, 1d and 2½d stamps, to conform to the Postal Union requirements.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.—The Australian Philatelist reports the 1sh stamp long form, with large "Postage" and on "Crown SA" paper.

Ewen's Weekly reports having seen a vertical pair of the 9d, imperf. between; and a horizontal pair of 1sh, imperf. between.

SWITZERLAND. — The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new 5c stamp, noted in the news column several weeks ago, bound up in books of 24 stamps and sold at fr. 1.20. This is exactly face value. In making up these books evidently stamps are used from the regular sheets, as the stamps are perforated all around, though some of the perforations are shaved a little in trimming the book.

The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has also shown us the new 5c stamp and inform us that a correspondent writes from Switzerland to the effect that the stamps are so bad looking that public opinion is calling for their withdrawal. The 10c will probably not be issued until the end of December or first of January.

We have hitherto failed to formally chronicle these two stamps, though both were noted in the news columns of MEKEEL'S recently.

Adhesives.

5c yellow green.
10c.

TASMANIA. — The 8d Queen's Head stamp has been issued in purple brown, perf. both 12½ and 11.

The Australian Philatelist reports that the 2d in the new shade, on Crown A paper, is perforated both 12½ and 11. The 1d is found perforated 12½x12 and 12½x11.

TRANSVAAL.—There are two dies for the King's Head stamps, ½d and 1d values, according to Ewen's Weekly, the most striking differences being that in the original die, the outer line of the frame was unbroken where it met the crown at the top, while in the later die this line is broken, causing the crown to stand isolated; also in the original die, the point of the bust rests on the fifth line of shading from the bottom, while in the later die, the point of the bust rests on the fourth line of shading from the bottom.

TRINIDAD.—Ewen's Weekly chronicles the 5sh lilac and violet on chalky multiple paper.

VICTORIA. — Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the current 3d orange brown stamp, watermarked Crown A, and perf. 11. It is said only one sheet was issued thus. Ewen's Weekly reports the 5sh carmine and blue on Crown A paper, perf. 11.

THE STAMPS OF GAMBIA.

By P. L. PEMBERTON.

This is a small but effective country, for which reason it is very popular with collectors. The first mention of Gambia stamps was made in The Philatelist for March 1st, 1869. The specimens there described may have been proofs, but it is more likely that they were actually issued stamps which had reached England, in which case the issue must have taken place in January, 1869, or earlier. Both the design and the method of production of the stamps, which left the head, and other uncoloured portions, in relief, was universally admired and hailed as a pleasing contrast to the monotonous similarity of design which had already begun to typify the work of Messrs. De la Rue & Co. The two values which constitute the issue were the 4d and 6d and they were printed on unwatermarked paper and not perforated. The sheets were exceptionaly small, consisting of fifteen stamps only, arranged in three rows of ten, the reason for this being that the embossing could not be satisfactorily done in sheets of the ordinary size. More or less marked shades can be found in each value. There is a variety of the 6d in which the upper label, containing the value, slopes slightly from left to right, a defect which causes the right-hand side of the stamp to be a trifle shorter than the left side. This variety is the last stamp in the top row. Both values may be found with double embossing.

AUG., 1874, WMK. CR. CC, IMPERF.

After being issued for five years without watermark, the stamps began to appear on the Cr. CC paper, but still without perforation. The same varieties of embossing, which, by the way, are seldom very distinct, occur on this, as well as on the former, issue. The 6d with slanting top also recurs.

JUNE, 1880, WMK. CR. CC, PERF. 14.

It is with the introduction of perforation that the chief interest for the specialist begins, but whether the differences I am about to describe come within the scope of a moderate specialist, or not, is a question which I leave to the moderate specialist. But since entire sheets of this type of Gambia, at any rate of the CA issue, are neither rare nor expensive, and consequently are to be found in most specialised collections, the matter will be found of some interest.

Mr. E. D. Bacon first drew attention to this matter in an article published in The Philatelic Record for January 1903, and to this I am indebted for most of my information on the subject. The two different forms of perforating machines used by Messrs. De la Rue Co., are known as the Single-line machine and the Comb machine. The first of these, as its name implies, perforated one line at a time, and, after all the sheets were perforated horizontally, they were turned and operated on sideways, or vice versa. Consequently, in sheets perforated by the single-line, or guillotine machine, the lines of perforation are continued through the margins of the sheets on all sides. The comb machines contained a long row of perforating pins, with shorter rows of pins jutting out at right angles, the width of a stamp apart, and by this means the descent of the pins perforated a row along the top, and also between, the stamps, at one operation; the sheet was pushed up after each descent of the pins until the whole sheet was completed. From this it follows that, in completing the bottom line, the vertical rows of perforation must fall on the outside margin, which, in most cases occurs at the bottom of the sheet, but when the sheet was put under the machine upside down, these superfluous rows of perforation appear at the top.

In blocks of four or more the method of perforation can be distinguished by examining the point where the vertical and horizontal rows of perforation intersect. If the holes fit exactly a comb machine was used, but if the holes run into one another, or nearly do so, it is the work of the single-line machine.

The stamps of the CC issue may be found with the watermark either upright or sideways. The latter are considerably rarer than the former, and are only known perforated by the single-line machine. The shades of colour of the stamps of this issue show well-marked variations, and it has been found possible, by considering the mode of perforation and the position of the watermark, in relation to one another, to determine, with more or less accuracy, the order in which the shades were issued. Mr. E. D. Bacon, in his article already referred to, gives the following lists of the stamps classified in this way:—

A.—Wmk. Cr. CC upright. Perf. 14 by a Single-line machine.

½d golden yellow.	3d deep blue.
1d lake, deep lake.	4d brown.
2d deep rose.	6d dull blue.
1sh green (?).

B.—Wmk. Cr. CC Sideways. Same perforation.

½d bright orange (?).	3d. ultramarine (?).
1d lake (?).	4d brown (?).
2d deep rose (?).	6d dull blue.
1sh green (?).

The notes of interrogation mean that it has not been ascertained with certainty whether these particular values are known to exist in the perforation indicated.

C.—Wmk. Cr. CC upright. Perf. 14, by comb machine used for stamps printed in panes of 60.

½d orange-vermilion.	4d pale brn., brown.
1d deep lake.	6d dark blue.
2d dull rose, deep rose.	1sh dark green.

The sheets perforated by the first machine have two coloured dots in the margins, one before the first stamp of the middle row and the other after the end stamp in the same row. The sheets with the comb perforation have two extra dots, one on the margin in the right upper corner, and the other in a corresponding position in the right lower corner.

Of the shades mentioned in the lists given above there is one, viz: the 3d deep blue, which is so marked as to be worthy of catalogue recognition, and, as it is very much rarer than the pale shade, collectors will do well to look out for it.

1886-87, CR. CA. SIDEWAYS, PERF. 14.

This is an ideal issue for collectors who are fond of gradations of shade. All the eight values can be found in distinct variations of light and dark colours. Gibbons' Catalogue lists four shades of the sixpence and two of each of the others, but there are numerous intermediate variations. Speaking generally, the lighter shades appear to have been the earlier. All values can also be found with white or with brownish gum. The 2½d was the first value to appear, this being chronicled in the Philatelic Record for June, 1886. It was followed by the 3d, 6d and 1sh before the end of the year, and the ½d, 1d and 2d did not appear until early in 1887, and the 4d was not chronicled until September, 1888.

Of all the shades the rarest in an unused condition are the 6d olive-green (which is the lighest shade of this value) and the very pale blue 2½d, not the pale shade of the ultra-marine which is frequently mistaken for it.

For collectors of entire sheets it will be as well to describe the two diffferent comb-machines which were used for perforating the stamps of this issue. One was the same as that used for the CC issue and can be distinguished by the extra vertical line of perforation in the margin on the right, which is at a distance of only ⅜ths of an inch from the adjoining row. The narrow space in the margin between these perforations corresponds with the space between panes of sixty in other colonial stamps for which Messrs. De la Rue & Co. used this machine. The other comb machine used was one which was constructed to perforate sheets printed in longer vertical rows without any division between, such as some of the issues of St. Vincent, Turks Isles, etc. Sheets perforated by this machine do not show the extra line of perforation in the margin. Entire sheets of both varieties can be found, but those without the vertical line are the scarcer.

The following colour trials are known, all perforated 12—½d rose-carmine; pale violet; 3d pale sage-green; 1sh brown-marone.

The plate of the 6d which, from the first, contained one stamp with a sloping top, as already described, was renewed before the end of this issue, and the defect removed. Stamps from the new plate were only printed in grey-green.

ISSUE OF JANUARY, 1898.

The transition from the simple and beautiful embosed design which had done duty for close upon thirty years, to the trim, but monotonous type of one Messrs. De la Rue's key plates, was not one which philatelists hailed with delight, but this is an utilitarian age and there can be no doubt that the small sheets of embossed stamps must have been rather troublesome for business people in the colony. There is nothing very interesting to note in connection with this issue. The plate number found on all the stamps is "2," but the ½d, 1d and 3d; and possibly others, also exist plate 3. The shades of all the values present very little variation, but the 1d may be found in carmine and deep carmine, the latter being the distinguishing colour of plate 3.

THE KING'S HEAD ISSUE.

This series began to appear in 1902 and the set consisted of the same denominations as before, with the addition of a 2sh value. In May, 1905, three new values, all with single watermark, appeared, namely, the 1sh 6d, 2sh 6d and 3sh, and it is said that only 6000 of each of the values were printed. In the same month, three other new values were brought out, namely the 5d, 7½d and 10d; but these were with multiple wmk., to which the 1d had been changed some nine months previously. During 1905 and the early part of 1906 all the other values, with the exception of the 1sh 6d, 2sh 6d and 3sh, came out with multiple wmk.

The first provisionals ever issued in the Colony were put on sale early in April, 1906. They consisted of the halfpenny on 2sh 6d and the one penny on 3sh. Both have the new value printed in words. On the halfpenny the old value is obliterated with two bars and the new value is in two lines above; the higher value has the words "one penny" in one line printed over the original value, and no bars. There are two varieties of the ½d; in one the spacing between the upper bar and the words is 5 mm., in the other the space is only 4 mm. In each pane of 60 the first variety occurs 36 times and the second time 24 times. There is also a minor variety having a broken "E," which appears like an "F," and another in which the "Y" is dropped below the level of the other letters. The bars also vary very slightly in thickness. The total number issued is said to have been 3,780.

The 1d on 3sh presents no varieties worthy of mention, though it is reported to have been seen with double surcharge. The number issued was 4,500.

Both provisionals were issued on April 10th, 1906, and withdrawn on the 23rd of the same month, on the arrival of a fresh supply of the ordinary stamps from England. A large quantity of the stamps were bought up by local speculators, but quite a fair proportion of them were used for ordinary business purposes.—P. J. of Gt. Britain.

The seventy-first regular meeting was held Tuesday, Nov. 26th, 1907, usual time and place, President Cornwall presiding, 15 members present and one visitor, Mr. Bollman. F. N. Chase's application for reinstatement was favorably acted upon.

The evening's entertainment was provided by Mr. Schoeman, who propounded ten questions bearing upon stamps, whose simplicity may be judged from the winning percentages of Messrs. Wood and Cornwall, 40 and 30 per cent correct respectively. Mr. Schoeman also provided a number of entertaining charades, having for their subjects the names of stamp issuing countries.

Nominations for officers for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Schoeman, Wood, Myers; Vice President, Delafield, Strauss; Treasurer, Humes, Slack; Secretary, Millhouse, Schoeman, Wood; Board of Governors, Baer, Chase, Delafield, Diamant, Humes, Kunz, Millhouse, Myers, Ruedi, Schellhorn, Schoeman, Slack, Strauss, Wood.

For the next meeting, President Cornwall has offered $15.00 worth of stamps, catalogue value, to be divided in three prizes, to be awarded for the most complete, best conditioned and best arranged collection of the stamps of Netherlands. These prizes are contingent upon the entry of at least five collections, it is therefore hoped that a goodly number of members will enter their collections for competition.

Next meeting Tuesday, Dec. 10th, 8 o'clock P. M., Rooms 803-805 Wright Bldg. All collectors, members or non-members, cordially invited.

FROM THE SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

Fellow Members:—

We should be obliged if all members desiring to be placed on circuit would send request to the present Superintendent, even though they may have had an order with the past officer, Mr. Wolsieffer. We will thus avoid the possibility of omitting anyone, and also secure applicant's latest address.

In applying, please do so by postal card, or by card of the same size for our convenience in filing.

We take pleasure in drawing attention to the splendid class of stamps arriving daily, many direct from members in foreign countries. If you have never tried the Department you cannot afford to let another day pass without availing yourself of its advantages. "Seeing is believing."

Those wishing blank sales books can have same at 5c each as heretofore. As we find the work of the Department very heavy, we should be obliged if members would remit in advance for blank books (as the majority do) thereby saving us much unnecessary bookkeeping for trifling amounts.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

MINUTES OF BRANCH 24, MILWAUKEE.

The 8th regular meeting was held at Dr. Kraft's office, 248 9th St., on Nov. 12 at 8 P. M., with Dr. Teschan presiding and ten present. The subject of passive membership was deliberated on at length, the consensus of opinion being that the parent organization ought to permit membership of that kind with proper restrictions. The Secretary reported and read a communication from P. M. Wolsieffer, Sec'y of the C. P. S., offering the use of their lantern slides and lecture at a future date. The Entertainment Committee (Johnson, Kraft and Staab) were instructed to arrange for the lecture and report at the next meeting. Our Treasurer, Mr. Van Toor, reported cash receipts, $20.00, and expenditures, $4.14; balance, $15.86, in the Treasury. The Secretary was instructed to inquire into the cost of "Album Weeds" and to purchase it. Mr. Van Toor was elected Branch No. 24 Sales Manager and the Secretary instructed to notify Mr. Parrish of our choice. On invitation from Mr. Liebert, the Secretary was ordered to send out cards to meet at his home on Nov. 26, 1907.

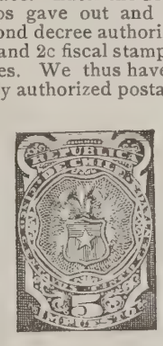
POSTAL FISCALS OF CHILE.

By C. A. HOWES, F. R. P. S.

Chile has always had more or less trouble with her stamp supply, especially in provisioning the country with the value most needed for domestic correspondence, namely the 5 centavos, which represents the single inland letter rate. We noted in our article on the Postage Stamps of Chile (see the "Chile Special," No. 739) that the repeated lack of this value was the cause of the bisected 10c stamps found in each issue through that of 1877. While this latter issue was in use Chile declared war on Peru and Bolivia (Apr. 5, 1879) and owing doubtless to the strenuous times that followed, stamp supplies were not kept up to their normal amount. At any rate the 5c stamps began to run short early in 1880 and permission was given to bisect the 10c blue. The 1c and 2c stamps also ran short and it was seen that something must be done, for the "Factoria General del Estanco" or chief distributing agency finally had but a few days' supply of these values left.

Now it happened that on March 1, 1878, Chile had been supplied with a handsome set of fiscal stamps made, like the adhesives, by the American Bank Note Co. of New York. When, therefore, the chief of the distributing bureau advised the Director General of Posts of the exhaustion of the 5c postage stamps, a decree was issued on July 3, 1880, authorizing the use of the 5c fiscal stamps in their place. Later the 1c and 2c postage stamps gave out and on Nov. 27, 1880, a second decree authorized the use of the 1c and 2c fiscal stamps for franking purposes. We thus have the following properly authorized postal fiscals : —



1. 1c vermilion.
2. 2c brown.
3. 5c blue.

The use of the 5c stamps was discontinued on Jan. 15, 1881, and the 1c and 2c ceased to be valid for postal purposes on Aug. 8, 1881, both dates being fixed by decrees.

Apparently no further need of supplementing the postal issues was felt for ten years, when civil war broke out between President Balmaceda and his opponents in Congress. The Congressionalists seized the nitrate provinces in the north and from their revenue were able to wage a successful war against the President. But, being cut off from the central government, the stamp supplies gave out and it was again necessary to requisition the fiscal treasury for help. On Apr. 17, 1891, a letter was addressed to the Provisional Minister of the Interior stating that all the postage stamps had been sold in the office of Iquique, and that great inconvenience would be caused, especially with the franking of foreign mails, unless fiscal stamps could be obtained. Minister Errázuriz passed the letter on to the fiscal Treasurer who replied that the only postage stamps in stock were a small number of 20c and 50c ; that the fiscal stamps of 5, 10, 20c and 1p were lacking ; but that there was a supply of 2, 10 and 20c telegraph stamps. He also suggested that the fiscal and telegraph stamps be appropriated for postal purposes. The following decree was therefore issued : —

IQUIQUE, April 21, 1891.

No. 13 : —In view of the note which precedes and the information given by the fiscal Treasury of Iquique,

The Governing Junta has decided and decreed: The revenue and telegraph stamps are appropriated for postal franking

Let this be recorded, distributed and published.

[Signed] ISIDORIO ERRAZURIZ.

From this it will be seen that all values of both sets of stamps were presumably valid for postal purposes, but the use of the 5p and 10p stamps is problematical at least and the Anales of the Santiago Philatelic Society, from which this matter is taken, declare that these two values were absolutely not employed in the postal service. That copies have been seen with a postmark is admitted, but there has been much postmarking to order of Chilean fiscals, particularly of pen-marked copies which have been cleaned, so that it is very possible that they may come under this class.

BOSTON STAMP EXCHANGE,
R. 2, 333 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

PHILIPPINE "O. B." STAMPS

I can now supply the following series of the printed surcharge, all being in unused condition:

Set, 2c to 30c, green surcharge	$10.00
" 2c " 30c, yellow "	10.00
" 2c " 30c, blue "	4.00
" 2c " 30c, red "	3.75
" 2c " 30c, black "	2.50

These are all surcharged upon the current (1906) series. Some of them are decidedly off center, so that I can only promise to send the best that I have when an order is received.

I also have a few of the peso values, prices of which will be quoted upon application.

H. F. COLMAN,
GEO. L. TOPPAN, Manager,
723 Eleventh St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

The stamps which were used and are vouched for by the Santiago Society are the following (including of course the three already listed): —

(Fiscals)

4. 10c green.
5. 20c orange.
6. 1p "
7. 2p green.

(Telegraphs)

8. 2c yellow brown.
9. 10c olive.
10. 20c blue.
11. 1p dark browm.

When the revolutionists finally obtained control of the central government, a decree was issued from Santiago on Jan. 21, 1892, confirming the use of the 1, 2 and 5c fiscal stamps for postage, and later extending it to the other four values listed. Now that a supply of fiscals could be had the telegraph stamps were no longer permitted to be used. These telegraph stamps are the large-sized ones of handsome design made by the American Bank Note Co., and issued in 1883.

In April 1900 Chile began the issue of a new postage set which had been made by Waterlow and Sons of London. With these was also ordered a new set of fiscal stamps of somewhat similar design to those that had been in use so long. As usual, there seemed to be difficulties in the distribution of stamps, and hardly had the new type been placed in use before it was again necessary to authorize the use of fiscals for postal purposes. The new 5c stamp was exhausted in September, and both the old (1878) and new (1900) 5c revenue stamps were authorized for postal use by decree of Oct. 25, 1900. Next the new 1c stamps ran out and a decree of Dec. 6, 1900, authorized the use of the old (1878) 1c revenue stamps; but these in turn were exhausted and the new (1900) 1c revenues had to be drawn upon by March 1901. We must therefore add: —

12. 1c vermilion (1900).

but the use of these was forbidden from April 1, 1901 by a decree of Jan. 30, 1901. The old 10c green had to be called on again for a short time in April and May 1900, before the issue of the new 10c postage stamp.

The American Journal of Philately is authority for the statement that the decree of Oct. 25, 1900 authorized the new revenue stamps of 10, 15, 20 and 25c for postage; but as there is known to have been a large stock of the 20c of 1883 on hand at that time, on account of which the new 20c was held back from sale, and as there was a good stock of the 15c and 25c of 1892 on hand, (values which have not since appeared in new issues), it seems as if there must be some mistake about the use of these values being required from the revenue series. I have not yet seen them so used on covers and so shall not list them here until more definite information is forthcoming.

There has been much "postmarking to order" or "par complaisance" in Chile, particularly with the postage due stamps, and the enhanced value of postally used fiscals has also led to much postmarking of cleaned stamps that had been previously pencancelled—and these may not always have been taken to the postoffice for the purpose. It seems best, therefore, to give a résumé of the periods of authorized use of the postal fiscals, during which times they were actual postage stamps and the only ones available, as a guide to those collecting these interesting stamps.

Telegraphs (1883 type)

2c, 10c, 20c, 1p } Apr. 21, 1891 to Jan. 21, 1892.

It may be added that the revenues of the 1878 type most commonly found used are cancelled with the names of towns in the northern provinces during 1891–2, the time of the revolution against Balmaceda, of which Iquique (the revolutionary capital), Tacna and Arica seem to be the most frequent. The same remarks hold for the telegraph stamps which were only used during this war. Stamps with Valparaiso or Santiago postmarks, especially if high values, should be carefully examined. Generally the postmark is none too legible and the date particularly is indecipherable. This tells its own story. The date upon which the revenues ceased to be available for postage after this revolution is unknown to the author, but was doubtless some time in 1892, as the government fell in January of that year. The writer possesses a 5c stamp cancelled "Iquique 7 Apr '92", and the stamps may have been available for some time after that.

—"In your paper for Dec. 6, 1907, I see that The Potomac Stamp Co. ask about Harry L. Jones and Joseph L. Rawlings. I sent Jones a sheet on Oct. 14, 1907, and hearing nothing from him rewrote him, but have received no answer to date from him. Joseph L. Rawlings also applied for stamps, giving the United Nat. Bank & Industrial Trust Co. as references. As he wrote from Fall River, I wrote to the above named parties at Fall River, asking about him, and the letters have been returned unclaimed and unknown. Jones used as reference Oswego City Savings Bank."—HARRY L. PERKINS.

PENT-UP UTICA IN EARLY DAYS (1828).

By DR. WM. H. MITCHELL.

The writer by good fortune came recently into the possession of a little brown book 3x5 inches in size and a half-inch thick, entitled "THE UTICA DIRECTORY. THE VILLAGE AND IT'S NEIGHBORHOOD."

There are few books that are more interesting to the historian than the dry list of names found in directories, to which is usually added the usual "INFORMATION FOR THE PUBLICK."

This particular volume is doubly valuable as it is exact up to the period, and is an undoubted and indisputable authority.

I have therefore made the following extracts that I feel will be of interest to all philatelists, even if stamps for postal use were still to be thought of.

I append these extracts here and add a few notes to make the old-style (1828) a bit clearer when viewed by us in 1907.

From the Utica (Village) N. Y. Directory 1828. Pub. by Elisha Harrington.

Public Conveyances.

The following notices of the mails, stages, and boats, are inserted for the convenience of the publick in regard to business; and also to exhibit the amount of travelling that centers here.

Post Office.

The post-office is situated in Catherine, one door from Genesee-street. From 300 to 350 letters are mailed daily; and 60 mails arrive and depart weekly. These except the four last on the list, are transported by stage-coaches.

☞The hour of closing the Mail, is 8 P. M. at present. Office open from 6 A. M. to 10 P. M. except the Sabbath, when it is open from 12 M. to 1 P. M.

Order and Course of the Mails.

A morning and Evening mail Daily, East and West. One of the mails to and from Buffalo, goes via. Syracuse, and the other via. Manlius and Auburn.

A mail Six times a week, Sackets-Harbour, via. Trenton.

Mail Three times a week, Oswego via. Rome.

Mail Six times a week, Cooperstown.

Mail Three times a week, Ithaca.

Mail Three times a week, Oxford.

Mail Three times a week, Saratoga-Springs, via. Johnstown.

Mail Twice a week, Floyd, Steuben, and Western.

Mail Once a week, Oswego-Falls, via. Verona and Constantia.

Mail Once a week, Warren, Herkimer Co. via. Litchfield.

Mail Once a week, Amsterdam, Montgomery Co. via. Fort Plain.

Stage Coaches.

One hundred and eight regular stages leave Utica every week: destination and time of departure as specified in the following list.

Messrs. Parker & Co. are entitled to praise for their enterprise and energy in establishing and conducting the Telegraph line, limited to six passengers, by which the New-York mail is received at Utica in 28 to 30 hours.

Telegraph for Albany leaves at 9 A. M.
The Eagle 3 P. M.
" Pilot 9 P. M.
The Mail for Canandaigua 4 A. M.
" Telegraph 9 A. M.
" Eagle 3 P. M.
" Pilot 9 P. M.

☞The above are daily lines.

The Mail for Oxford, 6 times a week leaves at 4 A. M.
" Ithaca, Three 9 P. M.
" Sackets-Harbour via Denmark, Six 9 P. M.
" Sackets-Harbour via Rome, Three 4 A. M.
" Oswego, Three 4 A. M.
" Cooperstown, Three 8 A. M.

☞The above leave the offices of J. Parker & Co.

The Mail for Bridgewater, Six 8 A. M.
" New-York via Mt. Pleasant, Pa., 3 8 A. M.

The Saratoga, via Johnstown, Six times a week, leaves the Mansion-House at 4 A. M.
" Clinton, every Tuesday and Friday, 3 P. M.
" Sauquit, Six times a week, 3 P. M.
" Trenton-Falls, Six 8 A. M.

The proprietors of the Pioneer run two daily lines from Utica to Buffalo and Niagra-Falls, and will soon extend the same to Albany. Leaves Mansion-House.

Erie Canal Packet Boats.

These packets are constructed and furnished in the manner best devised for the convenience of travellers. They have ample accommodation for 35 or 40 passengers, and can carry double that number.

The regular line of packet-boats between Schnectady and Buffalo is run this season by the Utica and Schenectady, and the Erie Canal Packet-boat companies in connextion.

Two Daily lines between Utica and Schenectady. The morning line leaves Utica at 8 A. M. on the arrival of the western boats; and Schenectady, at 2 P. M. The Evening line leaves Utica and Schenectady at 8 P. M., all running through in 22 hours.

One Daily line between Utica and Buffalo. Leaves Utica at 7 P. M. on the arrival of the eastern boats; and Buffalo at 8 A. M.

The Utica and Syracuse line plies between the two places. Leaves Utica at 8 A. M. and Syracuse at 6 A. M.; run through the same day.

The packets touch at all the principal villages to receive and land passengers. Stages are always ready to convey passengers between Schenectady and Albany or Troy, on arrival of the steam and packet boats at these cities respectively; and also, at such points on the canal as will accommodate the principal villages situated off the line of it.

NOTES, By the Writer.

The advertisement for the Stages shows that even the U. S. Post Office had more routes than the Postmaster had announced in his own little bulletin as will be noticed by comparing the Mails with the Mail-Coach departures.

That Messrs. Parker & Co. should have chosen for the name of their Route "THE TELEGRAPH LINE," so many years before Morse, sounds odd to us today.

It may be remarked here that there were two points of departure in the village for stages, viz.: The Mansion House and Parker & Co.'s own office. At these points the different routes converged and exchanged passengers, and it was convenient to the Canal to connect with the packet-boats.

Mr. James Platt was the Postmaster at this period; the office had one (1) Letter Carrier, Mr. Alfred Rounds, an appropriate name.

It is striking that there should be a New York mail sent via Mt. Pleasant, Pa., at this period. This Mt. Pleasant is in Wayne Co., Pa., and the route probably if it did not come to this point via Binghampton, N. Y., connected with the Binghampton Stages here, and followed a route via Port Jervis, along the same general route as the Erie Railway does today, or followed the Delaware River via the Water-Gap and the Lackawana Route of today via Morristown, N. J., to New York City.

That some of the early New York State Mails were transported on the packet-boats at this period (1828) and later the writer knows from other sources.

This class of books deserve a place in every philatelic library as they are full of information as to early postal history at times. They are of a peculiar interest to the collector of U. S. Locals and to all they tell the story of their times. Usually they can be picked up here and there at the second-hand book stalls. They are worthy a better fate than to fall to the dealers in old paper.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Receipt of clipping is acknowledged with thanks from Franklin S. Smith.

—The annual report of the City of London Philatelic Society is at hand. It is a pretentious pamphlet of twenty-four pages filled with information of value to any collector and with not a little of interest to the general reader. The membership list shows some seventy members and the program outlined for the current season introduces the leading English philatelists with papers and exhibits representing a wide range of countries. James L. Eastwood, 169 Ferme Pk. Rd., Crouch End, London, N., England, is the secretary and he will no doubt be pleased to send the pamphlet to any interested parties.

—We have received from Warren H. Colson his desk calender for December. It illustrates the Turks Island 2½d on 6d black, Scott's No. 19.

EDITORIAL.

Useful—A reader has submitted for examination what may be called a detector of paper differences that he finds valuable, particularly in hurried examinations of stamps. It is a simple little device and is home-made; it consists of a thick black card with rectangular spaces, slightly smaller than the average size of a stamp, cut out; in these holes the stamps are placed side by side, being held against the openings by pockets at one side and bottom. By holding the card up to very strong light, the vision is concentrated on the paper of the stamps viewed from the back, the eyes being shielded from the glare. The little instrument allows of a comparative test, also; by ranging a palpable soft paper beside the specimen to be identified the hard paper, for instance, is the more readily detected.

Tell Us—The WEEKLY is interested in knowing how many of the prisoners' camps in the northern states in which captured Confederate soldiers were detained, used on the outgoing letters, a postmark form. This circular impression is not to be confounded with various letterings, such as, "examined," "inspected," etc., found on the soldiers' letters from northern prisons. We start the list with two postmarks, and await descriptions of others: (1) Johnson's Island, Ohio; (2) Camp Douglas, Illinois.

Merry—The tide of trade flows strong and the profitable season that dealers anticipated is proving a fact. Philately has been through some very trying times and has emerged from them all, seemingly stronger than ever before. This year the interval of slackened trade just before the appearance of a new edition of the catalogue seems almost unnoticeable. The holiday trade should be good as a stamp album becomes each year more of a standard "useful present" at Christmastide. The stamp dealers have little cause for complaint from all information that is gathered readily, and as for collectors, they are showing a degree of interest in the pursuit of stamps as to make us feel that they indeed are the "ruling passion."

Advantage With the Present—A correspondent, a keen observer of philately past and present, in writing us recently on the subject of philatelic literature cites the year 1885 to 1898 as "the halcyon days of philatelic literature." From 1885 to about fifteen years later there was a most liberal production of philatelic journals. In such profusion were they issued that a list of them was formidably long in those days; and the one who participated in the philately of those years is sometimes puzzled to account for the reduction process that has so materially decreased the number of current stamp papers. If one were to base one's estimate of general interest in philately by the stamp journals, the comparison between the present and the past would be unequivocally to the disadvantage of cotemporaneous philately. Where there was a dozen philatelic sheets in America there is now one but even the most misanthropic would not attempt to argue that there has been a corresponding decline in philatelic interest as prevailing among the collectors making up the masses and the classes. We can assert that there has been an average of growth each year, which may vary but is always on the right side of the balance-sheet. Even though it is granted for the sake of argument that philately merely holds its own, there must be some reason for the marked decline in the number of periodical philatelic publications. In explanation, we say that in this country, the coming of the weeklies changed the conditions; the monthly in certain respects demanded by advanced business regulation could not compete with the weekly and so, support was insensibly alienated from the monthly by the weekly. It is not so difficult to attend to a monthly as a weekly; the first-named does not make the stern demands upon the time of the publisher; and this is aside, of course, of the very important consideration of expense. In other words, conducting a weekly requires almost undivided attention while a monthly may be handled as a side line or as a sort of measure for recreation, and in former days some of the papers were published merely for the satisfaction that they yielded those in charge, or for personal reasons. The circulation of the weeklies today is greater than that of all the monthlies of the past. There has been a compression in volume but the effect of the diminished number has been increased through the concentration. It is unfair to contend that philately is not what it was by comparing the number of papers today with that issued a decade or so ago; and we think that we have shown why.

Early Ones—Another friend in writing the WEEKLY on the oldest papers in America quotes the late John K. Tiffany as having written to him to say that the pioneers appeared in this sequence: Taylor's Record, new series, No. 1, December, 1864, Albany. Transferred to Boston, 1865. Haines' Curiosity Shop, Chicago. A paper largely devoted to stamps, from July to December, 1865. A. B. Mason's Coin and Stamp Journal, Chicago. From May, 1865, to April, 1866. Gould's Collectors' Guide, Newport and Cambridge, largely devoted to stamps, from May, 1866, to October, 1866. F. H. King's Stamp Collectors' Review, Boston, from July to October, 1866. A. Fountain's Stamp Journal, Middletown, Conn., August to October, 1867. Seltz Postage Stamp Monitor, No. 1, January, 1867. Kelsey's Postage Stamp Reporter, No. 1, August, 1867. Previous to all of these dates, catalogues and albums had been published in this country. D. Appleton & Co.'s pretentious stamp album was entered according to act of congress in the year 1863. A. C. Kline, Philadelphia, published the first edition of his manual in 1862, and this work probably is the earliest philatelic publication in America.

Abroad—In England, so early as September, 1862, the first number appeared of a paper that devoted the major portion of its contents to stamp subjects. The Monthly Advertiser, Liverpool, however, is regarded as the prototype of the prolific stamp papers of later days; the first number bore the publication date of December 15th, 1862. Mount Brown's famous catalogues first appeared in 1862 and the first edition of Dr. Gray's series was issued late in the same year. The earliest catalogues devoted exclusively to collecting no doubt are Berger-Levrault's work, first edition, September, 1861, and the catalogue of Potiquet, Paris, December, 1861. The celebrated Moens, of Brussells, began his admirable catalogues with the first of 1862, and to him, more than anyone else, perhaps, philately is indebted for continuous philatelic publishing service; the high character of his earliest productions even, gave them an individuality that made them noteworthy examples of philatelic printed matter.

Never Too Late—E. O. Gerberding, Hueneme, California, affords us a reflection of the past in a letter that reads: "In the last number of the WEEKLY, I note that Harry E. Dore is among the applicants for membership in our society. His name recalls to my mind the early days of stamp collecting in San Francisco, when we trimmed the corners of envelope stamps to make them prettier; when hinges were unknown almost, and when I once bought ten stamps from another boy, among which was a Nova Scotia shilling. Hawaiian numerals and the stamps of British Columbia were common. Mr. Dore and I traded them, that was in 1866-70; he is rather late in joining but I am glad that he has not lost his interest.

—Paul Mason of Columbus, Ohio, favors us with the Ohio State Journal of December 1 in which we note a Burroughs article used last spring in connection with Washington's birthday. Thus the good work being done by the Columbus philatelists is making itself felt in our convention city.

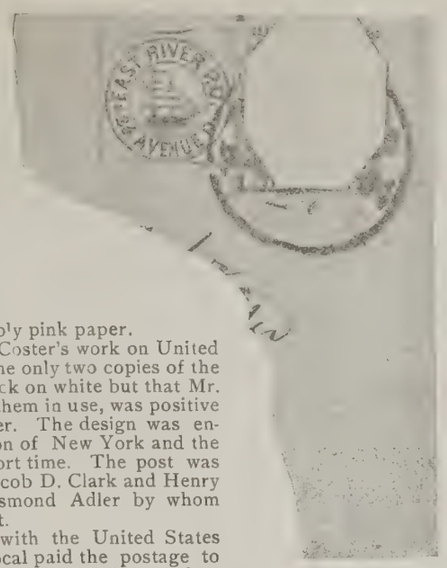
UNCATALOGUED VARIETY DISCOVERED.

By W. S. FULLER, 319 State St., Springfield, Mass.



A few weeks ago while on a vacation trip in western New England I was given an opportunity to look over a box of old letters and papers belonging to a firm out of business. At first it did not seem very productive of stamps that were worth removing from the covers but finally I ran across an envelope bearing a three cent red of the 1851 issue and in addition a fine specimen of the first type East River Post Office local Scott Number 2461 L123). In the catalogue, however, the stamp is listed as black on brown but this specimen is on unmistakably pink paper.

W. C. Stone informs me that Coster's work on United States local stamps says that the only two copies of the stamp known were proofs in black on white but that Mr. Adler, who remembered seeing them in use, was positive they were printed on brown paper. The design was engraved on wood by Tuder Horton of New York and the stamp was only in use a very short time. The post was established in 1850 or 1851 by Jacob D. Clark and Henry Wilson and in 1852 sold to Sigismond Adler by whom the later issues were brought out.

From its use in connection with the United States stamps it would seem that the local paid the postage to the New York City Post Office, there being no box collections as in our day. Whether any other copies of the stamp have been brought to light since Coster's book was issued in 1882 I can not say but from the color still given in the catalogue I should think not. I should be glad to correspond with any one interested in locals who can give any further information concerning the stamp.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Universal Standard Catalogue—From Whitfield King & Company, Ipswich, England, the eighth edition, 1908, of the Universal Standard Catalogue of the Postage Stamps of the World has been received somewhat earlier in the season than customarily; and an examination of this latest annual shows even more emphatically than ever before that it is a prominent factor among catalogues generally, while in its field of reasonable simplification of varieties, it is distinctly in advance of anything else in its class. The restrictive policy of the publishers of this catalogue eliminates perforation differences and minor varieties but the different watermarks are recognized. For instance, no discrimination is made between the United States 1870 type and the five varieties, National grilled and ungrilled, Continental, American, ordinary and re-engraved, are all placed under one date. It should be remarked in this connection that owing to the keen interest manifested in single CA's, King's Head, the publishers have acceded to the popular demand that single and multiple CA's, respectively, be listed and priced. As usual, we find in the preface of the work, the interesting statistics of stamp issues, as included in the catalogue: Total number, 21,590, "of which 6,661 are apportioned to the British Empire, and 14,929 to the rest of the world. Europe has issued 4,536; Asia, 4 091, Africa, 4,829, America, 4,838, the West Indies, 1,748, and Oceania, 1,548."

The words of commendation that we have had for this sensibly simplified catalogue may fairly be extended again this year; indeed, the present catalogue is singularly creditable in arrangement, pricing, seemingly, and typography, with especial reference to the reduced size cuts. Whitfield King & Company, Ipswich, England. Price 36c, post free.

Postage Stamps and Their Collection—From Warren H. Colson, Brighton, Mass., this most sumptuous work has been received; it is the first volume of a series in prospect "describing the Great Collections and Collectors of the World. Number One. The Bowers Collection." The book is a revelation of typographical beauty and is strikingly tasteful in all its appointments. Mr. Colson, after a choice dissertation on stamp collecting, describes the great collection, the property of Dr Bowers, who is termed a collector of the old school. He possesses one of the most valuable collections extant, and the many plates of rarities, both United States and foreign, reveal the admirable richness of this exceptional array of stamps. Plate after plate vie with each other in exciting the reader's wonderment and so faithfully are they presented that he may almost imagine that the very stamps are before him.

The book of ninety-eight pages is a triumph of the printers' art; its subject matter is of admitted interest, and its publisher may well be proud that such a work bears his imprimatur.

List of Br. and Br. Col. Stamps Issued Jan. '01–Sept. '07—This is a handy little book and a great deal of useful information is crammed into its 20 pages. All lovers of new issues will find it a very necessary adjunct to their treasures especially as it represents the net prices at which Gibbons sells Twentieth Century issues. Price 10c. Fourth Edition. Published by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., 198 Broadway, N. Y. City.

IN MEMORIAM.

Just as we go to press we learn of the deaths of two eminent personages, one the king of Sweden, King Oscar, and the other a true king in philately, Arthur Maury.

The death of King Oscar has been expected for some months. His health has been gradually failing and Crown Prince Gustaf, who has taken the oath as king, has had good opportunity to become acquainted with matters of state. The death of a reigning sovereign cannot but be of moment to philatelists especially where his picture is to be found upon the current issue of stamps. Honored and loved by his people, every inch a king yet approachable by any subject, King Oscar has written his name indelibly on the pages of history.

We cannot do justice in the few lines at our disposal to the splendid philatelic achievements of Arthur Maury. J. N. T. Levick favors us with a clipping from a N. Y. daily in which the sad news is displayed with the heading, "Death of a Famous Stamp King." It is only a few weeks ago that we received that great book, "The Stamps of France," when we paid tribute to the philatelic attainments of Mr Maury. No better monument to his memory could possibly be erected than this labor of love that he was permitted to complete before being called to his reward. As editor, as dealer, as collector Mr. Maury will indeed be missed, especially by the great body of French collectors who made a Mecca of his office on the Boulevard Montmartre.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Stanley R. Ashbrook has shown us a copy of the 6c of 1895, printed on the "U. S. I. R." watermarked paper. Scott lists the 8c on revenue paper, but not the 6c.

AUSTRIA.—Mr. Schachne reports more of the new cards at hand. In No. 883 he mentioned the 10h and double and now has the 5h and double with the left half of the face lined off for correspondence. The color is more of a yellow green than blue green, as the previous ones were, and the double is numbered I and II as we have seen on the Pneumatic Cards.

Post Cards.

5h green on buff.
5x5h green on buff; T.3.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA.—Whitfield King & Co. have sent us a list showing the exact number of British New Guinea stamps surcharged "Papua" in both types of surcharge, the figures having been supplied officially and therefore may be relied upon. A cablegram from the Colony says that the new issue is now on sale, which would indicate that the surcharged stamps are exhausted.

The denominations and number overprinted in each of the two printings are as follows:

Stamp.	Large Print.	Small Print.	Total.
½d	11,040	18,180	29,190
1d	12,960	35,100	48,060
2d	29,610	40,560	70,170
2½d	12,000	13,230	25,230
4d	2,970	5,135	8,105
6d	6,500	5,255	11,555
1sh	5,970	7,625	15,595
2sh 6d	2,730	10,696	13,426

CHILE.—In addition to the 10c envelope chronicled last week, we find a 5c value noted in the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung.

Further information regarding the official stamps noted in No. 883 are given in L'Echo. Various experiments have been made, but the postoffice officials have finally settled upon a definite plan. Three of the current stamps have been surcharged in bright red with a design showing a double lined anchor surmounted with the word "Oficial" in a curved line.

Le Collectionneur de Timbres-Poste adds other values to the three noted above, the 3c being Scott's No. 50, the others being surcharged on the current issue of postage stamps. Le Collectionneur gives the color of the surcharge as black, while L'Echo says the 1c, 5c and 10c are surcharged in bright red.

Official Adhesives.

1c green.
3c on 1p deep brown.
5c blue.
10c gray and black.
15c purple and black.
20c orange brown and black.
50c blue and black.
1p brown and gray black.

COSTA RICA.—Thanks to L'Echo we are now able to give the colors and portraits on all the stamps of the new series, of which we have already chronicled the 5c, 10c and 25c. We give the whole set for convenience of reference. L'Echo gives the colors of the 25c as green and violet, but we have seen it as printed below.

Adhesives.

1c blue and slate, statue of Juan Santa-Maria.
2c green and black, portrait of Juan Mora F.
4c carmine and blue, Jose M. Canas.
5c brown orange and blue, Mauro Fernandez.
10c blue and black, Braulio Carrillo.
20c slate and olive, Julian Volio.
25c pale lilac and black, Eusebio Figueroa.
50c blue and lilac, Jose M. Castro.
1 col black and brown, Jesus Jimenez.
2 col green and claret, Juan Rafael Mora.

CUBA.—A. A. Hussman has shown us a novelty, which if genuine is a decided novelty, in the shape of an uncatalogued variety of surcharge from Cuba. The United States 2c carmine of 1895 has been surcharged "Cuba—2 Cents" in two lines of large capitals printed diagonallly on the stamp from lower left to upper right, but all inverted. The overprint is in black, and very large and clearly printed. The specimen shown us is not on a cover and there is nothing to guide one in forming an opinion as to its genuineness. Can any of our subscribers give us any information regarding the stamp?

DENMARK.—Mr. Schachne is, as usual, up to date with his early notice of new card issues. The last of the King Christian X set has now been received.

Post Card.

10x10 ore red on buff; T.3.

MIDDLE CONGO.—The stamps recently issued, and noted in No. 883, apparently ought to be catalogued under French Congo, as they are to take the place of the regular French Congo stamps. The name "Moyen Congo" is due to the fact that the territory of French Congo has been divided into four parts, as we learn from L'Echo—Gabon, Middle Congo, Tchad and Oubangui. Gabon was provided with stamps over 20 years ago and French Congo in 1891, the latter being now superseded by the "Moyen Congo" stamps. We are not able to state whether the old French Congo stamps are still current in Tchad and Oubangui but L'Echo says that these two administrative departments will soon be provided with stamps.

L'Echo, in speaking of the new issue, says that the old French Congo series has been greatly improved upon, as the stamps "are larger, better engraved and printed with a perfection not usual in French postal productions." In particular, the engraving and printing of the Palm Walk and Libreville is called a little chef-d'œuvre.

NETHERLANDS.—M. Z. Booleman informs us that there is considerable speculation in the new postage due stamps surcharged on the De Ruyter stamps. In a day after issue the stamps were sold out and sets are now held at $10.

L'Echo says that 30,000 of the ½c value have been surcharged 7½c, 10c, 12½c, 25c, 50c and 1g; 40,000 of the 1c were surcharged ½c, 1c, 1½c, 2c and 2½c; and 20,000 of the 2½c were surcharged 5c, 6½c and 15c. There is no 20c in the surcharged due set.

The numbers originally printed of the De Ruyter stamps is given by the Nederland Philatelist as being 462,000 of the ½c, 575,000 of the 1c and 356,000 of the 2½c.

ROUMANIA.—A new card is at hand from Mr. Schachne having almost the same design as the last 5b but has the new stamp described in No. 883. A letter card was also received with same new stamp and a changed heading, with Arms at left, stamp at right and three lines of heading between as follows: "Romania —Carta Postala—Duchisa". The first is all capitals, the second and third only have the C, P, I in capitals.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The marriage of A. F. Boehm and Miss Ida Novark, both of Chicago, was celebrated recently. Mr. Boehm is prominent in Chicago Philatelic Society circles and is publisher of the Collectors' Monthly of that city, and though his wife is not a stamp collector, she is a near philatelist—she collects souvenir postal cards, at least.

—H. S. Adair of Columbus, Ohio, sends us a clipping from a local paper giving the particulars of the last meeting of the Columbus Collectors Club. The entertainment of the evening consisted of a talk on coins and encased postage stamps by Farran Zerbe, while Pres. C. B. Duffy exhibited his collection of Roman States accompanied by instructive suggestions. The clipping innocently states that in the new 5c Swiss "Tell holds a large apple in his hand, but the son from whose head he shot it is not visible, probably because the stamp is too small." Even the best of us err at times.

—From Lyman H. Low we have received a catalogue of his auction sale to be held Wednesday, December 18, at 2 P. M. at 14 E. 23 St., N. Y. City, N. Y. The catalogue lists the collection of the Hon. Rodney A. Mercur, consisting of gold, silver and copper coins, peace medals, fractional currency, paper money and numismatic books. The nearly seven hundred lots present a very attractive variety.

—The Third Assistant Postmaster-General has ruled that stamp albums shall not be sent through the mails as printed matter, but as merchandise.

—"The Kansas City Stamp Club has secured the Auditorium of the Dillenbeck School of Oratory in which to hold its meetings in the future. With a capacity of several hundred persons, well lighted and centrally located, the new meeting place is confidently expected to do much toward building up the society's membership and increasing the attendance. The first meeting in the new quarters was held Wednesday, Nov. 27, and future meetings will occur on the second and fourth Wednesday evenings. A contest, 'Name the stamp issuing countries of Africa' with prizes for the longest lists, was the entertainment feature of the last meeting."—ARTHUR L. NELSON.

—A note in the issue of November 30th, in speaking of the "twentieth century collection of C. T. Rogers" said that it took first prize at the recent competition held by the C. P. S. To have been correct, the item should have read that it was the collection of Mr. Rogers that was awarded the prize, the twentieth century stamps having represented but a part of Mr. Rogers' collection.

THE REVENUE STAMPS OF COLOMBIA.

By FREDERICK E. HEYDON.

The stamps issued by the general government of this country are of considerable interest, and resemble in a general way the postage stamps, but with the advantage all in their favor. Everyone familiar with the postal issues must have noticed that they are overloaded with details, which the inexperience of the designers has led them to introduce with too little regard to the general effect. Now the revenue stamps are considerably larger and with about the same amount of detail, and the result is a greatly improved appearance.

The first stamp of the value of 20 centavos was issued for the fiscal year 1858–1859 and is inscribed Confederacion Granadina, and like its successor for 1859–60 is roughly engraved. In 1861 the name of the country became Estados Unidos de Nueva Granada, and in 1864 Esdados Unidos de Colombia, while in 1887 it assumes its final form of Republica de Colombia. These successive changes, to anyone even slightly familiar with the history of the country, are an interesting record of the repeated revolutions which have been gradually welding the very loosely coherent states of the original "Confederacion" into something like an organized and centralized republic. Whether the process will ever be completed seems to me very doubtful, as the country is divided by the Andes into two portions whose interests are all but incompatible, while the physical coercion of Cauca, the most enlightened and prosperous of all the departments, by the weak central authority at Bogota, is a hard problem for geographical reasons. The entire interests of this department are connected with Panama, whose example the people of Cauca may follow at any time when the organized bandits at the capital become too rapacious or imprudent.

Returning to the stamps themselves, I would select the issues from 1886 to 1899 as the most pleasing in general effect, and since that time the work has considerably degenerated. Perhaps the 1887–1888 issue surpasses anything else in the way of stamps ever issued in that country. It may not be generally known that some of these stamps were ordered through the late Mr. Seebeck, whose exploits in Central American issues are so conspicuous. The previous issue to the one just mentioned, which was for 1887 only, fell into the hands of an American engraver whose knowledge of ornithology was somewhat vague, and who made the grotesque blunder of using as a crest for the coat of arms what is a very respectable eagle, according to the notions of eagles prevalent among our engravers, and thus displaced the condor which should have appeared on it. I have often wondered since whether it was this blunder which led to the next issue being printed in Colombia, but so far as I can now recall the facts, the importation of stamps from New York ceased about this time. The total number of varieties of revenue stamps is very much less than the postal issues, and some of them are fairly common.

The stamps of Antioquia are few in number, but 1900 issue is I think rather pleasing. Those of Bolivar are also not numerous and are rather crude in their general appearance, and the same remarks apply to Cauca. Those of Boyaca, on the contrary, have a rather pretty general effect and this also applies to the stamps of Cundinamarca which seem to me the neatest of all. Magdalena, which has no postal issues, has had quite a number of revenue stamps, all of the one value, 20 centavos. They are crude in execution, but the colors are delicate, and I have always had a rather kindly feeling for them. Those of Santander are decidedly interesting, and perhaps I might say as much for Tolima.

There remains Panama, as to which I have vainly attempted to obtain information. Forbin L'Hoste lists several surcharges on Colombian issues for 1888 to 1891, but whether it is certainly anything more than a cancellation seems to me doubtful. In reply to inquiries of this nature Mr Colman kindly sent me a copy of a stamp received from one of his correspondents at Panama, but it is merely a Colombian surcharge, which while new to me, has nothing on its face to indicate its use being restricted to any department. I am quite sure they must be using revenue stamps of some kind on the isthmus, and possibly some reader of MEKEEL'S on the ground will have the kindness to give us some information on that point.

I have considerable doubt as to our having information as to anything like all the stamps, which have been issued by this country for fiscal purposes, and tried some time ago without success to obtain some specimens from local sources; but the arrangements fell through in some way, I rather think through some of the links in the chain having so many propositions in tow that a little confusion resulted.

Before leaving the stamps of Colombia a few words about the stamped paper may be permitted. It is an exception to the rule, which I believe exists everywhere else, in that it is decidedly more interesting than the adhesives, and some of the stamps are really beautiful specimens on engraving, having been ordered through Mr. Seebeck from one of our own Bank Note Companies. The stamped paper of Tolima gives a beautiful view of the volcano of Tolima.

If any philatelist desires to make considerable additions to our stock of knowledge, and is willing to devote a little time and patience to the work, I would suggest Colombia as a most promising field. Money is only necessary to a limited extent, but anyone having a correspondent at Bogota, Medellin, or some other important city would have very great advantages in his favor. I trust that some reader of MEKEEL'S who has the requisite facilities will interest himself in this subject, which I can assure him is almost unbroken ground for research.

President Lehmann called the meeting to order Dec. 2nd at 8.30 P. M., with 14 members and 4 visitors present. Pau Wegener, 36 W. 127 St., was elected to membership. On account of unforeseen business, Theo. Steinway tendered his resignation as sales superintendent, which was accepted with sincere regrets. After several other communications had been read, the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, Julius Levy; Vice President, D. E. A. Hunt; Sec., Henry J. Dicke; Treasurer, Baldwin Schlesinger; Librarian, Vahan Mozian; Trustees, Dr. H. B. F. Heath, Prof. M. Loewy, Herman Lutz, G. Schroeder and Theo. Steinway.

Edgar Nelton treated the assemblage to an exceedingly interesting lecture on "Stamps on Original Covers" illustrated by his superb collection, which we hope may induce some of the members to pay more attention to this neglected branch of philately. As the next meeting, Wednesday, Dec. 18, will be exhibition night, all members are requested to attend and bring some friends along if possible. Installation of officers, Jan. 6, 1908.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

J. M.:—In the fifth edition, 1888, of Sterling's U. S. Revenue Stamp Catalogue, the stamped paper of the pre-revolutionary period, 1755-65, and of the post-revolutionary period, 1797 issue, 1800, 1813, national and state issues, etc., is listed, and in many cases, priced. While this catalogue is out of print, a friend to the WEEKLY who has a few extra copies will supply them to those whom we recommend at one dollar a volume. (2) In Morley's catalogue we find under the head of "Fiscals. Adhesives," the following examples of early adhesive revenue stamps: "Hair Powder (Duty on) 1786-1800," "Medicine Proprietary labels, 1782," and "Card Tax, 1800."

A. E. D.:—Individual civil war patent medicine stamps are worth from one cent each to $300, according to the standard catalogue, a new edition of which is about to be placed on the market. This catalogue prices all private match, medicine, etc., stamps, of the civil war period, including those named by you, on the several kinds of paper, such as, silk, watermarked, old and pink.

L. C.:—The fiscal stamps described by you fall under the following issues: Hawaiian revenue, 1877 issue, 50c, orange, catalogued 15 cents; same issue, $1 black, six cents; same issue, $5 orange and blue, "not priced, but evidently not over 50c to $1;" 1895, head issue, $1, catalogued ten cents.

R. E.:—Collecting methods have been ranged under six heads, as follows: 1. Extreme simplicity. 2. Simplicity. 3. Modern general collecting. 4. Advanced general collecting. 5. Limited specialism. 6. Specialization. These terms are self explanatory, and may readily be understood when "modern general collecting" is said to be on the plan of the Scott catalogue, for instance. Whitfield, King & Co.'s catalogue reflects "simplicity" and the treatment that is accorded some of the countries in the French official catalogue falls under the head of "advanced general collecting."

L. W. K.:—In the WEEKLY of October 7th, 1905, was the following item, which we submit to prove that the officially sealed stamp of the Philippines was issued over two years ago: "Mr. H. F. Colman submits for inspection a copy of the new officially sealed stamp of the Philippine Islands postoffice department. It is identical with those in use in this country, even to the peculiar shade of red brown ink in which it is printed, except that 'Bureau of Posts' appears at the top and Philippine Islands at the bottom." (2) Unless your catalogue is one that was issued several years ago, you will find under the first issue of revenues, civil war period, No. 2805a, "2 cent bank check, orange on green." The paper is a real variety, otherwise, it would not be catalogued for the first time, a few years ago.

Sexton:—It is almost hopeless to attempt a successful description of paper differences in this column, so restricted are its confines; we prefer to suggest that adequate information of the kind may be found in Luff's "What Philately Teaches," given by the WEEKLY as a premium under the easiest of conditions. The explanation in "Stamps and Stamp Collecting," by Major E. B. Evans, Stanley Gibbons, Inc., publishers, also is recommended, while there is a full description of "Paper" in the "Hints for Collectors," the preface to the Standard Catalogue, published by the Scott Stamp and Coin Company. (2) Your specimen, Great Britain, one penny, 1881 type with postmark, Constantinople British Post Office, is of some added value by reason of its postmark. Stamps of Great Britain for British offices in the Turkish Empire did not appear until 1885; consequently, before that time the ordinary British stamps were used. The stamps of Great Britain with foreign cancellations attract some attention from English collectors and for that reason have an extra value, which, however, in the case of the stamp just named cannot be large.

W. S.:—We have no record of the value of a one-cent stamp of the present issue with the overprint, Attica, Indiana, inverted. As a rule, these inverts are quite as common as the specimens with the regular printing.

T. E. W.:—The "Stamp-Fiends' Raid," is a book that was published in 1903 by W. E. Imeson, bearing the imprint, Horace Cox, London. It is called a "philatelic phantasy" and is a most diverting and entertaining tale in rhyme; it is capital reading and redounded greatly to the credit of the clever author, who, also furnished "pictorial absurdities" to accompany the text. We could not do justice to its theme without considering it at some length. (2) We understand that the paper you name is published no longer.

SECRETARY'S 1ST QUARTERLY REPORT, 1907-8.

No doubt many members will be interested to know how our National Association is progressing, especially in point of membership. That there has been a substantial increase, those who have noticed the Weekly Reports are well aware. Since the Annual Report of the Secretary, we have, including applications pending, added 184 new names. None have been refused and but one objection made. Of these, 14 are from Foreign Countries. We have had five applications for reinstatement, and only 19 resignations to date, which is five less than for the same period of last year.

NOTES ON UNITED STATES STAMPS.

A SERIES OF PAPERS, DISTINGUISHING THE DIFFERENT ISSUES, READ BEFORE THE DENVER STAMP CLUB.

No. 5, THE 4c AND 5c VALUES.

By H. A. DAVIS.

The 4c value did not come into use until 1883. As there was but one design before 1890, (the period at which we have drawn the line,) very little need be said of this value. It may be interesting to note the necessity of this value however, as the people seems to have had no use for a 4c stamp up to the year 1883. Nevertheless I have noted old covers before this date franked with a 3c and a 1c stamp, two 2c and several with four 1c stamps, in fact all these combinations are more common than the 4c value on cover since 1883.

A. D. Hazen, the 3d assistant Postmaster General, in a circular issued to Post Masters July 18th, 1883, says: "On and after the first day of October, 1883, the rate of postage on domestic mail matter of the first class, will be reduced from three cents per half ounce or fraction thereof, to two cents as provided by act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1883. * * * * a four cent denomination of postage stamps and stamped envelopes to cover double postage under the new rate will also be issued. * * * *"

The first 4c stamp was printed in green. Bust of Andrew Jackson in profile to left, after Powers, in an oval disc. "United States Postage" in a curved line above, "four cents" in a straight line below, and between two five pointed stars, while just above the latter on each side is a large numeral "4." This stamp was issued Sept. 15th, 1883. It is to be distinguished from a special printing of the same year, and also the issue of 1888.

The special printing may be recognized by its color, which is a deep blue green, while the issue of 1888 is in carmine. The 1890 issue, stamps are smaller and bears a portrait of Lincoln.

The 5c value was one of the first stamps issued by the United States Government and printed in red-brown in various shades running to orange. It is on bluish paper and imperforate. Has a portrait of Benjamin Franklin after painting by John B. Longacre, the same as is on our current 1c stamp, except portrait looks three-quarters to left instead of to the right, and is somewhat larger. "U" and "S" in upper left and right corners, and "Post Office" in a curved line above the portrait. Large Arabic numeral "5" in each lower corner divided by "five cents" in a curved line of Roman capitals.

It is impossible to mistake this stamp for any other issue, as it is the only 5c stamp with the words "Post Office" except an imitation. We have to distinguish the original from the reprint (?) made in 1875 from new plates and even from a new die, as the original plates were destroyed Dec. 15th, 1851. The so-called reprints are therefore nothing but imitations and were never authorized to frank mail matter in the Postal Service. I quote a paragraph from an Official Circular issued by 3d assistant Postmaster General, E. W. Barber, March 27th, 1875, at the time these imitations were made. "* * * * The 1847 and 1851 stamps are obsolete, and no longer receivable for postage. * * * *"

It will be remembered also that even the originals were not good for postage at this time as they, with the 1851-57 issues were demonetised June 30, 1851, and in September, 1861, respectively.

The originals may be distinguished by several features. The small initials "R. W. H. & E." resting on the inner side of the outer frame line at the bottom, are much plainer than those on the imitations. These initials stand for Rawdon, Wright, Hatch & Edson, the engravers and printers of this issue. The imitations of course were made by the Continental Bank Note Co. On the original, the white shirt front of Franklin touches the oval at about the centre of the top horizontal bar of F of "Five," while on the imitations it touches between the F of "Five" and the top of the figure "5." The eyes are clear and more distinct in the original, in the imitation, the right eye especially is very weak and has a blurred appearance.

The back-ground within the oval of the original is composed of horizontal and vertical lines, in the imitation there are horizontal lines only. There are numerous other differences, but the features mentioned will enable anyone to distinguish the original. Tiffany mentions a peculiarity of the original that does not appear in the imitation, that of "* * * the right eye (left of stamp) has too much white * * *" This may be easily verified on unused copies. Of the originals there were 4,400,000 printed and of this number, 3,712,000 were distributed. It will bear repeating, that this issue was demonetised June 30th, 1851, and the original plates destroyed Dec. 15th, 1851.

The next issue was that of 1851-56 also imperforate, which must be distinguished from the issue of 1857-60, including three types of the latter perforated 15. All of same general design except some minor details, and are to be compared with the issue of 1861-68.

The 5c 1851-56 was issued Jan. 5th, 1856, bears a portrait of Jefferson after Stewart, faced three-quarters to the right. Printed in shades of brown and red-brown, imperforate. "U. S. Postage" above and "Five Cents" below the portrait, no numerals appear on this stamp. Of this design, there are four stamps, excluding shades, to be recognized. One of 1851-56 and three of 1857-60 issue.

The 1861-68 series was issued first in August, 1861. This issue bears the same portrait of Jefferson after powers, but is faced three-quarters to the left instead of the right, and is perforated 12 instead of 15. It is printed in brown, buff and shades of yellow running to olive. We shall see that these colors and shades will help us to distinguish the August and September issues of 1861 and the 1862 and '68. Numeral "5" in each upper corner. "U" and "S" in lower left and right corners. "U. S. Postage" in wavy line above, and "five cents" in a curved line below the portrait.

The 1851-56 may be easily recognized by being imperforate. The 1857-60 is perforated 15 of which there are three types. Type I there are small block projections from the outer frame of the stamp at top and bottom and from each side. Those from the side project ½ mm. and measure in length 9 mm.; those at the top ½x6½ mm. In type II the projections at top and bottom have been partially cut away so that they measure about ¼ mm. in width. In type III the projections have been entirely removed so that the frame at top and bottom is nearly a straight line. I have seen specimens where the frame line has been cut into, in removing the projections so that a slight hollow or depression was formed, these however are very rare and I class them as type III. There are numerous shades from brick-red to orange-brown. They were reprinted in 1875 but perforated 12 instead of 15. They were not available for postage.

Of the 1861-68 issue we have two types and two colors and several shades. We find the first or August issue printed in brown. The September issue is printed in buff and shades of yellow which is the distinguishing feature of this issue. In 1862 however, the color was changed to brown. We find it in various shades from red-brown to very dark brown, sometimes called black-brown. It is said by some authorities that this stamp also exists in the rare brick-red of the 1857 issue. I have never seen a genuine brick red copy of this issue. I have been much disappointed several times when I have thought I had track of one, to find on its being submitted to me, that it was a very nice copy of the red-brown, which is also comparatively uncommon.

Here we must distinguish the 1862 issue in brown from the August issue of 1861. In the former a small leaflet has been added to each corner foliated ornament. In 1867 we find this stamp with a grill, the most common one measuring 9x13 mm. It is also catalogued with grill covering entire stamp. I have never been so fortunate as to run across a copy.

This issue—1861-68—was also reprinted in 1875 by the Continental Bank Note Company in a very faded brown color on pure white paper. It was available for postage.

Owing to a change in postal rates, the 5c value was discontinued in 1869. Under date of June 21st, 1875, 3d Assistant Postmaster General E. M. Barber issued a circular to the effect that a new 5c stamp would be issued, "to meet the new letter rate of postage under the treaty of Berne." This new 5c value was issued Oct. 5th, 1875. It has a full face portrait of Zackary Taylor, printed in blue, and has often been called the second ugliest stamp issued by the United States. It is on white hard paper. There is also believed to have been a special printing in 1875 on hard white paper in a bright blue color.

The next issue is that of 1879 printed by the American Bank Note Company on soft porous paper, which distinguishes this issue.

The next issue is that of 1882, bears a portrait of Jas. A. Garfield, printed in brown and in shades from yellow brown to gray brown. Scott also catalogues a special printing of this stamp in gray-brown. In 1888 the color was changed to indigo. This brings us to the issue of 1890 so familiar to all.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

Rev. Louis Voss writes: "I enclose some Chinese stamps on which, as you will notice, the letters H. B. are stamped. These letters appear on all denominations and I have them up to the 10c. The surcharge, if such it be, reads up or down or horizontally. Can you tell me if these letters have any postal significance and if so, what? Are they similar to the Philippine stamps surcharged O. B.?" No record can be found by us of official surcharge, H. B., on the stamps of the current type of China and in the absence of definite information, it may only be said by us that in all probability the stamps are so marked by some large user with the permission of the authorities in order to remove temptation from the paths of those who otherwise would convert them to private use.

Another correspondent touches upon China: "Can you enlighten a reader of your paper on the following? In looking over a lot of used stamps (U. S.,) I found four ten-cent stamps of the 1898-99 issue, brown. All four stamps are canceled with either a rubber or cork hand-stamp reading downward in large Roman letters CHINA. Can it be that these stamps were canceled on board a war-ship of the U. S., in Chinese waters? Or is there a town or some village in the United States by the name of China? The stamps are not in a block but single." First of all, it should be said that there is no "China" in America; China Grove, N. C., is the nearest approach to the name. The present correspondent is not the first who has called attention to the stamps of the 1898-99 issue, United States, with cancellation of the kind described, and in the present instance the inquirer is answered much in the manner that one was some time ago. When the American troops were on their Chinese expedition in 1900, military stations were established for the convenience of the soldiers; hence, the "Mil. Sta. No. 1," etc., postmarks on ordinary letters bearing United States stamps posted on the route of our army in China; and "China" postmarks on stamps not obliterated by the circular postmark.

R. N. G.:—Silk paper may be distinguished from old paper in the United States revenues, 1862-71 issue through the fact that silk paper shows silk fibre embedded in the paper. In some instances, the threads are so minute that they are barely discernible, and in most cases they are not seen in the number and with the distinctness that the collector expects.

J. E. S.:—By official decree dated October 30th, 1906, the boundaries of the Straits Settlements were extended so as to include the colony of Labuan. Thus Labuan lost its identity and in 1907, the crown type, Labuan, 1902, was surcharged Straits Settlements.

B. C.:—The one shilling, British Central Africa, watermark multiple and chalky paper has been chronicled. (2) Several weeks ago, in this column, reference was made to perforation differences in some of the stamps of the Pictorial set of Tasmania. (3) By the time that this item appears in print, it is expected that the eighth edition of Whitfield, King & Co.'s catalogue will have been published; price, one shilling and six pence, post free.

C.:—The "Fertilizer" stamp of Florida is used by the commissioner of agriculture somewhat in the manner that meat inspection stamps are employed; "it is the certificate of the inspection and guaranteed analysis of the state authorities." This tax paid stamp appeared several years ago, if "tax paid" it may be called. (2) We did not receive an answer to the inquiry of a correspondent that we referred to readers whether it was illegal to collect tax paid stamps. We think that the innocence of collecting intention on the part of those who gather the stamps in question makes them immune from molestation by the government. Perhaps, the least said in public print about the collecting of tax paids, the better it is for all concerned.

R. E.:—Canadian postage due stamps have been offered in unused condition by dealers. (2) We have no reason to suspect that the auction price on the stamp named was not a "genuine" one but it is almost certain that the condition of the specimen was not satisfactory.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Otto Weismann of Rotterdam informs us that the Ruyter provisional unpaids were sold out directly upon being issued so that he is unable to supply them any longer at price mentioned in a previous number of the WEEKLY.

—H. S. Adair submits several clippings giving the sad particulars in connection with the death of Arthur G. Murphy, a member or the Columbus Collectors' Club and as well of the A. P. A. Mr. Murphy was stricken with apoplexy as a result of overwork in too close application to his studies. A bright and promising young man of twenty-seven with a career of usefulness opening up before him, his many friends in the various circles in which he moved will mourn his untimely demise.

—"My Pet Hobby" is the name of a leaflet issued by the New England Stamp Co. and advertised extensively throughout the country. It contains two essays on collecting stamps awarded prizes by the Boston Herald, also advice as to how to form a stamp collection. A couple of unused stamps lends attractiveness to the leaflet.

—We have received from L. S. Charlick his 20pp. price list for December in which stamps are offered at wholesale in lots of 10, 100 and 1000 and also in sets. A wide range of countries is represented and every dealer should have this list.

—The Red Cross Society of Wilmington, Del., has issued a "Merry Christmas" sticker, price 1c each, thousands of which are being used in the mails. Thanks are tendered Jos. A. Steinmetz for column article exploiting the affair.

—Clippings received are acknowledged from M. A. Lesser, J. T. Hermansader, Hugo Kuenstler (4) and Dr. H. A. Davis (2).

—Another fine cover has been added to the collection of John F. Seybold of Syracuse, N. Y. It bears a pair and single copy of the 5c blue Hawaiian, Scott's A8. The pair will be of special interest to lovers of Hawaiians and it goes without saying that Mr. Seybold is very proud of his latest acquisition.

—Monday evening, Dec. 30, the Boston Stamp Exchange will hold its 31st sale in the Kast Bldg., Room 506. The catalog at hand shows among other things a fine lot of Nicaraguas.

—The Toronto (Can.) Globe in a recent number illustrated a cover artistically designed and issued in the interests of ocean penny postage between Great Britain and its colonies. Posted from Aberdeen, Scotland, it bears the date 1852. 55 years for the reform to become a reality. Thanks to R. Ewing for clipping.

—E. Bagg sends us a clipping from the Utica (N. Y.) Sunday Tribune which describes and pictures the wonderful experiences of a missive sent out from Utica, O., to the other Uticas in the Union in a vain attempt to find a gentleman by name Bernhardt Kreis. Fourteen Uticas were visited and all the postmarks show distinctly on the cover.

—The Dec. 7 issue of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican contained a well written and complimentary review of the book recently issued by W. H. Colson.

EDITORIAL.

Work Well Done—The London Philatelist in noticing the sale of the French collection of Dr. Legrand remarks: "The veteran and respected doyen of the French school of philately has apparently severed practically his last link with stamp collecting by the sale of his collection of the stamps of France and colonies." Furthermore, in the course of an appreciative editorial, "The Old Brigade," the same paper voices the sentiment: "The worthy doctor's name has been prominently associated in almost every way with philately from its earliest infancy. It was Dr. Legrand who first drew attention to the existence and importance of watermarks, and founded the first real school of scientific collecting. For the best part of fifty years Dr. Legrand has been one of the most prominent philatelists of the world, and his passing away from the sphere of philatelic activity, as denoted by the sale of his last and best-loved country, will universally be noted with regret, coupled with the greatest respect for his lifelong devotion and services to the cause of philately." We feel that the reverence due to the pioneers of philately by the present generation of philatelists should be deep and sincere; the venerable collectors who blazed the early paths of philately are to be cherished in thought and all honor should be rendered them. It seems almost providential that among those who attracted to philately in its earliest days were men of unusual intellectual parts and prominent position; through their initiative and unswerving loyalty to philatelic convictions they exerted a most favorable moral influence on philately, aside from their actual accomplishment in philately's name. These old collectors were amateurs of the purest type; they labored for love at a period when the financial aspects of the pursuit were not so prominent as they are latterly, and the collector of today may well pause and ponder affectionately upon them and their works.

In Retrospect—In order that the remarks in the foregoing item may be made the more meaningful, it should be said that so early as 1865, Dr. Legrand prepared an essay on the watermarks and papers employed in the manufacture of postage stamps that was published in a French philatelic paper of that date. A second edition of the study appeared in 1867, revised, corrected and amplified, and it will be interesting to read the good doctor's foreword to the second edition, as translated into English from the French: "Another nicety! Is it not sufficient to distinguish perforated from unperforated stamps? those divided by the roulette from those perforated by the machine? the small from the large dentelations, etc.? Why not gummed from ungummed stamps? Such, or thereabouts, are the complaints and objections that the title of this article will not fail to bring forth. Yes, timbrophilist; but, if you take the pains of reading us, you will not fail to acknowledge the utility of our researches. You will find out that the studying and collecting of these varieties are at least as interesting as that of essays, which often have no other merit than that of being, or fetching golden prices. It is not doing you a service to point to you a little-explored mine, which promises large productions? You shall judge of it." In the essay, watermarks and paper varieties were given close attention and their important bearing on stamps was clearly proved; and though M. Regnard was the first student to write on the subject of stamp watermarks, in March, 1865, yet the French author under notice, Dr. Legrand, was the originator of the systematized study of the paper markings as found on stamps. Further, he showed the propriety of recognizing paper and perforation differences; he founded the school in which so many earnest philatelists subsequently studied with so much satisfaction. The men who pointed the way in philately wear the halo in the estimation of the thinking collector who follows in their footsteps.

Concentration—A tendency towards specialization in stamp exhibits is an indication that the immensity of the general plan is regarded as too extensive for an exhibition, even of pretentious kind. For instance, the coming London exhibition, London 1908, under the auspices of the Junior Philatelic Society will include the stamps of the British Empire only, while an exhibition at Milan, Italy, this month, under the charge of the Philatelic Society of Lombardy, will be limited to the stamps of the following countries: Dominican Republic, Egypt, Montenegro, Portugal, Russia (imperial issues) and Mexico. This development is one that is not unexpected; and the promoters of really serious and important exhibitions realize that it is almost too much to attempt to cover the issues of all the countries with thoroughness, and so, they concentrate their efforts on a selected number of countries whose issues are exploited most exhaustively.

Special Societies—Another reflection of specialism is found in the increasing number of societies devoted to particular subjects such as envelopes, revenues, proofs and essays, etc. These organizations are mile-stones marking the advance of philatelic study. They rest primarily on the broad foundation of philately and are supported by those who have an inclination to study preferential lines more attentively than philately in its undivided sense. By a union of forces special work becomes easier and it is done under more congenial influences. Such societies are a natural development of latter-day philately and are most likely to add, through the researches of their members, to the stores of philatelic knowledge.

A Variety—Through the courtesy of a reader, we are enabled to report on the authority of Whitfield King & Company, the Gwalior, service or official stamp, king's head, half anna green, with surcharges transposed, the smaller surcharge being at the top instead of at the bottom; the variation was due to the printing of a sheet, the two lines of surcharge in native characters on which, were shifted. It is said that only one sheet of the kind was printed and that all the stamps were used; consequently, there are no unused specimens.

Permanent Peace—The conference of the representatives of the five Central American republics at Washington has established a permanent high court of arbitration whose decisions are to be honored by all the countries in the compact. "The plan is to be embodied in a treaty to be signed by the several contracting parties each of which pledges itself to the enforcement of the mandates of the court thus created. The permanent court is to be in Costa Rica. The most southerly of the five republics, it is the one least feared in the rivalries of the others. Its selection is a wise one. In Guatemala, which the smaller republics are much afraid of, there might be reason to look for undue influence to be exerted on the court. In Costa Rica the chances are all against such a thing. So far as location is concerned, the plan is a hopeful one." Theoretically, the agreement is a distinct step of progress in promoting international amity and if the tribunal does not really establish amicable relations between the politically mercurial republics, its influence should prevent actual hostilities on trivial pretext and discourage the machinations of revolutionists. If collectors could feel that stable conditions will prevail henceforth in the countries concerned, they would be inclined to give more favor to the prolific and loosely ordered issues of several of these republics.

Departed—Stamp collectors have read of the death of Sweden's worthy ruler, the venerable King Oscar, whom they had come to know so well from his portrait on the later issues of that estimable country. They mourn the loss of the kindly and cultured man most sincerely even though they may soon give thought to the prospective changes in the issues by reason of King Oscar's death.

December first we doubled our office space and increased our help. We need two more good clerks. Our business has grown so rapidly we have been unable to give it proper attention. From now on we expect to fill orders day of receipt.

Recent purchases are the immense United States collection of H. B. Seagrave, the 20th Century collection of C. T. Rogers, prize winning collection of C. Johanzon and special collection of G. G. THE STAMP MARKET OF TODAY.

The philatelic world is on the qui vive for the apearance of the new Gibbons catalogue; no doubt the quotations therein will be eagerly assimilated by thousands. A large section of collectors have stood aloof from the boom in single watermarks, waiting for prices to come down and prophesying that some day King's Heads would be as cheap as Queen's. These collectors are on the look-out for the 1907 catalogue, and may be expected to purchase heavily this winter in the light of its guiding figures. It was the enthusiast, chiefly, who rushed into the thick of the 1905 boom, and in some cases gave double face value for a used copy which today is only 25 per cent. over. Some sold their collection of Queen's in order to invest in King's. But a large majority waited, and the catalogue will presently declare whether they have been justified.

In some cases they have. 1s Leewards were easy to sell in 1905, used, at 1s 9d each; today they have dropped to about face, the 6d is almost as common as the 6d Queen, and the 2d was offered in one place recently at 1s 6d the dozen. These are simple examples; many a similar stamp is in the same plight. Straits, Transvaal, Natal and perhaps Lagos, seem to have seen their best days and may be expected now to settle down.

But there is a sorrowful list of high priced stamps that will confront the collector who has stood aside. For the Cayman set he will have to pay 15s; half-a-crown would have secured them in 1905. The two high values of Ceylon are 55s the pair; 60c Guiana CA is 14s 6d; 1s Gambia is 5s; 2s is 6s; 50c Malay is 4s; 4d Natal 2s 6d; 2s 6d is 6s; 2s 6d N. Nigeria is 7s 6d; 3d St. Lucia is 1s 6d; 1s St. Vincent is 8s 6d; (and cheap at that price, while 1s 6d for the 6d seems far too low); 4d Sierra Leone is 3s 6d; 6d is 2s 9d; 1s, 6s; 2s, 15s; 2d S. Nigeria is actually 3s; 1s is 6s; 2s 6d is 12s 6d. The prices are from a London dealer's list and are for mint copies.

Nor is there any likelihood that catalogue rates for these will be cheaper, since the figures are evidently based on the scarcity of the stamps named. In the face of these prices the waiting collector may be forgiven if he shakes his head and pulls his locks. By waiting he may have saved something in the case of a few dozen stamps that have proved common, but he has missed the opportunity of buying perhaps 30 or 40 rarities that now cost five times as much as they did two years ago. The catalogue may show that the balance of things has been in favour of the enthusiast after all.

Used Canada postage due seem scarce. Of three big American firms one could only supply the 2c, another had ten copies each of the 1c and 2c, and the third confessed its inability to supply at all. The Century Stamp Co. also reports "no stock." The 5c is the scarce value. The violet pencil mark is proving detrimental to the sale of the stamps, collectors naturally preferring a postmarked specimen, yet the pencil mark would seem to have been the method of cancellation generally employed.

Egypt O. H. H. S. is getting cheaper. Sets of 5, used, have been selling at 6d, but may presently be lower. The 5 piastres is 1s in Paris; in mint condition it costs 2s. The mint set of the five lower values is priced 1s 3d. The Sudan Stamp Co. writes to the effect that the Camel stamps are to cease at the end of the year, and reports a big demand for these stamps. They are very popular on the Continent, but there are also large stocks of them, and they should never be very dear.

Used Jamestown Exposition stamps promise to be scarce. A correspondent says they are obtainable only at chief offices, and often supplied only upon special request being made for them. Dealers are advertising for used copies at half face value; but complaints are common that even at this rate the stamps are not to be had in any quantity. It looks as if the 5c Jamestown will be scarce.

A Continental paper seriously offers sets of "Christchurch Expedition!"

2s 6d Lagos chalk, mint, is being hunted for by at least two investors, both of whom are willing to give 51s per dozen. — Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Stanley Gibbons 1908 Catalog, Part II —We have received from the publishers, Stanley Gibbons 1908 priced catalog of stamps Part II, consisting of "foreign countries," viz., other than Great Britain and British Colonies. We have a hearty word of commendation for this book, a handsome production from every standpoint. With something like 650 large pages, opening flat at any place, printed on pure white stock and profusely illustrated with life size cuts, it is mechanically as near perfection as a catalog can possibly be.

From a literary standpoint, the student in philately will find a feast of good things. We quote some of the salient improvements upon former issues: —

Bosnia—Revised and varieties of perforations priced.
Montenegro—Entirely rewritten.
Nicaragua—Rearranged. About 900 numbers.
Finland—New list based on M. Hanciau's contributions to the Monthly Journal.
Wenden—Rewritten based on W Svenson articles
Salvador—Entirely new list compiled from articles by J. B. Leary. Seebeck reprints are excluded, prices quoted being for guaranteed genuine originals.
Switzerland—Silk thread issues rearranged.
Siam—New list following articles by Mr. Poole.
Venezuela—1903 provisionals given a thorough revision.

Under many of the cuts will be found descriptive matter of value even to the advanced collector. For instance we are told that the scene on the 1900 Nicaragua set represents the "Island of Momotombo." Statesmen, military heroes, etc., represented on countries far and near are introduced to the most casual reader.

As for prices we venture no opinion. This is a matter concerning which the publishers know more than the editor, especially when the publishers are dealers. If there be any mistakes in pricing at all serious our advertising columns will reflect them as the months pass by. The review copy at hand reaches us from London but orders may be addressed to 198 Broadway, N. Y. City.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—J. M. Bartels is credited with the discovery of a new Alexandria local. The design is the same as illustrated in the catalogue, but the newly found specimen is on blue paper instead of buff. This highly interesting stamp was found some years ago by a lady residing in Alexandria, but not until last month did she make her find known to the philatelic world when she wrote to Mr. Bartels, an old acquaintance of her family.

The specimen is on the original cover and in fine condition. Though cut round it is lightly cancelled "PAID." This word appears a second time similarly handstamped on the envelope. The large circular Alexandria postmark fills the upper left corner. The November date is legible, but not the year. This latter proves to be 1847 by the letter contained in the envelope.

The use of a local at this late date comes as a surprise. The regular U. S. 1847 series was issued July 1 and the use of all postmasters' issues after that date was illegal. It is further interesting to note that the writer of the letter is still enjoying good health and following his vocation. Over sixty years ago he mailed a letter in this envelope to a young lady in Richmond, who later became his wife. Owing to the naturally very personal nature of the enclosure the family declines to let it go with the cover.

Postmaster's Provisional.

5c black on light blue.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—Benedict Prieth informs us that he has received two new provisionals from the Cayman Islands, the 5sh salmon and green having been overprinted ½d and 1d, in black. Mr. Prieth says the surcharging is very crudely done, but gives us no detail of the form and type, except that the overprint is large. He is informed by Miss Gwendolyn Parsons, the postmistress of Georgetown, Cayman Islands, that the provisional ½d on 1d is all sold out.

Provisional Adhesives.

½d on 5sh salmon and green.
1d on 5sh salmon and green.

CYPRUS.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. have shown us a "specimen" copy of the 5 paras stamp announced in No. 881. It is printed on ordinary multiple paper.

5pa light yellow brown and black.

FIJI ISLANDS.—We find we were in error in No. 878, in chronicling the new 1d carmine on chalky paper. It should have been ordinary multiple paper.

HAYTI.—John Terry informs us that he has seen the new provisionals noted in No. 883 and 881, with overprint in red. The stamps have been surcharged to supply a pressing need, as the stock of the current 1c and 2c stamps had become exhausted.

HONG KONG.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. have shown us a "Specimen" copy of the new 6c value, printed on ordinary paper.

Adhesive.

6c black violet and orange red.

HUNGARY.—The 6f must now be added to the list of stamps printed in No. 836, as appearing perf. 15.

Gibbons' Weekly says that Croatia, an ancient titular kingdom of Hungary, is now demanding postage stamps distinct from those used in Hungary.

LUXEMBURG.—In No. 862 was listed two cards with stamps of the new design. These have remained unknown to the trade till now when two appear but not those listed in July. The set of 1907 is just at hand and is very similar to the 1903 cards except that the headlines, etc., have been condensed into about five-sixths of the former space, the spare room at left end being used for the sender's name and address. Those with the new stamp are of same design except the stamp. Reported by Mr. Schachne.

Post Cards.

5c green on buff.
5x5c green on buff; T.3.
10c red on buff.
10x10c red on buff; T.3.
5c green on buff; new stamp.
5x5c green on buff; T.3; new stamp.

MOROCCO AGENCIES.—A new value has been added to the overprinted set, the last stamp being on chalky paper.

Adhesive.

40c on 4d brown and green.

MOZAMBIQUE.—El Eco Postal adds two other values to those printed in No. 852.

Adhesives.

5r orange.
20r rose lilac.

MOZAMBIQUE CO.—Mr. Schachne has shown us the latest cards and letter cards. For the 10 reis (single and double) they use the same design as the Mozambique 10 reis of 1903 with stamp changed to arms type instead of King Karl, and "Companhia de" in left upper band in place of the value. The 20 reis single and double cards are similar to the 25 reis of 1903 except the change of stamp as above and a headline added "Companhia de" being second and "Mozambique" the third. The letter cards are same as 1904 but the imprint is now all in one color.

Post Cards.

10 reis brown lilac on buff.
10x10 reis brown lilac on buff; L.3.
20 reis gray lilac on buff.
20x20 reis gray lilac on buff; L.3.

Letter Cards.

25 reis rose on corn color.
50 reis gray lilac on blue.

NETHERLANDS.—Otto Weismann informs us that the ½c, 50c and 1g, surcharged on the De Ruyter stamps, were sold out immediately after being put on sale, and that the 1c, 6½c and 15c followed very closely. The 50c has already been sold at $3.50 and the 1g at $10 each.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—Gibbons' Weekly reports having seen the £1 blue "One Hundred Years" stamp, on Crown A paper, perf. 11.

NICARAGUA.—Frank Schellenberg writes that he has seen a block of six of the 1c, American print, surcharged "Vale 15c", in which the lower left hand stamp has the "V" only, the rest of the surcharge having been dropped out in printing.

The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c, 10c, 15c, 20c, 50c, 1p, 2p and 5p, Waterlow print, surcharged "Costa Atlantica" C.' One or two of the values named have not yet been seen here without the surcharge, with the Waterlow imprint.

The values thus far seen with the Waterlow imprint are the 1c, 2c, 4c, 10c, 10c on 2c, 15c, 20c, 50c and 1p.

In No. 860 we noted that the 10c envelope, type of 1902, had been received with a large "1907", printed with a hand stamp. Hermann Focke has now shown us another envelope with the same overprint, but in smaller type. He has also shown us the 4c card, with stamp of the type of 1900, with the same overprint, but in a third size of type. Both envelopes and the card were printed by Waterlow. The "1907" is printed in violet on both envelopes and blue on the card.

NYASSALAND PROTECTORATE.—The decree changing the name of the British Central Africa Protectorate to the above designation and establishing a new constitution went into effect Nov. 21, according to the London Times. We may therefore expect a new series of stamps shortly.

PORTUGAL.—The cards of 1907 have been received by Mr. Schachne. Senf's 1908 catalog calls them Nos 43 and 44. A brief notice of some stationary was made in No. 872 which perhaps referred to the following letter card just reported by Mr. Schachne. It is on a lighter shade of paper and with but a single headline, which appears in ornamental type.

Letter Card.

25 reis green on pale buff.

SWITZERLAND.—The Postage Stamp reports that new cards are to be issued at once with the new 5 and 10c stamps. The design of the new 5c will be used on the 2c, 3c and 5c stamps and that of the 10c on the 10c, 12c and 15c. The design for the higher values is not yet completed and will not appear until 1908. The 30c, 40c, 50c, 1fr and 3fr are to be printed in two colors.

URUGUAY.—Hermann Focke has shown us the 50c carmine in the new arms type.

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 16, '07.

The committee is very much pleased at the response to its appeal for funds, each contributor being recorded below with amount paid or pledged. With the responses have come many cheering words and we take the liberty of quoting the following from the letter received from Warren H. Colson:—

"Herewith please find my subscription for $25 to the National Stamp Committee for the ensuing year.

"May I add a word of hearty praise for the results of practical value which this publicity campaign, so ably conducted by Mr. Burroughs is securing. We should have double the amount subscribed last year with which to work—this year—and it is to be hoped that it will be forthcoming from all parts of the country. Let it be a 'National' movement in support as well as in name and results.

"At the risk of being a little personal—or even thought having selfish views in end, I would like to say that I can hardly hope to receive any direct results from this subscription as my business is quite entirely with the more advanced collectors whose collecting habits are thoroughly and steadfastly formed, and not in the least with the beginner, who is looking for the primary stamps; nevertheless, I firmly believe that any movement at all to educate the general public to the fact that in their necessary choice of a hobby, they can do no better than take stamps, will put collecting on a surer and more stable foundation than in has ever previously enjoyed."

This certainly is an appreciative word in more ways than one. We regret that we cannot publish more of the letters received. The subscription list to date is as follows:—

STRONG PAPER—TASTELESS GUM

W. F. GREGORY, 116 NASSAU ST., NEW YORK

A POSTAL RULING.

J. Leiblinger, of the U. S. Army, at Camp Columbia, Cuba, recently sent us three Cuban cards upon the reverse side of which some sets of cheap stamps were hinged. To quote from Mr. Leiblinger: "I am sending these stamps in this form as an experiment in the cheap delivery of sets by mail, each one arranged in a different manner. Kindly inform me how many of the cards reached you in safety." While we question that such a method as this will ever be resorted to in the sending out of stamps, it is, nevertheless, of interest to know that all the cards reached us in safety. Truly, honesty is not a lost virtue with postal employees.

Upon submitting these cards to the postoffice department, the Third Assistant Postmaster General wrote that such sending could not originate in the U. S. for legal transmission through the mails unless each stamp should be affixed securely to the card in keeping with a recent ruling of the department in regard to the attaching of clippings to post cards. The official in question then turned our communication over to the division of foreign mails, from which the following was received, over the signature of the Second Assistant Postmaster General: "It is not allowable to transmit to foreign countries generally, cancelled postage stamps by means of affixing them to post cards. Articles exchanged between the U. S. and Cuba are, however, subject to the DOMESTIC postage regulations of the country in which the articles are mailed. Consequently, if the domestic postal regulations of Cuba allow cancelled stamps to be affixed to the back of postal cards, the card herewith was properly forwarded from Cuba to this country." Thus it is in order for Mr. Leiblinger to establish the legality of his idea at the other end.

RECORDS OF BRANCH 24, A. P. A.

The 9th regular meeting was held Nov. 26, 1907, at the residence of E. R. Liebert, 680 Holton St., Milwaukee, with eleven present, including one visitor. V. Pres. Dr. Kraft in the chair. The Entertainment Committee reported progress on the coming Lantern Slide lecture and Mr. Johnson was further delegated to make arrangements for it. Mr. Liebert was unanimously elected to membership. The Secretary was instructed to purchase the two volumes of "Album Weeds" for our Library. A Stamp Bourse was then held, after which those present were permitted to view Mr. Liebert's treasures, consisting largely of U. S. and Europe. In the former were many fine and rare stamps in keeping with his ideals in stamp collecting. In the European were things equally commendable. Mr. Liebert also showed portions of his coin collection, which was also much admired, and after that all partook of his courtesy in the form of luncheon, etc.

PASSED THE 1300 MARK!

A splendid achievement and we may well feel pleased with the result. But larger things are in store for us and if you want a share in the year's success lend a hand at once.

Any one joining now will have only $1.70 to pay which amount will cover cost of share of stock and dues for balance of year.

Note that the members of the recruiting committee are this week given credit for applications secured up to Dec. 14. The next summary will be published in March and possibly monthly thereafter.

Every member of the A. P. A. should send for that handsome booklet giving full particulars concerning the advantages of membership and then go out after a new application. If you are marching to the music of the Star Spangled Banner, don't get side tracked by Yankee Doodle or any other good thing of the kind. No society should have quite such a hold upon you as the A. P. A. This booklet may be had by any one interested. It's like the sunshine, FREE to all.

ST. NICHOLAS REMEMBERS THE QUEEN OF PHILATELY.

BY ABBY DURKEE.

"Now, Pbœbe Anne," said Jacob Barlow to his wife, "I don't want to hear another word about not goin' for I tell you I'm a-goin', and I'm a-goin' to take you along an' that settles the whole matter. You know when old Jake's mind is sot on anything, that thing is coming to pass, so just get yourself ready."

"But pa," said Mrs. Barlow, "your coat is too shabby and there is not time to have another made."

"My coat is all right; it's not a bit worn out. It's a leetle shiny I know, that blamed tailor made it out o' shiny cloth in the beginnin'. They won't mind my clothes. You've a fine gown an' that's enuff.

"You see, Phœbe Anne, I'm seventy years old an' you'll never see sixty again, and of all our leetle flock, Miranda is the only one left and she is to have Christmas and her twenty-fifth wedding anniversary—silver wedding—at the same time. It is a long time since we have had a Christmas that was not a sad one; we'll try to enjoy this one and lots more of 'em if we can."

"What on earth have you there all done up in your apron?" exclaimed Jake, as he entered the house after an hour's absence. "True as I live, you've got our old letters, an' a-cutting off the dear old stamps that I sent you when they first came into use,—the first that were invented, an' old pictures too, photos of old friends. Why, this makes me sick, to see things we prize so, mutilated. Just stop now 'bout as quick as you know how. I'm a-goin' to have them things saved for my great grandchildren, they'll be a curiosity by that time."

"Please, Jake," said Phœbe Anne, "don't be so hasty. I sent that nephew of yours quite a few stamps and old covers that I had gathered here and there and he wrote me he had exchanged some duplicates with his chums and sold them all and made enough to buy a summer suit, which he needed badly."

"Well," said Jake, "if Arthur Dixon needs clothes you just send him a draft for a hundred or two, and tell him to pitch in and get what he needs. When a boy leads his class he deserves help an' no mistake, an' old Jake'll see him through all right an' no mistake, but he can't have my old stamps; so just pack them up and get yourself ready to go. I want to see the children. I can hardly wait now that I've got my mind fully sot on goin'. You'll see the big bays at the door all hitched to our fine cutter, with our best robes and foot-stove, day after tomorrow, and you must be ready, for as I said afore, we're a-goin'!"

The sleighing was fine, the day bright and the big bay team with merry bells made the ride an ideal one.

"Phœbe Anne," said Jake, "do you remember our first sleighride together? 'Twas a fine day but cold—way down to zero—but we wasn't a mite cold. We didn't have fur coats neither, an' the old gray mare couldn't step with these bays, but we had a good time, didn't we, wife?"

"Yes," said Phœbe Anne, "we did enjoy ourselves, but of all things that happened in the long ago I remember our trip to Niagara just after our wedding. It was the Fourth of July. Do you remember it, Jake?"

"Should rather think I do," said Jake. "I shall never forget them two long tables in the dining-room o' that big tavern, with rows of colored men in swaller tail coats, white vests, white ties an' white gloves, standin' behind each chair, an' pretty soon the head feller—captain, may be he was—give a signal an' down went a torpedo, whack, right behind everyone a-sittin' there, an' then out marched them waiters after the soup, an' when they brot it every black cuss waited till the last one was in his place, and by a motion from the captain, fifty arms sot down fifty plates like one man, an' then stood till every one had eat his soup or shoved it away in disgust. We couldn't eat the measley stuff an' there we had to wait while they brought on seven courses just that way. It took a full hour an' a half of our precious time, an' when we did get thro' we wished we had some ham an' eggs, fried 'taters and coffee with real cream, an' a chance to git filled up!"

"But it was funny just the same and one of the sights of a life time," said Phœbe Anne.

"Here's the toll gate," said Jake. "By cracky, we've got along mighty swift; we're half way on our journey. Hurry up there, Jim Crack, it's too cold to make you a visit. Here's your change, sling 'em open. You're a good one; what shall I bring you for Christmas from the city?"

"Bring me some stamps," called out Jimmy.

"All right, you'll have a collection that'll make your eyes swim. Darned if I don't bring that Jimmy a good one. I'll buy Billy's collection,—what can he want of 'em now, he is twenty-one. I'll buy it sure as fate."

"Don't count your chickens too fast," said Phœbe Anne. "You will find Billy deeper in the business than ever before. I've heard how he dotes on his remarkable collection. He will not allow the younger children to touch it; he tells them that if they want stamps, they must do as he did, gather them for themselves. And they do say that Percival, who is only fifteen, has a lot of rare stamps."

"All samee," said Jake, "they'll want the spondulix, and so may not be so keen to refuse a good offer as you might think. We'll see how the land lays when we get there and when we leave we'll bring Jimmy his stamps.

"What's that a-comin' down that steep hill? Stage coach as I live, and horses runnin' away pell mell!" exclaimed Jake, as he turned into a farmyard just in time to escape the four horses and coach with no driver to be seen. The passengers had just begun to realize their perilous position when a large Newfoundland dog caught the dragging lines and held on to them until men a little farther on succeeded in stopping the horses and drove them into a yard where the eight passengers, white as ghosts, went into the house to await events. The big dog was praised and petted. His name was Nelson and his little mistress, Janey Gordon, twelve years old, had taught him to hold the lines and drive her pony, and assured the passengers that he never turned his head while the lines were in his mouth, but when tired of driving he would stand up and wag his bushy tail and she would relieve him. She added that she always kept the end of the lines in her muff and warmed her hands while he drove. She was quite independent and knew how to harness her pony and do for herself if there was no one at liberty to help her.

"My papa is a philatelist," she said. "His office is two miles from home and Nelson and I go after him every day after school. I have stamps too, a nice lot of rare ones and an album. I expect to make a lot of money with my stamps and when I am through school I am going on a long journey and see all the places these stamps come from and Nelson is going with me. You see I couldn't leave Nelson, could I, you good dog?" Nelson hugged a little closer to Janey and his big tail wagged approval. Some of the passengers offered a large sum for Nelson but money was of no account, so they compromised by promising her some fine additions to her stock in trade,—promises that were faithfully kept.

A mile farther on, old Jake saw the driver making a rail fence of the road. He had fallen asleep on the box and rolled off into the snow, which waked him up, but his brain was too muddled to remember whether he was going to or from the city. Jake told him which way to go and said, "Walk lively and lose that jag and find your eight passengers ready to make mince meat of you." He did not tell him that two men had mounted the box after a wait of half an hour, and they were well on their way to their destinations. The next time they met that coach two men were on the box; new rules had been made at main office.

The last two miles of the journey, the boulevard was gay with fast steppers, fine turnouts ane showy costumes. Jake said, "Phœbe Anne, I'm just a-goin' to let the bays show their mettle," and he did and led the procession in good style.

Phœbe Anne said, "I was a mite scart when that horse come a-galloping up beside our sleigh and the driver a-yanking his head right and left but I didn't say a word. I didn't want to be beat. It was the smartest ride I've had in many a day. I wonder if that young crowd thought us in our second childhood."

"I dunno what they thought an' I don't care a snap," said Jake. "If we have time after Christmas, we'll give 'em another whirl if they want us to show 'em what we can do if we really have a fair show."

"It's getting dark," said Phœbe Anne, "are we most there?"

"Yes, we will soon be there. Don't you see that old keystone lantern hanging from the rafters of yonder porch, lighting up the gateway and drive?"

In every window bright lights were reflected on the frozen snow and peals of merry laughter were echoed on the frosty air. The sound of merry bells approaching the door caused a general stampede to welcome the guests. Billy rushed out to help Jake and Phœbe Anne.

"We've come, Billy," said Jake. "How's everybody?"

"All well," said Billy, "and watching for you. Go right in, I'll drive the bays to the barn."

"Peter," said Billy, "here's the finest team out. Take good care of them; rub them down and blanket them, they seem warm. I rather think grandad has been having a little race on the boulevard by the looks of the team."

"I'll do my best, Mr. Billy. I knows a good hoss all right, but I'm sprised that you do. I thot stamps was all you knew about, some Latin and big studies. Yuse always talking stamps."

"I must confess, Peter, that stamps are uppermost for I do love them and besides, I am trying for a big prize to be given for the best collection. You know, Peter, how handy money is in the family."

"Yes, Mr. Billy, I knows, an' I wish you luck."

Jake and Phœbe Anne were warmly welcomed by their daughter Miranda and her husband, Judge Wm. Taylor, and the children, two sons and two daughters,—Anne, twenty-three; Billy, twenty-one; Ruby, eighteen, and Percival, just fifteen—all doing something for the comfort of the guests.

"Well," said Jake, "I'm mighty glad to see you all, and mam and I are going to be as gay as kittens this Christmas. We had a leetle mite of a race on the boulevard. Mam was glad to see the bays lead the crowd tho' she' don't exactly approve of horse racing, but then we done it so easy it did not amount to much. Well, Billy," said Jake, "how is the stamp trade gettin' on? I have a young friend I want to get a collection for or some good stamps to go with his'n. He's got quite a few now and seems to have gone daft on the subject."

"I'll show you some tomorrow," said Billy. And sure enough he did and Jake told the Judge he had never seen such a lot and was surprised at what Billy told him.

"Why," said Jake, "I have been a good church goer all my life an' I've hearn lots o' good sermons an' I hearn Bayard Taylor lecture and I read his book of travels, but I never had such a lecture Billy just give me. Why, Horace Greeley on 'Great Men' and Taylor on Egypt and the 'Holy Land' ain't in it with Billy. He told me about kings and queens, animals and birds, and symbols and colors, and showed me stamps galore. I never hearn tell of so many countries and I believe I'll remember more of what he said than I did what Bayard Taylor said, for all I ever could remember of his sayings was where they took breakfast and how it was served. Percival showed me his 'stock in trade' as he called it, and I have given the boys an order for five hundred dollars worth of fine goods and they are to have them ready for me when we go home. Here's Ruby! What in the world are you up to with your arms full of packages? And here comes Anne loaded down. What does it mean?"

"Come with us, grandpa, and we will show you the secret."

Opening the library door, Jake saw a Christmas tree, immense and beautifully trimmed, well filled with gifts, and on the floor and tables, boxes and packages without number.

And Anne said, "Grandpa, I have a surprise for you and grandma. I am going to be married Christmas."

"You a-goin' to get spliced tomorrow!" exclaimed Jake. "Well of all things, that beats the Dutch. Why didn't you tell us sooner?"

"I thought, grandpa, that I would wait and tell you instead of writing you about it. Then I could tell you of the good man and all the particulars," said Anne.

"Well," said Jake, "pitch in and tell me. I'm in a hurry to know who he is that is a-goin' to steal you away from us."

Said Anne, "His name is Charles Sumner Richfield, son of a Green Mountain man you used to know, tho' Charles was born in Boston thirty years ago. His mother was a Winslow, direct descendant of the old Winslow stock, and you know that is first class. He is a lawyer, is fine looking, a college graduate, with three years of travel around the world afterwards."

"Well," said Jake, "he is old enough to know better than to steal my granddaughter and never say, 'By your leave, old Jake'."

"He is coming here this evening at 8 o'clock and if you don't say he is nice I shall be disappointed," said Anne. Ruby chimed in, "I am in love with him myself and believe he is all right and I'll have another brother. The gifts from the tree will be distributed this evening."

"Mama," said Anne, "will you take grandpa and grandma up stairs and show them the wedding presents? Be sure they see the chest of silver bought at Tiffany's."

"I will, dear," said Mrs. Taylor, and she did, and grandpa declared they had rented Tiffany's whole store for the wedding show. A little later old Jake asked the Judge to pin these envelopes on the tree and when, the presents were distributed Miranda found a letter containing a statement that twenty-five bonds, each one thousand par value, bearing six per cent interest, had been deposited for her in the bank safety drawer, the keys of which were enclosed, from her father and mother; also to each of her four children five bonds, same value, and to the Judge one bond, just for luck. For Anne's wedding present he placed a check for two thousand dollars for her to buy something she and Mr. Richfield would like for the new home, and grandma added that a box of fine table linen, etc., would reach her in her new home. Everyone was bountifully remembered and coveted stamps came from Mr. Richfield for the boys. Such stamps! Where did he get them?

Arthur Dixon arrived that morning, much to the surprise of Old Jake but to the delight of all, and he found among his gifts a package of old letters, one of which was directed to his mother, long since dead. Upon opening it he found it contained information of where to find deeds and mortgages of property that the Judge said had greatly increased in value and would prove a windfall for Arthur, as the letter stated all should descend to the eldest son. As Arthur was an only child and this letter from her father, there were no contestants. Among the articles were all of his old and valuable papers. On one letter he found a stamp, the 5c black Baltimore. With all this his future looked bright. Phœbe Anne had also sent him all she had cut for him before Jake ordered them saved, for she was sure he would never think of them again.

Christmas evening the wedding took place. Then came congratulations, lively music and when they left the home they had the good wishes of all, and even Jake said he really believed Anne had found the right man.

Two days later, Jake and Phœbe Anne turned their faces homeward. They had enjoyed their stay beyond their expectations and had promised to come again soon. The package for Jimmy was ready, the big bays at the door and off they went. On their way they called upon the little girl and her big dog and saw the lovely things that had been sent by the eight passengers,—some fine things for herself and a lovely collar for Nelson, on which was engraved the story of his noble deed, which together with stamps and a grand album, that were the envy of all her friends, made her very proud and happy. It was dark when they reached the toll gate. Jimmy was on hand and it took several trips into the house to dispose of the albums, boxes and packages that old Jake had brought him. On opening these his surprise knew no bounds and long after Jake had left his team in their accustomed stalls and had talked over with Phœbe Anne the pleasures of this Christmas and had settled themselves for a night's rest, Jimmy, by the light of a flickering lamp, was trying to decipher the ins and outs of this wonderful stock that in the new catalogue seemed to be a vast fortune, which his small attic chamber would hardly hold.

In his heart he thanked his kind friends and felt indeed a brighter future was in store, for with such stamps, some one else could keep the toll gate,—he he would be a dealer. When he thanked Mr. Barlow, the latter replied, "It is indeed better to give than to receive. While I appreciate my gifts that came to me at Christmas time, I enjoyed the pleasure I had in giving and all are welcome to my little gifts; I wish they had been greater."

To profess love and friendship does not require a bank account; words are only breath expended. To give is an act, and acts live; like facts they are stubborn and everlasting and good deeds are rungs in the ladder that reaches heaven. Of the good deeds of Jake and Phœbe Anne Barlow the half has never been told and those who know them hope "they may live long and prosper."

In the history of loving gifts, Christmas has dawned and waned many times before the philatelic Queen was born. Her birth and early years were unremembered by St. Nicholas, but those days are past. The Queen of Philately now at Christmas-tide is adorned, revered and remembered by St. Nicholas with the symbols of time that she loves best.

EDITORIAL.

Founded—At different times recently, we have called attention to the fact that philatelic literature is engaging the interest of many serious collectors and while these observations referred more particularly to the desirability of gathering the literature of the earlier days because of its increasing scarcity, we now speak of a movement of the present day to encourage interest in the printed side of the hobby covering all years. The WEEKLY has been asked to give publicity to the following explanatory paragraph that has appeared in the London Philatelist: "The Philatelic Literature Society. A new society under the above title has now been founded and the first meeting of the society was held on 29 October, at St. Bride's Institute, when Mr. E. D. Bacon was elected president. The council is now formed as follows: President, E. D. Bacon; Vice-President, B. T. K. Smith; Hon. Secretary and Treasurer, F. J. Peplow; Members, H. Clark, H. F. Johnson, F. J. Melville, H. E. Weston. The annual subscription of one guinea (Fr. 26.60; Mk.21.60; $5.11) recommended by the council was unanimously adopted. At another meeting held on 13 November, the statutes recommended by the council were adopted. These statutes allow the admission of philatelic societies as members. The society has decided that the first number of its quarterly publication, the Journal of the Philatelic Literature Society, shall be published in January." This new society, launched under most respectable and influential auspices, is entitled to most favorable consideration.

None Here—In this country, we have had a society of collectors of and dealers in philatelic literature but after a precarious existence of some years, it finally disappeared from the surface.

We have prepared a special Lot of sheets, each sheet containing 50 stamps. All fine stamps and good sellers.

You can judge of the average prices.

Price only $5.75.

Fulton Stamp Co., 102 W. 42 St., New York.

This society was loyally supported by a few enthusiasts who did everything in their power to place it on a successful plane but their efforts were not seconded by any adequate number of collectors interested in literature. America has several of the most complete and extensive philatelic libraries extant but it seems that interest in philatelic print is uncertain and isolated, so far as the general division of collectors are concerned. Latterly, however, through the production of hand-books and volumes of real merit, philatelic literature has become a more commanding factor and the number of collectors who quietly attend to the gathering of material for their libraries has been augmented.

Where the Stamps Come From—Mauritius has been widely advertised as the country from which rare stamps come, in the newspaper press and elsewhere almost from the beginning of philatelic time. In 1895, when Richard Harding Davis' "Princess Aline," appeared, the sensational sale of a Mauritius Post Office" for over seven thousand dollars had not been made. In the work just referred to, one of the chief characters, Miss Morris, says, incidentally that we do not send consuls to Mauritius, and adds laughingly, in explanation: "Mauritius is one of those places from which you buy stamps but no one really lives or goes there!" Mr. Davis evidently has at least an indirect acquaintance with philately, as in several of his works, he speaks of stamps.

* * *

A Critic—A collector whose name was well known to fame in the earlier days of philately indites a characteristic letter which we shall present to readers so that we may have the privilege of disproving his findings. Our new old reader hews close to the line, letting the chips fall where they may but as he is sincere in his convictions, no doubt, he does not tempt one to indulge in recalcitrant remark. With some changes in text his letter reads: "As I find myself reading your paper regularly, I have an increasing desire to write you to air a few of my opinions on the present condition of philately, as I see it. If you say that I am not competent to write on the subject, I think that you will agree that my former knowledge of philately gives me some assurance for believing that the advanced hobby of today is not wholly beyond my understanding. First, how can one subscribe to the oft-repeated claims that stamp collecting becomes more fascinating each year of its existence when it is said as insistently that specialism is a necessity in view of the tremendous number of stamps available for the general collector. Suppose that I collect the stamps of a certain number of countries only; what am I to do with the Poland stamp on the cover that has just been given me, in case Poland is not among the group of my collecting countries? I maintain that the essential sentimental element is lacking in collecting if I am not allowed to collect all stamps; to collect everything is an impossibility according to the statements of those who proclaim the present greatness of the pursuit. So, you have two points diametrically opposed to each other and I do not see how you can reconcile them. A second objection is made to the courting so assiduously of the almighty dollar by dealers and collectors, alike, nowadays. The leaven of the dollar is unmistakable in the advertising columns and for that matter, the reading columns; the striving of the dealers for the money in stamps is not an elevating spectacle when they advise purchase because of the possibilities for speculative profit. I think a bit of old fashioned philately is just what is needed for the present good of the hobby but it is unfortunate that the remedy cannot be applied, as the proportions of the patient are so gigantic that no one can tell where to administer the tonic. I read your editorials with real pleasure and I admire the clever points and turns that you make; the paper is worth more than its subscription price not alone as a stamp paper but for its generally well-conceived contents. Perhaps, you will find the material for an editorial in my letter, but I think that its tenor is not to your liking; however, if you do I can stand it if you can."

Rebuttal—The earnestness of our correspondent no doubt leads him to believe that his indictments of philately are more damaging than they are in reality. General collecting may still be indulged in and specialism is not an absolute necessity; catalogues and albums have been prepared on a simplified scale especially for the general collector. If a collector likes all stamps, he should like those of any geographical class or division; these he can collect and so long as his field is large enough to engage his whole attention, why does he need to cross its borders? Usually, the collector who becomes a specialist does so because he can concentrate his attention on certain countries for which he has a special liking; in this way, he still conserves all his pleasure. The great number of stamps today makes collecting easier than ever before either as a specialist or as a general collector. As for the dealers of today, they are on a higher business plane than those of the past and though they are very enterprising in this advanced day, the legitimacy of their methods cannot be questioned. They conserve the interests of their patrons better than dealers did formerly, and the dollar dominion that our critic complains about is not more noticeable now than then, as an extended reference to old files allows us to say.

New—A stamp hinge incorporating a new idea is advertised from Germany. Its innovation is that it is creased in two places and gummed outward only from the creases to either end of the hinge. The space in the center is left ungummed and when the stamp is attached to the page by this hinge the examination of the back of the specimen is easily made with no possibility of injury to the stamp.

MYSTIFYING SURCHARGES.

Some stamps are issued without inscriptions of any sort, like the current newspaper stamps of Austria; others show no name to denote the country of their origin, as those of Great Britain; and others, again, show the name of the state issuing them, but in native characters or nomenclature that makes them as puzzling to the uninitiated as though no name at all were given.

All these stamps are difficulties of a more or less serious nature in the path of the beginner, and explanatory articles concerning them will appear in this series in due course.

At the present moment, however, I purpose dealing with a class of stamps that the beginner and inexperienced collector find even more difficult to identify, i. e. stamps of certain countries surcharged with one or more letters to denote use in dependent states or colonies.

These may well, I think, be called mystifying surcharges, for in the majority of cases the clues by means of which they can be classified are slender in the extreme. For instance, what collector, who did not know, would have the remotest idea that the surcharge "P. G. S." found on certain Straits Settlements stamps denotes "Perak Government Service"? As there are many similar varieties, I have made a list of these and give them, with their explanations, below:—

A. & T.—These initials are found upon certain French stamps issued for use in Annam and Tonquin—French settlements in Siam. The Colony is now included in Indo-China, so these special stamps are no longer used.

B.—This letter is found upon various stamps of the Straits Settlements, and denotes that they were used in the British Post Office maintained in Bangkok, the capital of Siam, until 1886.

B. C. A.—The first stamps used in British Central Africa—from 1891 to 1895—consist of the stamps of the British South African Company surcharged "B. C. A." The stamps were used in Northern Rhodesia and Nyassaland, but when special stamps were issued, their use was confined to the latter territory, now known as the British Central Africa Protectorate.

C. Ch.—Various French stamps used in Cochin China were surcharged with these letters. They were only in use a short time, and the territory is now included in Indo-China, which makes special stamps unnecessary.

C. E. F.—A surcharge, found on several modern Indian stamps, which denotes China Expeditionary Force. These stamps were issued for the use of the Indian soldiers forming this force, and as some of the Field Post Offices are still in existence, the stamps are current.

DJ.—These two letters were surcharged on the 5c stamp of the 1892 issue of Obock, to denote that it was to be used in Djibouti—the chief town and port of French Somali Coast.

G.—Griqualand, with Kimberley as its capital, once issued its own stamps. These were in use from 1877 to 1880, and consisted of the then current stamps of the Cape of Good Hope surcharged with a "G." Of these "G's" there are big ones and little ones, some in red and some in black, double and inverted ones, making a variety that is a little too complex for the average collector, but which doubtless fills the heart of the specialist with joy.

GAB.—These three letters surcharged on ordinary French stamps signify Gaboon—a French Colony on the West Coast of Africa. Only a few stamps forming a temporary issue in 1886 were so overprinted.

G. P. E.—The first issue of stamps for the French Colony of Guadeloupe—one of the most fertile of the islands of the West Indies—was formed by surcharging certain of the stamps of the mother country with the letters "G. P. E." Two provisional stamps issued in 1890 also bear the same initials.

G. W.—The first 1d and 4d stamps for the Colony of Griqualand West were formed by overprinting these letters on the then current Cape Colony stamps. (See "G" above.)

G. & D.—In 1903 some provisional 30c unpaid letter stamps for Guadeloupe were manufactured by surcharging the 60c and 1 franc Postage Due stamps of the French Colonial type with "G. & D." and "30."

H. P. N.—These initials were struck on some of the Spanish stamps during the existence of the short-lived Republic of 1868, and they signify "Habilitado por la Nacion."

M. QE.—In 1887 some of the 20c stamps of the "Commerce" type of France were surcharged with these letters and "15c" for use in the French Colony of Martinique. This island shares, with Guadeloupe, the distinction of being one of the most fertile in the West Indies.

N. C. E.—These letters, signifying New Caledonia, may be found surcharged on many of the stamps of this French possession in Oceania. The island is used chiefly as a penal settlement.

N. S. B.—A number of provisional stamps for Nossi-Bé were made in 1890 by surcharging these letters on some of the stamps of the "Commerce" type of France. This island is situated on the East Coast of Africa, and now uses the stamps for Madagascar and Dependencies.

O. U. S.—These letters are often found in the old 1d red stamps of our own country, and mean Oxford Union Society. This society was allowed to have its initials overprinted on the stamps, and the labels have no more collectible value than those stamps which are nowadays perforated with various firms' initials.

P. G. S.—These letters, meaning Perak Government Service, were overprinted in 1890 on the then current Straits Settlements stamps for official use in this Native State.

R.—In 1885 a number of French Colonial stamps were surcharged "R" for use in the island of Réunion. This Colony is situated about 450 miles east of Madagascar.

R. O.—Various Turkish stamps were, in 1880, surcharged R. O. (Roumélie Orientale) for use in Eastern Roumelia. These were superseded by stamps issued for South Bulgaria, which in turn gave place to the general issues for Bulgaria.

S.—The first stamp for the Native State of Selangor was the then current 2 cents Straits Settlements stamp surcharged with an "S" accompanied by a crescent and a star.

S. P. M.—These letters, signifying St. Pierre and Miquelon, surcharged on various French Colonial stamps, formed the early issues of this French possession. These small islands are the two most important members of a group situated off the southeast of Newfoundland.

S. U.—These letters were overprinted on the ½-anna blue Indian stamp of 1865, and the Straits Settlements 2c stamp of 1868 for use in the native state of Sungei Ujong.—West End Philatelist.

COUNTERFEIT CANTONALS.

Mons. P. Mahé relates the following good story: There was in days gone by, at the Court of Napoleon III., a certain great personage, who was also the greatest of the collectors in Paris. I call him a great personage, not because he ever held any appointment or office in the State, but because of the position he occupied in connexion with the sovereign, owing to the fact that he had married one of the cousins of the latter. The exalted position of this collector, whom I will call "M. le Comte," enabled him to request of foreign Governments that search might be made among the old stores of the post offices, in the archives of the offices and printing works, in a word, everywhere where there was a chance of finding specimens of rare stamps that had gone out of circulation. And this request was never made in vain; nothing could be refused to such a personage; every effort was made to comply with the wishes of a connexion of the Emperor.

W. C. PHILLIPS & CO, Glastonbury, Conn.

M. le Comte therefore obtained, by this means, some very fine and rare things both in the way of stamps and essays, and very frequently more than one copy of each.

One fine morning—I lived then at No. 9 Rue de Clichy—arrived M. le Comte, beaming, his big face smiling all over, and he said, "M. Mahé, I have come to show you something magnificent, which I have just received." "Let us look at these fine things," I replied. He opened his portfolio, took out of it and laid before me, mounted with the greatest care and symmetrically arranged upon a fine sheet of white vellum paper, a complete collection of all the stamps of the Swiss Cantonal issues, and the two stamps of the first federal issue, all brand new! A single glance was sufficient to show me the value of the gift. "But, my dear M. le Comte, they are all bad, these Cantonals, absolutely bad!" His face fell, changing from gay to grave, and looking at me with a very troubled countenance, he said, "How can that be? It is impossible; they came to me direct from the Legation at Berne." "The Legation at Berne! Well, say what you will, the wretched things are none the less bad, as bad as bad can be."

What had happened was evidently this. After having searched in vain in the public offices, the person to whom the task had been confided, unable to say "No" to the request of so important a personage, had simply purchased from a dealer the unfortunate set, which he then despatched. Knowing nothing about these things or their value, he doubtless believed these stamps to be excellent, and thought himself very lucky to have been able to acquit himself so easily of a troublesome and delicate task.

As for M. le Comte, the position of the sender had prevented him from feeling the smallest doubt as to the value of the contents of the package, which in point of fact he had not very closely examined, being in such a hurry to show them to me. After all, these Cantonals finally were the means of our passing a very pleasant quarter-of-an-hour.—Monthly Journal.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Dr. Homer Collins has shown us the North American Telegraph frank, type of Scott's T15a, but with date changed to 1904. The color is still violet.

The Precanceled Stamp Club notes the following new precancels:

Waterville Maine, in two lines in small letters between heavy lines, 1c 1902.
Lowell Mass., 2c 1903.
Lynn Mass., 2c 1903 down.
Lansing Mich., in two lines in condensed Gothics, between lines 1c 1902.
Lockport, N. Y., in two lines in Gothics between wavy lines 1c 1902.
Philadelphia Pa., 15c, 50c, $1.00 1902.
Pittsburg Pa., in two lines in small Gothics between heavy lines, 1c and 1c double 1902.

CUBA.—Regarding the unknown variety of Cuba noted in No. 885, Miss Amy L. Swift writes entertainingly as follows:

"Possibly I can supply a little light upon the odd surcharge from Cuba mentioned in your chronicle of Dec. 14. Several years ago a young Haverhill boy, perhaps 10 or 12 years old, noting the high prices asked for U. S. Colonial surcharges by the dealers whose sheets he was receiving, evolved the brilliant idea of using his little printing press to surcharge clean used copies of ordinary U. S. and then selling the results among his chums at a cent or two apiece. He made no attempt to duplicate the original surcharges either in type or position, just used the type he had on hand, and overprinted in any way the type would best fit.

"Quite a quantity of this stuff was turned out and for a while he did a thriving business among his young friends, then an older collector saw one of the specimens, traced it to the fountain head, and swooped down in justifiable wrath upon that boy! The poor little chap was astounded to learn that he was doing anything wrong, and protested that he supposed there could not be any objection so long as he took used stamps to work on; he said his 'kinds looked just as good as the dealers' kinds, and cost a heap less." The collector read him a lecture, however, and obedient though still unconvinced, he destroyed the supply on hand and made no more, but a good many had gone into circulation, and it is possible the variety found by Mr. Hussman is one of them.

"I think all the U. S. Colonies were thus locally surcharged, but have seen only a Philippines which was shown me as a curiosity. In that the type was very clear, very black and looked every whit as presentable as the majority of official overprints.

"Of course the above may not be the true explanation of Mr. Hussman's find, but it is surely a possible one."

Frank P. Azpeitia has supplied us with a hitherto missing link in the new printings of the current Cuban stamps; namely, the re-engraved 5c value. Mr. Azpeitia has kindly sent us both used and unused copies of the re-engraved stamp, and the appearance is strikingly different from the old printing. This is due, however, to the extreme whiteness of the paper, and the peculiar shade of blue ink used, which gives it a very cold appearance. It is also somewhat lighter than the old stamp. The additions made by the engraver, that are most readily noticed, are two little right-angled ornaments added to the tablet containing the word "Cuba." They will be found in the upper corners, or rather in the extreme points of the tablet, to the left of the "C" and to the right of the "A." The new stamp has been in circulation in Havana since about the first of December.

There are other minor differences than that noted above, including the engraving of the lower leave at the left, the shape of the ornament in the extreme upper right corner of the stamp, etc., but the easiest means of identification will be by the two ornaments noted above.

5c blue.

LOMBARDY VENICE.—Dr. Homer Collins has shown us the 10c black of 1850 on ribbed paper. Scott catalogues the three higher values on ribbed paper, but has not hitherto noted the 10c.

PANAMA.—O. N. Sanford writes as follows:

"I am much interested in the stamps of Panama and Canal Zone, having made a specialty of them and have a large number of full sheets and large blocks to show the arrangement of the different settings.

"In looking over Bartel's Check List of Panama, I see under the 3rd issue of Colon, he gives only two settings:

"1st, consisting of 10 horizontal rows of five stamps each to the pane.

"2nd, consisting of five horizontal rows of ten stamps each; this is made by taking the lower ½ of the 1st and placing it at the right of the upper ½ of the 1st.

"I can show that the 1c and 2c were also printed by placing the lower ½ of the 1st at the left of the upper ½ of the 1st. I have a full sheet of the 1c and a large block from the centre of the upper pane of the 2c, in which the errors correspond in place with the 1c full sheet.

"Has anyone found any of the higher values in this setting?"

SALVADOR.— Hermann Focke has shown us a used copy of the 6c stamp in the new series, with double surcharge of shield, anchor, etc.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.— Malay States.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly reports having seen the 5c green and red on yellow, on ordinary multiple paper, and the 20c lilac and black on chalky multiple paper.

VENEZUELA.— Hermann Focke has shown us a copy of the 50c official, which has hitherto been seen in a dark plum color, the same as the 1b value, in a bright brown red shade quite distinct from the old color.

Official Adhesive.
50c brown red.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—J. Gregg Layne sends us a page clipping from the Sunset Magazine picturing the stamps of no less than nine countries as bearing holiday presents from the several countries represented. We may reproduce this soon.

—We have been favored with a copy of the Stamp News, publishsd by Gregory & Covington at Kansas City, Mo., with H. K. Poindexter as editor. It is the intention of the publishers to make it a local paper, giving the local club and its doings special attention. Any reader desiring a sample copy may address the News at 3119 Forest Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

—J. N. T. Levick favors us with no less than four clippings from N. Y. papers but none of them are worthy of reprinting. We beg to assure our many readers that favors of this kind are appreciated. What you may think is newsy may not suit us, while the very thing you think is tame may be gladly used. Let the clippings move this way.

—Dwight Burroughs has nearly completed a little juvenile book dealing with stamps that should materially aid the philatelic propaganda.

—The National Stamp Committee article, "Handling the Christmas Mails," appeared Sunday last. We give Chas. S. Osgood credit for the first specimen taken from the Boston Herald. Some 25 papers used it and we hope to have our subscribers, write us concerning it.

—The Louisville Times of Dec. 17 had a column article dealing with the philatelic treasures of Rev. Dr. Theodore F. John, pastor of the St. John's Evangelical Church of that city. The Louisville Philatelic Society is officered as follows: Edmond Wagner, Pres.; L. C. Hassler, Vice Pres., and J. V. Porter, Sec.-Treas.

—The S. C. Fortnightly gives the particulars of the introduction of fifteen automatic letter stamping machines among the business houses of Wellington, N. Z. Impressions are possible of the values ½, 1, 3, 6p and 1sh. A 1p envelope submitted for inspection shows a circular impressed stamp with "New Zealand" in the upper half forming a circular line and "Postage Paid" in the lower half. Within the inner circle is the value "1d" and below "No 22", indicating probably the number of the machine.

—Clippings acknowledged with thanks: —"Canada's Christmas Stamp," Hudson (N. Y.) Republican, C. H. Stiles; "Australia's Artistic Stamps," London Chronicle, Benedict Prieth; "Flower Gardens on Postage Stamps," Detroit News-Tribune, Thos. Wendt; "How Holiday Mails Are Carried," Newark Call, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr.

—We shall publish next week the very interesting developments in the issuance of the new stamps for the Australian Commonwealth.

—Any information regarding the present whereabouts of M. M. Campbell, formerly of Washington, D. C., will be appreciated. Notify F. E. Little, P. O. Inspector, Wash., D. C.

—A blue print "Chart for Checking up the Retouched Dies of the 1903 Issue of 2c Stamped Envelopes" has been issued by Mr. Barrett. It will be wanted by all who have followed up the series of articles prepared for the WEEKLY by our envelope specialist. See advt. elsewhere.

— Elsewhere is advertised what is called the U. S. Paper Detector. It is a simple yet effective convenience for recognizing the difference between the hard and soft papers of the 1870–79 issues. We are indebted to the Ohio Stamp Co. for the specimen.

—Clippings received from Thomas C. Keyes, Chas. V. D. Lodge and John L. Steffen, Jr., and acknowledged with thanks.

Jos. A. Steinmetz favors us with specimens of the sticker issued by the Red Cross Society of Wilmington, Delaware, and to which reference was made in the issue of last week. Over 30,000 were sold in Philadelphia stores in a few days. The price of the stickers was 1c each and they were designed to raise a fund in aid of the crusade against tuberculosis, as conducted by the American National Red Cross Society.

promptly and in a satisfactory manner, as may be judged by the following letter just received: "The stamps received and I am highly pleased with them. Taken all in all they are a remarkably fine lot, and I wish to thank you cordially and earnestly for the care and attention you have given to what must have been a very troublesome job. It is a wonderful fact that out of an order embracing about 1500 different stamps, aggregating about $162.00, you were able to fill all but $3.10.

Our price list of 15,000 VARIETIES is sent free."

We give below a few stamps selected from our new list of 20th Century Stamps, which is now in press and will be ready for distribution about January 15th.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago, Ill.

P. Q.:—This correspondent says: "I have a copy of the one-cent Canada jubilee issue on the original cover bisected and used apparently as a one-half cent stamp; it shows the St. Johns postmark very plainly. No catalogue gives this variety and I ask if you can can inform me when and where this stamp was used and for how long a time. What was the reason for issue and how many stamps of the kind is it estimated were used? Is there any philatelic value to this cover?" We do not remember of ever having heard a split provisional of the kind described, and while the specimen has some curious interest and value it is unofficial; this is said in view of what Mr. Horsley has said in the London Philatelist concerning the "splits" issued from Port Hood: "The postmaster at Port Hood finding he had run out of two cent stamps cut the three cent stamps and surcharged them one and two. This, the postmaster states, was for one day only and about three hundred stamps were cut. You will observe one on the original envelope, dated 5 January, 1899, and posted at Port Hood, on my sheets. As this was absolutely unauthorized I scarcely think it should be recognized, though it has been chronicled in our journal." While it will not be contradicted that the split provisional in the possession of our correspondent is of some curious interest, yet it cannot be claimed that it has an official cast and consequently, a considerable value in money.

W.:—The official stamps of Natal were withdrawn gradually it seems, a correspondent of the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly, September 7th, 1907, having said: "It may interest you to know that the Natal stamps surcharged 'Official' have been gradually dropping out of use, and that a circular was issued to the Government Railway Offices on 30th May, to the effect that all 'Official' stamps were to be returned at once and they would be replaced by ordinary postage stamps." (2) In a catalogue recently received, we find the two pence olive and rose, surcharged 'official' catalogued at $2.50 unused and $2.00 in used condition.

R. E. E.:—The albino envelope has been known since the 1853 issue of U. S. envelopes; we have seen the 3-cent of that issue with colorless impression and practically all the intervening issues up to the present one have yielded their quota of the albino. The ordinary albino, mis-strike or envelope curiosity has a value of, say, twenty-five cents or more. (2) The Nesbitt advertising impression or tress on the flap of the three-cent envelopes of the 1853 issue is commonly found on die I; the use of the tress was denied the envelope contractors by the government. Envelope collectors do not seem to attach much importance to this advertising impression, or imprimatur, but lists of those envelopes that showed the tress are to be found in envelope catalogues.

T. W. M.:—Grand Moyen is one of the four parts in which French Congo has been divided, the other three being (on the authority of a French journal) Gaboon, which has had stamp issues for some years and Tchad and Oubangui, respectively, two countries, which, while without stamps at the present, are not without hope for the future.

A. L.:—The "recibos" (receipts) Spain, 1862, 50c, "revenues used for postage" is priced in a catalogue of fiscal stamps at four cents used—that is, with fiscal cancelation. If your specimen of this stamp, No. 401 in the catalogue, is postally used, it is of some considerable value, we believe, although we can find no price quotation on the stamp.

—The prospectus of the Fiscal Philatelic Society, England, is at hand, a very interesting pamphlet of ten pages. On the membership roll we notice no less than fourteen U. S. members. The by-laws of the society are published in full together with a program of the meetings of the present season. The library catalogue shows a wide range of revenue literature, the loan of which can be secured upon the mere payment of postage.

On account of the severe illness of Mr. Lehmann, Mr. Levy, our next president, called the meeting to order with 12 members and three visitors present. This being exhibition night, very little business was transacted. There was, however, an abundance of very fine collections shown, which made the evening one of great interest and pleasure.

TO THE PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS:

Your Board of Vice Presidents since its organization has been the recipient of various complaints against members, mostly of a trivial nature, and largely relating to disputed accounts.

These have been investigated and some have been adjusted and some are now pending. One case will probably be referred to the Board of Directors with recommendation that the member complained of be expelled. Two claims for substitution from sales books have been allowed, both for small amounts, and one is now being investigated.

The Sales Department is in flourishing condition under its new Superintendent and members are urged to make use of this valuable department, and if not now on circuit, should ask to be placed on one.

Respectfully submitted,
C. A. HOWES, Chairman,

DEATH OF A. G. MURPHY.

The Association has suffered a distinct loss in the death, Dec. 7, of Arthur G. Murphy, of Logan, O. Though the deceased gentleman had been a member only since the 5th of last October, he was a prominent philatelist in local circles especially; dying in his 27th year, he left behind a brilliant political record, and to those who have learned to respect and love him, the news of his untimely death has been a great shock.

CHAS. S. OSGOOD, - SALEM, MASS.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have received from Jules Bernichon a catalog of French and French colonial stamps to be sold on Feb. 18–23. Some 1500 lots are represented in this week of sales, the lots being from the famous d'Etoilles collection. There are two page half-tone plates.

—Howard P. Harris of Salem, a philatelist of many years standing, has one of the most interesting and valuable collections of old state bank bills in existence. Reference to this collection was made in the WEEKLY some months since, but during the past two weeks Boston collectors have been privileged to inspect the same exhibited in a store on one of the four corners of Washington and Hanover streets, opposite where the WEEKLY is located. Most of the bills are in a remarkable state of preservation and among them are many which have never been put into actual circulation. In the collection are more than 150 notes and bills on almost as many Massachusetts banks and the scenes pictured are such as to awaken the enthusiasm of the most casual observer. Some are very elaborate in design and artistic in execution, while others are of curious and quaint workmanship.

—The Philatelic Journal of India calls Fred. J. Melville, the "Grand Young Man of Philately." Well named surely in view of the splendid service that Mr. Melville is rendering the cause of philately not only in England but other countries as well.

—The New York stock transfer tax bureau has manufactured a little excitement through the making public of the result of an investigation with reference to the handling and disposal of some seven million dollars worth of stamps issued by the bureau for use in the transfer of stocks. According to the controller's statement more than five million dollars worth of these stamps are said to have been destroyed without adequate record or supervision, and there is only the personal assurance of a clerk whose salary is but $2500 a year, that the stamps were actually destroyed. Reading between the lines it is considered quite possible that a serious loss to the revenue of the state may be expected as a result of the investigation. The activity of the present controller in the matter is due to the fact that he has just taken up the reins of office and is anxious to place the responsibility for these loose business methods upon his predecessor.

Match & Medicines

AND

U. S. REVENUES.

I want the new United States Revenue Society to have 250 members by May 1st next. I want to encourage the collecting of the stamps of our own country (and surely no branch of collecting appeals to one's patriotism and Americanism, like the stamps of one's own country). No stamps are more beautiful, none so unique in shape and design, and from a speculative standpoint none so promising. Collections recently sold at auctions have brought from two to ten times their actual cost. No collection of any other stamps has brought back their first cost at auction. I am determined to get more collectors started collecting

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

V. T.:—Your question, as follows, was submitted to S. Schachne, Chillicothe, Ohio: "I should like to know if any of the readers of the WEEKLY can give me any information relative to a postal card that was recently added to my collection. It is the Suriname, 1879 issue, 7½ cent on 12½ cent, surcharge reading 77–2 cent." Mr. Schachne, who is a past master of postal card lore, says: "So-called errors in the 1879 Surinam provisional cards—by no means of infrequent occurrence—are nothing but freaks. I have numerous varieties of such in my collection, as, for instance, '7 1–0,' 'Cen,' 'Cem,' and 'Ceni.' The surcharge having been effected by a hand-stamp, the authorities were not very careful about keeping the stamp clean; small foreign substances adhered to it, causing many varieties. Only a microscopal examination would determine whether or not the numerator of the fraction on the card in question is a genuine '7.' If your correspondent will send me the card I shall examine it closely and return it to him, with all the information that I may be able to give him in the premises."

R. H. S.:—This correspondent who recently propounded a question concerning the error, Chile, 1903, 3c on 5c, red, which we were unable to answer, now asks: "Please inform me how many of the following stamps of Chile were issued and how many used: 46a, 49, 52a and 53a. As full information as possible will be appreciated." Definite data on the subject of statistics desired is lacking. For instance, the number existent of the 10c on 30c, inverted surcharge, 1903, is obscured by statements, such as: "The authorities took great pains to have no errors in the lot, but one (?) sheet is said to have been circulated with inverted surcharge." As to the error, 3c on 5c red, a few sheets were said to have been printed. Of the two varieties of the telegraph stamps, surcharged, "some specimens," are known. We doubt whether the number of any stamp issue can be definitely ascertained, in the way of visible supply, or number preserved, after the supply has been sold at the post-office; although it is likely that any provisional issue variety bought by speculators on the spot is preserved in its aggregate for collecting purposes. Soon after the provisional issue in question appeared, Mr. Leonard C. Hart wrote from Valparaiso regarding the variety of the 12c on 5c red: "Variety dot over 12 at right hand side, selling today at $1.50. This appears only on the right lower corner stamp on the sheet of 100 stamps." The number issued of the 12c on 5c, Valdivia, was 1,150,000.

R. E. C.:—Your recollection is correct and the Cabot issue of Newfoundland was included under the anathema of the Society for the Suppression of Speculative Stamps (long since defunct) as "Circular No. 6" issued by the society in question shows. The issue was called wholly unnecessary, and it was explained that the set "did not supersede the regular issue, the plates having been destroyed after a limited number of stamps had been printed." Needless to say, this set, once proscribed by the association, the good intentions of its members having been beyond cavil, is today one of the most popular of issues.

C. F. Richards, New York City, writes: "I enclose small envelope such as is used by one of the largest railroad systems in the country, having read a recent discussion of these envelopes in your columns, and being satisfied that a statement I saw there to the effect that mail in these envelopes could not legally be sent off the road, was incorrect. You will note that this envelope in addition to the 'R R B' has the statement that it cannot be used for 'private correspondence,' but must only be used for 'company business' between company employees and 'immediate connecting line.' I have seen many envelopes used by this company, but very seldom one with the cautionary sentences. All have the 'R R B' and all are used without postage stamps, on its own system roads, and over every road immediately connecting. I have long understood this to be so, and today one of the company's mail clerks confirmed my opinion, saying that he sent the envelopes to connecting roads every day, and that he had never heard that there was any law to the contrary." Mr. Richards is not the only correspondent who has refuted the statement made in this column some weeks ago, when the subject was first considered with some degree of thoroughness, that the R R B envelopes, according to a ruling of the government, could not be handled by a company other than the sending one, and that while courtesies might be extended one road by another in the inter-carriage of mail, yet, according to a strict interpretation of the code, the R R B matter is not to be handled by other than the principal road or system; and not by an outside connecting line. While we may be attaching an importance to the subject that is out of proportion to its real merits from a philatelic view-point, we may as well have the question settled right. We shall submit the evidence in rebuttal to our original informant to hear what he may have to say further.

K. A. C.:—Unless the stamp of Grenada that you describe, used in 1884, orange with surcharge in green, one penny and crown, bears the surcharge, postage, as well, it is not a postage but is a fiscal stamp. The pen-marking shows fiscal use, as a rule.

John Terry submits an impression, in purple, in postmark form, reading: Correos. Nov. 6, 1893. Tumbador. Mr. Terry asks: "Can you give me any information regarding the marking? Is it a provisional or a postmark?" While something about the item suggests provisional practice in South American countries during rebellion days, yet we are unable to say definitely anything about the impression.
